The MODERN THEATRE

1941 COMES IN LIKE FOUR LIONS!

This is a good year to be on the safe side. Momentous changes are ahead for all of us in this industry and there's a comforting sense of calm and security when your theatre is anchored to the wise, kindly, seasoned executive-management represented by the Friendly Company.

1941 truly comes in like four lions. Imagine starting a New Year with a barrage of such big-time entertainments ("Comrade X", "Flight Command", "The Philadelphia Story", "Come Live With Me"). They will be followed by many others of equal importance.

Happy M-G-M New Year to You!

The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

They'll Remember This One

HERE we are once more bowing to the year-in custom of writing a piece about events to come with some deference, no matter how casual, to those now maneuvering their way into the covers of the twelve months which have gone.

Off to the immediate right, staring us hard in the face, is the prognostication for 1940. Written, of course, one year ago, on a rereading it turns out to be somewhat on the discouraging side. The war, then, was a few months old. Foreign markets were collapsing with dull thuds on all sides. The crying need for self-sufficiency in the domestic field, even at that time a persistent discussion on this page, slowly was engaging more serious attention.

Those were the days, too, when the government's suit hung heavily and like a pall over the industry. When individual anti-trust actions were piling up. When Hollywood was worried about the outcome and when that worry was beginning to bear fruit in the form of minus marks chalked up against the product.

Those were the days when the normal functions of making, selling and exhibiting 'em were giving ground to conferences with lawyers, the preparation of evidence, the wearing down of pencils in the endeavor to dope out what the trial, if it ever came off, would cost and who in thunder was to pay for it. It was one helluva mess.

And Now It's 1941

THE war is still raging. Predictions in that direction flourish in direct ratio to the points of view you either hear or encourage. Foreign markets are largely a fond dream of another and lush day and the need for self-sufficiency here is more alive now than then; the situation changing only in the realization the need is greater and some effort having been applied in the cause of attaining it.

The government suit, with provisos, has been dropped, of course, in favor of the consent decree and there yet remains a disposal of the action against the "Little Three." A new selling order has been determined for '41-42. Arbitration, voluntary for the exhibitor and compulsory for the five consenting distributors, stands athwart the changing scene. In New York, leading executives talk of the decree as a cleanser which will purge the industry of many of its poisons and once more sweeten the body corporate. In short, it's a new day you will find if you begin to scan the horizon.

Aware as most certainly we are of exhibitor opposition to the decree and its five-in-a-block, see-them-if-you-want-to plan, it happens to be our opinion that resting in the formula is a genuine opportunity of outstanding proportions to bring about long-needed adjustments in the functioning of this industry. Come scathing denunciation or not, it's our opinion and behind it we line up solidly.

Five at a time and only if finished, for instance, suggests the immediate need for all three arms of the business to make real attractions more attractive. This is why: Because those who make them will hold on only through merit or give way to someone who can deliver; because those who sell them will have small packages, not bales, to dispose of and will find individual merchandising, intensified as never before, part of their new routine; because those whose job it is to bang home the entertainment message directly to the ticket buyer will have to keep on hitting it if they want to stay in the parade.

A New Pattern

IT MEANS work. And work may mean less comfort. It will mean a breather for the easy chair. No doubt, less fishing and less hunting, shorter vacations at Arrowhead, Palm Springs or Florida. It means clearer and more agile thinking and harder punching from raw stock to ticket collections. It means the studio that delivers will murder its competition. And inevitably, it means that phoney values, by all the signs of this impending future, will give ground to the real thing.

And so, if a more sharply etched mark of sterling should emblazon the product and if the theatreman, for the first time in his life can see what he buys before he buys it, we believe the exhibitor is being given a free ride in the general direction of Utopia.

As the effective date of unwound selling draws closer, perhaps the shortening calendar will swing dissenting opinion around to this point of view. It is evident the business must do the best it can under, and with, the decree. That best, however, need not be negative. It can be a highly charged power line crackling with opportunity, burning the lead out of a lot of feet that have been riveted in cement and once more returning them to action.

CLEARANCE ROWS SEEN KNOTTY PROBLEM FACING ARBITRATION

Local Problems, Variety Of Zones Expected to Complicate Cases

NEW YORK—Clearance disputes are expected to be the most complex cases facing local arbitration boards as soon as the tribunals are set up in all key cities in accordance with the decree. Some theatre men see such territories as New York, Chicago and the west coast as particularly perplexing for the arbitrators in view of the local problems and variety of zones and theatres in those areas.

Industry lawyers are not unmindful of the NRA days when clearance presented the chief source of complaint and continued to remain a disputed topic with the deathknell of the Blue Eagle.

In the NRA days, arbitration boards were composed of industry factors with one impartial man sitting in to decide in the event of a tie vote. Under the decree the practice will be changed in that an impartial AAA representative will hear each case, ask questions and decide for himself what clearance is proper.

Non-Industry Appeal Board

Where the appeals board under the NRA was made up of an equal number of exhibitor-distributor representatives, the decree provisions leave the final jurisdiction of all appealed cases to three non-industry factors. How men who are not familiar with the internal problems of the business can possibly make fair rulings on clearance is what some skeptics want to know.

It is pointed out that in numerous cases exchange managers and salesmen themselves have had to visit theatres, gauge distances and make surveys before granting requests, if such were the case, on clearance.

Whether AAA men will be inclined to do the same to satisfy their own minds before rendering opinions and decisions is not known. It is likely exhibitors making appeals for changes in protection may engage their own experts to qualify on distances, but then again, it is held, one expert's opinion is as good as another, the arbitrator being the other.

In one quarter it is felt the decree itself is not explicit in its clearance section. This inquirer, for instance, asks does an hour's difference in opening between two houses constitute clearance, or must it be in terms of days? Then, if an arbitrator decides to cut down clearance he must take into consideration, above all, the right of the distributor not to have his revenue reduced from the engagements involved.

In other words, it is held, suppose an arbitrator finds that a theatre's two-week clearance over a subsequent house is excessive. He decides to cut the protection to one week, finding this proper in his own estimation. The first theatre then

"Little 3" May Tie In

New York—The industry is so closely knit that, as arbitration rulings become more or less standardized on certain type trade practices all distributors, possibly including the "Little Three," may adopt them automatically.

This, in the opinion of an AAA spokesman, was the answer to the question put to him over whether an exhibitor who had, for instance, won a clearance arbitration against one of the "Big Five" had any right to ask the other four signatories to the consent decree to follow the same procedure.

Pointing out that precedents have no standing in arbitration and that each case is decided on its own merits, the spokesman, nevertheless, feels decisive trends in arbitration rulings will go a long way toward eliminating the necessity for bringing new complaints to tribunals on similar controversies. Corollary to this thought is that parties to a dispute that recognize a similarity in the basis of the complaint will settle their differences on the strength of precedents and thus relieve the tribunals of considerable work.

Another significant observation has the same source envisioning exhibitors relying on arbitration rather than going to court on disputes not arbitrable under the consent decree once "arbitration is accepted by the industry."

Mayer Top Salary Executive At M-G-M, Report Will Show

NEW YORK—Louis B. Mayer, production head of M-G-M, continued as the highest paid executive in the company and in the industry for 1940, it will be revealed shortly when SEC makes public the annual listing of salaries.

Mayer's net earnings will more than double Nicholas M. Schenck, president, who is understood to be third on the M-G-M list. Hunt Stromberg, producer, is second.

Principally responsible for the largest figure is Mayer's four-year contract as managing director of production and which expires December 31, 1942. Under the terms of the pact, he receives a weekly salary of $3,000 plus additional compensation of 6.77 per cent of the combined annual net profits, after provision for dividends, taxes and other commitments.

Stromberg, under his arrangement which expires December 5, 1944, calls for a weekly salary of $5,000 plus 1.05 per cent of the combined annual net profits, after taxes, etc. The percentage arrangement went into effect as of January 1, 1939, when a previous clause providing for a bonus of $15,000 for each picture he produces over eight in a given year was cancelled.

Schenck's total salary for the year will approximate $300,000 under his agreement for $2,500 a week plus 2.5 per cent of the profits. The five-year contract which expires December 31, 1941, is up for renewal on the same terms. Stockholders will be asked February 11 to ratify the arrangement, which also calls for stock options.

The annual Loew statement, due shortly, will show that approximately $3,000,000 was paid in 1940 to 17 officers and directors. While no individual salaries must be listed under the new SEC law, those whose compensation are embraced in the total include Schenck, David Bernstein, Arthur M. Loew jr., J. Robert Rubin, Al Lichtman, Edgar J. Mannix, Sam Katz, E. A. Schiller, Leopold Friedman, Benjaman Thau, Jesse T. Mills, Charles C. Moskowitz, Joseph R. Vogel, Charles K. Stern, Nicholas Nayfack, Len Cohen, R. Lazarus and Hattie Helborn. All with the exception of Vogel are officers.

Directors who do not receive compensation from the company are George N.

BOXOFFICE announces the latest improvement to its fine REVIEWS SERVICE

PRE-TESTED

BOXOFFICE submitted its improved service plan to a "test" among its oldest subscribers and PICTURE GUIDE users. It received a virtually unanimous Exhibitor Approval.

Here are some of the comments:

"I think the new review plan is as far ahead of the old as BOXOFFICE is ahead of all other trade papers and that really is far."
—ROY E. CAMPBELL, Shafer Theatre, Garden City, Mich.

"It is pleasing to note that BOXOFFICE is continually striving to improve—and succeeding."
—J. W. FAIR, Rivoli Theatre, North Sydney, Novia Scotia.

"Much easier and more efficient method of filing reviews. Another service by BOXOFFICE that is appreciated."
—J. A. OWEN, Pix Theatre, Philadelphia, Miss.

"Something to crow about."
—W. J. STRAUB, Hippodrome, Gloversville, N. Y.

"Excellent. Great improvement. Time saver."
—ED C. ROWDEN, Golden State Theatre, Oakland, Calif.

"Unquestionably a decided improvement."
—HERMAN COVI, Covi Theatre, Herminie, Pa.

"Think it a splendid plan. Thanks."
—W. ROY WRIGHT, Hempstead Theatre, Hempstead, Tex.

STARTS THIS ISSUE ON PAGE 23

SINCE the introduction of the first PICTURE GUIDE, seven years ago, we have effected a number of changes, each making for greater simplicity in filing BOXOFFICE reviews in this handy, pocket-fitting, loose-leaf binder.

Now, we have perfected another change—this time eliminating:

1. The need to cut out each review separately.
2. The requirement of moistening gummed strips.
3. The time-loss in doing those things.

Simply fold page on the middle line—and you have four pages of reviews, already punched, ready to put into your PICTURE GUIDE.

These reviews will regularly be indexed in BOXOFFICE'S Booking Chart — by date of review and by PG page number. Then, four times a year, we will publish quarterly index, also designed to fit your PICTURE GUIDE.

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

WIDELY recognized as one of the sanest columns giving birth in Hollywood are Douglas W. Churchill's Sunday articles in the "New York Times." Reviewing the kind of a year it was there in '40 and finding himself inevitably wondering about the decree and its impact, he has this to report by way of a studio reaction:

> "While the suit and settlement are popularly believed to be an aid to the exhibitor, there is strong feeling in Hollywood that it is the producer who will benefit. He will milk the theatre man for every possible penny when he has a good picture and he will lump the bad ones into bargain package deals. Some executives envision conditions in which some films will virtually be boycotted in cities where exhibitors refuse to meet studio terms. This will be fought by selling the films to the customers first and, with a demand created to see a certain picture, it is believed that the theatres will be compelled to play it.
> "The system of warfare is compared with that employed by manufacturers when chain stores refuse to stock a product; advertising campaigns are launched and the patrons start demanding the wares. Along this line the studios foresee publicity and advertising campaigns in newspapers on a scale hitherto unknown."

Brother Churchill has something there.

No Catch

It is a strange approach to the decree that finds its way into a current MPTOA bulletin. There, Ed Kuykendall is saying this:

> "Talk of exhibitor cooperation 'to make it work' and 'to give it a fair trial' is more or less nonsense. There is no provision anywhere in the decree for exhibitor participation or cooperation in the administration or operations under the decree. It actually makes no particular difference whether the exhibitor is willing to cooperate or whether he isn't.
> "The new methods and restrictions on selling are to be undertaken entirely by the distributors. The arbitration system is placed entirely in the hands of the American Arbitration Association with any exhibitor cooperation or participation other than submitting complaints strictly forbidden."

But does it make no difference whether the exhibitor is willing to cooperate or whether he is not? It seems apparent to this watchtower that it does, and vastly so. Arbitration, insofar as the theatreman is concerned, is voluntary. But under the theory, at least, of the plan, a chance is offered to adjudicate many of the differences that have beset him for years. We maintain this is a decided advantage in that, if it furnishes nothing else, it does furnish an opportunity before impartial arbiters to get a fairer shake, provided merit is present.

In Defense

The other issue carried a reprint of a series of cracks at film advertising. "Printer's Ink" was indulging in the cracking, charging generally no attraction possibly could live up to the promises made for it in paid copy. "Sucker-bait doctrine of advertising and publicity" was the term, applied to a point where "the audience simply expects too much, so that the normal good picture disappoints and the bad one enrages."

We thought the criticism in great measure applied, but also asked for defenders. Dave Martin, manager of the Fox Granada in Inglewood, Calif., rides to the rescue. He writes:

> "Might be a fine gesture on the part of the publishers of 'Printer's Ink' to address an editorial or two about the honesty of commodity advertising to the advertising writers who subscribe to that publication.
> "The sad spectacle of national advertisers on the receiving end of cease and desist orders from the federal government with respect to their unethical advertising involving fraudulent claims and injurious products has never, to my knowledge, been the lot of motion picture producers.
> "Pick up a national magazine and glance through the ads. It won't take you long to uncover a score of half truths about the merchandise flaunted in the face of the reading public. But then, of course, 'it's fun to be fooled.'"

ISS BISHOP"

This is one of the AUDIENCE-ENTICING ADS from United Artists sensational pressbook campaign!

THE WOMAN THEY WHISPERED ABOUT...

Occasionally there comes out of Hollywood a picture so truthful in its portrayals, so universally human in its story, that it reaches deep down into the hearts of all who see it—until it becomes, not a series of incidents flashed upon a screen, but a rich, vivid, personal experience.

Such a picture was "Stella Dallas". Such a picture was "The Old Maid". To this gallery of great films which tell earnestly and powerfully of women who love with every fibre of their being, you will add "Cheers for Miss Bishop".

For here is a story of a woman in love—deeply, overwhelmingly. And—as is ever the case with emotions like these—the world, with its narrow code of conduct, refused to understand. And yet—with gossip and malice and misunderstanding arrayed against her, Ella Bishop found the greatest happiness a woman can ever know!

As you share her struggle for the joy that belongs by right to any beautiful woman... as you help her cope with a problem in romance which only a very clever woman could hope to solve... as you thrill to the sheer intimacy of her love story... then, lost in the magic of a brilliantly conceived performance of the role by talented Martha Scott, you will become one with Ella Bishop. And you will find it one of the most enjoyable and exciting experiences you have ever known.

Q. AND A. SERIES TRANSLATES ARBITRATION INTO EASY TERMS

Covers Practical Side Of Operation Under Decree Provisions

NEW YORK—What is arbitration all about?

What makes it tick?

How will it work?

After a study of the consent decree and its application to exhibitor problems, a BOXOFFICE reporter figured out it would be a good idea to ask the American Arbitration Ass'n some questions that either called for answer or for clarification, all in the interest of removing supposition.

And so he did.

AAA executives thought the questions "excellent," because of their simplicity. The reporter was encouraged to ask more than he originally intended or had thought about on his own. In fact, he was encouraged to invite still others from exhibitors. Not all of them necessarily will be answered because procedures, in some cases are expected to develop out of experience springing from the actual application of arbitration under the mandate of the decree.

23 Questions

At any event, 23 different questions were worked out under this prearranged plan:

BOXOFFICE asked them.

The American Arbitration Ass'n answered them. Here goes:

What is arbitration?

Arbitration is a method of settling differences between two or more persons, out of court. Decisions are rendered by one or more arbitrators who are selected by the disputants. The awards of the arbitrators are legally enforceable because the parties to the dispute have signed an agreement to abide by the decision, in accordance with arbitration law.

What kind of differences may be arbitrated?

Practically any disputes which are actionable in a civil court.

Is arbitration a new procedure?

No. It is one of the oldest methods of settling controversies known to man. It has been practiced in this country since the landing of the Pilgrims.

What advantages does arbitration offer over court procedure?

(a) It is speedy. Experience has shown that very few cases are not settled after a single arbitration hearing.

(b) It is comparatively inexpensive. The average cost of an arbitration is about one per cent of the amount involved

(c) Arbitration preserves goodwill. Because the hearings are informal, inexpensive and speedy it is customary for the disputing parties to maintain good relations. A hand shake rather than acrimony is the usual climax to an arbitration hearing.

Are lawyers necessary?

Not unless the parties retain them. The arbitration hearings are held informally and the strict rules of evidence and other court room restrictions play no part in the proceedings. Each side is allowed to tell its story without legal objections or interference.

What is the American Arbitration Ass'n?

The AAA is a non-profit making organization with nation-wide facilities for arbitrating disputes. It maintains a panel of 7,000 expert arbitrators in 1,600 cities and is supported primarily by memberships, contributions and arbitration fees.

Do many industries use arbitration to settle their disputes?

Yes, many. There are over 400 trade groups throughout the country which use this method. It now encompasses virtually the entire amusement field, including Actors Equity, Screen Actors' Guild, Dramatics' Guild and the "Big Five." Also the garment trades, the New York Stock Exchange, the silk industry and the grain, hay and feed dealers use the AAA.

Are there differences between commercial and industrial arbitration and that provided for under the consent decree for the industry?

(1) In commercial and industrial arbitration under AAA rules the arbitrators are not paid. Under the consent decree they will receive compensation for each hearing. (2) In arbitration under AAA there is no appeal from the arbitrator's award. The consent decree provides for an appeals board of three to review cases appealed from the local tribunals.

On the Cost

What will it cost the exhibitor to start an arbitration?

There are two established costs. The first is a filing fee of $10; the second is the arbitrator's fee. The arbitrator may assess his fee and the filing fee on the losing party, or he may apportion the costs among the parties. Therefore, if the exhibitor wins his case he may not have to pay anything for the arbitration.

What will the arbitrator's fee be?

The decree provides that an arbitrator shall be paid a maximum of $50 a hearing. However, that figure will be applied only in the rarest instances.

Are there any other costs?

Any other costs, such as stenographic fees, etc., are entirely optional with the parties and to be paid for by the individual demanding them.

Is there any cost for appealing a case?

There is a filing fee of $25 for cases which are appealed, but this fee is

And So He Got the Billing

New York—The AAA offers the following as a typical case of arbitration. The speed with which the dispute was arbitrated and a decision rendered is not especially illustrative of the speed that will otain in film cases, but rather the flexibility of the system and procedure, according to AAA.

A few months ago on the same day that a new Broadway play was scheduled to open, the leading man declared he would not go on because his name was not in lights on the marquee. He claimed that, due to the importance of his role, he was entitled to top billing. When the producer agreed to the demand the leading lady protested on the ground she deserved star billing. This all happened a few hours before the opening night curtain. The AAA was called in and stress was laid on the importance of speed. In a few hours the parties to the dispute and the arbitrators, who were hurriedly called in, met in a conference room. A decision was reached at once. The leading man won the case. When the curtain rose that evening, electricians were still busy putting his name in lights.

From Radio to Silk to Acting

New York—Ample evidence of the responsibility with which reputable persons in many walks of life regard their choice as arbitrators for the AAA is offered in the following incidents taken from the AAA files.

In one case, three of the country's most prominent attorneys spent nine days away from their practice to settle a wage dispute between the three national radio networks and its employes. This was one of the longest cases on record and the arbitrators received nothing in compensation.

In another instance three arbitrators—a prominent economist, a statistician and a business man—traveled from New York to Connecticut in order to study methods for weaving silk in order to understand the issues of a dispute between two large New England mills.

In still another case a prominent newspaper editor spent three days away from his office in order to study the testimony in an Actor's Equity dispute. His decision was hailed by both sides for its understanding and fairness. He received no pay, of course.

FORESEE CONGRESS IN A MOVE TO TAX TICKETS FROM 10-CENTS

Usual Regulatory Crop Also Expected; State Assemblies Draw Eye

NEW YORK—There is much more than meagre evidence among Washington observers to indicate the most important, single piece of 1941 federal legislation aimed at the industry will be an attempt to start the 10 per cent tax on admissions at 10 cents instead of 21 cents.

(George J. Schaefer, RKO president, in New York a few days ago declared such a move is "essential" in order to curb the "disastrous" effect that has grown up among certain exhibitors who are cutting their normal 25-cent scales to 20 cents to avoid paying the federal levy).

Otherwise, however, there seems to be no more, no less, than the usual crop of bills that, while possibly affecting the industry indirectly, cannot be construed as designed specifically for that purpose. These now appear to be a new personal income tax, a manufacturers' sales tax and additional excise taxes. It is doubtful if a federal sales tax will be passed.

Larger State Picture

State-wise, however, the picture looms larger. Illinois may see a censorship bill introduced growing out of the present Chicago controversy on censorship.

In Maryland, the committee authorized by the legislature of 1939 to consider proposed legislative matters for 1941 have been approached by the chairman of the Maryland board to increase censorship fees from $2 to $3 per reel on originals and from $1 to $2 on duplicates. There may also be introduced a bill similar to that proposed in 1939 classifying pictures for children under 18 years of age.

Louisiana, whose 1940 legislature repealed the sales tax, effective December 31, 1940, may find it necessary to raise money and introduce new bills.

New York's money-raising problem has been largely offset from the revenue raised from pari-mutual betting on horse racing, which indicates there may not be any further need for taxation. However, there probably will be the usual run of regulatory outdoor advertising and labor bills.

New Jersey at present has no sales tax. It is difficult to predict what new revenue producing measures will be introduced when the new governor takes office on January 20. The state needs money.

In Delaware, where a committee was appointed in 1939 to investigate blue laws of the state, it is possible the findings of this committee may result in repeal of the Sunday law prohibiting exhibition of films.

In Ohio, it appears that an effort will be made to reduce censorship fees.

In Colorado, there are indications a bill permitting dog racing will be introduced.

East, West, North and South

NEW YORK—Forty-four state legislatures, all of them after revenue, will meet in regular session this year. If the record of other years prevails, laws aimed at one phase or another of the industry will be introduced.

California, Idaho, Montana, Ohio and Tennessee started the activity on January 2, but by the end of that month virtually all state law-making bodies will be in session. This is the schedule:

Increased Taxes New Congress Theme

WASHINGTON—Increased taxes appeared to be the most important legislation affecting the motion picture industry to come before the new Congress which convened January 3.

Aside from the possibility that a new effort may be made to secure legislation requiring distributors to sell their pictures singly, backed by exhibitors fighting the provisions of the consent decree in the all-industry suit, there appears to be little legislation directly affecting the industry planned at the present time.

Picture interests, however, will find their future course dominated more or less by the general legislation enacted during the session to carry out the Administration's defense program. This will be particularly true in the event general-industry

FLASHES FROM THE NEWS FRONT

Cheer Balaban Policy

MINNEAPOLIS—The promise of Barney Balaban, Paramount president, that subsequent blocks of five will not be conditioned upon deals for the first block is "entirely satisfactory" to Northwest Allied. The pledge, via an open letter from Balaban to Fred Strom, secretary of the exhibitor unit, stated that if Paramount offers blocks of five pictures to an exhibitor the latter will be free to buy or not to buy, and that subsequent blocks will not be withheld until preceding blocks are sold and booked.

From a trade press interview given by Balaban, the Allied unit officials had gathered that there would be such conditioning sales and, in an open letter to the Paramount president, charged this would violate the spirit and letter of the consent decree at the start.

No Bank Night Stay

COLUMBUS—Tests of the legality of Bank Night may proceed without interference of the Ohio supreme court, that tribunal ruled in denying an injunction to the Troy Amusement Co. enjoining Troy officials from halting the giveaway at the Mayflower there. The court declined to pass on the legality of the drawing.

Waldo Hearing Continues

BOSTON—The Waldo Theatre Corp. suit against Joseph Dondis, et al., continued in federal court here with testimony on buying and booking practices of the M&P circuit, Paramount affiliate.

Prepare Decree Attack

MINNEAPOLIS — Asserting that membership reaction supports plans of Northwest Allied for state legislation to nullify "objectionable" provisions of the consent decree, the board of governors will meet soon to set a date for a convention to map such a program. One of the proposals is that the exhibitors go en masse from their convention hall to the state legislature to present their case.

Detroit Suit Delay

DETROIT—Trial of the suit of Midwest Theatres against Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan, which already has consumed a month in federal court here, has been postponed until January 7 because of the illness of A. J. Levin, defendant attorney . . . An amended bill of complaint has been filed here by Jacob Schreiber in his suit to recover ownership of five local theatres from his nephew, Raymond Schreiber, operating them as Midwest Theatres.

Miscellany

John Balaban has been named midwest director for theatre participation in the Greek war relief drive . . . B&K circuit starts community singing in State Lake in Chicago loop to introduce latest songs via the theatre. Reason is Ascap-BMI music fight . . . Joseph Bernhard paused in Chicago for conference with Warner circuit officials en route to Hollywood . . . Frank Lydon, Dorchester, Mass., is expected to be unopposed this year for re-election as president of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., Boston Allied affiliate.

Harry Talks to Katie Once More

New York—Harry Brandt, president of the ITOA of New York, knows his publicity values. He also recognizes a hit attraction when it does about $125,000 in one week at the Music Hall where paid admissions totaled 110,168 in four Christmas-New Year's week days.

Magnanimously, Brandt now determines Katharine Hepburn is no longer boxoffice "poison." She's off his deadly list. So completely off it that Howard Dietz, acting for M-G-M, is sending out long telegrams to newspapers advising of the news.

Atlas Deeper in RKO-KAO Via Buy of Meehan Stock

NEW YORK—Bolstering its position in RKO and KAO, Atlas Corp. has purchased a substantial block of M. J. Meehan's preferred shares in KAO. In addition, an option has been taken on the remainder of the Meehan interest in the theatre company.

The specific amount of shares and the investment involved have not been made public, but the indication is that, if the entire transaction is completed, approximately $4,000,000 will be involved.

Under the terms of the deal the stock purchased is subject to terms of a voting trust whereby representatives of Meehan will exercise voting rights for an extended period of time if the option is not picked up.

At the November meeting of the RKO board, the subject of purchasing Meehan's interest in KAO came up and was tabled becauses of officially ascribed unsettled conditions resulting from the war. Several deals have been on and off for the stock by RKO over the past few years. It is believed the Atlas deal, when finally consummated, will give the investment house control of both KAO and RKO. In the last Atlas financial report, the company stated it held 29,881 shares of RKO six per cent cumulative stock and 832,418 shares of RKO common and 327,811 RKO warrants for an aggregate investment of $3,695,911.06.

The deal comes fast on the heels of an $8,000,000 financing arrangement understood to have been worked out by George J. Schaefer with Boston interests. Part of the loan was to apply to the Meehan purchase and the rest to RKO requirements.

Monogram St. Louis Meet Shifted to January 11

ST. LOUIS—Monogram franchise holders have postponed for a week their scheduled two-day meeting here January 4-5. Because of the holidays, it was decided to hold the session January 11-12. The men will discuss current output as well as future plans.

It is reported George W. Weeks may increase his "Range Busters" series from 12 to 18 for the season. These westerns are understood to be popular. Edward A. Golden, former general sales manager, has become a partner with Weeks in the new unit which is to produce the additional "Range Busters" series.

Plans for some of the bigger pictures scheduled for the next few months will be outlined by President Ray Johnston.

M-G-M Striving for Pledge of 36 "A's"

PALM SPRINGS, CAL.—It is M-G-M's earnest intention to deliver its promised quota of 36 "A" films this season despite the complexities of preparing the 1941-42 schedule to comply with the decree, according to William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, who is taking a short vacation here before going on to the studios for production conferences. With him are his two sons, Thomas and William jr., who will remain until late this month and return east with Rodgers.

Declining to hazard a guess on when his company will begin selling next season's product, Rodgers is of the opinion nothing concrete will be available until late in March. His last visit to the studios about six weeks ago, he indicates, was for the purposes of advising production executives of his selling problems for 1941-42. When he confers with them again in about a week he expects to get some form of reply that will permit him to formalize plans. The company may hold a sales convention in June.

Rodgers makes it clear every effort will be made to fulfill the current program, but indicates the latter part of the season may find a few "B" productions dropped to get the new lineup under way. The company has delivered 13 of the 36 "A's" promised for 1940-41; this through December, and will have four more by the end of January. With a policy committed to 44 to 52 Rodgers foresees little difficulty in meeting it. So far three "B's" have been delivered of the 16 promised, with at least one coming up this month. If, according to Rodgers' calculations, the entire group of 36 "A's" is delivered and the company finishes at least four more "B's," which seems a certainty, the minimum of 44 promised will be attained easily.

Cannot Use Frozen Funds for Theatres

London—Commenting on the new British remittance plan, Ernest W. Fredman observes in "The Daily Film Renter":

"It will, of course, leave a terrific amount of unremittable funds in this country, and your speculation is as good as mine as to what will happen to them —though I don't think you need have any apprehension that they will be used in the buying of kinemas because I just don't think that's possible. Certainly, if my information from a very high official in the treasury is correct, it can't be done."

can claim he does not wish to pay as much in rentals, and, since the second theatre has gained a week, it is hardly likely he will be asked to pay more for his film. Hence, the distributor finds himself in the middle, but can ask the higher board to review the case.

While the indication will be to get quicker playoff under the decree's block-of-five sales plan, it is understood distributors will not waive any clearance rights where rentals may be affected. As one attorney expressed it, "The arbitrators are not gods. They will have their hands full when it comes to clearance."

A special crew of lawyers is being assigned to arbitration by home offices, the theory being that for the first year clearances will easily take first place in the number of complaints to be filed and adjudicated.

After various deductions, as provided in other employment agreements, Bernstein receives $2,000 a week plus 1.5 per cent of the net earnings; Katz, $3,000 a week, plus 1.4 per cent; Lichtman, $3,000, plus 1.05 per cent; Mannix, $2,500 salary and $500 expense, plus 1.4 per cent; Rubin, $2,000, plus 1.4 per cent; Thau, $1,750 plus 7/10 of one per cent.

Bernhard on Coast

HOLLYWOOD—Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the Warner circuit, is here from New York to confer with Harry M. and Jack L. Warner.

Awaiting Word From Hays On MPPDA Pact Renewal

NEW YORK—Twice reported on the agenda of the MPPDA directors, just so many times has the renewal of Will H. Hays' contract as president of the association failed to come up for discussion, simply because there appears nothing further to discuss.

That he will continue in the post he has held consecutively for the last 18 years is no longer subject of speculation. The heads of the companies, many weeks ago, so agreed and now it's up to Hays. The strongest indication of the final outcome, however, is seen in his voluntary offer to reduce his yearly salary from $100,000 to $80,000 and his traveling expenses, now fixed at another $100,000 annually, by $20,000. It seems pretty much on the foregone conclusion side that the MPPDA head would not advance his own proposal unless he had all intention of remaining in his post.

At the adjourned meeting of the directors last Friday, the association's budget of $750,000 for 1941 was presented by Hays and accepted by the member companies. The total matches the budget for 1940. Acceptance was voiced despite the understood fact the budget committee, composed of Joseph Hazen, Sidney R. Kent and Nicholas M. Schenck had not prepared a formal presentation. It is further understood there was mild opposition against voting the new one on a flat, one-year basis but that, when Hays pointed out any staggering plan on the basis of a three-month period, as recommended, would present difficulties in operation, the original proposal was voted unanimously.

Joseph I. Breen, production code administrator, who is spending a vacation here and in Philadelphia with members of his family, appeared before the board Friday. He is reported to have registered his difficulties in keeping studio heads and producers constantly in line. He was voted confidence by the company heads who, however, pointed out the product is made in Hollywood and that, therefore, code administration is a matter for direct handling at the scene of production.

WHAT THE STUDIOS ARE DOING

No Letup in Record Production Pace Seen

HOLLYWOOD — All dispensers of gloom anent the Hollywood scene to the contrary, actual statistics reveal there is to be no letdown in production pace during the first weeks of January and, according to schedules already set up, a fast picture-making tempo seems set to maintain through February also. The lineup for this month includes five each from Republic and Universal; four from Warner, experiencing the most intensive mid-season boom in studio history; four each from Metro and Paramount; two each from Columbia and 20th Century-Fox; three from RKO Radio; and one from Monogram for a grand total of 30. In February ten starts are slated. The breakdown finds Universal to roll two, Columbia two, 20th Century-Fox two, and Argosy, Alexander Korda, Sol Lesser and Republic one each. More than two-thirds of the January camera entries are of the big-budgeted variety.

Still Emphasize Campaigns For the Early Runs

Still turning their hand toward selling pictures in early runs, studio publicity-advertising executives announced such enterprises as: Warner is arranging a billboard campaign on "Flight From Destiny," using 1,000 boards in 32 cities. Advertising budget is boosted to $150,000 . . . Pacific Coast premiere of Walt Disney's "Fantasia" will be in Los Angeles late this month. National exploitation is being handled by Frank Braden and roadshow treatment in a dozen or more key cities will follow as Fantasound sound units are built.

Five Large-Scale Independent Productions Are Scheduled

Five large-scaled independent productions are slated to roll within the next 30 days. Included are two for RKO Radio—Herbert Wilcox's "Sunny" and William Hawks' "My Life With Caroline" . . . Universal will distribute two others, Frank Lloyd's "Lady From Cheyenne" and Lawrence Fox's "The Man Who Lost Himself" . . . Walter Wanger will add Argosy's "The Eagle Squadron" to his United Artists schedule.

Lewis Leaves Sherman; Studio Payrolls Climb

Most important personnel change in a rather quiet week concerned the resignation of Myke Lewis as sales head for Harry Sherman Productions. No successor has been named and Lewis has announced no future plans beyond a month's holiday . . . November's increased production tempo also occasioned a boost in weekly payrolls and the studio employment index. 12,428 workers earned $557,957 during the month—$8,636 more than was paid 12,295 payrollees in October. Average weekly November paycheck was $44.90.

Miscellany:

Several top assignments in the acting and directorial divisions found Merle Oberon signed for the top spot opposite Dennis Morgan in Warner's "Affectionately Yours" . . . Martha Scott has the lead opposite George Brent in "They Dare Not Love" at Columbia . . . Randolph Scott draws a topline in RKO Radio's "True to Form." David Butler produces and directs.

Q. and A. Translates Decree Arbitration

paid by the party which makes the appeal.

Will the exhibitor have to appear personally in an appeals case?

No, he can present his material in writing and oral arguments may be heard only upon the written agreement of all parties and if ordered by the appeals board.

Where will the appeal board sit?

In the Radio City development in New York. The exact location has not yet been selected.

How can an exhibitor start an arbitration?

He does this by making his complaint in writing to the clerk of the local tribunal. The AAA is preparing special forms for such purposes.

Where will hearings be held?

In the office having jurisdiction in the particular area. There will be 31 such offices. Each hearing will be scheduled as to time, date and place in order to avoid delay. The local clerk will set the time after conferring with the parties.

How will arbitrators be chosen?

Each party to a dispute will be given a list of available arbitrators in the area. There will be not less than 10 names. Each party will cross off the names of the arbitrators objected to and will indicate the order of preference of the names remaining on the identical lists.

May the arbitrators have any connection with the industry?

No, because the decree forbids the appointment as an arbitrator of any one connected, directly or indirectly, past or present, with the industry.

Will this in any way hamper the proceedings?

No. Experience has shown that a lawyer or intelligent business man can grasp the issue at stake even though he is not familiar with the industry. Each arbitrator selected by the AAA will be a thoroughly experienced business, professional or educational person well known for his integrity, patience, understanding and judicial competence.

Is the exhibitor's presence essential at a local hearing?

Yes, because he will be needed to offer testimony concerning the dispute. However, he may be represented by an attorney or agent.

Can a settlement be made before the parties have entered into an arbitration hearing?

Yes, this is very frequently done. Almost one-third of the cases scheduled for hearings in other tribunals of the AAA are settled after a complaint has been filed. When this occurs the only cost is the amount paid for the filing fee.

Do precedents hold in arbitration?

No. Each case is decided on its own merits and the arbitrator does not have to follow any precedent. It is possible, however, that accumulations of decisions will set standards for these practices.

Can an arbitrator be removed?

Yes, upon written application of any party prior to the date the arbitrator's award becomes final. The removal may be made by the AAA upon proof that the arbitrator has a financial interest or connection with the industry or is otherwise disqualified.

How will an exhibitor know if he has won or lost a case?

Copies of the award will be mailed by the clerk of the tribunal. The award must be made in writing and notarized.

Is there a difference between "arbitration" and "mediation?"

Yes. Arbitration is a legal procedure which results in a legally enforceable award. Mediation aims at compromise and, if it fails, no binding decision is made.

How can an exhibitor determine what arbitration district has jurisdiction over his dispute?

He can do so by writing to the AAA at 8 West 40th Street, New York, until the end of January, then to the U. S. Rubber Building, 1230 Sixth Avenue, New York.

How often will the same arbitrator be called to hear cases?

That will depend entirely on the number of disputes in a particular area. In ordinary arbitration few arbitrators are called to serve more than three times a year.

How do you account for the fact that such high calibre men are willing to give up their time to act as arbitrators for the AAA?

Acting as an arbitrator is deemed by many as a public service. Day after day, men whose names are household words in American industry spend valuable time away from their business to arbitrate a dispute. Records show the leading business men sit in judgment on cases involving as little as $5.

Scollard Is Executive Assistant to Agnew

NEW YORK—C. J. "Pat" Scollard on Monday assumes a new post at Paramount as executive assistant to Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution.

His chief duties, however, will continue as in the past, in charge of advertising budgets in association with Robert M. Gillham, director of advertising and publicity, who, incidentally, is in Hollywood on a short trip.

UA Field Changes Set; Masters Now in N. Y.

NEW YORK—UA field changes, headed by appointment of Haskell M. Masters as western sales manager succeeding L. Jack Schlaifer, now a special representative, are now in effect. Masters arrived from Toronto during the week.

Lipton Assumes His Post As Columbia's Ad Chief

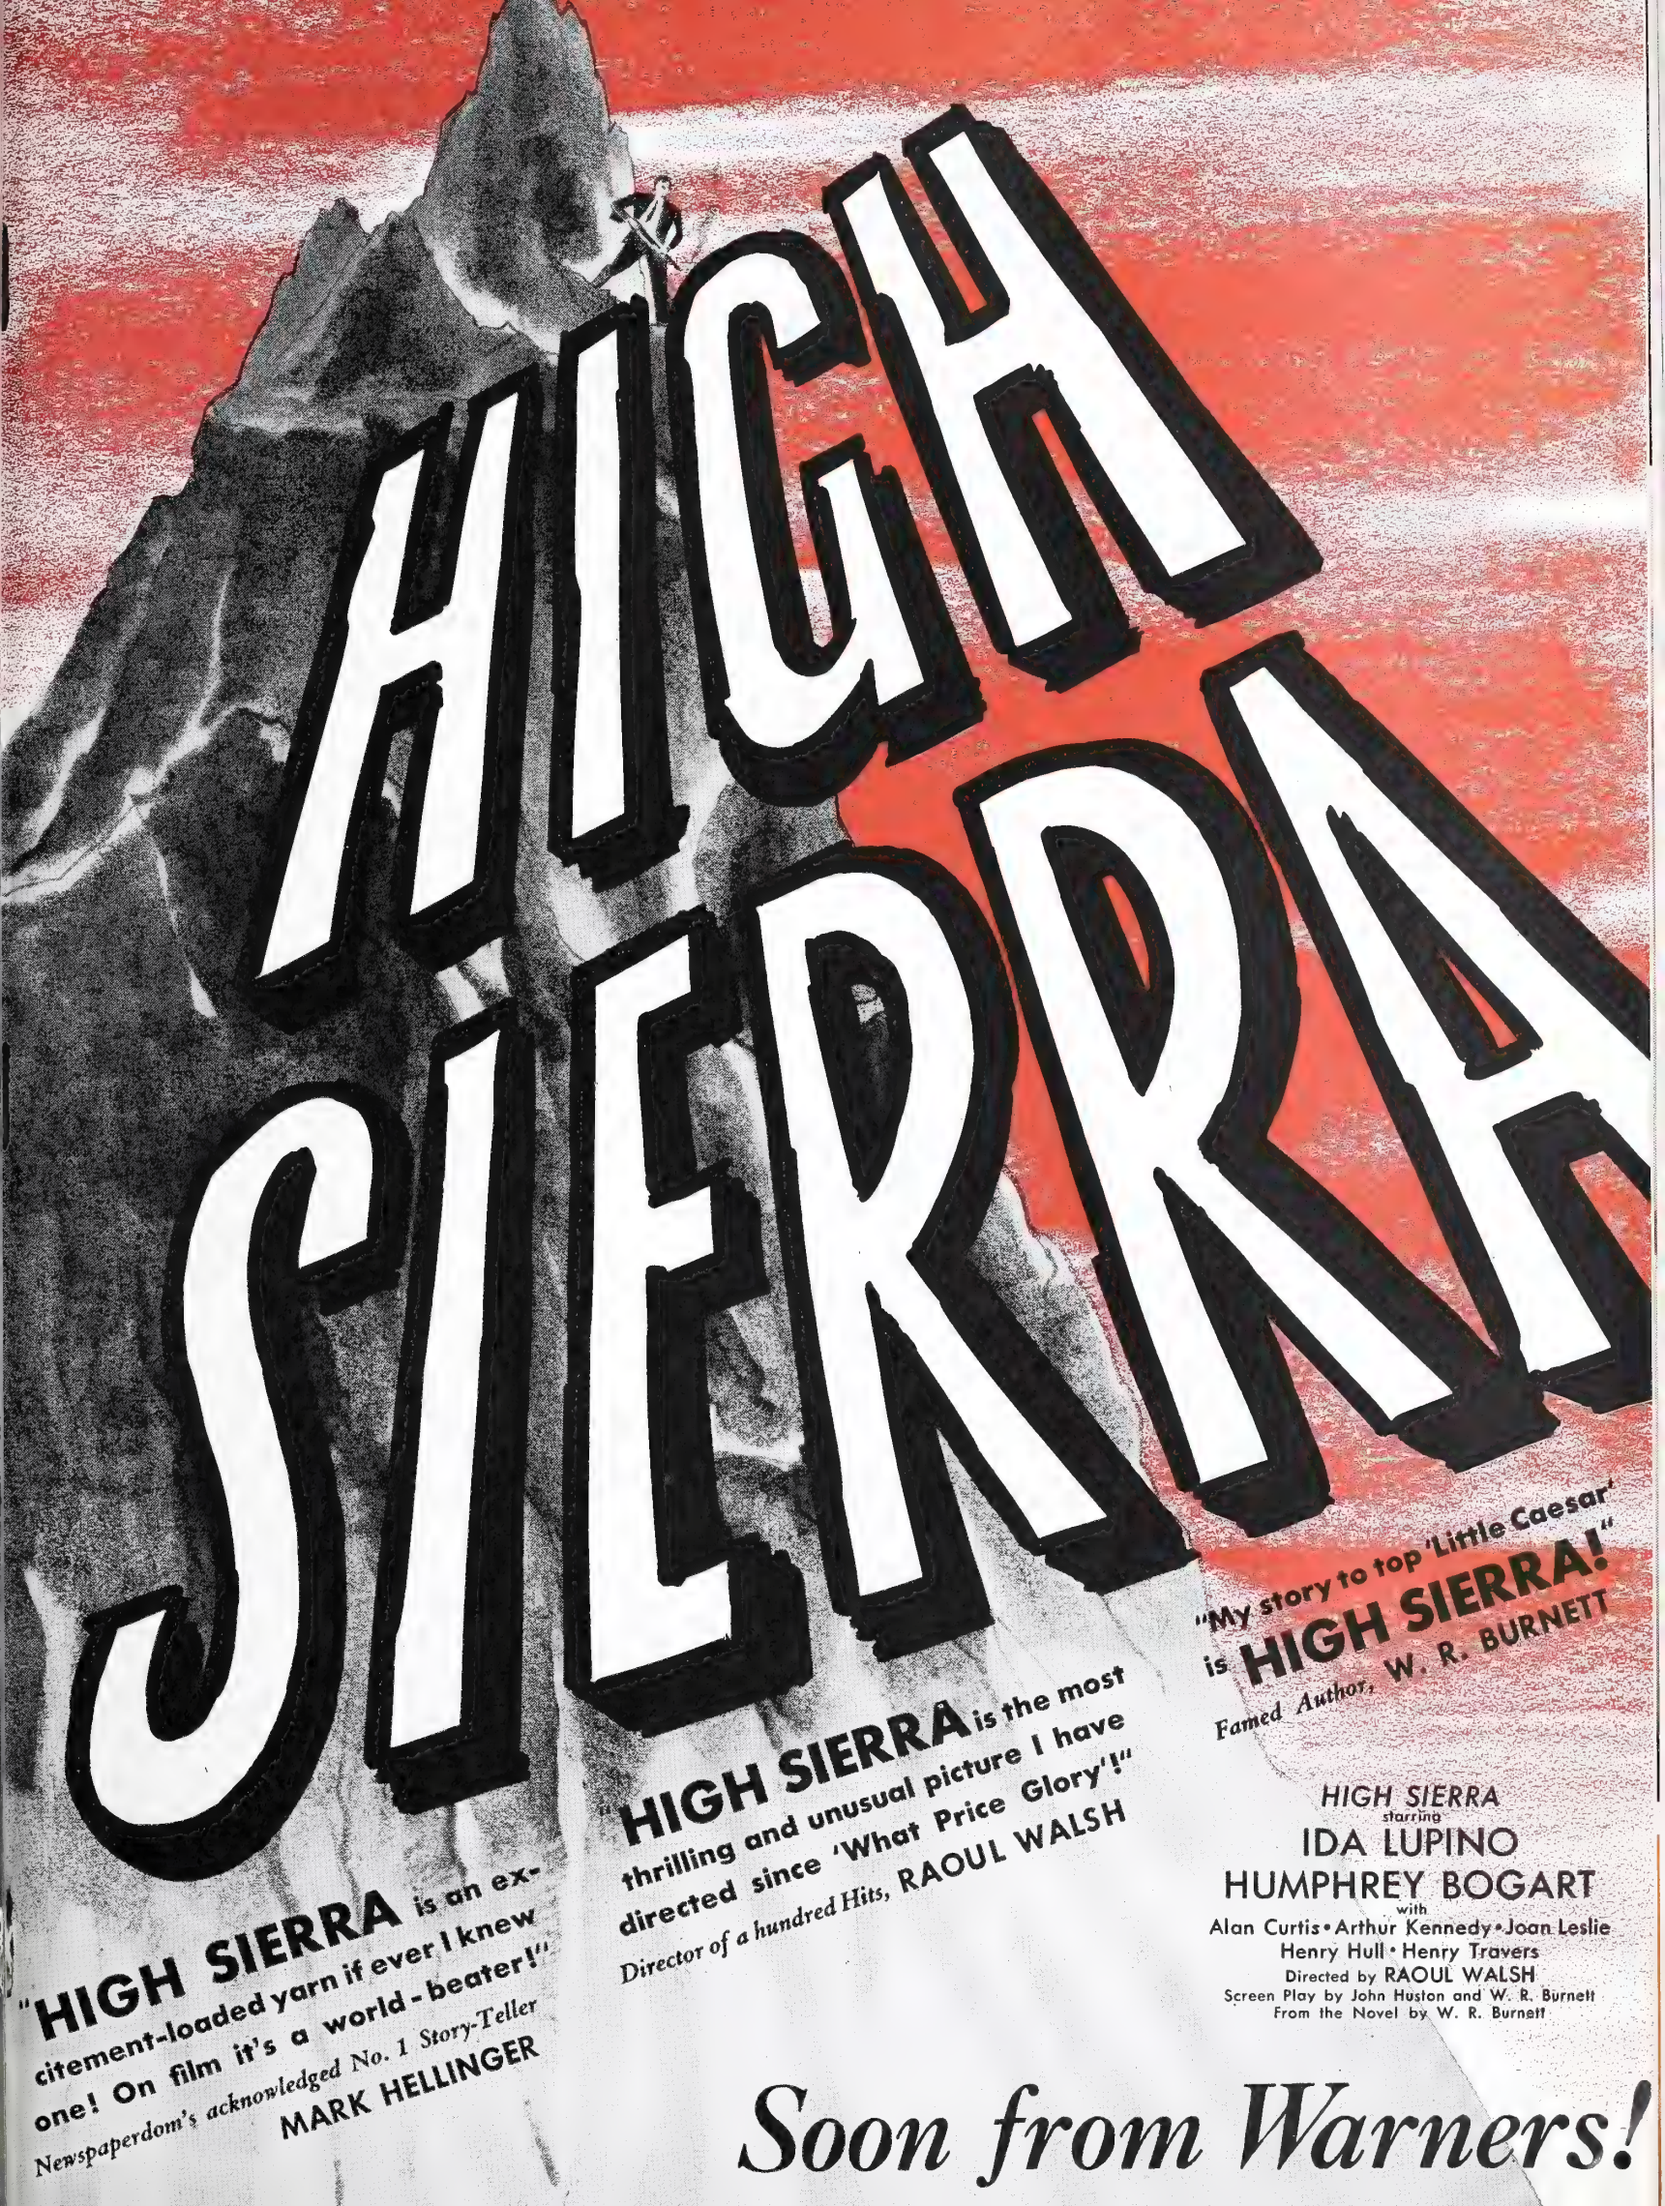
NEW YORK—David A. Lipton on Monday launches himself as director of advertising, publicity and exploitation of Columbia Pictures. He arrived from Hollywood late last week.

Wright Heading Gov't "Little Three" Action

NEW YORK—With the departure of James V. Hayes from participation in future anti-trust actions against film companies, Robert L. Wright, special assistant to the attorney general, will have complete charge of the prosecution of the amended and supplemental bill of complaint against UA, Columbia and Universal when trial is scheduled in the local federal court sometime in the spring.

Hayes has been assigned to another industry in the department of justice investigation of monopolies. He was in town Tuesday to confer with a local federal judge on another matter.

Assisting Wright, who will also be the government's overseer on the operation of the decree entered with the "Big Five," and on the suit against the "Little Three" will be John F. Clagett, Seymour Simon, J. Stephen Doyle and J. Frank Cunningham.



Suits and Decree Tour To Keep Phillips Busy

CHICAGO — Louis Phillips, Paramount home office attorney, arrived here over the weekend for the La Crosse Theatre anti-trust action which comes up Monday in Madison, Wis., federal court.

As soon as the action is completed, Phillips will return to Chicago for the defense in a plagiarism suit filed against Paramount on "Professor, Beware." This is slated to come up January 13.

Following the two hearings, he will begin a tour of Paramount exchanges in conjunction with Austin C. Keough, general counsel, to explain all phases of the consent decree to branch managers and their personnel.

Keough and Phillips will divide the country so that all exchanges are covered in the least possible time.

86 HOUSES OPEN, 82 BUILDING, 63 PLANNED AT CLOSE OF 1940

Compares With 91 During Earlier Quarter; Texas Still Tops Field

With 41 states reporting, the greatest number in any quarter, including Canada, BOXOFFICE correspondents tallied 86 new theatres opened in the last three months of 1940. This compares with 91 new structures for the quarter ended October 1.

The latest survey also shows a total of 82 projects under various stages of construction, as compared with 64 for the previous three months. New theatres planned for the last tally showed 63 as compared with 39 for the previous quarter.

Signs of army theatres cropping up all over the country are indicated by BOXOFFICE reporters for the first time. About a half dozen have been completed or are in work.

Pennsylvania came to the fore with a total of eight newly opened structures in the final quarter. This is the same number reported for the July-September months. However, Texas took the lead with nine new houses as compared to eight for the previous quarter.

Canada has shown signs of activity again after a dull July-September with 10 theatres planned and six opened.

Alabama

Andalusia—The new Martin Theatres house, the Martin, seating 1,200 has opened.

Birmingham—A new colored house, the Carver, operated by Fred Levi, has opened.

Decatur—The new Roxy, operated by Crescent Amusements, will open early in January.

Montgomery—The Charles, a 1,000-seat subsequent run house, has opened.

Sheffield—A February opening is scheduled for the new Muscle Shoals Theatres' house now under construction.

Arizona

Tempe—Dwight Harkins has started construction on a new 500-seat house to be called the College.

Arkansas

Batesville—Bill Headstream has opened the new Melba seating 725.

Fordyce—K. Lee Williams has taken a long-term lease on a local business structure for conversion into a theatre soon.

Hughes—K. H. Kinney has opened the New Hays. It seats 500.

North Little Rock—Your Family Theatres, Inc., has opened a new theatre on Main St.

Malco Realty Co. plans to build a new 750-seat theatre in the Park Hill section.

Springdale — W. F. Sonneman has opened his new Shilo.

California

Burbank—Al Minor has opened his new Magnolia, a 700-seat house.

Casa Grande—Bill Cox has opened his new Chief, seating 450.

Where and What They Are

Theatres in work, planned and opened for the quarter beginning October 1 and ended December 29, covering 41 states, and also Canada, as correlated by BOXOFFICE correspondents. Statistically, here is a state-by-state breakdown:

"Grapes" Best '40 Film To New York Critics

NEW YORK—The New York Film Critics have chosen "The Grapes of Wrath" as the best film of 1940 in their sixth annual vote and awarded scrolls for the best male and female performances of the year to Charles Chaplin in "The Great Dictator" and to Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story."

John Ford was voted the year's best director on the basis of "The Grapes of Wrath" and "The Long Voyage Home," marking the second successive year in which he has been singled out by the critics for this honor. The critics' special award, omitted last year, was restored and assigned to Walt Disney, Leopold Stokowski and their associates for "Fantasia."

"The Baker's Wife," French film, was selected as the best foreign-language picture.

Increased Taxes New Congress' Theme Song

control becomes necessary to carry out the rearmament effort.

The increased taxes, which will be designed to raise revenue to defray some of the costs of defense, will call for greater contributions by individuals and corporations—probably additional admission taxes, either through a further cut or even total elimination of the exemption or by an increase in the rate—more excise taxes, and so on.

These new taxes, however, probably will not go into effect before the beginning of the new fiscal year on July 1. Before consideration can be given new legislation, it is probable the treasury will want to determine the effects of the bills passed last year, which cannot be done until the 1940 returns are filed March 15.

With the administration definitely committed to a program of aiding Britain in every way short of war, which will require the United States to become one vast arms factory, the new Congress will have as its chief concern the enactment of such legislation as may be necessary to bring this about, including staggering appropriations.

As a result, it is now expected that little consideration will be given matters not connected with the defense effort, particularly those which are of a controversial nature. Accordingly, it is questioned whether any thought will be given to such matters as block booking legislation, particularly in view of the fact—which will be emphasized for all it is worth, if the question comes up—that the consent decree has not yet had a chance to show whether it will adequately reform the industry.

Keeping Company

F — Melodrama

M-G-M (——) 87 Minutes Rel. ————

This is the initialer in a new family series which Leo is projecting as a runner-up to the popular "Hardy" clan pictures. If the first one is criterion, the new family will have to do a lot of running before it can even see the dust of Andy and his tribe. Among the more naive patrons the offering will slide by as supporting fare. Impish Virginia Weidler imparts a few bright moments. She and other members of the cast are well selected but it was apparently impossible for them to appear advantageously, handicapped with sluggish lines and situations. The film concerns the courtship and early married life of a young couple, with the bride's parents, her sisters, and the husband's boss standing by to contribute counsel and guidance and generally complicating the proceedings. There is, of course, a jealousy-inspired separation and the inevitable reconciliation. In fact, there are few celluloid cliches which haven't been dragged into the overlong, snail-paced and purposeless screenplay. S. Sylvan Simon's direction does nothing to lift the ensemble from the doldrums.

John Shelton, Ann Rutherford, Frank Morgan, Virginia Weidler, Virginia Grey, Gene Lockhart, Sara Haden.

EXPLOITIPS: Concentrate the bulk of selling efforts around John Shelton and Ann Rutherford, building them up as the co-stars in a new series of films. Frank Morgan and Virginia Weidler are other selling names. Hold a "Keeping Company" night at which young couples are admitted at a two-for-one rate. Title can be tied into displays of men's and women's clothing, attesting to the popularity of the wearers of the new 1941 garments. Hold a contest to discover the local couple which has been married and "keeping company" the longest.

Flight From Destiny

F — Drama

WB (520) 74 Minutes Rel. ————

Is there such a thing as a "socially useful" murder? Are there circumstances which justify an ordinary citizen's taking the life of a fellow-being, no matter how richly the latter deserves to die? These are the questions posed by this highly philosophical problem picture. What's more, they are answered—and, of course, in a way that satisfies the stipulations of the production code, if not the consensus of audience opinion. Discriminating patrons will find the film engrossing and will undoubtedly be loud in their praises of its approach to an entirely different celluloid theme. Further, they will be deeply appreciative of a standardly fine performance by Thomas Mitchell. It is doubtful, however, that there will be sufficient interest on the part of the common majority to elevate the offering to the financial hit class. Directed by Vincent Sherman.

Geraldine Fitzgerald, Thomas Mitchell, Jeffrey Lynn, James Stephenson, Mona Maris, Jonathan Hale, David Bruce.

EXPLOITIPS: Thomas Mitchell and Jeffrey Lynn are the marquee names, with James Stephenson also worthy of mention in support. The story, in which a college professor discovers he has only six months to live, can be exploited along various lines. Conduct a letter-writing contest in which entrants cite the five things they would do if they found themselves in similar circumstances. Conduct a search for individuals who, pronounced "incurable," made miraculous discoveries and have them attend the showing as your guests.

The Invisible Woman

F — Comedy

Universal (——) 72 Minutes Rel. Dec. 27, '40

Those who remember "The Invisible Man" and his return —and buy this one expecting a comparable quota of chills might be disappointed if it weren't for the fact that they have a very pleasant surprise in store for them. There isn't a shudder in its entire length. But, laughs? That's what it has nothing else but. The horror element is completely eliminated to make way for the emphasis on humor. The picture is decidedly of the "Topper" school and nothing of its kind has been better done. There are a weighty cast, a screenplay from the typewriters of craftsmen, unstinting production mountings and expert direction. They combine to make a feature which should click all along the line. John Barrymore, who dominates the acting department, is a scientist who has spent ten years perfecting a machine to make people invisible. He is financed by a rich playboy. A beautiful model, Virginia Bruce, submits to the first experiment because she wants to discipline her tyrannical employer. The playboy falls for her—invisible or not—and complications arise when mobsters steal the machine. Directed by A. Edward Sutherland.

John Barrymore, Virginia Bruce, John Howard, Charlie Ruggles, Oscar Homolka, Edward Brophy, Donald MacBride.

EXPLOITIPS: Selling names here include John Barrymore, Virginia Bruce, Charlie Ruggles and John Howard. Send out mailing pieces with a woman's head drawn in outline, but without the features. Under it carry a caption such as: "The Invisible Woman—Who Is She?" Make tieups with beauty parlors on cold creams and other preparations, along the lines: "They won't make you invisible—but we guarantee all your blemishes will vanish." Plant a magician, doing disappearing tricks, in the lobby.

The Girl in the News

F — Drama

20th Century-Fox (——) 77 Minutes Rel. Jan. 31, '41

Here is as compelling a study in crime and the workings of the British judiciary as has come out of England in a long while. The story has been expertly handled by Director Carol Reed; performances by a cast of worthies are given subtly, discreetly and with telling dramatic effect. Audiences should hang onto its every tense situation raptly, respond to the shadings of comedy and be properly thrilled as the turn of events indicates. Briefly, the plot: A young nurse to a neurotic invalid stands trial when her patient dies from an overdose of sleeping pills. She is acquitted by a promising young attorney. Later, by a queer turn of events, she again is in a similar predicament and faces the gallows. A courtroom ruse by her counsel uncovers the real criminals. This one should be looked into. It has definite possibilities.

Margaret Lockwood, Barry K. Barnes, Emlyn Williams, Roger Livesey, Margaretta Scott.

EXPLOITIPS: Name values for the marquee should be considered in the light of past acceptance. Miss Lockwood has successfully appeared in British product in this country and has had an appreciative audience. Williams is noted for writing "Night Must Fall" and appearances in other British films. Tie-ins with circulating libraries are indicated. The author of this one is Roy Vickers. Get up a clue display of a copy of the London "Times" with a fake want ad marked out, a vial of harmless pills, a collection of unique keys and a phoney autopsy report indicating poison in the coroner's findings. The film should do best with the more intelligent audiences.

CATCHLINES: A Lone Girl and Her Battle Against Circumstantial Evidence.

Once Acquitted, She Faces the Gallows Again for a Similar Crime.

Bowery Boy F

Melodrama

Republic (——) 71 Minutes Rel. Dec. 27, '40

As a sociological expedition through the unsanitary abodes of the Bowery, this film just rates the label. As melodramatic entertainment, after the first few hundred feet it slips perceptibly into a routine groove. The audience gets the plight of a young doctor, an "Okie," who takes a post with a public health station and runs smack into romantic conflict with his nurse and a Park Avenue deb. To increase his consternation, there is an adolescent brat who carries the bravado of the "Dead End" type throughout the story's telling. Torn, but lightly, between reforming the boy, romancing with Park Avenue and discovering he loves the nurse, the doctor has to curb an epidemic and trap a gangster before he can really settle down to work. The story throughout twangs a familiar and none-too-interesting chord. Suitable mainly for the lower portion of run-of-the-mill duals. William Morgan directed.

Dennis O'Keefe, Louise Campbell, Jimmy Lydon, Helen Vinson, Roger Pryor.

EXPLOITIPS: The selection of names from the cast for adorning the marquee is anybody's guess. In the line of performances the troupe gives the story a merry whirl. Each characterization fits the story's bill more than adequately. Feminine interest might be aroused in Miss Vinson who is supposed to have a reputation as one of the 10 best-dressed women. Miss Campbell deserves better roles. She has real acting ability. Young Lydon's performance has become more or less stereotyped and by this time rather dull. The film's atmosphere compared with the real thing is heavily imaginative.

The Man of the Hour A

Musical Comedy

Trio Films (SR) 93 Minutes Rel. ——

American audiences who remember Maurice Chevalier via Hollywood and enjoyed him that way won't derive a like measure of entertainment in this French effort, but if it's just Chevalier they want they'll find reels and reels of him. He's backed up with a very substantial production, some risque situations, a topflight scenarist and Director Julien Duvivier. But for all that, the film doesn't evoke the fun it is designed for. It's sort of a three-ring circus, centering mostly about comedy, taking in a few songs and winding up on a dramatic note. Chevalier, a hospital electrician, donates some blood to a famed, but eccentric, actress and thereby rises to fame over night. Since it is her habit to convert her closest admirers to the theatre, Chevalier is put through the paces of a tragedian. But he flops, as does his fiancee who was being sponsored as a singer by the actress' husband. Photography and sound are noticeably below par.

Maurice Chevalier, Elvire Popesco, Alerme, Josette Day, Marcelle Geniat, Robert Lynen.

EXPLOITIPS: There seems to be little doubt that the best sales impression can be created through the use of the names in this film and what they stand for. Of course, Chevalier should be sold first. Then Duvivier, who, in French circles, created some memorable films such as "Carnet de Bal" and "End of A Day." Then there's scenarist Charles Spaak, who wrote these two films as well as "Grand Illusion." In building up Chevalier it would be best to link this effort with the type of musical comedy he pursued so vigorously in Hollywood. There are a few catchy songs which could either be played over the p. a. system, in French, of course, or whose English lyrics could be used for lobby eye-catchers. Full-size cutouts of Chevalier for window displays, with "Chevalier Is Back" should get attention.

CATCHLINES: Maurice Chevalier—The Man Who Introduced America to Paree.

The Saint in Palm Springs F

Mystery

RKO (——) 66 Minutes Rel. ——

Followers of the crime-solving activities of Leslie Charteris' "Saint" will find his film adventure in California's desert playground measuring up to the same high standards which were to be found in the series' previous chapters. George Sanders again is cast in the title role of the debonair and slightly sinister criminologist who captures crooks and hearts with equal ease. The supporting cast is adequate, while production values and direction are of high order. The plot revolves around three extremely valuable postage stamps which were smuggled out of a foreign nation as the only means through which a fortune could be brought to America. Their custodian is murdered in New York, and the Saint accepts the commission to deliver them to their rightful owner (Wendy Barrie) in Palm Springs. From then on it is a Button-Button-Who's-Got-the-Button procedure, with a gang of crooks representing the foreign power trying everything—including two more murders—to steal the documents from whomever happens to have them at the moment. Directed by Jack Hively.

George Sanders, Wendy Barrie, Paul Guilfoyle, Jonathan Hale, Linda Hayes, Ferris Taylor, Harry Shannon.

EXPLOITIPS: Widely followed by detective story fans, the "Saint" novels by Leslie Charteris have a ready-made audience of considerable proportions. Tie up with bookstores and libraries for displays, liberally garnished with stills from the picture. George Sanders is being generally accepted in the title role, so give the marquee play to him along with Wendy Barrie. Hold a stamp collection contest, giving term passes as prizes for the largest, most valuable and neatest collections. Display the entries in the lobby, with an "armed" attendant on guard duty. Run a "Stamp Matinee" with admission a cancelled postage stamp from a point out of the city, plus a slightly-reduced fee.

Among Human Wolves F

Melodrama

Film Alliance of U. S. (SR) 59 Minutes Rel. ——

A melodramatic thriller from the old school. It is also very British and very much underexposed, photographically. It's spy stuff, pre-war vintage. Performances are mediocre, the story is all too familiar. When a new type cartridge is stolen, a British Intelligencer and his sister go to Berlin to get it back. There they work themselves into the home of the arch spy and through a ruse recover the cartridge, leaving a trail of baffled police, broken hearts, outsmarted counter spies. What can be favorably said for this film is that when the mad dash for the border gets under way it is satisfactorily in the best tradition. On the debit side, is the poor handling of story material that in more competent hands might have emerged as exciting and adventuresome fare. Directed by John Baxter. Nothing was spared in model work or on the process screen.

Basil Radford, Silvia St. Claire, Thorley Walters, Peter Cawthorne.

EXPLOITIPS: This one must be introduced and put over as a spy thriller with all the contributing props. It also calls for a display case which might contain a woman's suitcase the lock of which has a human hair so intertwined as to form a seal. When it is tampered with, the hair, of course, is broken. For close inspection have a magnifying glass handy. The gag is used in the scenario. Miss St. Claire is quite an English beauty. Radford has been seen before to better advantage.

New Year Is Viewed With "More Cheer"

NEW YORK—The industry is looking forward to this year "with a good deal more cheer than when it surveyed the world outlook a year ago," writes Sydney B. Self in a year-end review for the Wall Street Journal.

Then, he observes, Hollywood was faced with "two major ominous uncertainties one of which, the war abroad, had already cut heavily into income; the other, Thurman Arnold's anti-trust suit, held unknown terrors but threatened possible disruption of the industry."

However, the writer concludes:

"Now that both threats have taken concrete form, the industry has found itself able to cope with them a great deal better than had been hoped. Neither one had results as serious as had been feared and both may eventually prove to be blessings in disguise.

Need for More Order

"The moving picture industry, in spite of its enormous daily cash income, has been honeycombed with costly disorders of all sorts and recurring attempts to straighten things out have met with little progress until lately. The show business can never become an orderly industry. Like its product, it thrives on the unexpected. However, a great deal can be done to reduce needless and foolish uncertainties and disorderliness to a minimum.

"Already earnings of several of the leading film producers have shown a sharp recovery above the levels of those months in 1939 and 1940 when the first impact of the war was felt. Paramount, Loew's and Warner are reporting profits far ahead of what they were earning a year ago and this trend should continue.

"Budgets have been pared down, debts have been reduced and, with domestic business picking up as a result of employment gains from the defense boom, there is a good chance that boxoffice receipts will be on the upgrade for some time.

Adjusting Foreign Losses

"The industry has by now pretty well adjusted itself to the losses of a large part of its foreign revenues, even though the full effect of the war on revenues from Britain has not yet been felt. They have done this partly by cutting expenses and partly by spending less for total film product on costs; in other words, by cutting the budget. They have had time to revise their amortization tables and to set up reserves to bring the writing down of picture costs into line with current conditions.

"Film companies are writing off their films a good deal more rapidly than they used to do and it is probable that amortization scales may be speeded up still more. This will mean that damage done by unsuccessful films to profits will be more promptly reflected in income."

On the decree, Self thinks this:

"So far none of the leaders in the industry seems to feel that its terms will mean any serious damage to business or profits . . . One of the probable results flowing from this decree will be that producing companies will be obliged to tie up more money in inventories since they will be compelled to have a stock of films on their shelves to show and consequently will be obliged to defer release dates. In other words, a picture cannot be released as soon as it comes out of the studios. Time must be given for buyers to inspect it. This may mean that producers will require larger working capital, but, since most of the larger companies have big cash balances, this will not be a serious handicap.

"Heavier working capital demands, plus the smaller gross revenues coming in due to the loss of foreign markets, may also mean a sharp curtailment in the number of films produced since the money to finance current production programs will be available."

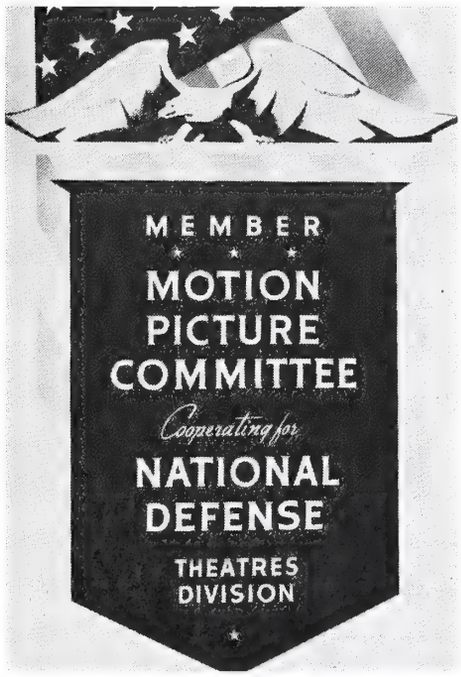
Decree Needs 12 Years to Work, Reports Kuykendall

MIAMI — Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold told him it will take 12 years to get the consent decree to work properly, E. L. Kuykendall, MPTOA president, informed a luncheon of 50 exhibitors here Tuesday. Mitchell Wolfson of Wometco Theatres was host.

"Out of seven lawyers, no two would agree on points," Kuykendall stated in declaring he still does not know what the decree means. He described it as a bugaboo and added he failed to see how the instrument could be described as a consent decree when he has found no one who has consented. Other Kuykendall fears:

1—Arbitration by outsiders, as provided in the decree.

2—That it is a fallacy to call upon the government to control the industry.



3—That the decree will affect independents who are badly needed for legislative fights and burden them with prohibitive arbitration costs.

"Sincerity is a lost word in our business," Kuykendall stated in giving one reason why he feels the industry is in its present predicament. He also hit the decree in that theatre divorcement, the original reason for the government suit, had been forgotten.

Nizer Urges Cooperation

Louis Nizer, New York attorney, urged theatremen present to cooperate with the government and gave it as his opinion the decree probably will work with revisions. He pleaded with exhibitors to aid the government in this connection and not to endeavor to sabotage the consent for that, he said, would be against the government and not the decree. If the decree fails, he continued, it would fail on its own and the government would so realize it.

Wolfson asked all present to sign a pledge to cooperate with the motion picture committee on national defense. Guests, most of them regular Florida vacationists, included Jack Cohn, Herman Robbins, Al Steffes, Herman Weingarten, P. S. Harrison, Albert Bernstein, Jack Alicoate, Maxie Rosenbloom, Thomas Brandon, SETOA secretary; C. Coushon, Gonzalo Bezanilla and Sidney Meyer, the latter Wolfson's partner.

Defense Plaques—

Into the mails soon will go these plaques for display in boxoffice windows. They are being mailed by the Theatre Division of the Motion Picture Committee cooperating for national defense, which is headed by Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Theatres. One will be sent to each theatre that joins in the industry's defense effort.

Weshner to Exploitation Helm for United Artists

NEW YORK—Monroe Greenthal, director of advertising and publicity for United Artists, has appointed David E. Weshner as director of exploitation, effective January 13. Weshner leaves his current post as supervisor of Warner key runs in Philadelphia on January 10.

Repeat Dates for "Wind" At Advanced Prices

NEW YORK—"Gone With the Wind" is slated to play repeat engagements at advanced admission prices in 35 Loew out-of-town theatres between the period of January 16 to January 31. All bookings are for a minimum of one week on a single feature basis.

In a move designed to center important attention on the engagement, M-G-M is working closely with state and city officials to open "Land of Liberty," feature contribution of the industry to the World's Fair of 1940 and now condensed for theatre showing, in the capital cities of every state in the country on January 24.

Broadway Revels in New Year Grosses

NEW YORK—Boxoffice-wise, the New Year's Week just past fulfilled not only the fondest hopes of Broadway operators but, in some instances, substantially exceeded them. Screen-wise, the product was strong, affording the sort of competition that could be expected in this most-favored of all weeks. Weather-wise, perfect. In fact, the only wise the situation could have been more profitable would have been in the form of rubber walls.

Far and away the big noise was "The Philadelphia Story" at the 5,960-seat Music Hall. Hitting a significant $125,000, the film was exceeded only by "Top Hat" in 1935 for top honors in the money and attendance columns. Slated to go a minimum of five weeks, the film had an opening week advantage of the theatre's renowned Christmas stage show, which was held over. While this holdover reduced the "nut" and likewise attracted in itself a sizeable portion of each audience, it is seen as a deterrent to first week attendance. This is on the argument that many persons who saw the Christmas stage show with the previous attraction—"No, No, Nanette"—did not want to see it again the first week of "Philadelphia Story."

Benny-Allen in Top Brackets

Up in the very top brackets, too, was "Love Thy Neighbor," which in its second week at the Paramount chalked up about $75,000. The stage show of Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra and other acts was no little attraction to the younger set; the kids with whom Dorsey is a dancing favorite. The theatre completely revised its scale, not in money, but in hours at which admissions were altered, to bring the total up. This saw a New Year's Eve scale of $1.10 from 7 to 8 p. m., and $1.50 from then on.

The Capitol with "Comrade X" hit a very profitable $60,000, the best the theatre has had in many months. The Roxy, with "Chad Hanna" and a stage show, and the Strand, with "Santa Fe Trail" and a stage show featuring Abe Lyman and his orchestra, played to absolute capacity. "Fantasia" at the Broadway and "The Great Dictator" at the Astor, both roadshows and both holdovers, were jammed to the rafters. In fact, every Broadway house did excellently. Those few that did not book especially attractive films were more than compensated with the overflow from the de luxers.

The detail that follows is for the week preceding the holidays, with "Love Thy Neighbor" the unrivalled leader.

Tentative AAA Panels Set for Functions

NEW YORK—In order to assure efficient service when nation-wide tribunals begin functioning around February 1, the American Arbitration Ass'n has tentatively set up minimum panels of arbitrators in areas commensurate with the traffic expected.

All "A" offices will have 40 arbitrators to draw from; "B" offices 20, and "C" tribunals from 10 to 20. However, New York, where particularly heavy traffic is expected, will have from 50 to 60 arbitrators. The AAA expects to have the following personnel in the three classifications of tribunals: "A," one clerk and one to two assistants; "B," one clerk and one assistant, and "C," one clerk.

It is pointed out that the panels as currently conceived are only tentative, being based on the amount of work that may be required of arbitrators under the few trade practices arbitrable under the consent decree before the actual selling for 1941-42 begins. Likewise, it is said the panels may be enlarged after September 1 when a larger number of trade practices are arbitrable under the decree.

Keough Explains Decree Contents

NEW YORK—Austin C. Keough, general counsel for Paramount, met with the entire local exchange sales, booking and shipping forces Friday to explain the contents of the decree. Questions were asked by the employes on points in doubt. This is the first of the Paramount meetings to explain the decree. Several home office executives also were on hand.

Warner and M-G-M are not planning to send attorneys out to the field at this time, it is stated, and will wait for the next sales convention when a general detailed analysis will be given the sales force and bookers by home office counsel, in addition to individual meetings with exchange groups.

Wants Larger Share Of British Money

NEW YORK—Although the eight majors have accepted Great Britain's figure of $12,900,000 to be remitted for the year starting November 1, 1940, M-G-M is demanding that the percentage of allocations among the eight companies be based on available remittances rather than gross figures for the forthcoming year.

M-G-M executives are basing their demands on the method set up by the British government in allowing the $12,900,000 this year as against $17,500,000 the year before. The government, in determining the figure, did not use the gross business figures of the eight companies but amounts remittable as compared with last year.

It is figured by M-G-M that its business in England is higher than any other American company and that for the amount of gross its operating expenses are less. Hence, in view of this executives are demanding that the money to be taken out of England should be based not on the gross, but on the remittable allowances.

The matter is being turned over to arbitration. No date has been set, neither the arbitrators.

M-G-M figures that, if the system used last year is applied again, it will not benefit as greatly as under the plan it suggested. The $12,900,000 is understood to be a compromise figure and includes remittances available for Universal which last year did not work with the other seven majors.

Rose Sailing to Renew Paramount's U. K. Program

HOLLYWOOD — David E. Rose, Paramount's managing director in England, will sail for London January 25 to resume production there. He has been here several weeks lining up new properties, two being A. J. Cronin's "Hatters Castle" and James M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton."

The last British-made Paramount picture was "French Without Tears," although several were scheduled after that and never launched because of the war. I. J. Goldsmith, who produced "The Stars Look Down," acquired by M-G-M, will accompany Rose and act as associate producer. Laurence Olivier is being sought for the Cronin yarn.

Metro Auditors Meet in A Three-Day Session

NEW YORK—M-G-M home office and field auditors met for three days, starting Thursday, at the Astor at their annual roundup session with Alan Cummings, chief auditor at the home office.

Attending were Charles Aaron, John Ash, Parke Agnew, "Pop" Cummings, Thomas Grady, William Marsh, Robert Long, Nat Rochlin, Charles J. School, Ben Wolf and Jay Zimmerman. Sidney Schwartz, foreign department traveling auditor, also was on hand.

BROADWAY

OVER 3,000 Warner Club members, their children, grandchildren, brothers and sisters attended the club's annual Christmas Kiddie Party held at the Brooklyn Vitaphone studio. The affair was the largest in the club's history, according to Ralph Budd who handled arrangements. A group of British refugee children, spending their first Christmas in the United States, were guests of the club. A troop of Brooklyn boy scouts presented the colors to the British children, with the Midland Park, N. J., Drum and Bugle Corps supplying the music. During the rest of the afternoon's show, the Hebrew Orphan Asylum band furnished the musical background.

One of the attractions of the party was Santa Claus' work shop, featuring animated figures built in miniature. In addition, there was a complete one-ring circus starring "Jumbo," the elephant featured in Billy Rose's show; Tony, the Camel; the boxing kangaroo, clowns, trapeze artists, acrobats, trained ponies and horses. A "Santa Fe" pageant was staged with stage coaches, the Lone Ranger jr., cowboys, cowgirls and Indians. Refreshments were served after the entertainment and the children were presented with attractive gifts.

Mel Heyman of Metro home office publicity fought off three days of la grippe in order to enjoy welcoming the New Year . . . Leonard Picker, Columbia attorney, is taking his wife and himself to Florida on January 9 for about three weeks . . . Jonas Rosenfeld, copy writer and a former assistant to Paul Lazarus jr., at Warner, is well along now on a similar post with the Walt Disney organization under Hal Horne. Lazarus celebrated the New Year playing host to a new-born, his second. It's a boy, John, weight, seven pounds, point seven. Mrs. L. is at Woman's Hospital . . . Carl E. Milliken, MPPDA secretary, and Mrs. M. are due in a few days from a southern cruise aboard the America.

B. S. Moss, chairman of the enrollment committee of the amusement division of the New York-Brooklyn Federations, has appointed Harry Hershfield chairman of a newspapermen's committee. Among the vice-chairmen, representing different branches of the field, are Ed Sullivan, Cecelia Ager, Marvin Kirsch, Charles E. Lewis, Elias Sugarman, Martin Quigley, Sam Shain, Damon Runyon and Red Kann . . . Leonard Beier of the Warner home office publicity department is now married to Lillian Kirschner of Highland Park, N. J. . . . Lawrence Stessin, press contact for the American Arbitration Ass'n, will speak before the Columbia University School of Journalism on public relations. His subject will be in the vein of "How to Be a Press Agent and Get Away With It."

Max A. Cohen will leave January 15 for Palm Springs and Arrowhead . . . Tom Connors may go to Cuba for his vacation, providing the fishing is up to snuff . . . Producer on Visit—

David Hempstead, who made "Kitty Foyle" for RKO, comes to New York on a brief vacation which includes a round of the new plays. S. Barret McCormick, RKO's director of advertising and publicity, meets him at Grand Central.

Leopold and Ruth Friedman got back over the weekend from Miami where they spent the Christmas-New Year's holiday . . . Murray Cohen, formerly of the Alpine, Bronx, has been transferred by Rosenzweig & Gulkin to the Taft, Flushing, as assistant manager . . . E. M. Saunders has left for Salt Lake. He plans to make a stopover at Denver to install John P. Byrne as district manager for the Des Moines, Omaha and Denver areas . . . Irving B. Schlosberg, assistant to Harold Cleary at Loew's, is going haywire with his new altimeter . . . Accompanying Charles Skouras were his wife and three daughters, among them Edith, wife of Jack Jungmeyer. The Jungmeyers are 20th-Fox writers and returned to the studio over the weekend after a vacation here . . . Nate J. Blumberg is not due to return from the coast until the first week in February. Bill Scully has gone to Miami for a vacation, from Hollywood . . . Eddie Rugoff is sojourning on Miami beaches . . . George J. Schaefer is looking forward to another coast trip soon.

The Lynn Farnols are in Charleston, S. C., for a few days and from there travel on to New Orleans for their first visit and an orgy in Creole cooking. Last Friday, the entire UA advertising, publicity and exploitation departments were hosts at a farewell cocktail party for the retiring chief. Company executives, starting with Murray Silverstone and Arthur W. Kelly and then variously down the line, were on hand as were producers' representatives like Eddie Peskay, Jim Mulvey and Harry Kosiner. Farnol was presented with a handsome wrist watch, properly inscribed, and glasses lifted on high in all directions . . . Mary and Dave Palfreyman celebrated their 18th wedding anniversary last Saturday . . . It's custom for Spyros Skouras to hold a Christmas party at his Mamaroneck home. This time, however, he converted it into still another appeal for relief for Greek civilians and garnered $3,000 for that cause.

Frank Donovan, Pathe News vice-president, took himself a week off and spent it at Lake Placid . . . Bob Kohn, former general manager of the 55th St. Playhouse, et al., has quit the post. Now he's with Guild and Goodman, publicity agents . . . David Hempstead, producer of "Kitty Foyle" which has RKO in a complete dither, came east over the weekend for a round of the plays . . . Groucho Marx and his family have returned to the coast . . . Tamara is back from personal appearances in Chicago. She has a featured role in "No, No, Nanette." Anna Neagle, by the way, did a series of neighborhood personal appearances following the week's run of the film at the Music Hall; now she's back in Hollywood to start work in "Sunny" . . . Wolfe Cohen, district manager for Warner in Canada, went into a huddle with Roy Haines, then returned to Toronto . . . Will Horwitz, Houston exhibitor, was around for a spell . . . Animated threesome walking west on 44th Street: Barney Balaban, Austin C. Keough and Joe Hazen.

Otto Bolle, 20th-Fox South African head, plans to leave for home about the first of February. He spent the Christmas holidays in Detroit where he saw his grandson for the first time. He is trying to take a boat leaving from the east instead of from the coast for his return journey . . . The one day Ben Goetz spent in town was to show Nicholas M. Schenck the first print of "Come Live With Me," his latest . . . While on the subject of Schenck his new 1941 license plate is NM 23, the same as last year. C. C. Moskowitz has CM 2, same as 1939 . . . Rudy Vallee will make his debut as a ventriloquist in "Picture People," a Pathe short . . . Merian C. Cooper, producing "The Eagle Squadron" for Walter Wanger, is en route to Washington and New York for additional data.

Warner Theatre Items: Frank and Rick LaFalce journeyed to their home in Newark to hang their stockings, returned to their desks, and then double-featured their homecoming to Newark by returning to ring out the old and usher in the new . . . Norma Newnam's attendance record of five years blossomed a red mark when she capitulated to a mean cold . . . Ann DeMello made a matinee exit for the same reason . . . Caroline Dize journeyed to her Crisfield, Md. home to join in "Auld Lang Syne" . . . The girls of the publicity staff held their annual post-Xmas soiree and the usual resolutions were made . . . Helen Hopkins of the contract department is still reminiscing over her Xmas visit to her Vermont home and her fill of native turkey . . . Charles McGowan enjoyed a holiday visit from his parents of Newark, who then joined with his wife for a six-week Florida sojourn . . . John J. Payette weathered a siege of the sniffles . . . Bill Ewing entertained his parents from Frederick over the holiday.

Metrograms: John Allen, the newly appointed branch manager, will make his debut January 6 . . . Harry Sheeran of the Cincinnati sale staff visited the exchange during his capital holiday sojourn . . . Buddy Hall, secretary to Rudy Berger, visited the home office for a few days, and toasted the old year curfew in the interim . . . Bertha Gerfeld is resigning January 11 . . . Installation of officers of Local B-13 IATSE was held Thursday eve.

Harry Mersay of 20th-Fox exchange operations visited with Sam Wheeler . . . Lillian Blumenthal's natal day calls for the melody duet of "Happy Birthday and New Year to You" . . . Tom McCaskey of the Williamsburg, Williamsburg, Va., visited and advised that the town fathers of that historic township observed the Xmas holiday in 18th century fashion, with decorations of that era, the burning of the yule log, and illumination confined to candlelight . . . Incidentally, the Williamsburg will celebrate its eighth anniversary on January 13.

His third anniversary with M-G-M will be observed on January 10 by George Torney of the local exchange. Three days later, Mary Curtain will make it seven years with Leo.

Long Lease on Rex

NEW YORK—Berk and Krumgold, theatre real estate firm, has closed a long-term lease on the 1,000 seat Rex at East Rutherford, N. J., at an aggregate rental of $130,000. The lessee is Acme Theatres, Inc., and the lessor, Biro Theatres, Inc., which had acquired the theatre in 1930.

SPG Hearing Soon

NEW YORK—The Screen Publicists Guild expects a formal date to be set within a week by the national labor relations board on the guild's demands of major companies.

Loew Dividend

NEW YORK—Loew's, Inc., has declared a quarterly dividend of $1.62½ on the cumulative preferred, payable February 15 to stockholders of record January 31.

Astoria Clearance Is Headed for Tussle

NEW YORK—Frank Moscato, who books and buys for 17 Long Island theatres, has retained Emil K. Ellis to work out a settlement with Skouras and Loew's on an Astoria clearance situation which resulted from Skouras taking over Loew's Astoria a few weeks ago.

With the acquisition of the Astoria, and the formation of a four-way pool between Skouras and Loew's for the Astoria, Triboro, Grand and Steinway, Moscato's Ditmars in the same section has been pushed back from a second to fifth run.

All product that had been playing first run at the Triboro and Astoria ran clear of the Broadway and Grand in the Ditmars. Now, under the new setup, the Broadway and Grand follow the Triboro and Astoria and seven days later it goes into the Steinway. Seven days after the Steinway the films are played in the Crescent, also a Skouras house, before they become available to the Ditmars.

Moscato says he is prepared to take the matter to court unless the two circuits work out an arrangement with Ellis. Ellis has also contacted the circuits and discussions are under way to remedy the situation before it becomes acute, it is stated.

New York Film Critics Host at Awards Party

NEW YORK—The New York film critics ran their annual party at the Rainbow Room atop the RCA Building, Sunday—the only party at which they play host.

The guests numbered about 500, mostly from among the major distributors, many varieties of press, many, many varieties of press agentry and not a few from the theatre. The occasion was the presentation of awards to the critics' choices for "best of the year."

Bosley Crowther of the New York Times who is president, and Ben Grauer of NBC, shared the microphone for a half hour from 6 to 6:30 in announcing the winners. It was a Blue network affair, hooking in Hollywood and Dallas. In person for awards were Darryl F. Zanuck, who accepted the plaque for "The Grapes of Wrath," chosen the best picture of the year; and John Ford, director of the same film, selected best director for his work in the same picture and "The Long Voyage Home." Scrolls awarded to Walt Disney for "Fantasia," to Katharine Hepburn as best actress, and to Charles Chaplin for best actor, were sent to the winners directly.

Robert Hakim, representing Marcel Pagnol, accepted the scroll for "The Baker's Wife," designated the best foreign picture of the year.

During the broadcast, Henry Fonda and Jane Darwell re-enacted the farewell scene from "The Grapes of Wrath" from Hollywood. Miss Hepburn did a bit from Dallas, where she is on tour with "The Philadelphia Story." Disney and Chaplin contributed "thank you" bits from out-of-town.

Posen Sues Again; "U" Is Still Calm

NEW YORK—Samuel I. Posen, Universal director since March 15, 1938, and holder of 100 shares of common and 50 of preferred, has filed suit in the supreme court against the company seeking to enjoin Universal's purchase of its preferred. Justice Morris Eden has denied Posen's request for a temporary injunction, finding the Universal director has "a meritorious cause of action," but has failed to show sufficient cause for such drastic relief.

On December 12, Universal, in a letter to its stockholders, stated its intention was to borrow $1,000,000 for the retirement of its first preferred. Posen claims the company has 15,300 shares of first preferred at a $100 par, 20,000 shares of second preferred at $100 par and 250,000 shares of common at $1 par. According to Universal, the company had a net profit of $2,400,000 for the year ended November 2, 1940 and could afford to borrow the money. It is also claimed that, under the present management, during the past four years the company has shown a profit of $41,725. This statement, says Posen, is false, because it fails to show that Universal has $1,560,000 tied up in England for the duration of the war. If this sum is eliminated the company's profit becomes a loss of $1,514,274 over the same period and it now is in the red for upwards of $6,500,000, by Posen's calculations.

Retirement Plan "Unfair"

To retire any shares of first preferred now is unlawful because it will result in dividends to some stockholders while others will receive nothing, as $1,000,000 will only retire about half of the outstanding stock, it is charged. It is also charged that, under the retirement plan, stockholders are not protected against discrimination and to borrow $1,000,000 in the company's present financial position would be folly.

Posen filed suit against the company, its affiliates, officers and directors several months ago, charging mismanagement and asking an accounting. This action is still pending.

Universal continues unperturbed.

Suit Against Dietrich Highlights Slow Week

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was slowed up considerably due to the holidays with the action of Forrester Parant Productions, French film company, against Marlene Dietrich featuring the week. The company seeks $98,450 in damages against the actress for alleged breach of contract whereby she was to have made a film for the plaintiff in France. During the week, the plaintiff secured an order from Justice Benedict Dineen in the supreme court to examine Peyton Gibson, treasurer of Universal, before trial so that it may determine how much property and money of the actress the film company has, and attached $2,000 due the actress on a broadcast made December 12.

RKO applied to the federal court to prevent Helen Twelvetrees from attempting to continue her action against it in the supreme court. The film company switched the suit to the federal court due to diversity of citizenship. It recently lost an application to delay start of the trial past January 3 in the supreme court and had been ordered to appear to defend itself or allow an injunction to be entered against it. To gain more time, the suit was shifted. The action seeks $100,000 for alleged libel in the film "I'm Still Alive," which Miss Twelvetrees claims to be based on her life with that of her husband, Jack Woody, a Hollywood stunt man.

William Lustig, agent, filed a $525,000 supreme court suit against Gloria Jean Schoonover, Ferman and Eleanor Schoonover, parents of the Universal starlet, seeking damages for alleged breach of a 10-year managerial contract. Lustig claims to be the exclusive manager of the actress-singer and says her contract with Universal and subsequent concert and radio appearances were made without his consent or knowledge and without payment of 10 per cent to him.

Plagiarism Suit Involves Metro

Stephen Van Gluck and Joseph Eisinger filed a federal court action against M-G-M Pictures Corp., Distributing Corp., Culver Export and Loew's seeking an injunction, accounting of profits and damages against "Murder Man" which is claimed to be a plagiarism of plaintiff's play, "The Last Edition." Also named in the action are Guy Bolton and Tim Whelan, authors of the screenplay, and Edward E. Cohen, who claims five per cent of the play.

REVIEW FLASHES

BREAK THE NEWS (Trio Films)—As entertainment, this English-made film is a little better than fair. A few highly comic moments stand out in this good story idea which went astray in its handling. Maurice Chevalier, Jack Buchanan, June Knight.

CAVALCADE OF FAITH (Jeffrey Film)—Not in any sense of the word is this Catholic subject entertainment in the accepted sense for average theatre consumption. It is a compilation, and not a very good one, of scenes taken at various church functions in Rome, for the most part, and at Eucharistic Congresses in Chicago, Buenos Aires and other cities.

ROMANCE OF THE RIO GRANDE (20th-Fox)—In which the love bug nearly catches up with the Cisco Kid, and while the tender passion is engulfing that perennial caballero, audiences will be delighted to see the very marked improvement in this chapter of the established western series as compared to its predecessors. The feature is definitely above average as program material, and will be more than welcomed by Cisco's fans and cannot help but please all patrons, whether sagebrush enthusiasts or not. Sol Wurtzel produced. Herbert I. Leeds directed.

Selwyn-Veiller Suit Is Set for Feb. 3

Suit of Selwyn and Co. against Bayard Veiller was set for a federal court trial on February 3, 1941. The action seeks to recover $7,500 given the defendant by Loew's for his play, "The Miracle." The plaintiff claims to have secured all rights to the play in 1914 from the author and asserts any monies turned over by Loew's, belong to it. Veiller claims Selwyn was dissolved in 1936 before the transaction and has no rights in the play now.

Joseph H. Ream, secretary of CBS, was examined before trial in the supreme court in connection with a suit by the Epoch Producing Corp. against it. Epoch, owner of the film rights to "Birth of a Nation," claims the defendant broadcast a program with a similar title September 2. 1940, over WABC. An injunction, accounting of profits and damages are sought.

Film Alliance of the U. S. filed a pair of suits in the supreme court against Gaumont British Pictures Corp. of America and Isidor Ostrer, seeking damages of $200,000 for alleged breach of contract. The plaintiff claims its assignor, Albert P. De Courville, paid GB $2,500 for the American rights to "Things Are Looking Up" and that the defendants are refusing to deliver a print. The film stars Vivien Leigh.

Seek to Examine Kent

Unable to obtain satisfaction with an examination before trial of W. C. Michel, executive vice-president of 20th Century-Fox, Izola Forrester and Mann Page applied to the supreme court to examine Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th-Fox. The suit claims the film company lifted a story called "Joyous" in "Poor Little Rich Girl." An injunction, accounting of profits and damages are sought.

RKO applied to the federal court for permission to examine Irving K. Wolfson and Charles Haar of Brooklyn before trial in connection with a triple damage antitrust suit of the Folley Amusement Holding Corp. against it, the rest of the majors, Monogram, Republic, Randforce Amusement Holding Corp., Samuel Rinzler, and Louis Frisch. RKO wants to examine the men on January 15. The suit seeks $750,000 damages for allegedly putting the Brooklyn Folly out of business by depriving it of product.

The Lakewood Amusement Corp., operators of the Strand and Palace, Lakewood, N. J., applied to the supreme court to appoint two arbitrators and an umpire to settle a dispute it has with Barney Ferber, manager of the theatres, whom it seeks to discharge. Ferber has a five-year contract at $2,954 yearly and cannot be discharged without the consent of two men, one of whom is refusing to agree to the firing, and who has rejected all submitted arbitrators.

Assign Sidney Franklin

HOLLYWOOD—Sidney Franklin will produce "The Youngest Profession," Judy Garland's next for Metro.

Booth Provision Bill Poised

Albany—The bill prescribing sweeping specifications for the construction of motion picture projection booths is said to be scheduled for reintroduction when the legislature convenes this week (January 8).

The measure was put in last March by Senator William F. Condon of Yonkers. It was reported from the committee on labor and industry and was advanced to third reading. However, the Senate did not act upon the bill before adjournment.

A New Eastman Process For Color Developing

PHILADELPHIA—Eastman Kodak has effected what it declares is a new, quicker and more effective process of developing colored motion picture films, according to Dr. C. E. K. Mees, director of research for the company.

Three separate developments currently used are supplanted by a single operation, described as resembling the production line of an automobile factory. Mees states the effect is a better quality coupled with less risk of damage to the negative. The emulsion on the film used under the new process has three super-imposed layers which take three images, one directly atop the other. The top image is taken in blue light and the top layer of the film is designed to reflect sensitivity to blue alone. The middle image is in green and the third, red. Whereas the current method provides for the printing of each color separately, the new method provides for a continuous run. Black and white images appear first but, as the film strikes a red light, that portion of the negative shot in red, prints that color. The same idea applies to the other two.

"U" Will Deliver Full List, Says Blumberg

HOLLYWOOD—Despite "almost total loss of European markets," Universal will deliver the full-season program, Nate Blumberg, president, stated over the weekend.

Of the 63 pledged, 39 are completed or finally editing. Eight more will be ready by February, leaving 16 between February 15 and August 31.

"Our production position has never been better," the Universal head said at the conclusion of studio meetings attended by J. Cheever Cowdin, board chairman; William A. Scully, general sales manager and Joseph Seidelman, foreign sales manager, from the east.

Heads New House

PHILADELPHIA—Harold Brason has been promoted to the helm of the Diamond Theatre, newly acquired by the Warner circuit. Perry Lessy succeeds Brason at the Lindley. Both houses are in Stanley Benford's district.

Depinet Drive Meet A Tour Springboard

CHICAGO—Leo Devaney, captain in the latest Ned E. Depinet drive for RKO, met here Friday with Jack Osserman, local manager; Walter Branson, midwest district manager and former captain; A. W. Smith jr., general sales manager, and Harry Gittelson, editor of Flash, house organ.

Following the session, Devaney, Branson and Gittelson began a tour of exchanges with L. E. Goldhammer, prairie district manager, joining the party at Omaha for a circuit of his branches. At Denver, J. H. MacIntyre, western district manager, will meet the campaigners and accompany them on his exchange area.

The first complete tour will wind up February 7 with a meeting at the New York exchange. The drive started January 25 and will conclude May 9.

Hoyts-GUT Negotiations For Merger Broken

NEW YORK — It's off again and again Finnegan for the Hoyts-GUT merger in Sydney, Australia.

After many months of negotiation following which an accord was reached, at least orally, the 20-year merger has been declared off once and for all.

Dan Michalove of the 20th-Fox home office was scheduled to sail for Sydney this month, but has canceled plans.

The merger was to have gone into effect January 1, 1941. The two circuits several years ago ended a five-year joint operating agreement, following which a fight developed over first run product. It was believed the merger would bring about a 20-year truce, but this is far from reaching the final stages now.

NSS Consolidating Home Office Departments

NEW YORK—National Screen is consolidating its various departments in the Film Center where it makes its headquarters. Chief executive offices will be maintained on the 14th floor with a number of executives to be switched to the 10th floor. The library now at the company's 43rd St. plant is being moved to the third floor as well as its advertising accessories now located in the Paramount exchange here. Some of the sales force located on the fifth floor are being moved to the third and 10th floors. The trailer, shipping and booking departments will be continued on the second.

Grant Time Extension In Clearance Action

NEW YORK—An extension of time to January 15 has been granted in the River Theatre Corp. action against Skouras involving clearance. At that time the defendants will have an opportunity to make motions in respect to the complaint or present an answer.

PHILADELPHIA

PRACTICALLY all the Philly houses had midnight shows New Year's Eve, with the last shows in the downtown spots starting around 2 a. m. and with the Victoria and the Palace joining the 24-hours-a-day Family in staying open all night . . . The S-W Earle had one of those six-hour opening shows last Friday with the belated arrival of Larry Clinton and his orchestra, the stage show headliner, the reason. House showed practically all the short subjects available and dished up an extra and rather lengthy stage show consisting of whatever acts they could gather together plus the house orchestra. The Clinton band rushed from station to stage without a moment's rest; did a few numbers, and saved the refunds with the house taking the next several hours trying to get back on regular schedule.

The latest to join what seems to be a big parade of independent poster exchanges opening up here are John Schaefer and Jack Weiss who are calling themselves the Keystone Poster Exchange at 262 N. 13th . . . Quality Premium Co. has taken over Universal's old building at 1308-12 Vine for display rooms and warehouse . . . Allied of E. Pa. have decided not to hold a dinner in conjunction with their scheduled meeting January 14. Abram F. Myers, however, is expected to address the gathering on "Arbitration" . . . Wilbur Evans, star of "Her First Romance," visited Monogram Exchange, met the gang, chatted with Branch Head Sam Rosen . . . Dave Moliver has opened his "Quiz-O" and Coulter Premium headquarters here . . . And Jules Kerns, from Premium Promotion Syndicate, New York, is handling Cash Quiz . . . Variety Club distributed 362 baskets the day before Xmas . . . Wilma Kaspar, one of the Variety Club "Miss Philadelphia" contestants, was chosen Kitty Foyle's double in contest held in conjunction with the opening of that picture at the Boyd.

Frank McNamee, former RKO manager, is business manager of the Infantile Paralysis Drive, which is culminated by the annual President's Ball. James P. Clark is chairman of the drive . . . Charlie Goldfine heads the m. p. committee of the Salvation Army . . . Plans for the testimonial dinner to those real old timers, Mike Lessy and Bill Butler, are progressing nicely . . . Mrs. S. D'Francesco opens her new Rex Theatre, Nuremberg, Pa.

Hill Theatre here was purchased last week by Edward I. Singer and will be remodeled and air-conditioned . . . Sabu, star of "Thief of Bagdad," made personal appearances at Aldine on the picture's opening day . . . David Hempstead, executive producer of "Kitty Foyle," visited Nat Levy, local RKO exchange manager.

All the S-W theatres broadcast the President's speech of last Sunday night. At one nabe house two femme patrons got into a hair-pulling argument . . . Local Musician's Union have worked out a share-the-work plan similar to that in effect among the stagehands. Doesn't cost the theatres any more; but means, in some cases, two different orchestras who play at alternate times . . . Iz Litwin, assistant to the purchasing agent of the S-W Theatres, has resigned to enter the fur business here.

Benny Harris, American Film Exchange, spoke at a meeting of governmental agencies in Pittsburgh, at which time plans for publicizing government functions were discussed . . . Installation of the newly elected officers in Film Exchange Employes' Union, Local B-7, will take place January 10 at the Broadwood Hotel . . . Upon request of 20th Century-Fox attorneys, suit of the Ellis' Towers Theatre, Camden, N. J., against 20th-Fox, was shifted into U. S. district court and is expected to be heard soon.

P. A. Bloch, long with Paramount Exchange here, has opened a premium exchange at 1235 Vine . . . "Baker's Wife" is in its 12th week at the Studio, Philly's only remaining art house . . . Showmen's Club New Year's Eve shindig sold out in advance.

ROCHESTER

EMBASSY has reopened under operation of E. M. Loew, Inc., Boston, Mass., with Harry Rodman as manager. Opening with duals, the house will have three changes of program weekly, with admission set at 10-15-20. Enamelware to women patrons is given on Wednesday and Thursday. Rodman comes here after being associated with Loew interests in Providence, R. I., 12 years.

More than 300 employes, their wives and families attended Schine's Christmas party at the Terrace Gardens. Door prizes, cash Bingo and a floor show were included . . . Lester Pollock, Loew's manager, entertained ushers and cashiers at a party at Odenbach's, distributed the annual bonus. And Bud Silverman, Schine's city manager, played host to all Schine managers at a Christmas party in the Madison offices. Managers reciprocated by giving Silverman a desk pencil set.

Bowling teams have been formed by Riviera employes. Other Schine houses are expected to follow suit. Games already have been arranged between the Riviera and State teams . . . Alden Allen, Monroe manager, paid a visit to his home in Elmira . . . Cigars were being passed out by Hy Gordon, Cameo manager. He's the father of a son born on Christmas Eve.

Sol Shafer of the Liberty is out of the hospital and back at work . . . All Schine houses played to big audiences when they staged their Christmas cartoon shows . . . Lester (Loew's) Pollock made a trip to Boston for party held for Loew's managers in the northeastern division . . . Jose Iturbi, conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic, and pianist of note, has joined Local 66 of the Musicians' Union.

Downtown Palace and Temple had stage shows New Year's Eve, along with picture program. Ozzie Nelson and Harriet Hilliard headlined the Temple bill.

Ampa Voting Rights Extended to Women

NEW YORK—Full voting privileges for women as for men are among the revisions in the Ampa constitution acted upon favorably by an overwhelming majority of members. Dues for women have been boosted from $5 to $10 per year. The organization will hold a 25th anniversary dinner-dance in the Hotel Edison, April 4, proceeds of which will be for the new Ampa welfare and relief fund. The next open meeting will be on January 9, with Barney Balaban, Paramount president, as guest speaker.

50-50 for "Dictator" in Loew's Met Circuit

NEW YORK—Loew's deal for "The Great Dictator" in its metropolitan circuit calls for 50 per cent of the gross from the first dollar. The picture will open over the circuit after the extended Astor two-a-day run at popular prices. In a number of out-of-town spots, Loew's has played the Chaplin film on a roadshow basis of $1.10 and on a policy of 70-30.

Indications are the Astor run will be continued at $2.20 top for several months yet.

More Contributions for Greek War Relief Fund

NEW YORK—Among recent contributions to the Greek War Relief Ass'n fund for civilian aid in Greece, was one for $2,000 from Altoona Publix Theatres of Altoona, Pa. Another of $100 from E. J. Churchill of Donahue & Coe, advertising agency, has helped swell the fund to close to $900,000 in the appeal for $10,000,000.

Fabian Draftees Receive Four Weeks' Salary

ALBANY—Fabian employes who join the military forces receive four weeks' salary and paid up company insurance for a year and 20 days, it was revealed when Division Manager Lou H. Golding presented checks to two Palace ushers. They were Harold Niles, who is with a local National Guard regiment at Fort McClellan, Ala., and Warren Caulfield, who is going south with a Guard anti-tank battalion.

Delphine Meyer Weds

HOLLYWOOD — Delphine Meyer is now Mrs. Raymond Shire, the ceremony having taken place at Yuma a few days ago. The former Miss Meyer is the daughter of Fred S. and Mrs. Meyer; he is 20th Century-Fox's studio executive in charge of labor relations. The bride is an attorney in her own right. The groom is an assistant federal attorney and also a deputy district attorney, the youngest in the state.

: Incorporations :

ALBANY—Phonovision Distributing Company, Inc., has been formed to carry on a business in motion pictures and sound recordings. Offices are in New York; capital stock is 100 shares, no par. Incorporators are Desmond Fitzgerald, Clarence E. Galtson and Andre Maximov, 40 Wall St. Attorneys: Spence, Windels, Walser, Hotchkiss and Angell, 40 Wall St.

DeGraw Amusement Corporation, Kings County, has reduced its capital stock from $117,000 to $40,000, and Dean Amusement Company, Kings, from $43,000 to $30,000.

Metro Realignment Brings Sales Staff Transfers

NEW YORK—In a realignment of M-G-M home office sales personnel to conform with recent territorial revisions, Charles Deesen, former assistant to Thomas J. Connors, and William Madden, former student booker, have been transferred as assistants to E. K. O'Shea, newly appointed Central division manager. I. L. Hirsch and Harold Postman remain as assistants to Connors.

Ralph Pielow, newly appointed New York branch manager, has arrived from Albany to succeed O'Shea, who transfers to the home office around January 14. O'Shea will tentatively occupy the office used by Hirsch.

Rites in Brooklyn for Ed Schnitzer's Father

NEW YORK—Services were held Thursday for Max Schnitzer, father of Edward M., eastern district manager for Warner, at New Lots Temple, Brooklyn, with interment at United Hebrew Cemetery. Schnitzer's father, who was 76, had recently recovered from a heart attack.

In addition to the Warner executive, the deceased is survived by his widow, Rose, four daughters and another son, Louis, who is with the Randforce circuit.

Gets Museum Reel

NEW YORK—Columbia has contracted to distribute "Exploring Space," one-reeler produced by Ansulon, Inc., in cooperation with the American Museum of Natural History. The subject will be released on the current program.

Simplify Language For Decree Study

NEW YORK—National Theatres has completed a summary in simple layman's language of the context of the consent decree for its bookers, partners and managers.

Aubrey Schenck, home office booker with a legal background, made up the analysis which lists each section of the decree and tells in as few words as possible what is expressed therein.

An index and cross reference is attached so that a reader wishing to look for arbitration, prints, theatre acquisitions, or any other topic will find a handy reference preluding the boil downed text.

Canadian Trade Realigns Organizational Setup

TORONTO—Henceforth the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada will deal only with distributors' problems under new lines of distinction adopted between producers and exhibitors in the operation of representative organizations.

Under the arrangement, which will leave the Ontario Clearance Board to function on its own, the only common meeting place of all branches of the industry, including producers, equipment officials, exhibitors and exchange managers, will be the motion picture section of the Toronto Board of Trade which will deal with trade developments in which all are interested.

Dembow Is Recuperating At Home in Larchmont

NEW YORK—Sam Dembow jr., Paramount theatre executive who was injured recently when hit by a taxi here, is recuperating nicely at his Larchmont home. The cast in which his almost broken leg now reposes, will be removed shortly, but Dembow probably will remain indoors for another several weeks. Thereafter, he anticipates returning to his desk with the aid of crutches.

Southern New Jersey's Allied Meets Jan. 6

PHILADELPHIA — The recently created southern group of New Jersey Allied will meet at the Broadwood, January 6. The southern and northern groups meet at New York headquarters three days later for a buffet luncheon session.

Distributing "Pieges"

NEW YORK—I. E. Lopert has contracted to distribute "Pieges," French drama starring Maurice Chevalier, in this country. It will be available late in January.

Closes With Select for 10

NEW YORK—Harry Brown of Standard Film has closed with Select Attractions for 10 releases for the local territory.

Profitable Air Conditioning for Your Theatre

25 YEARS EXPERIENCE
is summed up in this handsome brochure. Be sure you see it!

Comfort alone is no longer enough for modern theatre air conditioning. To make air conditioning pay a profit . . . to keep attendance up and overhead down . . . these are the qualities the theatre man asks for today. That is why theatres large and small—the Palace, Salem, N. J.; the Riviera, Charleston, S. C.; the Missouri, St. Louis, and many others —have come to Carrier for assurance of low cost, dependable performance and profits saved.

For Carrier knows your profit angles. Knows, for example, how to fit comfort to requirements, from opening show to night-time peak. How to cool the lobby but not the street . . . how to place comfort where it pays, instead of running up overhead costs.

Big Savings Over Former Costs

Creating comfort that pays a profit has been Carrier's business for more than 25 years. Today, because of its pioneering and its experience in whipping every kind of air conditioning problem, Carrier can offer you air conditioning to fit your needs: factory perfected; quickly installed; lower than ever in cost; higher than ever in dependability, economy and profitable comfort.

Find Out How Your Business Can Profit

The complete story of Carrier Air Conditioning, the activities and achievements of more than a quarter century, form the exciting contents of a new brochure just off the press. It's a story you'll want to know . . . a story that shows the way others have profited with Carrier Air Conditioning. The Carrier representative will be glad to show you how your business can profit too. Call him. He is listed in your classified phone book. Or mail the coupon today.

and associated rectifier equipment. It marked the passing of low intensity projection and the advent of de luxe projection in those medium sized houses which heretofore had been deprived by prohibitive operating costs of brilliantly projected pictures and correct color rendition.

The Simplex High is a low cost arc designed especially for theatres of up to 800 seats and using screens as large as 18 feet in width. It projects twice as much light as the low intensity, a snow-white light, characteristic of the high intensity arc, which is so necessary to the projection of colored pictures. Yet the overall operating costs are only slightly higher because this arc operates at only 27 volts as compared to 55 volts in the low intensity, and each 14-inch 7 m.m. suprex positive carbon burns for at least two hours.

The Unhappy Consequence of Cutting Specifications

"Cut that out! The customers won't know the difference, so we may as well save the cost."

Curtly, and without regard to the consequences, the theatre owner delivers his ultimation to his agent, the architect, and a well-made theatre plan starts going hay-wire.

Such things happen regularly, but the pity of it is they offer only a slight hitch to the proceedings. The good architect winces, swallows his pride, and the dangerous process of elimination starts. One such cut usually leads to others and when the house finally opens there is little left to remind the designer of his original purpose.

In preparing plans for a modern theatre the competent theatre architect studies the objective from every possible angle. There is a useful purpose in every line of his renderings and premeditation in every point of his specifications. The purpose is to attract patronage and create prestige for the business of his employer, within the limits of the budget allotted to him.

House Appeal is a combination of many practical things—mostly small things—that serve the main purpose. To peremptorily order the architect to cut them out on the foolish theory that prospective customers won't know or care is frequently the cause of a pitiful predicament in the end.

In a foregoing paragraph we bold faced the competent theatre architect to caution the selection; to emphasize his importance and proclaim him as your most capable purchasing agent. But he can't perform against your will. You must pull with him—not against him.

Toledo's Twin Theatres Take a Beauty Treatment

by FRANK R. HAWKINS

SCORES of compliments are being received by Howard Feigley, manager of the Rivoli and Palace theatres in Toledo, since the recent completion of a modernization program. Congratulations have come from civic organizations, newspapers and all classes of patrons. On one point all of the compliments have agreed; the remodeling has improved the appearance of the entire street and the theatres have been made a great deal more inviting.

"We know that our modernizing was a smart investment because we have been attracting bigger crowds since the work was finished," Mr. Feigley stated. "People prefer to go to a theatre which has a sparkling, colorful front and marquee just as they would rather go to a restaurant or store that has an inviting exterior. After all, they are spending money on entertainment, just as they do on groceries or handkerchiefs, and they are going to go to the place that appears to be the most progressive and uptodate."

An Investment for Patronage

The new front on the twin theatres, which are operated by Willard Theatres, Inc., and interior improvements in both houses cost approximately $45,000, according to Mr. Feigley. He and W. N. Skirball, president of the corporation, believe that every cent invested will come back through greater patronage.

Pictures here shown give a good conception of the beauty which was achieved with modern materials. The front of each theatre was faced with sparkling structural glass, which remains permanently colorful and lustrous without any maintenance beyond cleaning with a damp cloth. Ivory colored glass was used at the Rivoli over the doors and to face the panels between them. Bordering the ivory are two red bands of the same glass material, while black was used at the base. The bottom of the protruding ticket office is red. Extruded metal was utilized as trim on the project, and it gives the whole facade a finished touch that is just right.

A different color scheme was used on the Palace front, where gray squares of structural glass were installed with bands of Cadet blue. The base of the ticket booth matches the trim.

The seven pairs of doors in the two theatres carry out the modern decorative motif of the front for they are glazed vertically with a new type of fluted glass which minimizes glare and diffuses light as it enters. Customers have shown the same enthusiasm for these portals as they have for the entire job, it is reported by Mr. Feigley.

AFTER This daytime view of the twin theatres shows the sharp contrast in their appearance since modernization has made them the talk of Toledo.

BEFORE the program of improvements was started the twin theatres presented this drab sight to Toledoans. The contrast with today's sparkling appearance is striking.

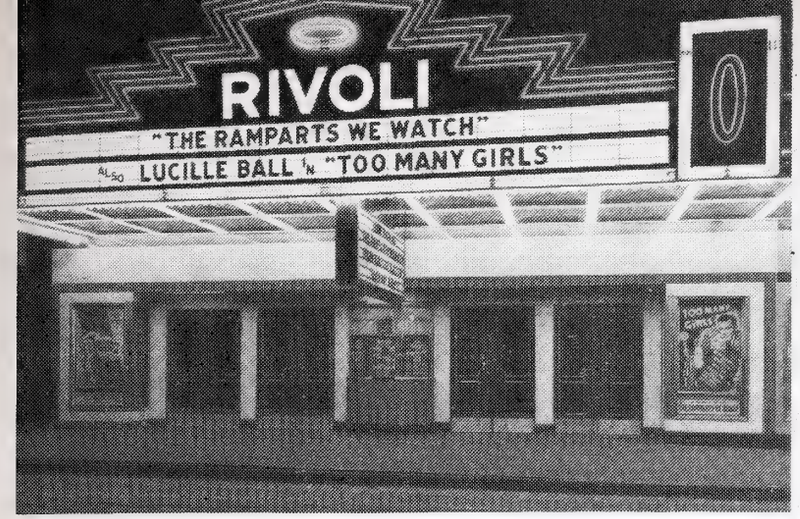
Enhanced Advertising Value



New fluorescent lighting equipment was installed behind the sign panels to give evenly-illuminated information about pictures showing. The words stand out boldly against the lighted glass background. New canopies were installed also.

The Toledoans did not stop their modernizing at the doors, but continued inside so that patrons would not feel a letdown after entering. Both theatres were re-carpeted throughout and new lighting fixtures were installed inside. Hanns R. Teichert of Chicago was in charge of redecorating the two theatres.

The complete program, which was carried out by Willard Theatres, Inc., at its two houses in Toledo, is a good example of what is being done by more and more owners of theatre properties. Throughout the nation motion picture houses are being given new fronts in the general movement to "lift the face of Main Street." Every resource of materials, lighting and equipment is being drawn upon to create a tempting invitation to the public to enter and later depart with a feeling of satisfaction.

One of the modern materials which is proving most adaptable and practical for theatre front remodeling is structural glass, such as that selected by Mr. Feigley. It is an opaque material fused at high temperature, and its colorful beauty will never diminish nor fade inasmuch as the color is made right into the glass. The back is ribbed to make application to any existing, permanent, dry background possible with mastic. The material has a minimum tensile strength of 937 pounds per square inch, and a crushing strength of 31,658 pounds per square inch, which assures long life and resistance to abrasion.

There are numerous other qualifications

OTHER VIEWS

Above—The Rivoli Theatre in Toledo presents this striking appearance at night since its modernization. Ivory colored structural glass with red bands of the same material covers the front. The bottom of the ticket office is likewise red. Fluorescent lights make the signs stand out.

Top Right—The ivory and red structural glass front of the Rivoli shows up to as much advantage in the daytime as at night.

which make these materials highly satisfactory for modern theatre fronts. They will not warp, swell, or craze; absorb liquids, grime, smoke or odors, and can be quickly and easily cleaned by wiping with a damp cloth or in extreme cases by washing with soap and water. All of these characteristics make structural glass an extremely sanitary product to fit modern requirements.

Decorative effects or letters may be secured in plain or colored sandblasted ornament, and by inlays of thin colored opaque glass or mirrors. An effective relief sign results from the cementing of letters made of glass or wood to a structural glass background.

Combination Effects

An increasing number of theatre owners are learning that tempered plate glass is a perfect companion for structural glass fronts. This new product with color fused to its back makes a sign panel a brilliant beacon for a theatre when properly illuminated. Lights correctly placed behind it make the entire panel glow with a soft, evenly-distributed, colored illumination that is the warmest kind of welcome to customers. It is practical for other areas of a theatre front besides the sign panel, of course, and any part of it can be made to radiate light and gay color.

There is almost no limit to the variety of effects which can be achieved with glass materials in a lobby or foyer of a motion picture house. Whether it covers entire walls, just the wainscoting, or is used for decorative panels, the structural glass does its part to please patrons.

Owners of theatres realize, too, that the toilets and washrooms in their buildings must be modern and sanitary. The day when unsightly and offensive restrooms were accepted by the public is past. People have become as discriminating about the comfort facilities of the theatre they attend as they are about those provided by gas stations they patronize on trips.

Many Novel Applications

There is no reason why theatre washrooms and toilets should be the loathsome, smelly places that once "got by" with patrons. With structural glass wainscoting and toilet partitions, they can be made as inviting and beautiful as the auditorium and lobby. The impervious surface of such materials will never absorb substances that cause discolorations or give off unpleasant odors. It is difficult for dirt and grime to cling to the polished surface of the material, and it resists attempts to mark or otherwise deface it. Wiping with a damp cloth keeps it spotlessly clean and ever new looking, a condition much desired in theatre washrooms. The saving in upkeep will pay for the modernizing outlay in a short time.

We have mentioned in the foregoing that a diffusing glass was used in the doors of the Rivoli and Palace theatres. Another type of door which is thoroughly modern and eye-arresting in appearance is made of extra-heavy plate glass. Doors made of this ¾-inch thick tempered glass have no frames, and so permit an unobstructed view into the interior of a building. The glass is so clear as to be almost invisible, and used for theatre doors it makes the foyer one big display space easily viewed from the outside.

Regardless of the size of the town in which a theatre is located, it will profit the owner to modernize its front. People are pretty much the same all over; they are going to spend their entertainment money where the outside beckons the brightest and where comfort, beauty and healthful conditions prevail inside.

Note—An interesting description of the decorative treatment applied in the modernization of the interiors of the Rivoli—Palace theatres will be found in the Decorating Department of this issue, on page 50.

FADISM OR FUNCTION?

Can a theatre owner afford to give much consideration to style in buying furnishings? Yes; if freakish styles are to be avoided. Here's a trouble-saving tip. There are three kinds of "fashion" in furnishings: Fads, currently fashionable styles, and classic styles. Fads "go out" within a year or two. The average fashion runs in cycles that change about every six or seven years. But certain "classic" styles, based on good taste and high standards of quality, remain in good standing for many, many years.

The Portage . . . a Progressive Modernizing Project

by HELEN KENT

SEVERAL years ago, the plans of an enterprising Chicago theatre architect for more action in old property modernization were presented in this publication. This "plan of action" was termed Progressive Modernization, and it was based on the premise that more and higher quality theatre modernization could be accomplished if the work were done in easy stages and permitted to pay for itself by the increase in patronage which each stage of beautification would bring.

The idea's motivating element, of course, was the original design plan, in which the entire modernization would be considered as a whole. But by dove-tailing each successive step, each part could be treated as a small bit of modernization. Thus, a front could be modernized and after a short time during which increased profits would be amassed as a result of new interest in the house, the lobby and foyer would be treated, and eventually the auditorium and other parts of the house—but each element would be an integral part of the original modernization plan.

Logic and Results

In this way, harmony would be preserved and work would progress in a systematized manner with no severe drain on the finances of the theatre owner. However, without the all-important original modernization plan, and the supervision of the architect who proposed the project, such an idea might go haywire in execution. Hence it was almost imperative that consultation with an experienced theatre architect be the first consideration of any theatre owner contemplating modernization of his property in this progressive manner.

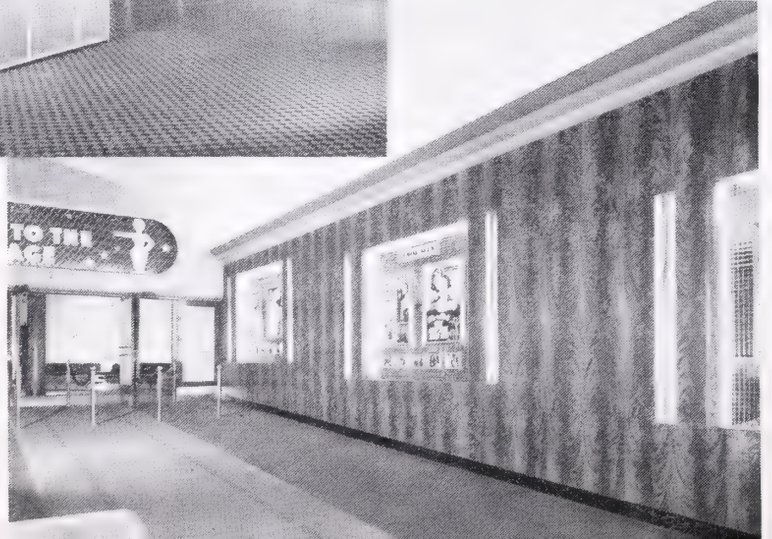
Mark D. Kalischer, the young architect who pioneered this plan for more concerted action on the part of theatre owners whose properties were badly in need of remodeling, has been highly successful in its execution. Several theatres in and about Chicago have passed painlessly through the ofttimes hazardous throes of modernization under his direction, and he has seen the plan adopted by remodelers of theatres in other parts of the country as well. The logic of the scheme cannot be denied, and the happy ending which planned modernization implies is its ultimate and practically assured goal.

One of the latest progressive remodeling projects designed and handled by Mr. Kalischer was that undertaken at the Portage Theatre in Chicago. The Portage, a 2,000-seat house, is one of a group of seven theatres owned and operated by G. C. S. Circuit, president of which is Mort D. Goldberg, who is interviewed elsewhere in this issue. The business-like theatre operation tactics of this comparatively new circuit organization are characterized by its remodeling activity, whereby all of its theatres have been progressively modernized and made really money-making places of business which attract patronage in their own right despite neighboring competition.

M. D. KALISCHER

The Portage was an old Renaissance-type house, showing first-run pictures in its neighborhood, Chicago's northwest side. It was truly antiquated and not in the least appealing to modern-minded patronage. It was old and sombre in every respect and since neither antiquity nor soberness are particularly compatible with entertainment, it was decided to banish this element as speedily as possible in the interests of the theatre's boxoffice potentialities.

Renaissance Gives Way



Mr. Kalischer was called in by the management who decided to do something about it, and plans and designs for complete remodeling were put under way. The Portage was to be beautified in the modern manner — but progressively — and the Renaissance was gradually to give way to a style more in keeping with modern entertainment practices.

The interior of this house was deemed most in need of a modern beauty treatment by Mr. Kalischer, and it was decided to remodel and redecorate the lobby and foyer as the first step in bringing the Portage under the influence of modern trends. New innovations in design and applied functionalism were involved in the plans for treatment throughout the house and particularly was this first-to-be-considered portion of the theatre—the lobby and foyer—to be made a stunning example, since it was confidently expected that interest in its changed appearance would help pay for those other parts of the progressive remodeling plan that would be considered in the near future.

Among the first considerations in changing the style of the Portage Theatre's lobby and foyer was a desire to remove the coldness and heaviness of atmosphere which its Renaissance decorations and furnishings gave it. This modern age demands lightness and informality and complete harmony in its decorative effect—and particularly is this true in the public entertainment field. Hence the Portage was to be stripped of all its forbidding interior effects, thus to bring about a renewal of its patrons' interest in the house as an institution rather than just another movie.

BEFORE modernization the Portage Theatre's lobby was heavy with Renaissance atmosphere and not in the least inducive to the mood for entertainment which such a provision should inspire. An attempt at advertising display was to be noted, but it would hardly be termed proper promotion for modern moving picture presentation.

AFTER modernization the Portage lobby has become a stunning example of functionalism in the modern manner. The light touch is here evident in simple lines, luxurious furnishings and scientific indirect lighting. Advertising display now is full of punch yet dignified and inviting to the eye.

The cold Italian marble with which the lobby walls were lined was first to go. There was no place for this too formal and awe-inspiring material in the modern interior which was designed for the Portage. In its place, flame-crotch mahogany veneer in a four-way match was used. This modern and most decorative material gives the effect of an intricate and bizarre Rococco design. It is feathery and airy in feeling and altogether appropriate to its surroundings—rich, yet not gaudy.

Display Made Decorative

Large display cases with recessed illumination form an integral part of the design inasmuch as they are placed on both side-walls and alternated with indirect lighting units of unique design. The lighting for the display cases is indirect by fluorescent tubes on three sides to prevent glare, and the troughs are equipped with hinged covers fitted with louvre glass. This is a new type of plastic with integral louvres which mask the light rays in one direction, thus preventing glare and specular reflection. The functional stainless steel lighting troughs which flank the cases are equipped with lumiline bulbs for emergency lighting.

The ceiling of the lobby is painted cerulean blue and formed in a barrel-vault effect. A plaster cornice at the ceiling line which runs the length of the two side-walls conceals two rows of fluorescent lighting troughs. This indirect lighting treatment provides the general illumination for the lobby and casts a warm glow over the entire decorative scheme. The floor of this part of the house is now carpeted at the outer sides, but for utility rubber matting is recessed into the center portion.

The inner lobby, or foyer, which is immediately behind the doors of the newly treated outer lobby, came up for attention next. Here, dignity, elegance, spaciousness and beauty were combined, and all that formerly bespoke cold-heartedness was removed from the scene. Many startling changes were made, but all in the interest of bringing greater warmth and invitation to this most hospitable part of any theatre.

The redecorated and refurnished foyer is a thing of beauty and a joy forever to the moods of entertainment-seekers. Contour and simple modern ornamentation along with functional furnishings make this an outstanding model of modern progressive remodeling—which is designed to pay boxoffice dividends.

Novel Indirect Lighting

One of the new innovations in Mr. Kalischer's design which exerts the most influence on this part of the Portage's decorative scheme is a huge oval-domed ceiling in its frontal portion which is illuminated by peach-colored zeon tubes. Immediately below this dome, the luxurious carpet was designed by the architect to reflect exactly the oval contours of the ceiling. This is accomplished by the use of plain colored carpet in a warm salmon shade bordered by a rich Delft blue.

In this front portion of the foyer also, mirrors were used effectively to completely cover the side-walls. These are immense wheel-cut Venetian mirrors which serve as a backdrop for luxuriously styled settees, and they are flanked on either side by plaster niches that are illuminated by pale blue fluorescent lamps concealed in stainless steel troughs. The entire effect is breath-taking in beauty, yet simple withal.

The inner foyer with doors leading to the auditorium was completely denuded of all plaster and gilt ornament which formerly so filled this house and the walls were replastered in a streamlined effect. The walls were then painted in a warm champagne color and the ceiling was done in a complementary green-blue. Large and showy floral murals designed by the architect complete the stunning effect in vivid emerald green and orchid shades with accents of red and orange. Huge pillars between the inner and outer portions of the room and lesser ones at the entrance doors to the auditorium lend a lofty feeling to this foyer.

FUNCTIONAL PLANNING is often best exemplified by the modern treatment accorded smaller theatres in neighborhood or village locations. In such places, economy will be found combined with simplicity of form to provide an attractiveness that is lasting and practical in its appeal to patronage . . . An example of the application of planned functionalism is the new Russell Theatre in Millersburg, Ohio, described in full elsewhere in this issue. Its foyer and standee area, pictured on the cover, is simple in design, depending upon contour and surface interest, luxuriousness of modern carpet which lends a feeling of spaciousness, and modernly diffused indirect lighting for attraction qualities. Economy was involved, but its usual limitations are not apparent in this instance because Functional Planning and all the savings and practicalities which it involves was the motif in the design and construction of the new Russell Theatre.

See Your Theatre as Your Patrons See It

by ANSEL M. MOORE

IN HIS famous ode "To a Louse," the beloved Scottish Bard, auld Bobby Burns, penned a wonderful morsel of thought for mankind when he wrote:

"Oh wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursels as others see us!
It wad frae monie a blunder free us,
An' foolish notion"

Stanza No. 8 of that famous poem fairly drips with logic, although it's forlorn to hope that we mortals will ever attain the accomplishment called for.

Our egos prevent it. Our innate and foolish senses of importance stand as a bar to impartial self analysis. Our personal pride prohibits our even trying to see ourselves as others see us.

So we perish the thought and go right on blundering our ways into oblivion via the route of make believe; kidding our own selves perhaps, but nobody else in particular.

That's the personal side of us, of course, and there isn't much we can do about "seeing ourselves as others see us." Probably the view would displease us greatly if we could.

The Business Angle

On the business side of it, however, there is some hope. While our business—and theatre business in particular—reflects our personalities rather sharply, nevertheless there is less opportunity for concealment in our houses than there is in our haughty minds. In other words we can't very well hide the shortcomings of our houses from those who may patronize them, try as we may to hide them from ourselves.

It is not therefore, we believe, beyond the realm of reasonable possibility to hope that every theatre owner, for still purely selfish reasons, will try to see his theatre as his patrons actually see it. Self satisfaction is the easiest accomplishment of mankind. The customer fellow's opinion is of more importance to us than our own, after all.

Volumes have been written lately about the vagaries of picture show business. There is nothing really new to be said about What's Wrong with Picture Show Business that hasn't already been expounded by experts, among themselves, so we shan't attempt a rehash here. But may we raise a small piping voice to inquire, "What About the Patrons? Maybe they know the answer!"

Now let's put ourselves aside momentarily and try to assume, insofar as our places of business are concerned, the attitude of the patrons—to see the points at issue as they see them.

The Patrons Perspective

Stepping into the character of the common garden variety of theatre patron, let's try to make a thorough and unbiased test of our troubles. Forgetting for the nonce our position as the owners of theatres, let's push back from the dinner table, pick up the evening paper as per custom and scan the evening's entertainment possibilities on the amusement page. Here's competition for us right off the bat—plenty of it. The family forum finally decides which and where, and we're off to see a movie.

It just happens that the one of the dual features playing at one of our own theatres this evening appeals to us, but we're still out of character and in the guise of an innocent patron we're simply on the lookout for some entertainment and relaxation—something that will compensate for the good radio program we're about to pass up.

So we pile into Plymouth and away we go! Our route leads us past a new theatre, just recently opened. Good-looking front there; plenty of illumination and color and gaiety. The attractively worded sales message on the modern marquee sort of makes us want to change our minds; but no, we're still picture-minded and besides a parking space isn't handy. But that layout sure appeals to us. Wonder what it looks like inside.

We pass another place. Not interested; because we went there once and the sound was terrible. Gosh why didn't we go over to Gimmicks and have a round of bridge? Well, we're coming to it. Just a couple of blocks down the next street. We turn the corner. Where is that damned theatre? Ought to be able to see some bright lights from here. Should be next door to that beauty parlor with the big bright sign.

The Illusion Lags

Ah, there it is, right here. Nearly missed it. The guy who runs it must be practicing up for a black-out. Hell, no place to park! Maybe we can squeeze in some place farther down. Should've stayed home. That picture better be good!

Hoofing it back from three blocks down we dubiously approach the ticket window and upon inquiry, a sour-puss ticket seller tells us that the picture we want to see follows the one we hadn't even thought about. But Hell's Bells we're here now. May as well wiggle through it. Four tickets, please!

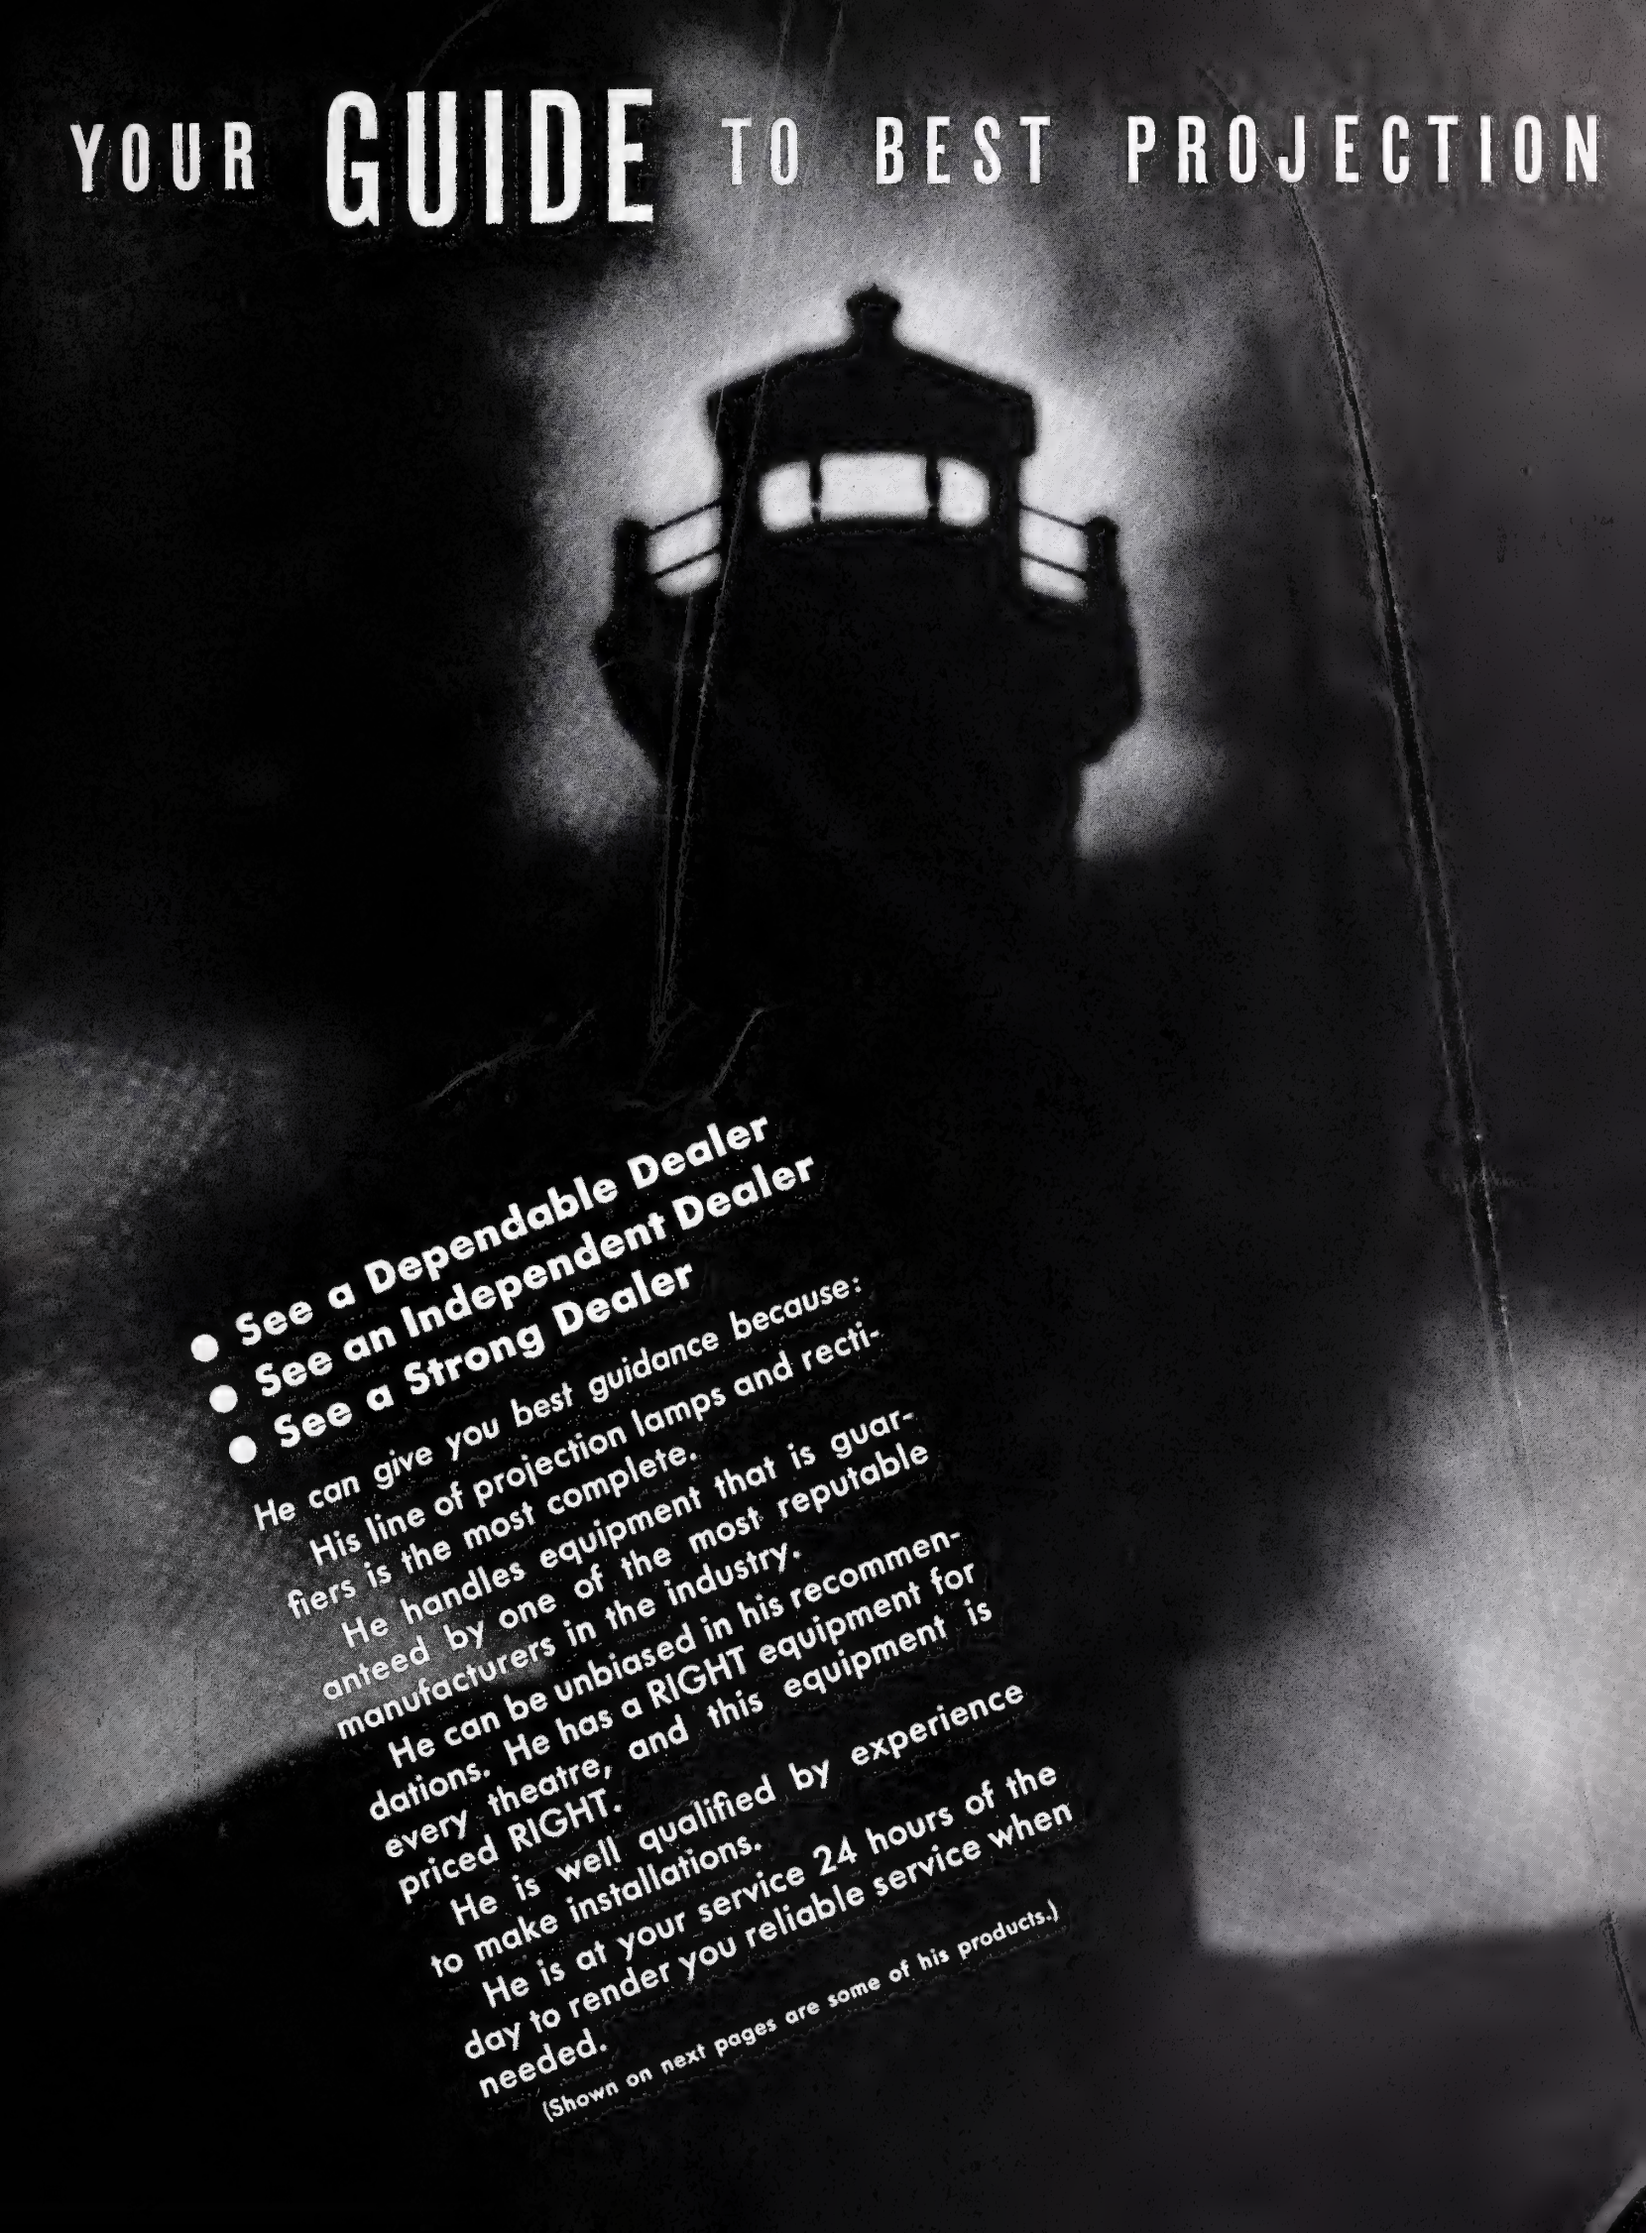
Junior wants a drink. What, no fountain? Oh, down stairs! Where's the rest room? Apparently they don't believe in signs here. Be careful Junior it's dark down these steps. Boy is this a dump. Better wait kid, and I'll buy you a "coke" next door. This place stinks.

Mama and Sis meet us upstairs. May as well go in the auditorium and sit it out. Lounges don't look so good. Let's get it over with. Katchoo! Jeeze, what a draft in here. Let's sit over there on the side. There's four seats if we can squeeze in. Whatda they think we are—sardines! Dam it's dark in here. Maybe to hide the Gay Ninety decorations.

And so now, with all the painful preliminaries attended to we're ready to see the picture we had really wanted to see. This floppola ought to be finished in a few minutes now. Wonder how old it is? Tired. Should've stayed home where it's comfortable at least and listened to Fred Allen. He should stay out of pictures. These seats are like saw bucks. We'll try the other cheek now. Smells terrible in here, too. Maybe it's the picture. Lord, how much longer? Hope we can see and hear the next picture better. This one is probably old and scratched up. That's why they get 'em so cheap. Picture's hard on our eyes, too.

Point of Exhaustion

Ah, at last. That's all of that. Nuts! We've got to see a flock of previews now. Who in hell cares what's coming to this dump? We don't. Our bones are breaking. Believe we're catching cold in here. Ought to be a law against what dump theatres and double features do to people. Ah-h-h! Now dammit we're gettin' sleepy. Much be lack of fresh air or something.



Alright, bring on that special feature. We're just in the right mood to give it the Royal Razzberry—and that goes for you and your whole gol-darned picture show business. Even if this picture's as good as your publicity experts say it is, we're in no frame of mind to enjoy it.

The foregoing somewhat rambling narrative of a theatre owner in the character of a customer calls for a bit of candid imagination, of course. It is not so very difficult to imagine what is wrong if we but try to see things as others see them. And the customers viewpoint is vital. Try sampling the food you serve—and the way you serve it.

Gentlemen, Be Seated!

The golden age of minstrelsy will be recalled by Ansel Moore in next issue, to emphasize the salient points of comfortable theatre seating: The general theme for next (February 1) issue is "Seating Service."—The Editor.

STRONG UTILITY

INTERMEDIATE HIGH INTENSITY PROJECTION ARC LAMP

● A light for the moderate sized theatre using a screen up to 18 feet in width; where the vivid brilliancy of high intensity projection has been heretofore denied by prohibitive operating costs.

In order to secure the desired screen brilliancy with the present dense black and white and the colored films, twice as much light is required as is possible to project by any low intensity lamp.

A doubling in light over the low intensity was made possible at an increased combined current and carbon cost of less than 2c per hour.

Projects that snow white light so essential to the satisfactory projection of colored pictures.

STRONG MOGUL

HIGH INTENSITY ARC LAMP

Designed to project a volume of light even beyond the normal requirements of theatres employing large screens of non-reflective surface, screens that require a tremendous increase in light value to maintain a satisfactory level of illumination.

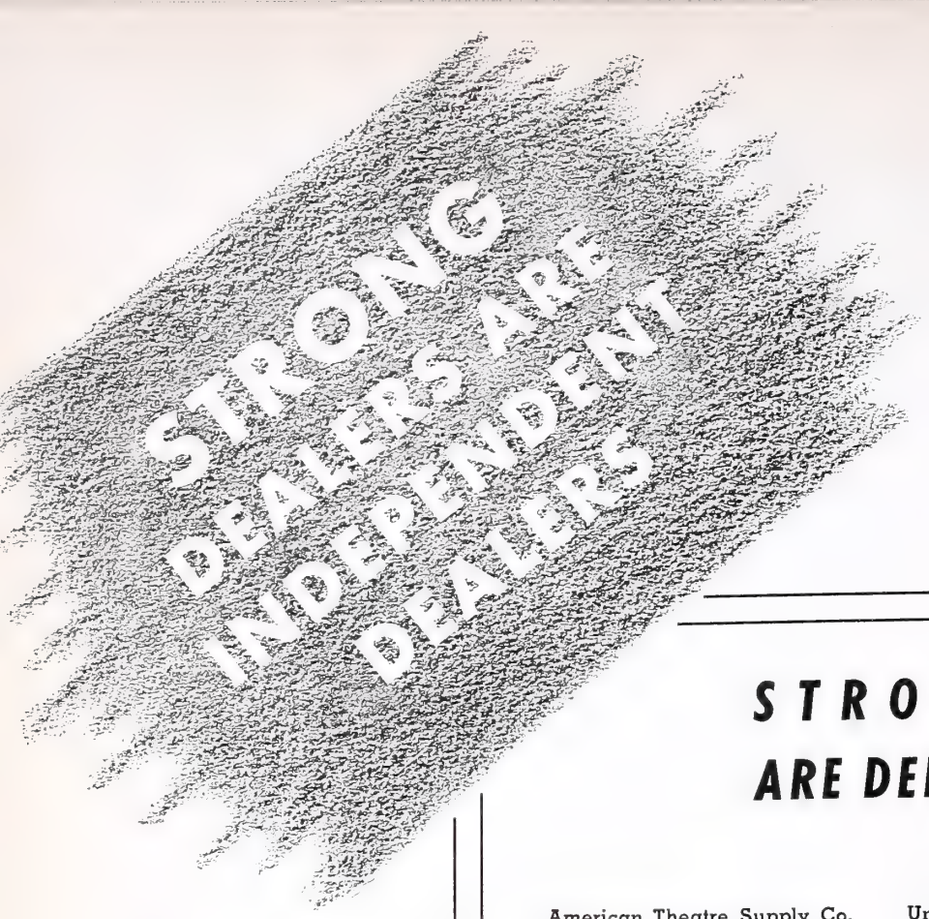
STRONG RECTIFIERS

MOGUL RECTIFIER SIX-TUBE

Designed to produce power even beyond the normal requirements of the largest theatres, as well as drive-in theatres, where the enormous screens tax lighting equipment to the utmost.

STRONG UTILITY FOUR-TUBE RECTIFIER

A low-cost rectifier for use with high intensity projection arcs.



STRONG COPPER OXIDE RECTIFIER

A completely dry and non-chemical metallic rectifier for use with high intensity projection arc lamps.

STRONG UTILITY INTERMEDIATE HIGH INTENSITY RECTIFIER

Designed especially as a power supply for intermediate high intensity arc lamps, which requires a fixed current of 40 amperes at 27 volts and an open circuit potential of 35 volts.

A Lawyer-Showman Lets Us in on a Secret

WHEN recently Mark Kalischer, Chicago theatre architect, asked the editor if he'd like to have a story on one of his (Kalischer's) latest modernizing projects, the offer was accepted and your inquiring reporter got the assignment.

Early in the quiz proceedings the inevitable question regarding ownership of the Portage Theatre (more particularly described elsewhere in this issue) brought out the fact that it was the property of the G.C.S. Circuit of six nifty neighborhood movie houses all located on the northwest section of Chicago and a seventh in the city of Neenah, Wisconsin.

Further questioning disclosed that the initials "G. C. S." identified a firm of Chicago attorneys at law, namely, Goldberg, Courshon and Solomon. So an interview appointment was arranged with Mort D. Goldberg, president of the circuit, who acted as spokesman for the trio of successful lawyer-showmen.

From Mr. G., it was learned that the chain of independent theatres got its start in 1930 with the acquisition of the Drake, a costly but then emaciated 1,700-seat atmospheric theatre of the boom period which had been closed and opened intermittently, but frequently, for a period of five years prior to its final acquirement. It has stayed open continuously since then and this, mind you, right through the midst of a depression.

Then followed later additions to the chain including the 1,500-seat Admiral, the 1,900-seat Portage, the 550-seat Review; the 800-seat Fox, the 400-seat Jeff and the 800-seat Embassy, the latter at Neenah, Wisconsin.

Having long listened to the painful recitals of hazard and handicaps attending the operation of independently owned picture theatres in and around Chicago we naturally sensed a secret in this instance and forthwith proceeded to fathom it.

Here were seven second-run houses, three of them with sizeable capacities, apparently doing business profitably and permanently under the many competitive restraints that we'd often heard recited. We asked Mr. Goldberg to give us his special formula. He gave it succinctly and straight from the shoulder. Quoting Mr. Goldberg:

"As an independent theatre owner running pictures in 'repeat position' and from necessity rather than choice, I am unalterably opposed to booking systems and distributing policies that deprive my theatres of the privilege of showing fresh, first-run pictures. But the attendant evils of the business can not be overcome by merely squawking helplessly about conditions.

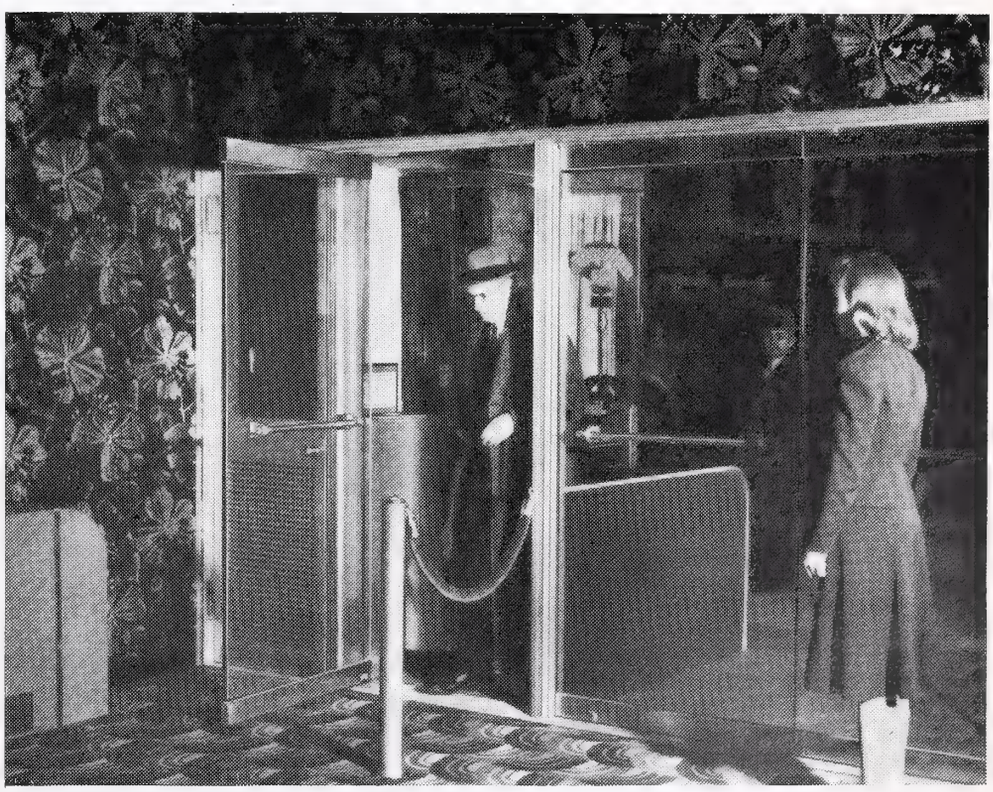
"We own all our theatre properties outright, representing real estate investments running into the millions. We must make them sustain the investment. To offset the disadvantages of our secondary position on play dates, we must manage our theatres and maintain them.



"Yes, we run double features despite the fact that we don't approve of them. Competition compels us to give quantity as well as quality in certain of our locations. Realizing that a great many persons dislike double features and knowing from our own experience that many others do like them, we try to adjust the opposition with the best means at our disposal.

"Early in our theatre operating experience came the realization that the exhibitor must offer his patrons an atmosphere of pleasantry and and comfort before he can satisfactorily entertain them. Such physical provisions create a subconscious feeling or mood that makes patrons much easier to please with what we are able to put before them.

"Since our reopening of the Drake, which has now operated continuously since 1930 we have adhered to the policy of providing the proper atmosphere for entertainment, keeping our theatres up-to-date in service and appearances and with the best possible equipment. Our most recent modernization of the Portage Theatre typifies our general policy in this respect."

Thus Mr. Goldberg told us how he manages to stay in theatre business independently against the odds.

PHANTOM DOORMAN NEW FUNCTIONAL DEVICE

A decided novelty effect for publicity but functional in the practical performance of duty is to be noted in this application of a photo-electric cell operated door opener and closer, for theatre entrances. Becoming extensively used in other classes of business, the Phantom Doorman, as the device is called, should find ready application to theatre door control. (Photo courtesy The Yale & Towne Mfg. The Great "Good Will Mystery" Simply Exposed

by ERNEST W. FAIR

"I DON'T know what it's all about and you don't either so let's just inventory the business and add ten per cent for goodwill."

That statement has been repeated so often in the theatre business that the most valuable asset of the business is sometimes juggled around unmercifully. We all understand what goodwill is but converting it into dollars and cents is something else again.

Yet there should be no such mystery about goodwill; tackled along the right lines it can readily be computed. No theatre man ever knows the value of his business without knowing what dollar and cents value his intangible goodwill asset can command. Naturally it is important to know this in the sale of one's business, but it's also important to know it for transferring properties, purchasing other theatres, modernization, expansion, consolidation, reorganization, new financing, determining income tax valuations and other tax valuations, for rate purposes and for internal business adjustments.

Five Points to Follow

Estimates of the value in goodwill of a theatre enterprise should be built up through a study of earning power. The estimate may take the form of capitalization of net earning power as a whole, the estimated value of the tangible assets being deducted from the result to yield the value of intangibles.

In dealing with earning power for the purpose of measuring the value of goodwill and other intangibles five things should be borne in mind:

1. This value must depend on future, not past or present earnings.
2. In using the past as a guide to the future, take neither too long nor too short a period.
3. The odds are against current earning power remaining fixed as at present.
4. The normal earnings and normal rates must constantly be kept in mind.
5. It is wisest to use a high rate of capitalization in determining the value of the excess earnings.

We must also stop to consider whether those conditions that have built up this earning power can be transferred from one ownership to another and whether or not they are durable in themselves.

The Five-Year Plan

There is one excellent rule to remember in appraising the goodwill value of any business under consideration; goodwill is the value of differential or excess profits, without regard to form or method of financing.

Naturally since goodwill purchased or otherwise acquired today must be cashed in on tomorrow, we cannot too closely study earning power. The first step in the study of earnings is the past. The period covered should be from two to five years. It is usually either unnecessary or undesirable to go back more than five years; on the other hand one year is too short a period to afford a basis for judgment. A single year is not a sufficient period for the high or low profits of that year may be altogether due to exceptional temporary conditions. Nor should too long a period be considered lest the condition of the remoter years be so different from those prevailing at the time of valuation as to make an average of little significance.

The U. S. Treasury Department recognizes the use of a minimum of five years. Always bear in mind that the periodic deductions recognized for depreciation of equipment may have been insufficient or they may have been excessive. Consideration must also be given to the methods

THE PAUSE THAT REFRESHES PICTURE PATRONS

Typical of the automatic beverage service provided by a number of motion picture theatres in various parts of the country is this installation in the Oriental Theatre in Chicago. Refrigerated coin-operated venders have given owners a means of providing this type of service without expensive outlays of money or space and at considerable profit to themselves. (Photo courtesy Coin Machine Industries, Inc.)

Coin-operated beverage venders have become increasingly popular in hundreds of the nation's picture theatres during the last several years because of their space-saving features and the economy of operation involved.

According to the Coin Machine Industries, Inc., national trade association of vending machine manufacturers, refrigerated coin-operated beverage venders have provided theatre owners with a means of making available the drinks patrons desire without expensive outlays of money or space and without the necessity of added personnel for service.

The theatre is one of the many fields served by coin-operated venders. The machines, in addition, have made beverages available in offices, factories and schools where the over-the-counter method of selling is impractical.

A representative display of coin-operated beverage venders of the latest streamlined type has been arranged for the 1941 exposition of the Coin Machine Industries, Inc., which is to be held January 13 to 16 in the Hotel Sherman, at Chicago.

In our last previous issue (which if you didn't, please see) the importance of Good Will as a business asset to theatre operation was expounded editorially under the title, "Removing the Stress from Over-Strained Public Relations." Its negotiability is further expressed by another authority in this article, which deals with methods of computation for property transfer, taxation, purchasing for maintenance and other purposes, such, for instance, as "Computing the Little Profit Who Wasn't There."—The Editor.

employed in valuing properties, particularly with respect to change in methods in the period under consideration.

Having calculated the past earnings the next step is the translation of this information into an estimate of future earnings; an element in the theatre business being sold. The trend of recent earnings is always an important point to consider. All factors which are likely to have a bearing on the profits of the next few years should be taken into consideration.

Estimating the normal earning rate in connection with goodwill evaluation has always been a ticklish proposition. The normal rate is that rate of return which will attract to and maintain in a particular field a supply of capital and ability sufficient to maintain its relative position in view of conditions of supply and demand.

When we proceed to calculate the amount of the normal earnings this normal earning rate is usually applied to the book value of the investment in tangible assets.

How Long Will It Last?

One of the most important considerations in the appraisal of goodwill is the question of the duration of the earnings which can reasonably be assured on the basis of present conditions and factors. It is unsafe to assume that these earnings can continue indefinitely. Competition tends to reduce such earnings over the years time. Depreciation of property, if allowed to persist, also has its peculiar effect. Then also it is reasonable to assume that within a short time after the purchase of a business a part of the earning power will be a result of the efforts of the new management and conditions which will arise after purchase rather than the factors and conditions present at the time of purchase.

An infallible rule to remember is that goodwill based upon personal relations and the peculiar abilities of an individual owner can be transferred only to a limited extent and can be expected to disappear shortly.

These are the basic principles that underlie the problem of estimating goodwill for any theatre enterprise; the rest of the procedure is a matter of actual figuring and adapting these principles to one's own system of operation.

Studied closely it can be observed that there is neither anything mysterious about goodwill nor difficult about its calculation for no matter what the purpose may be.

Realizing the day-in-and-day-out goodwill value of our own theatre institution is another step that will enable us to operate it more intelligently and profitably.

Dear Mr. Belfield:-

The new Alexander Smith Crestwood Carpet which was recently installed in the Utah Theatre has been meeting with unusual interest on the part of the public. In a few instances, patrons have asked from whom we purchased same, it is so outstanding.

The carpet has put a new atmosphere in the theatre which I am sure could not be secured by rebuilding or redecorating. Its richness and refinement along with its eye-appeal have made the Utah the showplace of Salt Lake City.

Very truly yours,

Charles M. Pincus, Mgr.

DECORATING

THE ARTISTIC SIDE OF ARCHITECTURE AS APPLIED TO THEATRE DECORATION

Ridding the Rivoli of a Riot of Renaissance—Our Responsibility

by REX DAVIS

WE HAVE written many times of the vast difference in decorating a new theatre and the redecorating of an outmoded one. In the hope that many of you will be interested in the latter type of house, let's cite an actual example and tell you briefly the way we handled our end of the contract.

MR. DAVIS

The Rivoli and Palace theatres, in Toledo, also described elsewhere in this issue, were built quite a few years ago and during the period when heavy ornamental plaster just had to be applied to every ceiling and wall surface. In other words, their interiors were examples of "Italian—English—French Renaissance," and meant to look just like every other theatre presenting "vaudeville-moving-picture entertainment."

We thoroughly understand the problems of the architects who designed these "palaces." In the majority of cases, they were following the wishes of owners who wanted more and grander ornamentation to impress the public, as well as their competitors. Architects, too, must live, so they did everything in their power to satisfy their clients and the public, who readily accepted and actually expected grandeur.

The Changing World

Well, times and conditions have a way of changing, and theatres, along with them, grow older and dated. The problem of preventing that out-moded appearance haunts every theatre owner in the world. An educated public likes to associate with success, likes to patronize theatres that look modern and are clean and comfortable. But—and here comes the catch—when redecoration of such a house becomes necessary, owners insist that their interiors must be made to look just like that brand-new modern theatre around the corner! That, without architectural changes, is an order for Aladdin! The budget usually makes no provision for an architect, much less any for construction work. All that has been appropriated is a modest sum for painting. And not the complete house, but just where the redecorations will create the most effect.

The main problem to be met and solved in a house of this type is this well-known heavy Renaissance plaster ornamentation previously mentioned. This, though good taste in its time, is the stamp of its age; for the mark of modernity is simplicity of architectural background and the use of large areas of reiterant and correlated colors. Therefore, since construction alterations were out of the question, it was up to the decorative scheme to achieve the effect of simple architectural backgrounds with the use of paint alone. This involved the obliteration of unwanted detail by the scientific use of mass areas of color. If not being applied over flat, modern surfaces, at least it was camouflaging them to the eye so that they appeared to be flat, simple and therefore modern. The entire problem here is, to state it in a few words, elimination and not addition.

The Rivoli Redecorated

This is the way we solved this same problem for the owners of the Rivoli Theatre in Toledo.

Lobby—A heavily ornamented ceiling received an overall painting in a tomato red—highlighting only a small portion of the moulding detail to give needed depth. Walls were painted in French grey to tone in with the color of dado marble. This treatment gave a conservative, tailored effect glowing with a welcoming atmosphere. A rubber mat was used on the floor in Pompeian red and bone white, designed in straight traffic lines. Doors and woodwork were enameled in a contrasting blue green to match new entrance doors.

Foyer—A quite low ceiling was painted bone white to give an illusion of height. Old wall panels of burnt orange damask were saved and a dado of grey green was painted in. New carpet echoed the ceiling, wall and dado colors. The old furniture was modernized by refinishing to show the natural beauty of wood grain and reupholstering in fabrics that recalled the general color scheme.

Men's Smoking Room—Ceiling painted parchment color, walls received a coach red to form a masculine, inviting and practical color scheme.

Ladies' Lounge—Ceiling bone white paint, walls papered in turquoise blue with bone white stripes. The original furniture was retained, reupholstered in coral and turquoise blue, which managed to make it look like new pieces. Carpeting recalls the coral tones in a conservative plume pattern.

Ladies' Powder Room—Ceiling painted coral, walls papered in vertical stripes of coral and bone white. Here again the original furniture was painted bone white and rubbed with coral. Fabrics for reupholstery are in turquoise patterns. Carpeting which is the same as that in the ladies' lounge gives an effect of unity and size. New lighting fixtures were used throughout these rooms and they were designed to give easy transition from traditional to modern.

The average patron visiting this redecorated theatre would have a difficult time recognizing it as the same house, which is the real test of a modernization job. A maximum effect of newness was achieved with a minimum expenditure, and the economical adaptation of furnishings already in use. All the public spaces, the ones coming under closest inspection by the patrons, are now completely fresh, and vibrant with color in the modern manner.

Consult an architect as the first step in planning a functional theatre. An experienced theatre architect is the man who can get the most out of any new building or remodeling appropriation.

The modern theatre is a smartly packaged unit put up by theatre men with which to intrigue the fancy of patrons who buy what is to be found within—entertainment.

Advisory Service

Since modern theatre decorating is a specialized art requiring counsel, creative talent and planning ability which are not usually available at all points of the country, Mr. Teichert has agreed to serve our readers in an advisory capacity. He will be glad to correspond with any of our readers who may wish information and advice on decorating procedure. All such inquiries will be given prompt attention. Address your inquiry to The Modern Theatre, 332 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. It will be immediately referred to Mr. Teichert for analysis and advice, without obligation.

LITERATURE

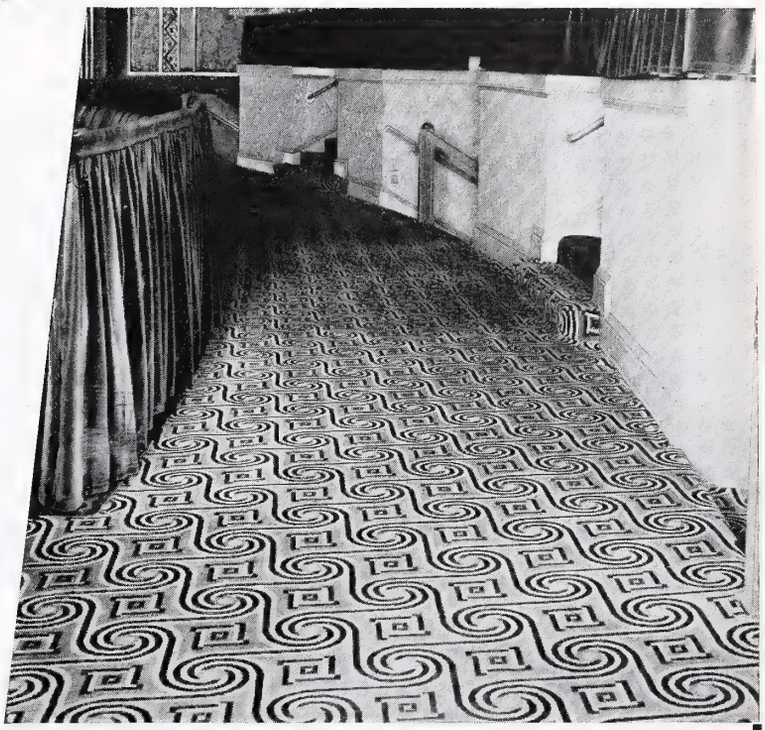
The following concerns have recently filed copies of interesting descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau. Readers who may wish copies of such literature may obtain them promptly by addressing The Modern Theatre, 332 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

American Desk Manufacturing Co., of Temple, Texas, submits a catalogue on "Public Seating," in which its line of theatre chairs is pictured in full color and specifications as to construction and design are given. Points to remember in purchasing seating are outlined and testimonials from the company's satisfied customers are included.

American Seating Company, of Grand Rapids, Mich., presents copies of its interesting little paper entitled "Theatre News," which is "published occasionally in the interest of better seating for theatres." The sheet is newsy, packed with interest and pictures, and informative in all particulars.

C. S. Ashcraft Manufacturing Co., of Long Island City, N. Y., offers its "Projectionist's Manual of Cyclex," covering installation, operation and maintenance. The 46-page handbook is profusely illustrated and very informative in every detail pertaining to this new light source and its accessories.

Eastman Kodak Company, of Rochester, N. Y., offers an attractive and profusely full-color illustrated 28-page booklet on its new product "Tenite," a thermoplastic molding material made from Eastman cellulose esters. This colorful new plastic material is highly adaptable to many uses in the theatre—as it has already found application in many other industries. Properties and uses of the product are outlined most graphically.



Ingram-Richardson Manufacturing Co., of Beaver Falls, Pa., files an elaborate booklet on their products entitled "The Book of Ing-Rich Porcelain Enameled Iron Signs." Descriptions of sign manufacture and the advantages of this type of advertising display are to be found, and a looseleaf section at the rear of the book gives illustrations of typical porcelain-enamel advertising signs.

Rosco Laboratories, of Brooklyn, N. Y., offers an informative pamphlet on "Time-Tested Rosco Products." Accessories for the theatre, film exchange, laboratory and studio are described and pictured, and instructions for their uses also are to be found. Prices are given in this folder also.

NOTICE: Manufacturers of all products adapted to theatre modernization or maintenance are invited to file latest copies of their catalogues or descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau.—THE EDITOR.

HOW MUCH

SHOULD THEATRE CARPET COST

The smart Paramount Theatre, Ashland, Kentucky —Distinctive to the eye—luxurious to the foot, this Cochrane Paxson carpet effectively helps to create a modern, quality atmosphere.

COCHRANE'S THEATRE CARPET ADVISORY BUREAU CAN GIVE YOU SOME PRACTICAL POINTERS

Cost is always an important question in selecting theatre carpets . . . and it is a question on which Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau can offer practical suggestions.

The amount of daily traffic is of course an obvious consideration. In addition, there are such factors as whether the theatre is in a downtown or neighborhood location—how frequently it is redecorated—the relative importance of first cost compared to cost per year of service.

Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau can also give you valuable assistance in selecting patterns and colors that are particularly suitable for the architecture and decorative treatment of your theatre.

You will find the Cochrane line of theatre carpets unusually complete . . . correctly styled—precision woven and noteworthy for the clearness of their colors. It is a wise move to consult Cochrane first . . . and it places you under no obligation.

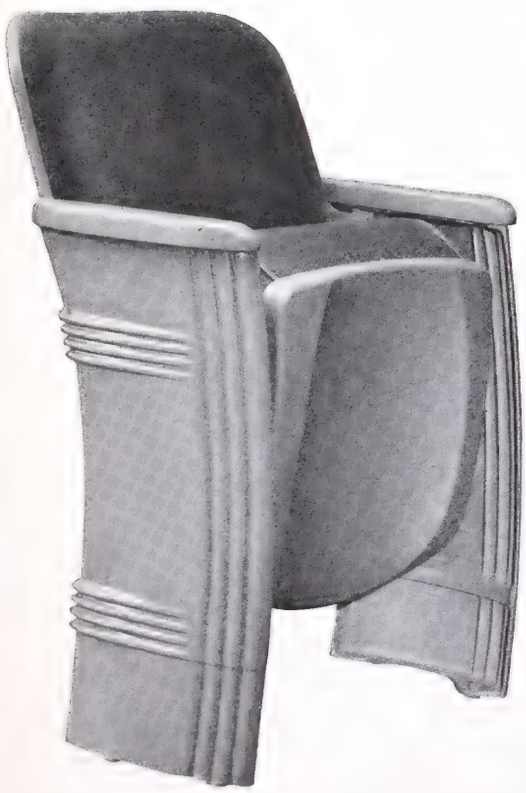
tive design. It is massive in proportions yet not too heavy in feeling. The flame-crotch mahogany was again used in its construction and the upholstery is in coral mohair to harmonize with the carpet used throughout the lobby and foyer.

FUNCTIONAL CHANGES

In addition to these two important parts of the house, the Portage Theatre's first stage of progressive remodeling also included modernization of the rest rooms. Especial attention was paid to sanitation and convenience for the patrons in this connection. The walls and floors are completely tiled now and partitions are of enameled steel. Built-in electric hand-driers styled to harmonize with the wall tile also were installed as a patron convenience and to replace the former messiness of towel service.



The Portage Theatre's heating system also received attention in this initial stage, since decoration so often is influenced by the position of radiators, grilles or outlets. All floor-type radiators were removed in this instance and they were replaced by flush-type heaters concealed in the walls. In the lobby alone, room to accommodate at least 25 additional persons was obtained by the removal of old-type radiators—and the circulation of conditioned air was immeasurably improved as well.

Now with this first stage of modernization of the Portage Theatre behind them, the owners are looking forward to completion of the work within a short time. The second stage will include the auditorium and other parts of the house, which were not touched at this time but which nevertheless were very much a part of the original design plan. By doing the work in two steps, it may be paid for out of income and still have the advantage of unified design throughout the entire project when completed. That is exactly what Progressive Remodeling entails and avails.

Floor Coverings Demand Careful Maintenance

Representing a substantial investment, floor coverings in theatres deserve and should receive the care necessary to keep them in good condition, preserve their beauty and prolong their life.

There is just one formula which covers care—cleanliness. Dirt is their worst enemy. Kept clean and free from dirt, grit, dust, any rug or carpet will give longer wear; more lasting satisfaction.

Frequent cleaning prevents the dirt from accumulating in the surfaces of pile fabrics. Unless it is removed, fine particles of grit become buried at the base of the pile. Sharp edges of this grit, grinding against the pile as the rug or carpet is walked upon, tend to sever the wool fibres.

In a special bulletin on the Care and Maintenance of Wool Pile Floor Coverings, the Institute of Carpet Manufacturers of America has set forth the results of research by the engineers in charge of the technical staffs of the various carpet mills. Cleanliness through proper cleaning, this bulletin sets forth, is the most important factor in care.

ATMOSPHERIC EFFECTS THAT COLORS PRODUCE

As each color has its specific wave length, it possesses also a character or quality of its own. These qualities of luminosity, vibrance, warmth or coolness, play their roles in producing harmony, just as actors play their parts in the drama. The peculiar quality of a color may be toned down, but it cannot be wholly effaced. So a brief analysis of the characteristics of the primary and secondary colors is essential to an understanding of the effect produced by each.

Red: Most intense and warmest of all the colors, red plays a leading role in the decorative drama. It is too strong, as are all the primary colors, to use alone, but this very strength imparts life and vigor to any decorative scheme. By reason of this vigor and warmth, it is one of the indispensable carpet colors, either in hues or the plain color, or as a dominant color in figured rug or carpet. It is widely employed to give vigor and character to draperies and upholstery fabrics. As an accent color it is invaluable.

Yellow: Yellow is the color of good cheer and vivid life. Being the best reflector of light, it is a favored wall color, particularly in rooms which lack sunlight. In upholstery and drapery fabrics and in important accents, it is particularly effective in combination with darker colors. In carpets it is from mixtures of yellow with reds that the important browns and woodtones are derived.

Blue: Blue, coolest, most restful of all the colors, tends to make rooms appear larger. It is effectively used in floor coverings, both in the darker shades and in the lighter tints. In the former it supplies a restful, quiet foundation for the decorative scheme. It is effective when combined with orange, its complimentary color, and with the hues which lie toward the red, that is, the reddish violets.

Green: Nature's own color is green in its infinite variety. It is a restful color and between the yellow greens, with their warm vibrancy, and the rich coolness of the blue greens lie gradations of hue which add immeasurably to the color palette of the decorator. On walls it is a favored color, especially in the yellow-green tones which have the vibrancy of the yellows. On floors, as on the grassy slope or wooded hillside, the medium and dark greens furnish a splendid foundation for many color combinations, permitting a free use of color elsewhere in the room.

Violet: Pure violet is sparsely used in decoration. But the violet tones of raisin, mulberry, eggplant, to mention only a few, are extensively employed and lend real dignity to the room. These tones are important in the rug and carpet palette, and also in furniture upholstery and drapery fabrics. The lavendar or orchid shades of violet, favored by women, are widely employed in ladies' lounges and rest rooms.

Orange: Orange, placed between red and yellow, derives from the former its strength and vigor; from the latter its luminosity. The orange shades are popular but their use is limited because of their strength. Orange is particularly effective when used with the complimentary blues. It is the color used to give warmth to the browns and rusts which are so extensively used in carpets and rugs.

Disinfectants Look Alike But Differ in Effect

The primary purpose of a disinfectant is to kill certain germs and its ability to do this efficiently is one of the most essential tests of its value. Disinfectants, as a whole, look and smell alike, before and after dilution, but they differ materially in effectiveness.

Certain cleansers such as soap and water have little disinfecting quality and many disinfectants have no cleaning power. It is often important to choose a product that combines both qualities. Not only will labor costs be reduced, since two jobs are being done at one time, but it will tend to effect economies of materials, as one product is doing the work of two.

A MONTHLY WEATHERVANE ON CURRENT EVENTS IN THIS AND OTHER INDUSTRIES AFFECTING THE INTERESTS OF THEATRE OPERATION.

Material Shortages Make a Seller's Market

Present indications are that you theatre men are going to pay much higher prices for your property improvements from now on.

If we read the omens correctly there's going to be an acute shortage of certain commodities that enter into both the construction and routine operation of theatres.

Already the rumblings of material shortage are echoing across country and exhibitors who put off in purchasing their present and anticipated requirements may have to pay some stiff penalties for their procrastinations.

Material shortages, induced by import curtailment and urgent defense demands on many of our factories who make products needed in the construction and operation of moving picture theatres, are already apparent in certain classifications.

Such conditions forecast the very early arrival of a seller's market, in which the man who wants to buy must take his turn, pay the asking price, put up with delivery delays and other contingencies that crop out in boom times when everybody goes shopping for the same things at the same time.

Wise showmen are making their equipment commitments now; taking advantage of present prices and the current possibilities of getting things done before the big rush comes.

There's no percentage in gambling against a sure thing. And the surest thing you can bet on is that prices won't be lower than they are right now—on anything you need now or are likely to need later on.

But aside from the higher-cost-later-on angle there's something to think about concerning delivery time and the probability of not being able to get delivery at all.

You can bet on higher prices and the odds are with the buyer who buys now—THE EDITOR.

FLASH

A new "special flashed glass" is announced by Wagner Sign Service, Inc., as an improvement for attraction board purposes. Because of the war, there has been a marked shortage of flashed glass in this country, inasmuch as all of the best flashed glass came from Europe—most of it from Germany—and it is impossible today to buy imported glass.

Therefore, Wagner has developed, for their own use exclusively, a new type of flashed glass—translucent opal glass flashed onto a clear crystal glass. All other flashed glasses have been opaque glass flashed onto crystal and this opaque glass has been about 10/1000ths of an inch thick. With a translucent glass, it is possible to flash about 40/1000th of an inch thick.

It is claimed that the new glass will revolutionize the marquee flashed glass industry since it is by almost 40 per cent the best flashed glass obtainable in this country and it is said to be 60 per cent more efficient than the best opal glass that can be obtained here. With the new glass, its owner may have the choice of either reducing the wattage consumed or having a sign which is comparatively brighter.

The Wagner policy in selling the new glass will be that it will be delivered only with new letters or to present users of the company's letters. Only a limited quantity is available at the present time and this at a very nominal price compared to other flashed glasses, according to the announcement.

When today's theatre patrons purchase a ticket at the boxoffice they expect in addition to entertainment: Comfort, convenience, relaxation and transportation to another world. Do they get these extra "features" in your house?

A New Dress for 1941

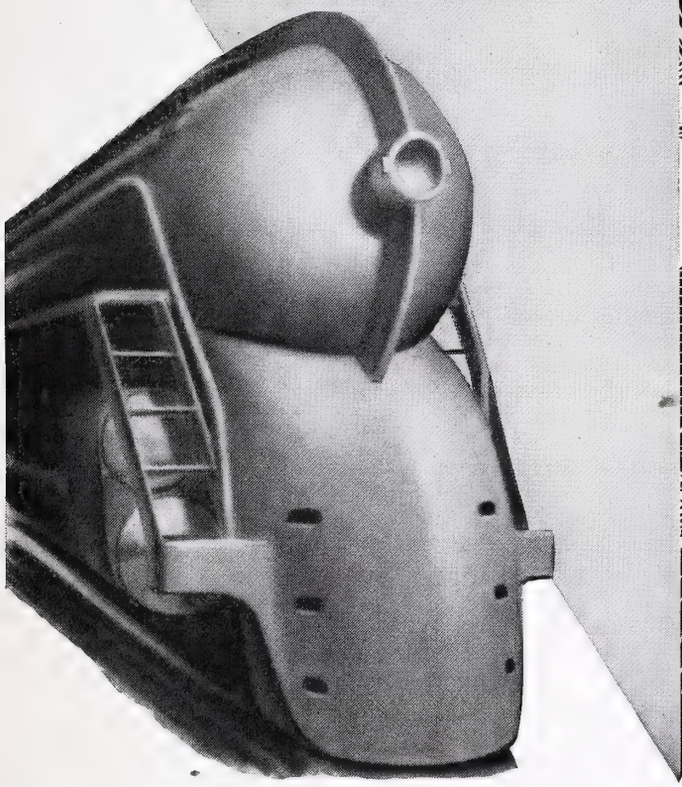
And a Happy New Year to you, too! In keeping with the spirit of modernism, which we espouse so enthusiastically in your interest, The Modern Theatre section of BOXOFFICE again steps out in a new style ensemble for the New Year. A new high-finish paper was selected as the material for this garment, which was then styled in the modern format. Richness of color was incorporated in the newly designed cover by the use of a recently developed glossy ink—and we will run the gamut of the rainbow in presenting a different color for each cover throughout the year. The most modern type-face was chosen for use on the cover and for headings throughout the book—for better appearance and greater readability. Banner-styled department heads will catch the eye—and for a last fillip of modern styling, we point with pride to the ensemble as a whole . . . Our idea of a well-dressed modern magazine. We hope you like it!—The Publisher.

Sanitary Hand-Drying Service at a Saving

The most vexing washroom problems are solved automatically by the installation of electric hand-driers—that most modern drying service. Theatre washrooms stay continuously cleaner, floors are clear of littered towels, and no unsightly towel-cabinets nor used-towel receptacles are necessary. Furthermore, washroom service requirements are much less and maintenance costs are greatly reduced.

The drying service of a modern electric hand-drier is constantly dependable, with no daily interruptions such as occur when towel-cabinets are empty. And the unit, which may be either semi-recessed in the wall or on its own standard, is attractively styled and suitable to the most finely fitted theatre washroom.

With this modern device, there is nothing to carry contamination from one user to another. The soothing current of warmed, sanitized air dries the hands quickly and thoroughly, aids to prevent chapping and rough skin, and promotes skin health for the patrons of a theatre so equipped.



Individual Design in Theatre Floor Covering

Freedom of design is one of the big advantages of linoleum flooring for theatre lobbies and other parts of the house. If one cannot find the exact color and design in the many standard patterns, a floor can be created exclusively for the purpose. Many attractive floors owe their originality mainly to cut-out designs placed in the surface, individually designed by the architect, decorator or owner.

And since the floor is usually the largest unbroken area in a room, making it attractive is a long step toward making the rest of the room interesting. In fact, modern interior decorators usually begin their work by planning the floor, using it to set the color scheme and decorative treatment for the whole room.

The theatre architect and the theatre decorator are the two most responsible for the modern functional theatre as we now know it. They put their heads together and brought forth a new idea of the design for entertainment.

PLANNING

INTERESTING CASE HISTORIES ON CURRENT MODERN THEATRE PROJECTS

A Case of "Mental Planning" and a Practical Dream Come True

WHEN theatre people plan "dream theatres" for years and then toil hard to make those dreams materialize, it is gratifying to the entire industry. Also, it is equally gratifying to their patrons, who often play a great part in those plans, experiencing the trials and tribulations through which they are accomplished.

Such is the case with a new house in Ohio, recently completed and unveiled as a monument to satisfied patronage. In the creation of this new theatre is a story of hardships and sacrifices on the part of both owners and patrons—and the inevitable happy ending is all too evident in its final accomplishment.

The new Russell Theatre in Millersburg, Ohio, is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Hoy L. Russell. The neat little partnership consists of Mrs. Russell, who is active in the management, buying and booking and Mr. Russell, a practicing attorney, who does the bookkeeping and exploitation.

The Russells have operated a motion picture theatre in Millersburg since early in 1925, when Mr. Russell took over a lease on the theatre portion of the city hall building owned by the municipality. This property was (and still is) a typical "Opry House" of a bygone era, much too wide and not nearly long enough for motion picture presentation. It has a large stage, inadequate heating and ventilating facilities, wood floor and a wood balcony.

"Wooden floors and the wooden stairs leading to the balcony made a perfect fire trap. Whenever we had a decent sized crowd in the house I couldn't enjoy it for worrying over those stairs and floors," Mr. Russell says today.

With the advent of sound pictures the Opera House, in keeping with all other theatres devoted to the exhibition of pictures, presented acoustical problems some of which were never solved. By dint of much work, worry and expense, the Russells managed eventually to present "fair" sound.

New Theatre Less Costly

"The worst trouble with the place," Mr. Russell says, "was that it just didn't have the possibilities for development into an attractive picture theatre, no matter how much one might spend on it, and the building had been permitted to deteriorate until had an attempt to remodel it been made, it would simply have had to be completely razed and replaced with a new building. Neither the city nor the exhibitor had money for a project of that kind and so when we announced our intention to build a new, modern theatre in Millersburg, the idea met with general approval from the citizens and city officials."

The former theatre is now used for assembly purposes and public meetings, and the city fathers plan to maintain it for such use by the public, but it will not be available for theatrical purposes.

For several years Mr. Russell operated the theatre while Mrs. Russell gave her attention to their two children, but when they reached an age where this attention was less necessary she took over management of the theatre while her husband returned to his original vocation, newswriter and editor. Meanwhile he had taken up the study of law.

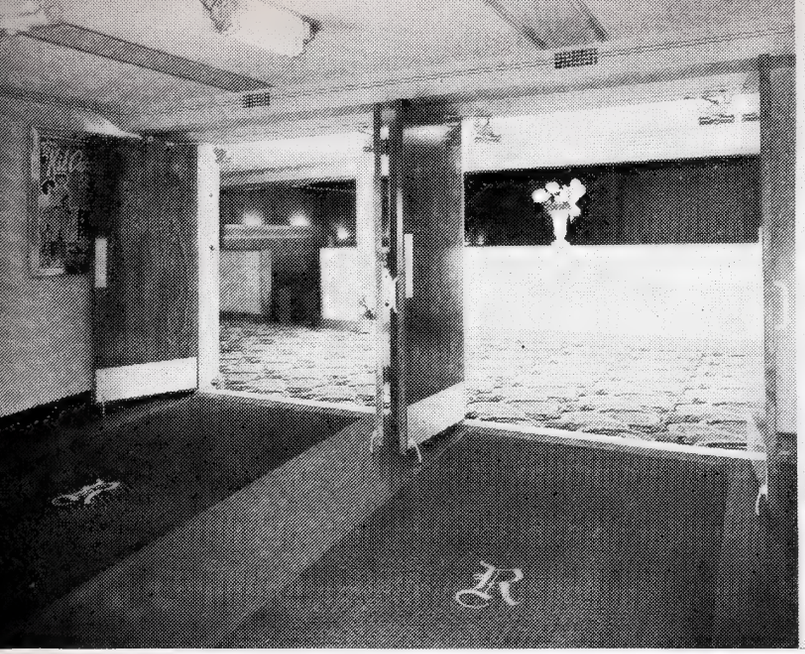
The new theatre is built upon a site purchased several years ago by the Russells in anticipation of eventually building their own theatre.

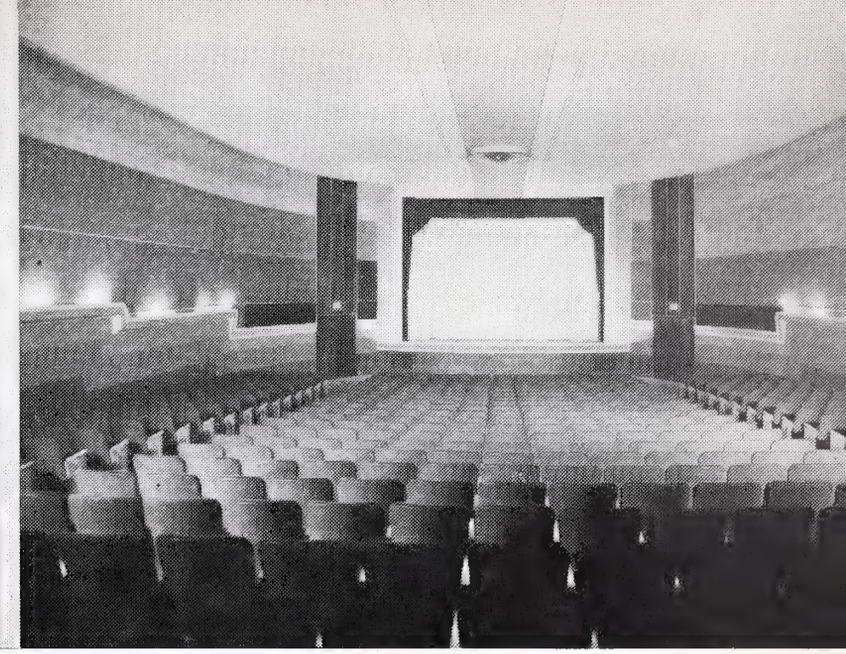
"We have frequently been asked how it is possible to provide such a fine modern theatre in a town no larger than Millersburg" (pop. 2,200), Mr. Russell said, "and the answer is, by careful planning and painstaking attention to all the details.

Pride of the Patrons

"We have been complimented highly upon the beauty and convenience of our building, but the most sincere compliments have been the reactions of our Millersburg citizens, who never fail to bring their out-of-town guests around to see the new theatre. The pride of our patrons is our highest compliment.

"Perhaps the real reason back of the new theatre is that it is the materialization of a dream. Mrs. Russell and I commenced building 'mental theatres' from the first day of our experience as exhibitors. In these theatres we incorporated all of the desirable features we found in theatres we visited and that our experience indicated to be conducive to comfort, beauty or utility. When we actually began building we knew very definitely what we wanted down to the most minute detail. All the architect needed to do was to make our desires intelligent on paper, functionally practical and architecturally sound."





The new Russell Theatre is the "dream house" which materialized after many years of planning by its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Hoy L. Russell of Millersburg, Ohio. It is a small-town house which has all the niceties of metropolitan development and its dignified exterior gives evidence of the friendly patron-appeal to be found within its portals.

Simplicity and Dignity

Faced with the problem of creating a modern yet conservative design, the architect and builders of the new Russell Theatre have presented an excellent example of what can be done in the way of beautiful theatre construction while retaining simplicity and dignity in both architectural design and decorative motif.

In the Russell Theatre, modern streamlining in both construction and decoration replaces the "gingerbread" of former times, yet the severity of too much of the so-called modernistic construction is avoided. A total absence of the garishness so often viewed in passing as "flash" is one of the features of its construction.

At left—A view of the standee area and foyer of the Russell Theatre, where spaciousness and a generally airy atmosphere prevail. The wide expanse of modern carpet and indirect lighting application are noteworthy. On the right, a view of the attractively decorated auditorium of the new house which seats 500 patrons, comfortably. An interesting effect is gained here by the reflection of multi-colored house lights from the plush covered walls in streamlined motive for fine acoustic considerations. Draftless air diffusion from ceiling outlets is another highly functional provision.

The Russell Theatre was opened in October of 1940. It is built of brick, concrete and steel construction, with built-up roof. The auditorium walls are backed with cinder block, which is furred and covered with streamlined plush for correct acoustics.

Seating 500, the theatre is 125 feet long by 47 feet wide, inside measurements. The seats are in three banks and spaced 34 inches from back to back. Six aisle lights are staggered on either side of the 4-foot aisles, while the auditorium lighting is reflected from the plush covered walls from four circuits of multi-colored lights concealed in a streamlined molding at the top of the cement wainscoting.

Front and outside walls of the building are of buff-colored brick, and the only decoration is to be noted in rows of the same brick set vertically above and below the windows. The front of the building is further ornamented by four brick pilasters above the marquee. The marquee itself is finished in ivory, orange and green. All doors are the solid slab type, walnut finished. Satin-chrome hardware is used throughout.

The boxoffice, located in the center of the lobby entrance and flanked by double doors, extends to the front line of the building and is entirely of plate glass above the counter level. The base is of glass blocks.

PATRONS' CONVENIENCE

The manager's office is to the left of the lobby, while to the right is a lobby shop and check room where an attendant sells confections and checks parcels for shoppers. The lobby itself measures 17 feet in depth and 16 feet in width. Its floor is of concrete dyed a deep maroon and recessed for dirt-catching rubber mats extending from the entrance doors to doors entering the foyer.

A commodious ladies' lounge is provided just back of the check room and available from the foyer. The men's lounge is behind the manager's office and it is also

PURPOSE TO ASSURE BETTER POPCORN SUPPLY

Popcorn elevator and processing plant of the Burch Mfg. Co., recently completed at North Kansas City, Mo., capacity three million pounds. Inset—Similar plant located at Lake View, Ia., with a capacity of seven million pounds.

For eighteen years Burch popcorn machines have been used in theatres throughout the country as providers of additional entertainment to the public in the American way (eating popcorn) and as a source of revenue. Now the management has decided to change the company name to Manley, Inc., and with the change of name new models are being advertised. The supply end of the business—popcorn, seasoning, cartons, bags, etc., will continue to be handled under the name of Burch Manufacturing Company, which has been re-incorporated to take care of this end of the business.

Charles T. Manley, president of the company, states that eleven years ago the company entered the supply end of the business to overcome the difficulty in obtaining quality popcorn and to act as a stablizing influence in the business. He points out that during a period of seven or eight years before that time, popcorn would go to 15 cents and as high as 20 cents per pound every third year.

The company has a popcorn elevator and a processing plant at Lake View, Iowa, with a capacity of seven million pounds, and a recently completed plant in North Kansas City, Missouri, with a capacity of three million pounds. Plans are now under way for the construction of a refinery with the idea of producing a better quality popping oil.

Mr. Manley explains that it was all brought about by his dissatisfaction with the quality of popcorn generally sold. Recently improvement in the standards of popcorn raised and sold has been noted and a special seasoning of vegetable oil also has been developed to replace the former types. A special popcorn salt was the next step. Standardizing quality in popcorn became such a problem it became necessary to build elevators and cribs for the purpose. In addition to the ten million pounds of popcorn processed in these plants for Burch machine owners, dealers and growers in Virginia, Indiana and Iowa are still depended upon for a large part of that company's requirements.

Popcorn, Mr. Manley explains, is a tricky grain. Today it may be the finest popcorn in the world, but in a week or a month, according to climatic conditions, it may have lost 15 to 20 per cent of its popping volume. Hot weather also incubates insect eggs, principally weevil and moths. This problem was solved by putting up popcorn in hermetically sealed 10-pound cans. An additional use for the cans was made by supplying the customers with plug lids that made it possible to fill the cans with popcorn for resale.

Only the most deliciously seasoned and flaky, crisp popcorn without hard centers, half-pops, or mushrooms, is fit to serve theatre patrons. Any owner serving anything less is not only injuring himself, but the entire business, because only the finest popcorn will build up repeat business to the proportion that it should be. One of the outstanding wonders of merchandising is that popcorn has been able to stand up under the abuse that has been given it through poor equipment, faulty, careless operation, and poor quality supplies, any one of which results in a product unfit to sell to the public.

The new Manley machines were designed by one of America's foremost designers. New lines, new beauty, and new showmanship are the basis of the patented designs. There are said to be many new features, the most outstanding being that it is almost impossible for a careless operator to serve poor popcorn.

Mr. Manley stated his belief that the theatres of the country generally, as well as popcorn operators and owners everywhere, have not begun to touch the possibilities of profitable operation of popcorn machines. This will come only when the owners look upon the popcorn they serve the public with as critical an eye as they look upon the type of pictures they buy, and when they realize that only the finest, most delicious popcorn possible is fit to sell, giving the public their money's worth in quality and quantity.

To this end his company's new machines will be put out, not as just popcorn machines, but as merchandising propositions with a complete merchandising setup. The entire field organization of the company is being trained as merchandising experts with the idea that they can serve the owners of these machines to a far greater extent from a dollars and cents standpoint in extra profits over a relatively short period of time than the actual cost of the equipment.

"Every theatre lobby in the land" says Mr. Manley, "is a potential gold mine, with possibilities as a merchandising outlet that have barely been touched. A few years ago the United States treasury department estimated a gross of $12,500,000 from the sale of popcorn and candy in 15,000 theatres. Such merchandising could and should be conducted with the glamour and showmanship in keeping with its surroundings, but this element is not enough. The products sold should be of extra fine quality, in extra fine packages, merchandised by operators who appreciate the value of goodwill and salesmanship."

Styles of decoration develop naturally out of styles in architecture. Each important era in human history has produced an architecture which expressed its aspirations, its needs, its mode of living. Growing out of this architecture have come the styles of interior decoration.

Such styles change slowly—so slowly, in fact, that always there have been long periods during which the old mingled with the new. The best of the old always has been retained either intact or as a powerful influence exerted upon the designers and architects of the new. Good design, fine proportion, appropriate methods of decoration or ornament—these are continuing and lasting influences of profound significance.

This process of development is continuous. Architecture develops new forms, or interesting adaptations of old forms, suitable to immediate needs. A decorative period expresses definitely a mode of living. Obviously in the selection of suitable theatre furnishings, it is important to determine what that form or mode is to be—what period it is to typify.

Functional Planning of a theatre property usually implies that everything which goes into the project has some part to play in making it appealing to patronage —either as a service or as an aid to the creation of the mood for entertainment.

Further Price Reduction On Fluorescent Lamps

Another substantial reduction affecting the list prices of fluorescent Mazda lamps in the G-E line of Mazda "F" lamps, effective January 1, was announced last week at Nela Park by General Electric's lamp department.

Popular fluorescent lamps for example, in daylight or white, are reduced in price as follows: 15-watt T-8 from 95 cents to 85 cents; 20-watt T-12 from $1.25 to $1.10; 30-watt T-8 from $1.25 to $1.10; 40-watt T-12 from $1.90 to $1.60; and the recently introduced 100-watt T-7, from $3.75 to $3.50.

This price reduction is attributed to a combination of factors, namely, to the continuous development of new manufacturing economies; to the amazingly swift acceptance of this new, cooler, high-efficiency light source, and to the widespread use of Mazda F lamps in theatres, stores, offices and factories.

Also reduced in price are the colored fluorescent lamps rated at 15, 20 and 30 watts. These lamps, available respectively in 18-, 24- and 36-inch lengths, come in the following colors: Blue, green, pink, gold and red.

The reduction, officials at Nela Park said, is in accordance with the lamp department's traditional policy of sharing manufacturing economies with consumers.

AIR CONDITIONING

DEVOTED TO A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF TEMPERATURE CONTROL IN THEATRES

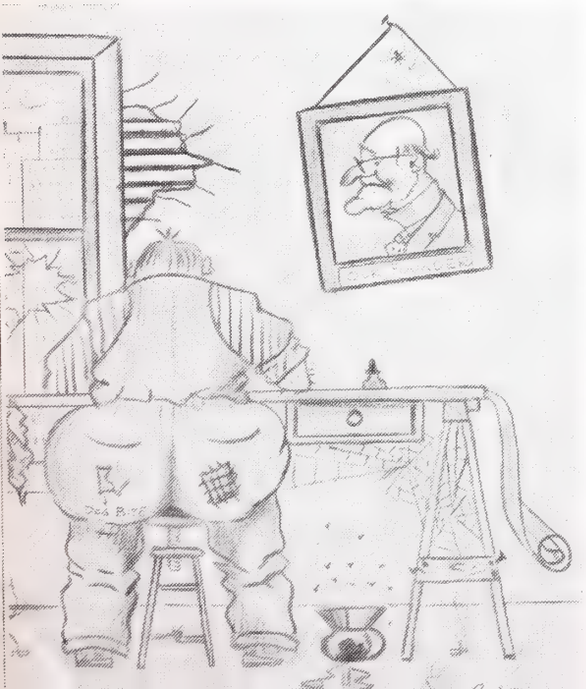
Why Not a Spirit of More Fraternity Amongst Our Frantic Idea Men?

by GORDON H. SIMMONS*

GUESS I'm an "Idea Man." I have ideas just as a dog has fleas, and they bother me in just about the same way. I had an idea recently that I needed another draftsman to help get out plans requisitioned by you theatre men, so I hired one and while he was waiting for some theatre owner to order a set of air conditioning plans, he surreptitiously drew a picture of me.



I swore when I saw it, and almost decided to fire the guy; but then I figured that wasn't such a good idea because the onery cuss sure showed drafting ability. His artwork is exhibited below. What do you think?

Frankly, I'm afraid that unless this fellow can be kept busy doing legitimate drawings, he may, during his spare time, try to immortalize me in a comic strip as "Simmons, the Idea Man." He hung that title on me and I don't like it. Nor do I like his slightly exaggerated picture of the shape I'm in. Rear views of me are most uncomplimentary.

I think the man is wasting his talent in this new job, and perhaps I should use him by organizing an "art department." Or, anyhow, have him draw for me pictures of the folks I don't like.

Oh boy, how I could lampoon this air conditioning business. With his help, of course. Sometimes I get so mad at it, I swear I'll quit and try something else. Do you know what this fellow said to me at our first meeting after he asked me what kind of engineering work I do? I told him I air condition theatres, and he said, "So you are one of those guys that make the insides of theatres so uncomfortable!"

Idea Man at Work . . . . . by Roberts

Ideas versus Things

Well, maybe this wouldn't be so if there were more idea men around to make things behave properly. A "thing" is no good except as the embodiment of an "idea." Yet everybody buys "things" with no "idea" of what they are or their purpose.

The "idea" of air conditioning has to be religiously followed out and incorporated into every thing that's part of an air conditioning system. Otherwise the idea is lost somewhere between the blower and the front door and the dear people sweat it out or complain of drafts.

Here's a letter I just received which illustrates a point:

"Dear Mr. Simmons: What kind or how much of a fee would you want to come and look over my layout? We don't seem to have sufficient circulation (hot air system), the balcony being twice as hot as the main floor and also drafty, cold floors, etc. We want you to work out a scheme whereby we can incorporate cooling in the system. You'll have to see the present system to know how bad it is. Can you come right away?—Yours very truly, K. A. J."

Now he wants me to come right away, just after I have hired a draftsman to help me do such jobs from here. Let nobody think that I have to drive 800 miles to see how bad a job is before I can fix it. An architect sees nothing but an empty lot or a plat of it before he designs a brand new building. An engineer needs only a set of plans showing "what is" to know, without making a trip, how bad the job is. He also can design a proper job without setting his foot inside the house. In fact, 90 per cent of all air conditioning jobs are done that way. All I ever need is architect's plans or crude drawings showing plenty of dimensions.

So I told him, since this is my "idea" of how to save him money. But evidently unless I work according to your ideas, I don't make any dough. And if I do, your dough is wasted. Because if your ideas were proper, you wouldn't be in trouble in the first place. I mean, of course, those of you who are.

In the November 9th issue I mentioned in a letter published, I could buy 4-inch rockwool in batts at $52.00 per 1,000 square feet. An old friend of mine down Texas way promptly wrote in asking me to purchase some for him at this price. Now I can buy rockwool at this price f. o. b. Milwaukee but freight has to be added depending upon the distance from here. The factory happens to be located in a suburb of Milwaukee.

Idea Swap Shop

I don't mind getting prices for theatre owners on this and that when needed. It's an idea of mine that giving service might occasionally cause me to receive other things than ideas in exchange. But I'd rather have a good usable idea than cash, because maybe I can convert it into cash. So from now on, instead of giving away ideas I propose to "swap you one for one."

As the result of my suggestion that now is the time to clean out the soot from your boilers or furnaces, how many of you have done it? Raise your hands. But please don't wire me to come down and do it for you, because I've only got an "idea" that doing it will help you. I live in an apartment house, so I don't have to be bothered with cleaning out furnaces.

As the result of my suggestion that now is the time to renovate or air condition or do whatever you have in mind to do, how many of you are heeding me? Don't bother to raise your hands. Just wire me and I'll come to see you.

Really and truly, fellows, prices cannot go lower before they go higher. Now is the time to go into debt if you have to do so. See the good old steely-eyed banker man and arrange up to three years terms of payment on the basis of a dollar down and a dollar when they catch you. I've bought some things on this basis and that's why I keep a Zephyr.

And by the way, that Zephyr as usual will tour the South this winter. One chap in Florida and another in California wrote me and asked me to draw their air conditioning plans and I mailed them preliminary sketches as is my usual practice. In this way I get needed information and constructive criticism of what's proposed. But I don't know just yet which state will be the terminus of my trip until I hear from them. So many of you start out with me full of enthusiasm but fall by the wayside when some local salesman or contractor makes a call.

Unbiased Opinions Best

They have "ideas," too. But the best idea is to have an unbiased engineer specify what you need instead of letting anybody specify for you what he had to sell. That's your weakness, and possibly mere words of mine won't change it.

But I am sticking to that old idea of mine in regard to my trip. I'll charge a lunch, a tank of gas and a drink if I call. And I can only call by request because otherwise you might think I was merely calling on you for a hand-out.

Frankly, these expeditions are undertaken as "all-expense" fishing trips. I am gone for a couple of months, have a swell time and it costs me very little dough because of your good fellowship. But when I announce these trips, my mail dries up. This shouldn't be. No matter where I happen to be, my mail is forwarded rapidly, and I call home every night to get a report on the incoming mail. So I do know the contents of letters written me even before they are forwarded.

Here's a letter I just received from a projectionist in Kansas: "Perhaps I did not make myself clear concerning the two-ton compressor (for cooling a theatre). I meant to run it in connection with an indirect cooling coil and allow the compressor to run long enough to build up an ice reserve big enough to take care of the peak load."

By golly, he's got an "idea" all right. And his sketches were good, too. There's nothing wrong with his theory either. Theoretically a two-ton compressor might do just what he expects. But "theory" and "practice" are two different animals and in this case there is a wide divergence.

I recommend to you, sir, that you use at least a 5 h. p. compressor. I'm taking this means of answering your letter since I need your postage stamp for another letter. Just had an "idea" how I can save three cents.

On the subject of ideas, I can stick to my subject as you see. I have an idea that theatre business is going to start to begin to improve in a big way. I hope so at any rate. It's been a long dry spell, hasn't it?

Epidemic Worries Lessened

Do any of you remember the influenza epidemic that scourged Europe and this country during the last war? In some parts of the country trenches were dug to bury the dead. Now I do not wish to be an alarmist, but it can happen again. I see by the papers that some smart medics have already predicted it. Theatres will be closed, of course. But a properly conditioned theatre supplying 100 per cent purified outside air would be one of the safest places to be in such an event. Medical testimony reveals that common colds are not transmitted in a properly air conditioned space, and that even the victims of it get well. The surest way to spread a cold epidemic or influenza among your patrons is to keep your fresh air dampers closed or nearly so.

Automatic control of temperature both winter and summer is something else that is conducive to good health. But here again you theatre owners are often poorly advised. I just received a long distance call from an owner in Illinois. He complained that his thermostat does not properly regulate the house temperature. Now I have been in his theatre and know how his controls are hooked up. His thermostat controls his oil burner under a steam boiler, which in turn supplies steam to a set of heating and cooling coils that I bought for him.

I told him to install a motor-operated steam valve and control this valve by his thermostat. The very instant his house was up to proper temperature, the steam valve would start cutting down on the heat. Whereas, the way he is operating now, when the thermostat shuts down his oil burner there is still a large body of steam in the boiler that continues to be fed to the coils so his house temperature keeps going up.

And the reverse cycle is also true. When the thermostat calls for heat, the oil burner starts, of course, but it has to operate quite a while before steam is generated, with the result that the house

Simmons' Q & A Corner

Taking me up on the "idea-swapping" deal the moment I spring it—that is, that you theatre men swap me one whenever you have a smart thought on air conditioning—a swell guy with a sense of humor who manages a house in Pennsylvania writes me as follows:

The Epistle: "Happy is the man who has found what he is searching for. So you should be happy, for you state in your article—Boxoffice—issue of December 7, 1940—that you are looking for a theatre owner who is willing to swap ideas—and it looks as though you have found him. I have an idea that you can install—or give or sell—advice that will result in the slickest air conditioning in any theatre this side of the Alleghenies. I surprise myself sometimes—the way I can spell.

"Here's the set-up. We are building a new theatre—brick—steel roof girders carrying a Gyp plank roof—which is used for the base of a composition roof—that should insulate it from everything but taxes. So it looks like it's insulated. The next phrase you use is automatic controls. Every time I use those words I smack my lips. Let's hope you can do it. The next is decent space in a proper location. We got plenty of that, too. And we got plenty of well water—about 54 degrees. And we got a plenty big duct from back wall—to front wall—in the roof girders. And we got a plenty big return line sunk in the floor—and across the auditorium.

"We intend heating with hot water—using a blower to push her into the building. And in the summer—the real cold 54 degree water—through coils, rather than around the coils into the building. Building is about 50 feet wide. Auditorium will be about 80 feet long—with a stadium type balcony that will extend back about 40 feet. It will seat about 600—and in the space under the balcony —will stand—sit—or recline about 200. I'm not particular how cool or warm you keep these people—for I'm afraid of loafers—and if I make it too comfortable in the lobby they may not want to go inside. And I want it automatic. I want it to handle humidity properly—for we have three months of very humid weather. And I want it to handle the most serious problem facing a theatre. Air—properly heated and distributed and conditioned—in the winter time. We have everything but the brains necessary to do this. How are you fixed? I will appreciate hearing from you. Very truly yours—C. K."

My Answer: "I tried to read your letter of December 12 with a straight face but I just couldn't do it. And it's letters such as yours that cause me to enjoy corresponding with theatre owners. If there's a sour puss in the bunch, I haven't found him yet.

"Boy, are you a good speller! Now don't go looking through this letter for misspelled words because you'll be almost sure to find them.

"If you could only insulate that roof against taxes, wouldn't that be sump'n? But since we're going to 'swap ideas,' my idea would be to put four inches of rockwool on that ceiling just the same. It will pay big dividends on your fuel bill, too.

"Fifty-four degree well water is fine. A superlative job of air conditioning can be done with it. And use the same coils for heating that you use for cooling, while being most careful about the selection of those coils. Or do you want me to do it for you?

"In regard to controls, me and you see 'eye to eye.' That's the heart of a system, and I can specify one for you on one condition: That you and everbody else will leave it alone. You throw the main switch when you close. But if you do anything else, it's out of order, and so are you.

"Many thanks for your remarks about my being able to give or sell advice that will result in the slickest air conditioning this side of the Alleghenies. I ain't bashful. Why not make it both sides of the Alleghenies?

"And I further believe that you can have this kind of job at no greater cost than is usually charged for a standard type of job.

"So send along a set of your architect's plans of the building which I can peruse at my leisure (or will I have any leisure?) and I'll be glad to make specific recommendations. No charge for this since you called me on my proposal to 'swap you an idea.' But if you want me to handle your job from start to finish, name the fee and send a nominal retainer. I usually charge 5 per cent for plans, with 50 bucks on the line. But all contributions gratefully received and large ones in proportion. I'll surely want to write up your job when it's finished."—G. gets too cold. I tried to explain this over the telephone but the call was "on him," so he said "Write me a letter." Well, this is it.

PANGS OF A PIONEER

Naturally all this theatre owner wanted was an "idea" of what was wrong and how to fix it. I designed his job in the first place and personally supervised its installation. I purchased a steam valve for him for the above purpose, but the oil burner man over-ruled me and installed the thermostat directly connected to the burner and the steam valve was returned. My ideas are vindicated one after another but very often too late to do me any good.

It's no fun and a very lonesome position to be ahead of the crowd. The fellow who said, "I'd rather be right than President" must have been a screw-ball. I write and write about "what's right," yet how many of you believe me? I am the screw-ball for devoting so much time to an apparently hopeless cause.

I don't have technical troubles and easily get my ideas incorporated into an intelligent set of plans. And when this is done, my job is ended regardless of whether I'm paid in money or marbles. Somebody has to pioneer if there is to be any progress, but such pioneers finally get to look like my new draftsman's picture of the "Idea Man at Work." Ah, me!

Functionally planned theatre equipment also must be considered by builders and remodelers of theatre property. That on the market today serves many purposes—and economically, too.

LOGAN LEWIS HEADS REFRIGERATING ENGINEERS

Lewis, who is credited with inventing the by-pass system of air conditioning which revolutionized cooling and ventilating systems in theatres throughout the country, served as vice-president of the group in 1940. He succeeds George E. Hulse as president.

During World War No. 1 Lewis performed invaluable service to the government by adapting air conditioning to the manufacture of munitions, fuses and powder. Recently, he pioneered again in introducing air conditioning into blast furnace operations, helping to increase iron and steel production during the present national defense program.

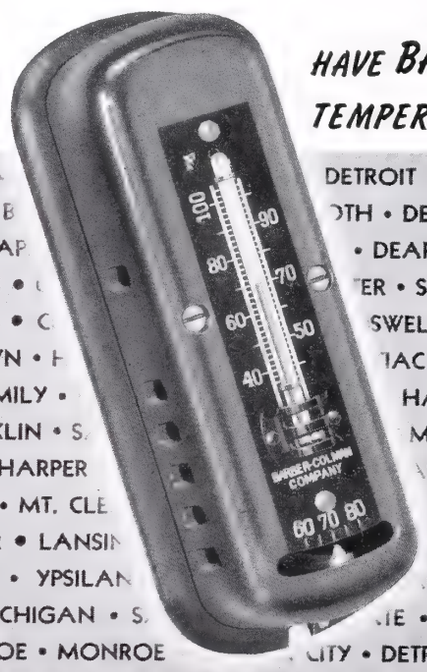
Born in Clark County, Kentucky, on April 16, 1887, Mr. Lewis received his B. M. E. degree from the University of Kentucky in 1907, and his M. E. in 1909. From 1907 to 1909, he served as an instructor in the School of Engineering at the University of Kentucky.

He resigned his post at the university in 1909 to join Carrier, at a time when only a few engineers were engaged in the early pioneering of central station air conditioning. Practically the only air conditioning applications then in use were in textile mills, where humidifying systems had been installed. He was one of the first men who envisaged air conditioning for comfort cooling as we have it today.

In 1915, he was made Chief Engineer of Carrier Corporation. Here his inventive, analytical mind was given full sway. In addition to his invention of the by-pass, many other patents dealing with the broader phases of air conditioning have been issued in his name.

Lewis was responsible for the air conditioning system installed in Grauman's Metropolitan Theatre (now Paramount), in Los Angeles. Prior to that time, air conditioning practice, in all but a very few, small theatres, had called for upward systems of air distribution, in which cold air was delivered through mushroom ventilators under seats. This resulted in "cold feet," a universal annoyance to movie patrons at that time.

Lewis' pioneering installation in Grauman's Theatre is regarded today as a milestone in the air conditioning industry, marking the beginning of public consciousness of the benefits of comfort conditioning. It was the first theatre in which the by-pass was applied and the overhead system of air distribution used.



Among the many outstanding scientific papers written and presented by Mr. Lewis in recent years are "Air Conditioning in the Theatre," "Methods of Air Distribution," "Possibilities of Conditioning for Comfort," "Recirculation in Theatre Cooling," "Air Conditioning the Halls of Congress" (a joint paper with A. E. Stacey, Jr.), "Modern Air Conditioning—What It Means to the Water Utility," and "Moisture Removal from Blast Furnace Air."

Modern Water Cooler Is Smart Investment

A modern water cooler assures refreshing drinking water at the tip of a patron's finger. In a smart modern cabinet with gleaming metal fittings, such a piece of equipment will lend a new note to the theatre lobby or foyer in which it is placed.

With such a fountain, the water is automatically cooled to just the right temperature for health and comfort, and is adjustable to suit the conditions for which it is used. Since it is highly efficient, it uses very little electric current and it is built to give dependable, lasting service year in and year out.

accessible from the foyer. A stairway at the south end of the foyer leads to a nursery or "cry room" on the second floor. This room, simply furnished in maple, is a popular retreat for mothers with small children.

Film delivery to the projection room is accomplished through use of a dumb waiter opening on an alley. The film messenger is provided with a key to the outer door. The dumb waiter also is used as an ash lift, with a shaft extending into the basement for this purpose.

Many modern developments for summer air conditioning were included in the project, such as the introduction of cold water through cooling coils, blower and draftless air diffusers. Winter air conditioning is accomplished by the use of the same distributing system, substituting hot water.

Plans for the building were executed by Col. Robert S. Harsh, architect, of Columbus, Ohio. The cost of construction and equipment for the Russell Theatre is estimated at $60,000. Millersburg has a population of only 2,203, but it now draws patronage from a large surrounding area, due in no small measure to its inviting new showplace.

Insulate Theatres for Easy Air Conditioning

The modern theatre must be adequately insulated because proper air conditioning is possible only with insulation. Heat passes readily through ordinary lath and plaster on walls and ceilings. Insulated walls and ceilings do a marvelous job of retarding this heat passage. This makes possible the prime requirement of air conditioning—the independent control of heat and humidity in isolated areas of the same building.

In new construction, insulation board is the most economical type of insulation. Exterior insulating-sheathing seals the building from heat, cold, wind and dust and replaces wood sheathing and building paper at the cost of insulation alone. A plaster base lath replaces ordinary lath and plaster also at the cost of insulation alone. Modern insulating boards build as they insulate. It is wise to consult an architect for his recommendations as to the amount of insulation required for the particular theatre and local temperature conditions.

Harry K. Lucas, veteran southern area equipment man, henceforth will devote his full time to Kozono and allied products, states an announcement from his office in Charlotte, N. C.

Mr. Lucas has disposed of his Charlotte Theatre, one of the oldest cinemas in the Carolina area, to Tom Little and associates. His offices have been completely refurnished, new blood has been added to the sales department, and Mr. Lucas adds that his product, Kozono now will have vigorous representation throughout the country.

Kozono, billed as a "machine that purifies air electrically," has been on the market since 1933. It is used widely in theatres, hotels, department stores, smoking rooms, rest rooms, etc. The newest 1941 model is streamlined and is said to form a handsome addition to the furnishings ensemble wherever it is used.

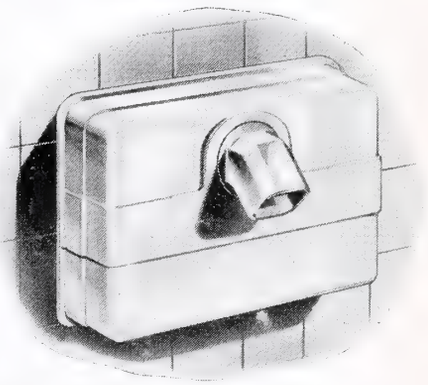
Harry K. is a brother of Arthur Lucas, circuit theatre owner of Atlanta. He formerly was in theatre equipment business at Atlanta and Dallas. Selling out to one of the big companies, he opened the Charlotte Theatre in 1925. A few years later he put Kozono on the market and advertised it. It met with instant response.

Questions and Answers Concerning Popcorn

Q: Why is it good business for me to operate a popcorn machine in my theatre? A: Because you can utilize your present overhead to pay you an additional revenue. Popcorn will pay a good margin of profit—and "really delicious" popcorn is habit-forming among patrons.

Q: Why is it that $5.00 in popcorn sales means as much gross profits as $12.00 to $15.00 in sales of average merchandise? A: Because popcorn pays 70 cents gross profits on every dollar; whereas average merchandise pays only 20 to 30 per cent gross profit.

Q: Will I sell popcorn mainly in 5*-cent sacks?* A: Once popcorn sold almost exclusively in 5-cent sacks, but today the larger proportion of sales is in 10-cent boxes.



Q: How will I know if mine is a popcorn location? A: Almost every theatre can reasonably be considered a popcorn location, since the American public "goes for" this confection when it is placed at their disposal.

Q: What is my cost of producing popcorn? A: To turn out the very best popcorn possible, at the most, the corn and popping supplies will never exceed 30 cents on the dollar. It may run lower, depending on the price of corn and supplies. Under average conditions the production cost is distributed approximately as follows: Raw corn, 12 cents; salt, ½ cent; electricity, 1 cent; sacks and cartons, 4½ cents.

Q: Would I have to hire someone especially to take care of the machine? A: No, not necessarily. It requires only a few minutes' time to pop up several dollars' worth of corn. If you need someone's full time to operate your machine, that is exactly what you want as your machine would always be busy and you would be making even more money.

PRACTICAL DISCUSSIONS ON MODERN PROJECTION AND SOUND PRACTICES

The Fantasound System in Principle and Its Future Possibilities

by FRED W. WENTKER

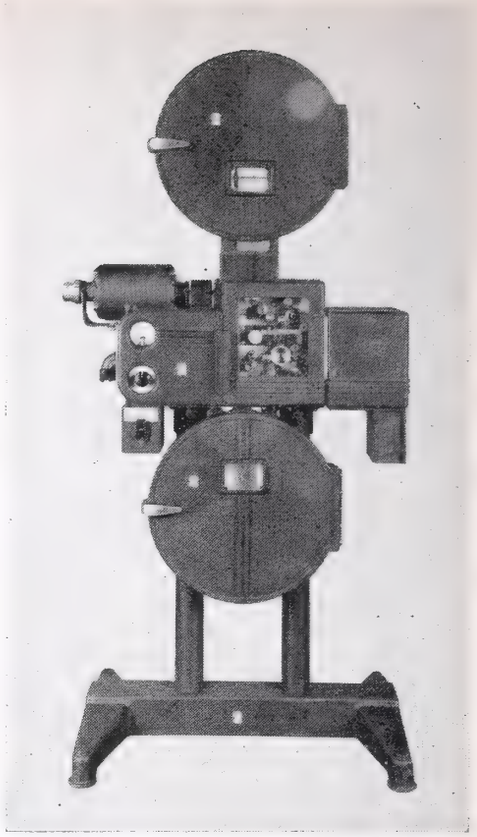
PATRONS attending the Walt Disney Production "Fantasia," featuring the music of Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra, in the Broadway Theatre in New York, experience reproduction as genuinely realistic in acoustic perspective, in dynamic range, and in tone color as they would experience were they to listen to an actual concert. What has made this possible? What sort of apparatus has been used to create this triumph in symphonic reproduction? What will be the probable effect of this revolutionary event upon the motion picture industry?

Exhibitors naturally are keenly interested in knowing how this new mode of recording and presenting motion pictures may affect their theatres. But before attempting to arrive at any conclusions, it is well to consider the most important differences between the Fantasound system and any modern theatre sound reproducing system of the conventional type. When fortified with an understanding of these and the added benefits they produce, one is much better able to form opinions regarding the probable effects on all motion picture entertainment of the future.

Three Systems in One

It may be said that the Fantasound system is really three complete sound systems of a somewhat special type combined into one. For example, there actually are three complete sets of loudspeakers operating from three separate amplifier channels. These could be worked from three films and three soundheads operated in synchronism, with each soundhead supplying music or dialogue to its associated amplifier and loudspeaker channel. For the sake of simplicity, however, the Fantasound System utilizes multi-track soundheads (or film phonographs, as they are called) which scan four sound tracks placed on one film. (The pictures are projected from a separate film). Three of the tracks contain the recordings of music, dialogue, and sound effects that are reproduced over the three amplifier and loudspeaker systems. Each film phonograph, of course, operates in synchronism with a picture projector which projects pictures from the second or picture film.



Remember we said that the system is equivalent to three systems of a somewhat special type. For what purpose then is the fourth track on the sound film which is scanned by the multi-track soundhead? This extra sound track has no music, dialogue, or sound effects recorded in it, yet it makes possible another of the very important differences between this system and a regular Photophone system. Let's see what this is.

Consider for the moment a conventional modern motion picture reproducing system. A recording of a symphony orchestra reproduced over it will lack by much the volume range of the original, simply because the volume or dynamic range had to be "compressed" when the recording was made. The reasons are simple enough.

The smallest image that it is practical to record on a sound track is determined by film or background noise. The limit is reached when the noise during reproduction becomes annoyingly perceptible. The maximum that can be recorded is represented by 100 per cent modulation, that is when the peaks of the photographed waves extend to the very edges of the track. Thus, the recording engineer must continually adjust the volume control of his recording amplifier system so that the images he photographs on the sound track fall between these two limits.

When such a "compressed" recording is played, the loudest sounds will be approximately 3,200 times as loud as the softest sounds. In the case of a full symphony orchestra, however, the loudest sounds are approximately 10,000,000 times as loud as the softest. Thus the loudness or dynamic range of a full symphony orchestra may be approximately 3,200 times greater than the range which it is practicable to record on the film. In engineering terms, this extra range of the original over the recording is referred to as 35 db. If the reproduction of such a recording is to be completely realistic, some practical means must be employed to expand the loudness or dynamic range so that it is more nearly equivalent to that of the original sounds.

If it were possible for a projectionist to twirl the volume control knob rapidly enough, and if he were supplied with a complete set of cues, he could continually boost or reduce the amplification by just the right amount at just the right time and thus compensate for the compression introduced during recording. However, no projectionist can be expected to handle this kind of an assignment, so some sort of automatic means must be found.

Supposing that instead of a manual volume control, we have an electronic volume control capable of split second operation, and some automatic means of directing this control so that it increases or decreases the amplification by just the right amount. This is really what we have in the new Fantasound system.

In this system we have what is called a variable gain amplifier. It is inserted in the circuit between voltage and power amplifiers and is in effect the electronic volume control we spoke of. But how does it get the information which tells it when to increase the amplification, or when to decrease it?

Supposing we record alongside the regular sound track, containing the record of the symphony music, another track on which we record only a single frequency artificial tone; for example, a 1,000-cycle tone generated by an oscillator. And suppose this extra track is scanned by a separate optical system in the reproducing soundhead. Now let's assume that we reach the loudest musical passage in the recording and that at this point the recordist had been forced to turn the volume control of the recording amplifier down drastically to prevent overshooting the regular track. Now suppose that at this same point we make the 1,000-cycle tone recording as strong as the width of the extra track will permit, so that when it is scanned in the reproducing soundhead it will send a strong signal to the variable gain amplifier telling it to open up to full gain to restore the volume range lost when the music was recorded. In the case of a musical passage which is less loud, the 1,000-cycle control tone can likewise be made less strong so it will tell the variable gain amplifier to supply less gain or amplification. Thus the fixed frequency tone in the extra track continually tells the variable gain amplifier or automatic volume control exactly how it should control the amplification to offset the compression of the volume range introduced when the music was recorded.

In the case of the Fantasound system, this is exactly what is done. However, you will not find an extra control-tone track for each of the three regular sound tracks on the special sound film because the three control tones were mixed and recorded on a single control track. Each of the three control tones, of course, differs in frequency or pitch from the other two. When the control track is scanned by the soundhead, the mixture of the three control signals is fed into filters which separate the three and directs each towards its proper variable gain amplifier.

The extra volume range of Fantasound is approximately 40 db. or about 10,000 times that of a conventional system. Its maximum range is about 6 db. above that of a symphony orchestra, which means a 100-piece orchestra can be made to sound as loud as a 400-piece orchestra.

Of course, such extra amplification would not be of much value if the output power amplifiers and loudspeakers didn't measure up to the load this calls for. The Fantasound amplifiers and loudspeakers have unusual power handling capacity and so they are able to handle the tremendous peak powers this extra amplification calls for.

Realism Requires More Than Equivalent Loudness

Having the reproduction as loud as the original is in itself not enough to give a feeling of realism, nor does it in itself make listening a pleasure. In fact, it has been proved time and again that when music is reproduced over a standard theatre system, the audience is actually displeased if the music is made very much louder than it would have been without any effort to get added volume range (squeeze track recordings are an example of one means for getting extra volume range).

This, engineers tell us, is caused largely by the fact that theatre loudspeakers necessarily have marked directional characteristics. As a result they say it's impossible with an ordinary system to cause the same impression and feeling that results from listening to the original sounds even though the reproduced sounds may be emitted by the loudspeakers with exactly the same tonal balance as the original.

This does not mean that the directional characteristics of theatre loudspeakers are necessarily undesirable, for, in fact they are valuable in creating the proper illusion on dialogue, and in securing acceptable intelligibility under adverse acoustic conditions. By grouping the loudspeakers at the proper point behind the screen, the sound generally seems to be coming from the picture of the person talking, thus helping very definitely in creating a feeling of realism in dialogue reproduction.

An orchestra, however, is generally spread out over all or almost all of a stage. And many of the sound waves they generate are quite non-directional. It is not surprising, therefore, that the reproducing of such an orchestra over a single channel system with highly directional loudspeakers is not particularly pleasing.

Supposing, however, that many loudspeakers are employed and that they are spread out over the entire width of the stage (not just the width of the screen). Now we find that music reproduction takes on an entirely different character with much greater realism since the sound now comes from the whole stage, not just from one section of a sound screen. In the case of Fantasound, these and other ingenious loudspeaker arrangements are used to gain the desired ends. The three huge main groups of loudspeakers occupy a width much greater than that of the sound screen. This spreading out of the loudspeakers gives the reproduction a realistic "acoustic perspective" not possible with ordinary single channel movie systems.

But this improvement over an ordinary system does not end here. Out in the front corners of the auditorium are two special two-way corner loudspeakers, and all around the balcony, under the balcony, etc., are many smaller cabinet loudspeakers, all of which are operated at much lower volume than the main loudspeakers (in fact, the audience does not realize they are working except during the Ave Maria number). What is the function of these extra loudspeakers? What do they contribute to realism?

As pointed out, the stage loudspeakers are quite directional, hence less sound strikes the walls and ceiling of the theatre than if a live orchestra were playing. Thus if a person is listening to music from a live orchestra, quite a bit of the sound reaching his ears will have been reflected many times, whereas if he listens to sound from a reproducing system, a much higher percentage of the sound he hears will come to him direct from the loudspeakers. Obviously, the two will not create the same sort of feeling. This is where the supplemental loudspeakers of the Fantasound system come into the picture. Since they are on the walls, sound coming from them corresponds somewhat to reflections from these same walls. Combined with the spreading of the loudspeakers, they produce a feeling of realism hitherto unobtainable.

The Fantasound system is capable of producing another interesting effect. It is sometimes desirable that it be possible to move the sound source around on the stage to conform with the action depicted on the screen. For example, sound effects sometimes should come from one side of the stage rather than from the screen. Obviously, this can be done practically either by switching loudspeakers or by having a number of complete amplifier and loudspeaker channels. Since Fantasound has three separate channels, it is possible to make the sound come from the center or either side of the screen as well as from the entire stage. This also permits reproducing a complete section of an orchestra, for example the violins, over one set of loudspeakers, the brasses over another, and yet another section over the third, thus imitating the positions these same sections would occupy if actually on the stage.

However, it should be noted that grouping of musical instruments by types does not necessarily make an orchestra sound better. In other words, the music from the orchestra does not necessarily sound better because the violins are grouped in one section of the stage. It would be well nigh impossible, however, to keep the violinist in perfect harmony if they were scattered throughout the orchestra, so they usually are placed into one group. Thus, such groupings seem to be chiefly the result of practical rather than theoretical acoustic considerations. A reproducing system has no such problems, therefore it can reproduce all of the instruments over all of the loudspeakers simultaneously regardless of how greatly the loudspeakers may be separated from each other.

In "Fantasia" the variety of effects which the flexible multi-channel Fantasound system makes available have been combined and blended by Disney and Stokowski with the pictures and action on the screen to provide a maximum of entertainment. At times all the loudspeaker groups may be reproducing with equal loudness all the instruments. At other times the music swirls from side to side often in accordance with action or patterns depicted on the screen. At other times individual instruments or sections are made to reproduce over one channel only. (Examples of this latter effect are the sequences where the orchestra tunes up). Always, the effects are those which contribute most to the listener's enjoyment of the performance.

Uses Regular Reproducing Units

Contrary to opinions generally prevailing, the apparatus units are for the most part those regularly furnished with RCA Photophone systems. Specially built units were used only in those instances where no piece of commercial apparatus was available. For example, the multi-track film phonographs had to be designed and built especially for this work because no standard theatre systems utilize such a unit. This is also true of the variable gain amplifiers.

The driver and power output amplifiers, crossover networks, loudspeakers, power supplies, etc., however, are all standard theatre units. Each of the three main amplifier channels installed at the Broadway Theatre delivers 180-watts output with less than two per cent distortion when measured in accordance with Academy specifications. Peak power outputs as high as 700 watts total for the complete system have been measured.

Each of the three main loudspeaker groups consists of four dual-mechanism low frequency baffles (with extension baffles) using a total of eight of the regular de luxe Photophone low frequency mechanisms, and a single cellular high frequency horn equipped with four of the regular de luxe high frequency mechanisms. Thus the three main groups of loudspeakers employ a total of 12 high frequency mechanisms and 24 low frequency mechanisms. Except perhaps for some experimental setup, this unquestionably represents the most gigantic collection of loudspeaker apparatus ever assembled for theatre use.

In a previous section, some mention was made of special "corner loudspeakers." These are ingenious two-way loudspeakers which were especially designed to fit into corners. Because of their unique design, they provide a tonal range comparable to that of the biggest two-way systems, yet each occupies only a fraction of the space and is far easier to conceal through use of a decorative covering.

Each projector is also fitted with a regular Photophone soundhead. These units, however, serve no purpose other than to drive the picture mechanisms, each of which, of course, is driven in synchronism with one of the multi-track film phonographs by means of an electrically interlocked Selsyn drive system. Since the picture film carries a standard sound track, the standard soundhead can, of course, be used to reproduce this track just as any other standard theatre system would reproduce it.

The Recording System

The reproduction from any theatre system, no matter how elaborate it may be, is limited by the tonal range, quietness, and smoothness of the recording system. Naturally then, exhibitors are interested in knowing a bit about the recording system used in the making of "Fantasia."

Standard RCA Photophone variable area ultra-violet light, Class A, push-pull recorders were used throughout.

With the exception of the "Sorcerer's Apprentice," the music recordings were made at the Philadelphia Academy of Music with Leopold Stokowski directing the Philadelphia Orchestra. "Sorcerer's Apprentice" with Stokowski directing a Hollywood orchestra, was recorded at Disney's Hollywood Studio with a recording setup which in some respects was even more elaborate than that used at the Academy of Music. All the music was recorded with as many as eight synchronized recorders, with some recording some particular section of the orchestra, and others recording various types of 'mixes." This gave two very important benefits. It enabled Disney to splice these sectionalized tracks into any of the three final tracks, which gives the Fantasound system some of its unusual acoustic perspective qualities. Also, it made it possible for Disney to blend the various sections in the final re-recordings to secure whatever balance between instruments he needed for the effects he was seeking to create. Thus the flexibility far surpassed that which would have been attained had the recording system utilized only three channels as does the reproducing system.

The synchronizing of the action with the music, the final blending of the sound tracks, and the cueing of the control tracks represented a tremendous job for the Disney organization. That they have done an outstanding job is attested by the sensational success "Fantasia" with Fantasound is scoring in New York.

New Printer Required

Since there was not available a printer for printing the four final double-width tracks on a single film for use in the theatre, it was necessary to develop and manufacture a new type of optical enlarging printer to do this job. The famous magnetic drive principle, a standard feature of all RCA studio recorders, was applied in the solution of this difficult problem.

How well this new printer, as well as the recorders, re-recorders, and film phonographs have done their job is proved by the fact that, in spite of the numerous steps required to complete and present the final tracks, there is not noticeable even the

HOW TO GET GREATER EFFICIENCY FROM YOUR PRESENT PROJECTOR

You can greatly increase the efficiency of your projector with a Bausch & Lomb f:2 Super Cinephor—the projection lens which actually delivers 25% more light on the screen. A new process of treating lens surfaces to minimize reflections puts to work the light previously lost (4 to 6% at each air to glass surface). The new f:2 lens has the light efficiency that hitherto would only have been possible at f:1.79.

The result of this increased light on the screen is a marked gain in contrast and crispness. Shadow detail is not diluted by distributed light. Color films have greater purity and brilliance.

27 FULL-RECESSED SANI-DRI—An electric hand-drier suitable for installation in any wall construction that is eight inches or more in thickness. This new model is especially suitable for theatre washrooms. It conserves space and the full-recessed foot pedal protects against accidental or deliberate damage. This sanitary drying method reduces washroom maintenance costs and supplies unusual protection against the dangerous fire hazard of towels littered about the washroom.

frigeration, this unit is readily adaptable to comfort cooling requirements. Because of its construction, it keeps water consumption at a minimum. The suspended type of its design conserves floor space.

29 MAGIC SCREEN — The surface materials used guarantee against discoloration. It is less susceptible to chemical changes which usually cause yellowing or other types of discoloration and it will retain its high reflection qualities for longer periods of time. Better sound will be assured because of thinness and more clean-cut perforations. Reduced power consumption will be noted because there will be no premature aging.

30 STERILSEAT — A new scientific weapon in the war upon infectious diseases. This new toilet seat has a germicidal action which offers protection to each user because its action is automatic and dependable. A Sterilamp is built into the Sterilseat so that its germ-killing ultra violet rays quickly and effectively sanitize the toilet seat immediately after each using.

31 PHANTOM DOORMAN—An automatic door opener-closer (for hinged doors), which is controlled by electric eye or switch. The device is a smart, up-to-date patron appeal item with great advertising value. It also saves door maintenance costs, eliminates breakage and injury, keeps out noise and protects air conditioning. This is also a smart new method of solving the problem of traffic control.

32 BIG BEAM HAND LAMP —A portable electric hand lamp which projects a powerful ray over 2,500 feet—safe, dependable, convenient and economical for emergency use in theatres. The lamp features simplified charging, quick, easy focus and instant change from portable to stationary position. The Big Beam is claimed an ideal emergency light in the event of central power service failure or it can serve as a trouble lamp for repair and inspection work in inaccessible places.

33 ROOM WEATHER-MAKER — A self-contained unit for complete summer air conditioning—cooling, dehumidifying, filtering and circulating of air. It is also applicable for winter circulation, ventilation and filtration. The device is also adaptable for air tempering. Its attractive walnut finish makes this room cooler particularly fitting as a piece of furnishing in theatre ante-rooms and offices.

34 TOILET SEAT COVERS —Tissue covers which offer full protection to the user, an effective precaution against the spread of disease. The cost of covers is usually more than offset by the saving in towels and tissue alone. A dispenser, placed approximately 50 inches from the floor, preferably back of the toilet, conveniently dispenses one cover at a time. It may be installed without drilling either marble or tile walls.

35 DOMESTIC FLASHED GLASS—A new type of flashed glass, translucent opal glass flashed onto a clear crystal, which is said to be 60 per cent more efficient than the best opal glass that can be obtained here since conditions in Europe have stopped its importation. The new product is manufactured by a well-known sign letter and service concern and will be sold only with new letters or to present users of the company's letters. A limited quantity only is available at present, and this at a very nominal price.

slightest trace of a "wow" in the reproduction of "Fantasia" at the Broadway Theatre.

EFFECT ON THE FUTURE

Once having experienced the thrilling realism of Fantasound, motion picture patrons will clamor for such enjoyable reproduction from all motion pictures.

But a system as big and as flexible as the Fantasound system is necessarily somewhat more expensive than a regular present-day movie system. Furthermore, the added costs for operating the multiple recording channels must necessarily add tremendously to the cost of producing the picture, thus adding to film rental costs. And, in addition, there are the extra film handling costs which result because dual films are required, that is, one film for the sound tracks, another for the picture. The added costs for the latter two extra expense items probably are the most serious obstacles in the way of the general adoption of such a system. For super-productions exhibited on a road-show basis, such as "Fantasia," the extra benefits can justify this extra expense. If, however, an attempt were made to have all pictures recorded and reproduced this way, the average cost of film entertainment would probably become too high and the industry might suffer rather than gain.

If so, what can be done about the other productions? Is it not perhaps possible to do something that will enable presenting them in a manner that will compare favorably with that used for the super-productions, yet not incur more than a very reasonable additional expense? For if this can be done, then all theatres, big and small, can benefit from these important advances in realistic reproduction.

Fortunately this is entirely possible as has already been demonstrated by an experimental system. For this simplified, much less expensive system, only a single film is required. The film is exactly like present-day films except for an extra sound track which, by means of principles already described, automatically causes extra amplifiers and loudspeakers to come into play as desired by the producer of the film. This extra control or cue track can be recorded on the film between the sprocket holes thereby utilizing only film space not now used for either picture or sound. With such a system, the extra recording and printing costs are negligible and no extra film handling costs are involved because a theatre would receive this type of print regardless of whether it is equipped to provide its patrons with the benefits available through the extra sound track. Reproducer systems not equipped with the extra attachments would reproduce exactly as they now do because the regular sound track would be identical with that of today's standard films.

The theatre reproducing apparatus for such a simplified system can be attached to a modern reproducing system. As a matter of fact, current Photophone Systems were designed with the possible adoption of such auxiliary apparatus in mind. The soundhead parts can consist of simple attachments to be installed in each soundhead. Special control amplifiers, extra power amplifiers and extra loudspeakers complete the apparatus setup. The loudspeakers can be spread over the stage, around the auditorium, etc., as in the case of the Fantasound system.

Engineers have named this simpler arrangement the "RCA Panoramic Sound System" to distinguish it from the more complex "RCA Fantasound System." An experimental model was placed at the disposal of Hollywood producers and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences some months ago, in order that they might be able to make first-hand studies of its possibilities and determine a suitable set of uniform film standards.

That producers are taking a keen interest in this new system is indicated by announcements of trial installations in associated key theatres in Hollywood and New York. In view of this, it is not unlikely that the coming months may witness the general adoption of this new method for more realistic presentations. And in that event, the year 1941 may well be marked as one in which the industry as a whole will have cooperated in sponsoring the greatest single step towards realistic reproduction since the advent of sound motion pictures.

Rubber Rugs and Mats Make Maintenance Easier

The problem of floor and carpet maintenance is of utmost importance to every theatre manager or owner. On wet and slippery days as well as dry and gritty days, destruction of floors and floor coverings is inevitable; each pair of feet shuffles and grinds its share of grit into every surface they contact.

Rubber rugs and mats are to hard floors as rubber tires are to cement highways —the result is speed, safety and comfort at minimum expense. To determine where such matting is necessary, study the normal traffic lanes of your theatre. People do not walk at random; they have definite destinations in mind. They want to reach the auditorium, the rest rooms or other points of interest in the shortest possible time.

Rubber rugs and matting are economical; you need only cover the areas most travelled to save the more luxurious inner floor coverings. They are attractive because of colorful design or pattern and they may match other floor coverings to bring beauty of the highest order.

Lounge Furniture an Important Provision

The choice of furniture for theatre lounge rooms and foyers should receive special attention. It is now purchased with the whole picture of the room in mind, with due regard to design and style, and how its type will fit in with the general scheme of the room.

Values in furniture are determined by sound construction and distinction of style. The first safeguard is to purchase from a reliable dealer, as often the name of the manufacturer suggests the quality of the piece. Cheap furniture is never a bargain at any price, as it will soon have to be replaced, while good furniture may be expected to withstand the wear of theatre use for many years.

Mutual Problems Are Aired in Pamphlet

Mutual problems of the employer and the employe, including those relating to common interest in individual earnings, safety, working conditions, quality and quantity of output, and efficient and economical operation, are thoroughly aired in an eight-page pamphlet distributed to each of Paramount's 2,750 studio workers.

The statement, first of its kind to be issued by any studio, is keynoted by a brief preface signed by Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, in which he declares:

"In our sincere desire to further develop the harmonious relationships now existing between employes and management of Paramount Pictures, Inc., we wish in the following statement of industrial relations policies to define the company's attitude on mutual problems."

Explains Paramount's Stand

The pamphlet explains Paramount's stand on employe organizations, wages, performance, working conditions and safety measures, promotions and transfers, layoffs and discharges, employment stabilization, group health and life insurance, studio clubs, the federal credit union, work calls, acceptance of outside calls during slack periods, and the studio's industrial relations department.

"It is our conviction," asserted Freeman in issuing the pamphlet, "that all problems affecting the welfare of the company are the problems of the men and women in its employ, and that all problems affecting the welfare of its employes are the problems of the company."

Among the significant facts contained in the booklet is the company's declaration it recognizes the right to collective bargaining, in which, the studio asserts, it undertakes to maintain complete impartiality in disputes over jurisdiction.

Pamphlet was prepared by the industrial relations department under the supervision of Charles Boren, industrial relations manager.

Quiet Pervades Labor Scene As New Year Makes Bow

Unusual quiet characterized the first days of the New Year insofar as producer-labor relations were concerned. Most important event scheduled is that of the producers association for January 6, at which approval will be asked of the producer-Screen Actors Guild standing committee's report anent the extra player situation. Chief among its recommendations calls for the elimination of so-called "casual" extras in order to alleviate the present unemployment situation. Both the SAG and the extras themselves have already placed their okay on the report.

Negotiations will get under way shortly on demands filed by the motion picture costume makers for a five-day, 40-hour week with a standard minimum wage scale. Aubrey Blair, Hollywood organizer for the American Federation of Labor, will head the costumers' negotiating committee. Producers are also dickering with the studio scenic artists, an affiliate of the moving picture painters, on a closed shop contract, wage increases and other demands.

Also to be launched shortly are huddles between producers and the Society of Motion Picture Film Editors relevant to a requested 10 per cent increase in wages for certain classifications of cutters.

Leonard Janofsky has resigned his post as counsel for the Screen Writers Guild, according to an announcement from the SWG in which it was declared the organization needs a full-time attorney, which would interfere with Janofsky's private practice. He had been associated with the SWG for more than three years.

Academy to Elect New Officers January 7

Officers of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for 1941 will be elected at a meeting of the new board of governors scheduled for January 7. At the same time, it has been disclosed, detailed plans for the forthcoming annual Academy Awards banquet, including the exact date and locale of the affair, will be announced.

Just prior to the session, a run-off election to choose representatives from the technicians' branch on the board of governors will be held. In the recent balloting a tie vote resulted among technicians. Those elected among the actors, writers, directors and producers included:

Actors—Edward Arnold, Rosalind Russell, James Stewart. Writers—Howard Estabrook, Jane Murfin, Robert Riskin. Directors—Frank Capra, Frank Lloyd, Sam Wood. Producers—Y. Frank Freeman, David O. Selznick, Walter Wanger.

Nine nominees for places on the board from among the technicians are John Aalberg, Anne Bauchens, Farciot Edouart, Bernard Herzbrun, Nathan Levinson, Harold J. McCord, Thomas T. Moulton, Jack Otterson and Ray Wilkinson.

Minor revisions in Academy bylaws and articles of incorporation were approved in the voting.

Meantime a meeting of the producers association, its regular monthly session, has been called for January 6, with Y. Frank Freeman to preside. Among items of business to be discussed is the producer-Screen Actors Guild standing committee report urging elimination of all so-called "casual" extra players, as well as routine matters.

Payrolls Jump as Production Hums

Traceable to the increased production tempo in November is the corresponding boost in weekly payrolls and in the number employed on the various lots. According to figures compiled and released by the California labor statistics department, wage-earners—exclusive of executive and talent divisions—were paid a total of $557,957 during that month. This is $8.636 more than the October payrolls. Number of workers employed in November was 12,428, compared to the 12,295 on the payrolls during the preceding month. Average weekly pay check in November was $44.90, a 4.2 per cent increase over November, 1939.

Several changes have been made in the personnel of the Paramount studio publicity department following the takeover of the top spot by George Brown, replacing Cliff Lewis. Chief among them is the resignation of Bob Speers, head planter, who moves to Universal in two weeks to become assistant to John Josephs, advertising-publicity director there.

Speers' duties at Paramount have been taken over by Blake McVeigh, who came in as Brown's assistant.

Leaving Paramount also are Bert Holloway, Bill Hebert, Bob Burkhardt, Bob Blewett and Arthur Powell, all of the publicity staff. Holloway, head of the unit room, is replaced by Murphy McHenry, who left the advertising-publicity spot with Edward Small Productions to join the Paramount staff. Also joining Paramount are Hy Daab, coming out from New York, and Bernard Kamins. Brown will add others shortly.

Myke Lewis has resigned his post as sales chieftain for Harry Sherman Productions, effective immediately.

Republic, Universal Off to Fast Start

First away from the starting post in the January production spurt are Republic and Universal, each with five films to go before the cameras. They are being closely followed by Warner, Metro and Paramount, which studios each list a quartette of films to hit the sound stages before the end of the month. Virtually every other studio will contribute two or more vehicles to swell the grand total for January to 30.

Indicating the boom may extend throughout the first quarter of 1941, ten other pictures have already been slotted for February starts, one in March, with others in the offing.

Republic's entries include "Mr. District Attorney," "Sis Hopkins," "The Great Train Robbery," "You'll Never Get Rich" and "Citadel of Crime." For February it lists "Puddin' Head." Universal's lineup comprises "The Man Who Lost Himself," "The Lady From Cheyenne," "Model Wife," "Flame of New Orleans," and "Mutiny in the Arctic." The February slate includes "Stitches and Stars" and "Ready for Romance."

Warner is enjoying the most intensive mid-season boom in studio history. To get under way this month are "Sergeant York," "Affectionately Yours," "Bad Men of Missouri" and "Singapore." Paramount's quartette includes "Caught in the Draft," "Skylark," "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" and "Hold Back the Dawn." Metro will film "Blossoms in the Dust," "Mr. Co-Ed," "A Woman's Face" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Columbia will gun "They Dare Not Love" and "A Girl's Best Friend Is Wall Street." In February it will turn cameras on "Her First Beau" and "Senate Page Boys." RKO Radio lists "Range Robbers," "Sunny" and "Before the Fact" for January; "True to Form" for March. Getting under way at Monogram this month is "Air Devils."

For United Artists the February lineup includes "The Eagle Squadron," an Argosy production which Walter Wanger will release; "New Wine" from Alexander Korda, and Sol Lesser's "Strange Victory." Twentieth Century-Fox will roll "Blood and Sand" and "The Great American Broadcast" in January, "Sun Valley" and "Miami" next month.

Picture Corp. of America Names Rogers Director

John W. Rogers, son of Producer Charles R. Rogers, has been elected vice-president and a member of the board of directors of the newly organized Picture Corp. of America, headed by William H. Pine and William C. Thomas. Rogers will be associated with Thomas, executive producer, in the making of "Power Dive," starring Richard Arlen, which rolls January 27 for Paramount release. He has been associated with 20th Century-Fox for the past five years.

Victor Milner, cinematographer, has left the Paramount contract roster after a 17-year association with the studio. Milner plans to freelance.

Hollywood to Aid Fight On Infantile Paralysis

Always in the forefront where charitable activity is involved, Hollywood is again being asked to do its part in a nationwide campaign, this time for the annual Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, proceeds from which will go into a fund to fight infantile paralysis.

A statewide organizational meeting was scheduled for January 3 at the Biltmore Bowl with Keith Morgan, national chairman of the committee, presiding and Joseph M. Schenck, national vice-chairman and chairman for the state of California, as one of the chief speakers. It was indicated Schenck will employ the same procedure for the motion picture industry as in past years through the appointment of lieutenants on each lot and the creation of a committee comprising representatives from every branch of motion picture making.

Bundles for Britain, Inc., staged a national broadcast New Year's Day, airing from the Palladium Ballroom, with participants including Jack Benny, Charles Boyer, Claudette Colbert, Philip Dorn, Judy Garland, Myrna Loy, Tony Martin, Spencer Tracy, Carmen Miranda, Nazimova, Merle Oberon and Mickey Rooney. Dancing followed the broadcast and the proceeds from ticket sales and contributions were ear-marked for the purchase of supplies in America for the relief of British air-raid victims.

Permanent members of the committee to work with the motion picture permanent charities group have been named by the Southern California Broadcasters Ass'n. Chairman of the broadcasters' committee is Don Gilman, vice-president of the National Broadcasting Company.

"Virginia" Bows in Gotham January 21

World premiere of Paramount's "Virginia" has been set for January 21 at the Paramount Theatre in New York, with Stirling Hayden and Carolyn Lee, of the cast, making personal appearances. Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll, who co-star, will not be able to attend, but arrangements are being made for the latter to address premiere audiences via a long-distance telephone hookup.

Negotiations are now under way whereby Los Angeles will, in all probability, be the next key city selected.

Pacific Coast premiere of Walt Disney's "Fantasia" will be held here late this month, according to Disney studio officials, with negotiations now under way for the selection of a theatre. Nationwide exploitation on the film is being handled by Frank Braden, now here to launch the local campaign. Premiere arrangements include the installation of Fantasound, specially-designed sound equipment. Following its local opening, the Disney picture will be given roadshow treatment in a dozen or more key cities throughout the country, with openings to be scheduled as fast as Fantasound units are constructed.

Martha Scott, William Gargan, Marsha Hunt and Mary Anderson have been set to attend the Lincoln, Neb., world premiere of Richard A. Rowland's "Cheers for Miss Bishop" on January 14.

Monogram's "Her First Romance" was premiered at the Hawaii Theatre here New Year's Eve. Edith Fellows, Judith Linden, Jacqueline Wells, Alan Ladd and Marion Kerby, all of whom played featured roles, made personal appearances.

IN VIEW of "Chad Hanna" and "Hudson's Bay," quite understandable is the announcement that Darryl Zanuck himself will personally supervise the preparation and making of two of 20th Century-Fox's most pretentious and expensive pictures during the coming season—namely "Swamp Water," to star Henry Fonda, and "How Green Was My Valley," one of the past year's best-selling novels.

Perhaps without the benefit of associate producers, the Wizard of Westwood can re-establish his reputation as the production genius of the decade, which was considerably weakened by "Hanna" and "Bay," both of which fell considerably short of their expected marks.

"Frank Capra's 'Meet John Doe' unit will return to work at Warners today, shooting added scenes for the film," is rapidly becoming a rubber-stamp item in publicity releases from Burbank. Unless they can be discarded soon, it might be appropriate to change the title to "Cost Much Doe."

Continuing the craze for space-grabbing debut ideas, Paramount gains the doubtful distinction of establishing the long-distance premiere record with the announcement that "Virginia" is to make its bow not only in New York, but also, and simultaneously, at Little America, the antarctic base of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd—because, it is explained, the film was made almost entirely on location in Virginia and Byrd's family home there was caught by the cameras.

The print will be shipped via Auckland, New Zealand.

LOP confides to her readers that "I had myself a good laugh when they told me at Republic that they had bought a story called 'The Great Train Robbery' by Garrett Weston."

And aforesaid readers probably had themselves a good laugh when Queen Louella added that "I don't remember much about it myself"—referring to the original epic of the same title.

Advocates of penal reform will find something about which to become exercised in the announcement that Warner's "Santa Fe Trail" was shown to 700 convicts in the New Mexico state penitentiary.

Next: Return of the whipping post.

The shorter the budget, the longer the title, might do as a slogan for Producers Releasing Corporation, what with "The Lone Rider Galloping to Glory" having been chosen as the handle for the first of six westerns in which George Houston will be featured.

Dog Bites Man Department:

A Paramount release declares that "busiest man in Hollywood today (16) is Cecil B. DeMille, who has three pictures in preparation—all of them epics."

One of these days DeMille will announce a forthcoming picture without pre-labeling it an epic—and that will be news.

Indications that the new system for handling Hollywood "press previews" is not proving as popular as was expected are shown in a letter and questionnaire from Jock Lawrence, publicity generalissimo of the local Hays office. Lawrence requested the members of filmdom's 3.98th estate to record their individual preferences between afternoon and evening showings. Which idea was all right, except that it didn't go far enough. Jock should have provided space on his questionnaire for a few pet peeves, to wit:

Whether held in the afternoon or evening, in a projection room or a chartered theatre, let the preview start at the scheduled hour. Holding the start for 10, 15 or 20 minutes for the convenience of a few late arrivals, and to the discomfiture and inconvenience of the on-time majority, is decidedly unfair. Parenthetically, worst offender in the late-start category was the recent press showing of Warner's "Escape From Destiny." Announced for 2:00 o'clock, it was exactly one hour late in getting started because someone had neglected to have a print of the picture sent to the theatre.

Stop the showing of short subjects prior to the feature's being previewed, which practice is probably another protectional gesture for the few chronic late arrivers. And, if shorts must be shown, eliminate repetition. Metro's "Quicker'n a Wink," a Pete Smith Specialty, has been shown to critics no less than four times as a time-killer preceding a debuting feature. Albeit entertaining, it did border on the monotonous side about the third time. In fact, the critics are probably more familiar with the subject than Smith himself. Universal's "Syncopated Sioux," a Walter Lantz cartoon, has been shown under similar circumstances at least three times.

Fantastic, Fatuous, Flamboyant

As is customary during the more or less gay Yuletide season, Hollywood devoted more attention to festivities than previews during the holiday week. Only three pictures—and a rather trifling trio, at that—found their way to the screen for critics' reaction.

In this far-from competitive field, Universal's "The Invisible Woman" was an easy best. Fans who remember "The Invisible Man"—and his return engagement—and pay their money for this one with the expectation that it will deliver a comparable quota of chills, might be disappointed, except for the fact that a very pleasant surprise is in store for them. There isn't a shudder in its entire length, but when it comes to laughs—that's another matter. The script by Robert Lees, Fred Rinaldo and Gertrude Purcell, from the original by Joe May and Kurt Siodmak, contains nothing but chuckles and full-fledged guffaws. The five aforementioned writers completely eliminated the horror element in order to make way for the welcome emphasis on humor. Their job is definitely of the "Topper" school and nothing of its kind has ever been any better done. A. Edward Sutherland's direction is likewise expert and Burt Kelly, as the associate producer, provided every requirement with an unstinting hand. Too, there was a weighty cast with which to work, among which John Barrymore dominates. It's a feature which shouldn't miss all along the line.

Metro presented "Keeping Company" as the initial entry in a new family series, which Leo is projecting as a runner-up to the popular "Hardy" clan pictures. And if this one is criterion, the new family is going to have to do a lot of running before it can even see the dust of Andy and his tribe. The more naive patrons may accept it as supporting fare, but it is handicapped tremendously by an overlong and snail-paced script, into which have been dragged almost every time-worn celluloid cliche. Taking the rap for the screenplay are Harry Ruskin, James H. Hill and Adrian Scott, working from an original by Herman Mankiewicz. The cast, among whom impish Virginia Weidler imparts a few bright moments, is far above its material and struggles desperately but unsuccessfully, while S. Sylvan Simon's direction contributes nothing to raise the picture from mediocrity. Samuel Marx functioned as the associate producer.

Followers of Leslie Charteris' famous "Saint" and his crime-solving proclivities will find RKO Radio's "The Saint in Palm Springs," in which the debonair, slightly sinister criminologist finds adventure in California's desert playground, measuring up to the same high standards which were to be found in previous chapters in the series. George Sanders is again seen in the title role, surrounded by an entirely adequate supporting cast. Howard Benedict turned in a creditable job as the associate producer and Jack Hively's direction is of high order. Jerry Cady provided a suspenseful screenplay, incorporating no less than three murders, working from an original supplied by Charteris. As thriller fare the feature should come up to expectations.

PCCITO Meeting in Portland Jan. 13

PORTLAND—The Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners will hold one of three scheduled mass regional meetings here on January 13.

Officials who will attend include Robert Poole, executive secretary, Los Angeles; Hugh Bruen and Jack Berman, trustees, Los Angeles; Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin, trustees, San Francisco; from Seattle, Secretary Jim Hone and Trustees Lukan and Ripley. Hosts for the affair will be the Oregon secretary, "Banjo" Miller, and Trustees Wes Johnson and Bob White.

Albert J. Law, attorney for the organization, will be the principal speaker. Law previously was connected with the attorney general's office in Washington for the past 15 years.

All theatremen, whether members of the PCCITO or not, are invited to attend the meeting which will be held at the Hotel Benson.

Exhibitor Organization's Routine Upset by Illness

LOS ANGELES—Seasonal holidays and illness have upset the routines of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners and the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz.

Robert H. Poole, the ITO's executive director and secretary of the PCCITO, has been vacationing for the past week and was not expected to return to his desk until after the New Year. Additionally, his aide, Ida Schreiber, has been bedded with an influenza attack.

It is expected that upon Poole's return a meeting of the PCCITO trustees will be called at which the organization's new counsel, Albert J. Law, former department of justice deputy stationed here, will be formally introduced to the directorate. Law's appointment was announced shortly before Christmas, together with the assertion that among his first duties would be a thorough study and analysis of the consent decree and the effect that measure will have upon the PCCITO and its exhibitor members.

PCCITO Will Convene in Seattle January 14

SEATTLE—The Pacific Coast Conference of the Independent Theatre Owners will hold a special gathering here January 14.

The trustees will meet at breakfast, all exhibitor members will gather for luncheon and confab, following which the California delegation will get away for home.

Due to attend the meeting are Albert Law, attorney; Robert Poole, executive coast secretary; Hugh Bruen, Jack Berman, all of Los Angeles; Bob White, president of the Oregon group along with A. West Johnson, and Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin of San Francisco.

Big item of conversation will be the forthcoming consent decree.

REVIEW FLASHES

ROMANCE OF THE RIO GRANDE (20th-Fox)—In which the love bug nearly catches up with the Cisco Kid, and while the tender passion is engulfing that perennial caballero, audiences will be delighted to see the very marked improvement in this chapter of the established western series as compared to its predecessors. The feature is definitely above average as program material, and will be more than welcomed by Cisco's fans and cannot help but please all patrons, whether sagebrush enthusiasts or not. Sol Wurtzel produced. Herbert I. Leeds directed.

Montana Screen Club Will Be Led by Loy

BUTTE, MONT.—Organized here recently as a means of promoting better understanding among the various segments of the trade in the Montana territory, the Montana Screen Club has chosen Ed Loy as its first president.

Other officers named include: Bert Hensen, vice-president; Harry Swonson, secretary-treasurer, and Clyde Anderson, publicist. Members of the board of directors are Anderson, Frank Berryman, Sam Appleman, Joe Kracher, Cordell Enrooth and Frank Larsen.

Besides the officers and directors, charter members include Al Shepperd, Howard Godfrey, Jack Casey, Dan Kalen, Clare Swonson, Harold Fuller, Joe Tipple, Bill Braden, Dan Clancy, Russell Swonson, Buck Harris and Hank Young.

Regular meeting will be held at clubrooms yet to be determined.

"Reputation" Clause Is Upheld in Contract

LOS ANGELES—A superior court ruling has been handed down in favor of Dr. Peter Riccardi and Roger Rogers, co-defendants in an $18,000 damage suit filed by F. K. Ferenz, charging they unlawfully broke his lease on the Mason Opera House, which they own, and forcibly and illegally ousted him therefrom.

The defendants had the theatre padlocked October 12, interrupting a scheduled showing of German-language features booked by Ferenz, contending the films were Nazi propaganda and consequently were being shown in violation of the "reputation" clause in the lease.

The court upheld the defendants' contention and declared further projection of the films would tend to foment hatred, racial enmity and criticism. Ferenz had denied the pictures were propaganda and asserted he had never had "an adverse criticism" concerning any of them since he had been booking them, a matter of some five years.

SAN FRANCISCO—Despite many holiday attractions, the first runs had a nice recovery from the pre-Christmas lag. The weatherman finally let up after ten consecutive days of rain and people began attending the shows again. The top spot of the week went to the Golden Gate showing "No, No, Nanette" and a stage show with no names but a local attraction in Nancy Welford, who played Nanette here for six months in 1925. Paramount ended a ten-day run of "Second Chorus" after better than average business. All houses made Tuesday changes with the exception of the Orpheum which held "Arizona" for a third week.

Detail for week ending December 30:

Fox—Flight Command (M-G-M); Gallant Sons (M-G-M) 100
Golden Gate—No, No, Nanette (RKO), plus stage show 125

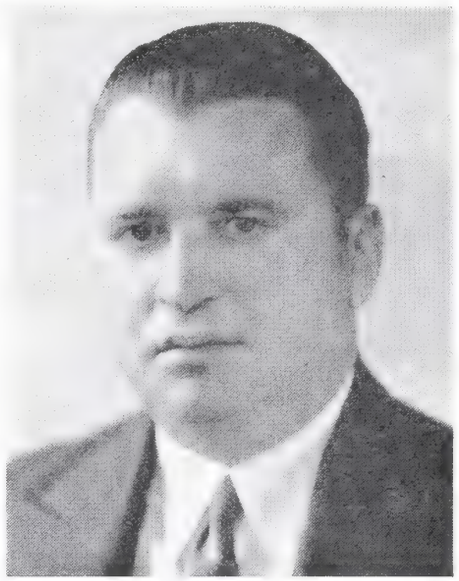
SEATTLE

ALL THEATRES got a Christmas present of extra business over the holidays. Lines were noted at most houses on Yule day. Many a theatre chair got a surprise, but with the local defense orders pouring in, these same seats will need replacing a year from now owing to constant wear. Here's hoping, and may that be my New Year wish to all theatre owners in this neck-of-the-woods. To all in the various other branches of the business may it be a Happy New Year.

The Ranch is at present featuring Edith Rogers Dahl, the gal who saved her hubby from the Franco firing squad . . . Basil Gray, secretary to the Stage Employes Union Local 15, was the highlight of the program for the annual newsboys Xmas dinner. Over 600 boys ate the turkeys and Basil presented some grand entertainment . . . Gracie Fields, England's most popular singing actress of stage and screen, will come to Seattle, January 24, to aid the cause of Britain under the combined auspices of the English-Speaking union, Friends of Britain and the British-American War Relief. Show will be held in the Music Hall.

J. T. Sheffield, president of Republic Pictures of the Northwest, held his usual open house for the holidays, but had a better reason to greet the gang. He is now a grandpa. Mr. and Mrs. Sheffield announce that their daughter, Margaret, is now the mother of an eight-pound daughter and both are doing fine. The son-in-law is Paul Bangasser, booker for the Sterling theatres.

Bill Forman, general manager for Sterling, spent his New Year's Eve in the hospital. Bill had to have his appendix removed. Visitors will find Bill in the Providence Hospital . . . Bill and Mrs. Shartin are spending their vacation with a trip to San Francisco, on to Los Angeles, and the Rose Bowl game . . . Harry Landstom in from Butte for his vacation and being entertained royally. One day Harry was entertained by the Jean and Madge Spears. Again by the Saffles then by Glenn Haviland.



Alex "Doc" Singelow also being entertained the same way before he takes over his new duties with UA in Portland . . . Betty Condon, daughter of Maury and Mrs. Saffle, home for New Year's. Her hubby, Don, is a booker for Golden State theatres in San Francisco . . . Frank Sheffield and his wife, Billie, in for the New Year to spend a few days with their uncle T. T. Frank is salesman for Republic in Denver while Billie is secretary in the UA office in the same town.

Folks were worried for a couple of days over Art Bishell. Art suffered a heart attack and will be in the hospital for a spell but is coming along okay . . . Jimmie Ewing, former film salesman and later manager of the Orpheum in Spokane, has taken over the lease on the Granada in Auburn from Frank Graham.

L. G. McGinley, manager of Universal, celebrated his birthday on Christmas day . . . Eldon Pollock sr., of the Lincoln and Lyric theatres in Mount Vernon, is author of a book which has just been published, "Helene of the Yukon" . . . Betty Fettgather of the Hamrick-Evergreen theatres spending her holidays in Yakima, her home . . . Frank Graham planning to attend the national outboard motor show in New York early next month . . . Ned Edris of the Hamrick-Edris theatres in Tacoma still down with the flu.

Hoffman Again Leads UA Denver Exchange

DENVER—Al Hoffman, who again has been named manager of the local United Artists exchange, is one of those numerous men who, having been transferred here from other sections of the country, would rather be a salesman here than a branch manager elsewhere. When Earl Collins, salesman, was promoted to succeed Hoffman as manager, Hoffman elected to stay as a salesman under Collins rather than accept a branch managership away from Denver.

AL HOFFMAN

Recently, when Collins was made manager of the Los Angeles exchange, the company elevated Hoffman back to the manager job.

Hoffman started in the theatre business in 1911 as an usher in the Marshfield Theatre, one of the first nickelodeons in Chicago. Al was going to Chicago University at the time, and when he graduated he was made assistant manager of the Orpheum. Later he opened the Broadway Strand for Marks, Goodman & Harrison. He entered the sales end in 1920 as a salesman for Harry Weiss, an independent distributor, then went to FBO as salesman, and for a time operated a sign and giveaway business on his own. With World Wide for a time, he switched to United Artists, both times as salesman, then to Minneapolis as branch manager prior to coming to Denver as branch manager.

During Al's first term as manager, and with Earl Collins, his successor, the local exchange consistently won sales, date and collection drives.

SALT LAKE

CHRISTMAS attendance at local theatres was very good. Several theatres celebrated reopenings at the time, including the Paramount and Capitol here, and the Ada at Boise, Ida. . . . Sales by independent retail stores in Utah during November 1940, were eight per cent higher than in the same month of 1939, and sales for the first 11 months of 1940 were four per cent above the same period a year earlier, the U. S. census reported last week. Idaho retailers recorded November sales 10 per cent above those of the same month in 1939, and Wyoming stores chalked up a four per cent increase.

Norma Shearer, en route to Sun Valley, Idaho, to spend the Christmas holidays skiing with a group of Hollywood friends, including Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production for 20th Century-Fox, paused in Salt Lake for a brief stopover. She said the party would remain at Sun Valley for two weeks before returning to Hollywood, and that she hoped to keep her skiis both pointed in the same direction, "and I don't mean up," she added. Others in the party were Mrs. Zanuck and their three children; Mack Gordon, composer of screen music; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feldman, and Archie Mayo, a director.

Exclusive films of the first annual Snow Cup race at Alta are now on the screen at the local Centre. They were filmed by Paramount's Joe Rucker, who spent two years with Byrd at the South Pole and has covered many major winter sports events . . . Laraine Day, native Utahan and film star, ordered 80 five-pound cans of Uintah basin honey from Myton, Utah, and 30 turkeys to be sent to Hollywood friends and studio workers for Christmas . . . "Tin Pan Alley" and "The Letter" have run for three consecutive weeks in Salt Lake.

A tieup here involves the Tower Theatre and the Golden Glory Milk Products Co. "Free Movies," especially selected to please the youngsters, are shown on Saturday mornings. Admission "price" is six milk bottle caps or trade marks from milk cartons used by the milk company. E. D. Smith is manager of the Tower . . . Some pictures selected for the holiday week included: "Thief of Bagdad," "No, No, Nanette," "Flight Command," "Santa Fe Trail," "Tin Pan Alley," "Give Us Wings" and "Blondie Plays Cupid."

The reopenings in Salt Lake of the Capitol and Paramount were highly successful. Managers C. Clare Woods and Norman Sprowl are in charge, respectively. The Paramount had in the lobby a small railroad engine (about as tall as a six or seven-year-old youngster) proclaiming thereupon a "trainload of fun" for the New Year's celebration here.

Newspaper Story to Selwyn

HOLLYWOOD—"She Takes a Wheel," a newspaper story, will be produced for Metro by Edgar Selwyn. Marion Parsonnet is doing the script.

Heads UA in L. A.—

Earl Collins, new manager of the United Artists branch in Los Angeles. He formerly was manager of the Denver exchange, being succeeded there by Al Hoffman.

PORTLAND

STANLEY GUSTAFSON, assistant shipper at Fox, who fell off a ladder and broke his back, is getting along nicely and hopes to be back at work before long . . . Mrs. Hudson's Colonial has blossomed forth with a new marquee.

Filmites welcomed an oldtimer back to the business when Mel Johnson took over the managerial reins of Jesse Jones' Roseway. Mel has been out of the industry for three or four years, but will be remembered as manager of the Mission in Vancouver and later of the Venetian in Hillsboro.

Visitors were scarce on the Row last week due to holiday activities . . . Archie Holt came down from Seattle for a holiday visit . . . Cal Barnes, ex-film truck man, visited old friends on a recent trip. He spends the winters in his mountain home near the Oregon coast and the summers operating a concession at one of California's beach resorts.

Wes Johnson stopped over on his way to Seattle for a vacation . . . Roy Brown went to San Francisco for a New Year vacation . . . Charlie Powers didn't go south or north for a vacation, but the story is that he had more fun than anyone else by playing with junior's electric train. At any rate, he's been very scarce around the Row lately.

Sam MacFadden spent his holiday in the dog house because he couldn't manipulate the tinker toy set his son got for Xmas . . . Jim Sheffield made sure his baby didn't get anything more complicated than a rattle.

"Draft" With Bob Hope

HOLLYWOOD — Paramount's "Caught in the Draft" will star Bob Hope. Wilkie Mahoney is doing the script.

LOS ANGELES

IN FOR BOOKINGS: Justin LaFont, Forum Theatre, Barstow; Al Kirsten of the Whittier Theatre; Murray Hawkins, general manager of the Swan circuit . . . George Carrington, vice-president of Altec Service, is in from New York for conferences with local Altec executives and is headquartering at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel.

Henry Sonnenshine of Premier Pictures pulled in from a business trip to San Francisco—just in time to spend New Year's at home . . . Likewise Fred Gage, salesman for United Artists, who scooted through his Arizona territory in double-quick time to make it back here for New Year's Eve . . . M. J. Wagnon has closed his Camo at Cambria, according to word reaching the Republic exchange . . . Jack Anderson, Republic's office manager in Portland, spent the holidays down here.

New Year's present for the Paramount exchange is a facelifting and remodeling job. A new, streamlined booking booth is being installed . . . Booking: Boris Posner, Arlington Theatre; Lowell Winfield, Glendora, Glendora; Jimmy Edwards of the Edwards circuit in San Gabriel Valley; Alex Mounce, operator of the Campus.

In booking: Phil Greenbaum, operator of the Castle and Mecca theatres; A. Molina, Placentia Theatre, Placentia, and Ben Bronstein, head man at the Bronstein circuit here.

Mike Levinson, independent distributor, has booked "White Zombie" for the entire Evergreen Circuit in Portland, Oregon . . . Murray Fisher, office manager here for Producers Releasing Corp., came back in time to enjoy the exchange's Christmas party. He had been a flu sufferer for more than a week.

Harry Cohen, RKO Radio branch manager, has returned from a trip to the New York office . . . Film Alliance has moved its offices from 1912 S. Vermont to 1928 S. Vermont . . . Foster Blake, Universal salesman, spent the holidays in Portland, Ore. . . . Harold Whitman, Universal booker, has left for Sterling, Indiana, to help his parents celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Harry Taylor, sales manager for Constance Bennett Cosmetics, Inc., has returned from a trip through the midwest, during which he closed deals for more than 1,000,000 pieces with the Fox, Commonwealth and Griffith circuits of Kansas City, as well as with circuits in Iowa and Nebraska . . . Simultaneously, President George Alderman of the Bennett firm came in from a sales trip which took him northward as far as San Francisco.

Hugh Braly, Paramount district sales manager for Dallas, Memphis, and Oklahoma City, and Mrs. Braly stopped off here briefly en route to Selma, Cal., where they spent Christmas with Mrs. Braly's mother . . . M. G. Whitman, of the Universal exchange in Seattle, was another holiday-time visitor.

Elsie Schulz of the local M-G-M exchange observes her fifth anniversary with the company on Monday. Others marking anniversaries with Leo include: Agnes Leeming four years, January 9, and Doris Randle, 14 years, January 10.

Ascap Is Denied a Writ in Washington

SEATTLE—After many months of court battling involving complications with various radio stations, dance halls, cafes handling music, ballrooms, along with the theatres in the state, Jim Hone, executive secretary of the former MPTO and now the Independent Theatre Owners of Washington, finally won his point when a three judge federal district court denied the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers an injunction against a state law on the grounds that the society is an illegal combination in restraint of trade.

The decision will have far-reaching effect, for other states have been awaiting the outcome.

Hone, in the interest of the theatres he represents, has devoted most of his time to fight Ascap.

S' FRANCISCO

THE HOLIDAY spirit hung heavy over the Row along with a few sprigs of mistletoe and holly. Even the weatherman entered into the spirit of the thing and called off the wet weather that seemed destined to carry right through the 25th. Practically the entire personnel in the industry here got an extra half day holiday on Tuesday and while some exchanges held last minute parties, everyone else went about their belated shopping. There were plenty of bonuses scattered about.

The Tivoli Theatre opened on Xmas day as a subsequent run house operating on a 20 cent top policy. The house, under the managership of Joe Meyers, is showing double features and luring patrons with the cash giveaway game, "Hi-Lo" . . . RKO is planning a big invitational screening for "Kitty Foyle" early in January. The picture had a preview showing at the New Year's Eve Jamboree at the Golden Gate.

Newsreel Cameramen Jack McHenry, Erby Koverman and Roy Kluver have secured the services of a blimp for the innovation which will be designed to offset the effects of nationwide photo publicity stirred up by Utah's new ski lift at Alta, where 200 flares were shot off simultaneously to afford night lighting for the cameramen. At the same time, the McHenry-Koverman-Kluver deal will provide goers with their first views of the nine-mile conveyor belt between Redding and Shasta Dam which is so inaccessible it may be photographed only from the air.

Abe Romm is leaving the El Presidio where he has been manager for over a year. Abe is to go into business for himself at Woodland . . . Herman Wobber in town for a visit to the 20th Century office . . . Frank Maun is leaving Universal . . . 20th-Fox finished second in the play date drive just concluded, but so far have only the glory of their fine showing . . . The Lincoln Theatre in Alameda, owned by Berg-Plotkin, closed its doors.

Pete Markowitz, owner of the Strand in Modesto and brother of Abe Markowitz, prominent San Francisco exhibitor, died the 21st . . . Lou Marks of the Rialto in Sacramento is back in circulation after an operation. He was on the Row this week saying hello to all his friends . . . Westley Warren is the new shipper at National Theatre Supply . . . Sid Weisbaum, Republic manager, spending the holidays with his family in Denver . . . James R. Grainger planed in and out for a quick visit to the Republic exchange.

Warner has started their "30 Years for Sears" drive which will run to April 19 . . . It took more nerve for Jack McHenry to go to Del Monte the past weekend than it has taken on any one of his countless assignments during 22 years as a newsreel cameraman. This assignment was his marriage to Miss Anita Jenkins . . . Booking on the Row: Clive Church, American, Kinsburg; W. G. Allen, Sunset, Riverdale; Dan Tocchini, El Rey, Sebastopol . . . Irene Kerr observed her fourth year with M-G-M on Saturday.

Many a Hollywood celebrity forsook favorite Santa Anita to come to the Bay area for the opening of the Golden Gate Turf Club at Albany. The track was originally scheduled to open December 28 but the date was set back to January 1 because of the heavy rains. It was a gala beginning of 36 days of racing and a capacity crowd attended.

For the second time in the history of the game, the Shrine East-West Charity football contest was a sellout weeks before the afternoon of January 1. Fifty-six thousand people crowded into Kezar Stadium to see All-Americans and near All-Americans battle for a fine cause. A dry field prevailed for the first time in four years. The players and coaches left for Los Angeles where they will perform for the benefit of the British Relief Fund Sunday.

Navy Night was celebrated at the Fox Theatre Thursday. A large group of naval officers stationed at various departments in the bay area attended the evening performances with their families as guests of the theatre to view "Flight Command" . . . Charley Maestri, West Coast booker for the East Bay, absent from his desk due to illness . . . All M-G-M salesmen, Lee Hulling, Sid Schuster and Ed Mix were vacationing this week . . . Edna Schefer is leaving Warner to assume the duties of a housewife.

The Golden Gate pulled a fine exploitation stunt out of its bag of tricks this week. "No, No, Nanette" opened at the theatre on Christmas Day and on the stage, as an added attraction there was Nancy Welford who played Nanette for six solid months in this city in 1925. Miss Welford has been working at one of the fashionable women's shops here and obtained a week's leave of absence to play the week at the Gate. She still has a fine voice and was well received by the audience that packed the house all week.

Charlie Thall of Fox West Coast is serving on the Grand Jury . . . Arch Bowles was hospitalized for five days with a severe case of the flu . . . Joe Blumenfeld and his family are spending the holidays at Palm Springs . . . Jim Riley reports a big year in sales of International Seats . . . H. Muraki is contemplating taking a troupe to Japan for a tour if it can be arranged with the government. If the deal goes through, Muraki will turn over his Mission in Sacramento to his son.

Dick Powell has been packing them in during his personal appearance at the Gate. Powell opened on New Year's Eve and stayed for the remainder of a week's run . . . M-G-M is about back to normal at present writing. Eight of the office force was on the sick list at one time and the exchange was operating with a skeleton staff . . . Chan Carpenter is leaving the booking department at Universal. He will be replaced by Arthur Greenfield who comes up from Los Angeles . . . "Here Is Ireland" is in its second week at the Clay. The theatre had to install 16mm equipment for the engagement.

J. C. McCann of the T&D Jr. is reported much improved at the St. Mary's Hospital . . . The Tivoli has decided upon an evening only policy with matinees on Saturday and Sunday . . . Leon Kowalski, formerly of the Davies, is now house manager at the Tivoli.

DENVER

THE COLORADO state legislature is in session for its regular biennial meeting, and it is expected that some bills will be introduced affecting theatres. Theatres now are paying a sales tax of two per cent on all tickets, and according to a survey, the legislators are against any increase of this levy. The old age pensioners, beneficiaries of the tax, hope, however, to add the tax to gasoline, cigarets and liquors. It is thought this would enable the state to pay the full $45 a month pension to all eligibles over 60. In the last session a bill was introduced that would have forced theatres to put toilet facilities in all booths, this measure having been sponsored by the projectionists. The bill was killed after it was shown that in many spots the cost would be prohibitive. Most of the newer theatres have such facilities built in. Theatremen and especially Duke Dunbar, former secretary of the film board of trade, will be on the watch for obnoxious laws.

During the broadcast of the speech by President Roosevelt Sunday night the crowds in theatres were conspicuous by their absence, but as soon as the broadcast was over business boomed in most houses.

The employes of the Civic theatres believe in Santa Claus now—and that kindly old gent is personified to them by their bosses—A. P. Archer and Joe Dekker, for everyone of the Civic houses—the Federal, Oriental, Egyptian, Granada and Rex, was closed all day the day before Christmas so the employes could have their Christmas parties with their families and friends without having to wait until midnight.

About 75 couples attended the wild game dinner given by the Rocky Mountain Screen Club at the Cosmopolitan Hotel. Rick Ricketson and Al Gould, having been unusually successful on their hunting trips to Wyoming, furnished most of the venison.

Fox Intermountain has taken over the State from L. C. Snyder, who is taking a vacation before being placed in a managerial post . . . J. B. Melton, owner of the Victory, left for Florida to spend a couple of weeks on his plantation.

Kaplan, Smith, Graham to Operate in Santa Barbara

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—Louis Kaplan, W. W. Smith and H. R. Graham have organized Coast Theatres, Inc., which will own and operate the Rose, now under construction here. House will be a de luxe unit with 680 seats.

Sound for Aztec

DENVER—RCA sound is being installed in the Aztec at Aztec, N. M., by Harry and Russell Allen. An early reopening is planned for the house which was damaged by fire recently. Similar equipment is being installed in the theatre W. E. Cox is building at Westville, Ariz., to be known as the Cotton Boll.

IA May Be Moving In on Local B-2

By B. O. TELLER

ST. LOUIS—Is the IATSE moving in on the affairs of another of its local affiliates, Theatrical Employes Local B-2, on much the same basis that it "took over" Local 143 of projectionists several years ago?

That question is current in local union circles since B-2 decided to ask the IATSE to supervise its election of officers for 1941.

An attempt at an election was made at a meeting December 27, but when the business of counting the votes cast in the six-cornered race for the post of business agent was completed, it was discovered there were 279 ballots in all, although only 234 of the union's 600 members were on hand to vote. When this information was revealed it was decided to declare the election void and to ask the international to supervise a new election.

On the basis of the 279 votes that were counted, Howard Akers was found to have the same number as John Ambersley, incumbent. Each had 94 votes. The remaining votes were scattered among the other four candidates: Roy Becker, John McCarthy, Earl Beard and Andrew Doherty.

The position of business agent is the only office in the union that carries a salary. It pays $30 a week plus $10 for expenses.

B-2 was organized by John P. Nick several years ago. He resigned as vice-president of the international several months ago after Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley had ousted him and Clyde A. Weston from control of Local 143.

Community Sings to Introduce Songs

Chicago—As an outgrowth of the Ascap-BMI fight for the control of music for broadcasting, Balaban & Katz is starting community singing in their State Lake in the loop to introduce the latest songs via the theatre. If the plan is successful, it will be extended to other B&K houses equipped with organs. The plan may also be tried out by the downstate Great States circuit.

Chicago Newsreel House Marks First Birthday

CHICAGO—A special program marking the first anniversary of the Telenews Theatre was arranged by Manager Sylvan Goldfinger. In its first year, Chicago's only newsreeler entertained nearly 250,000 patrons.

Harvest for Theatres

ROCKFORD, ILL.—With 5,000 workmen building a huge training camp at Camp Grant drawing a weekly payroll of approximately $250,000, local theatres are enjoying a harvest in admissions. Soldiers are expected to augment the theatres' income later.

Holiday Party

CHICAGO—A holiday party for kiddies of members was held by the B&K Employes Club at the State Lake Theatre club rooms.

Directs "Rage in Heaven"

HOLLYWOOD—W. S. Van Dyke will direct "Rage in Heaven" for Metro.

Key Post to Balaban In Drive for Greeks

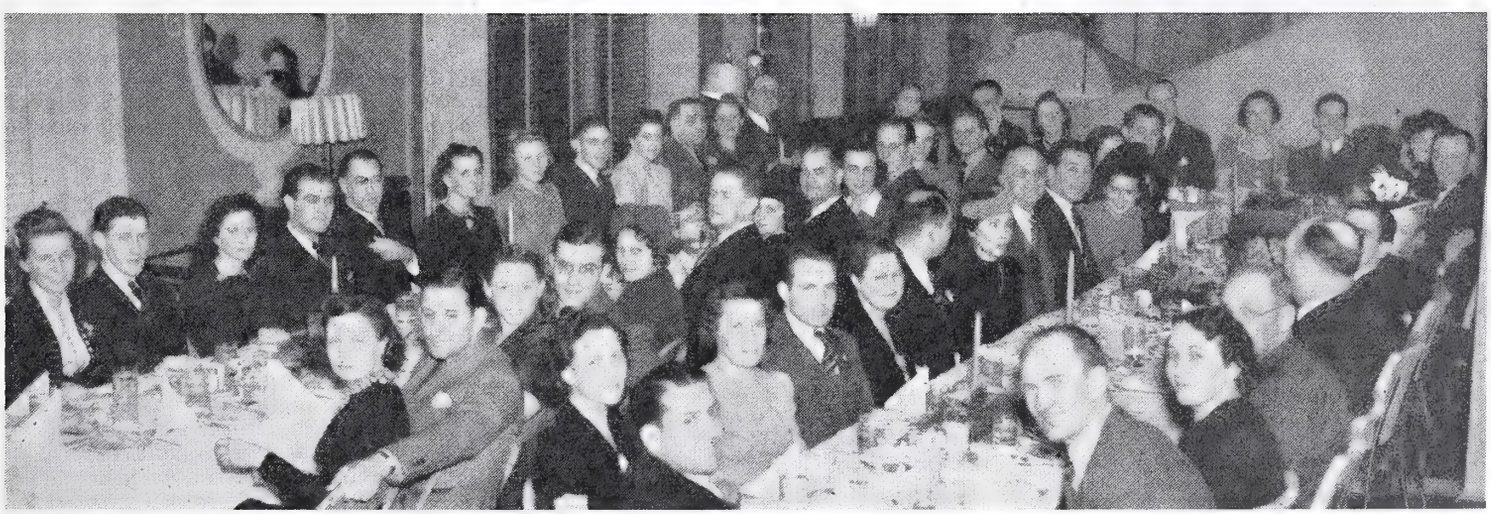
CHICAGO—John Balaban has been appointed midwest director for theatre participation in the Greek war relief drive.

Starting early this month and to continue for several weeks, special midnight shows will be put on by theatremen throughout the country in behalf of the drive.

Edwin Silverman and Sidney Spiegal both of the Essaness circuit, have contributed $150 and $100 respectively for Greek war relief, it is announced by Van Nomikos, president of Ahepa, largest Greek organization in the United States. He expresses himself as very pleased with the aid received thus far from the trade for the Greek cause.

The national campaign, which has $10,000,000 as a goal, is being handled by Spyros Skouras, National Theatres' president.

Joseph Bernhard Pauses In Chicago for Talks



CHICAGO — Joseph Bernhard, head of Warner Theatres, was in Chicago conferring with local theatre officials. From here, he was to go to Hollywood.

Ahead of "Fantasia"

Correspondence Bride For Correspondent

Chicago—The local office of BOXOFFICE is planning on starting a matrimonial bureau on the side. Only a few months ago, Gene Rich, then central editor, became a groom. On December 26, Hal Tate, Gene's successor, also became a benedict. Bride is Nikki Kaye, Baltimore radio and fiction writer. Hal met Miss Kaye when she was here in mid-November on a three-day visit. Marriage took place in Baltimore after a six-week correspondence courtship. Mrs. Tate, however, will not be able to join her husband in Chicago till mid-January since the 13-week radio show she is now writing and directing will not wind up till January 17.

BOWLING

CHICAGO—As the year ended in Chicago's Filmrow Bowling League, four teams were tied for first place. With the season now past the half-way mark, the leading scorers are: Fisher, Fox, 178; Knaffle, United Artists, 175; Ogren, Universal, 174; Jack Kirsch, Republic, 174; and Dreifuss, Republic, 174. Pat O'Brien for Ten HOLLYWOOD—Pat O'Brien has signed a five-year ticket to star in two pictures annually for Columbia.

MILWAUKEE

JOSEPH P. KLAUZER JR. is the new manager of Fox's Paradise in West Allis . . . George Miner, owner of the Majestic at Rice Lake, gave his annual free Christmas show for local youngsters last Monday. At Peshtigo, all children were the guests of Oswald Mylener at the Lyric, while Miss Lucille Forbes was host to local youngsters the same day at her Cosmo in Merrill; Manager John McDonald at his Majestic in Barron and L. H. Freid, manager of the O'Klare in Eau Claire, through the cooperation of the local Eagles Club.

Under sentence of an embezzlement charge, Jules I. Kaplan, former manager, cashier and agent for the Federal Theatre Project here, took a pauper's oath last week before U. S. Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins. Kaplan at one time managed the old Columbia and Majestic here.

Standard Theatres has modernized its Strand in Green Bay with a new front, new carpeting, new fluorescent lighting and new lighting fixtures in the auditorium . . . Miner Amusement Co. has purchased an old garage building at Barron and will convert it into bowling alleys and office rooms.

A. J. Meininger has left his post at the Garrick in Chicago to become associated with his father, A. J. Meininger sr., in the operation of the Fox Hut in Fond du Lac. The elder Meininger is a former Fond du Lac theatre manager . . . Thomas J. Daly, manager of Fox's Uptown in Racine, was robbed last week by two armed bandits of about $300 in theatre receipts.

Wallace Estrup, manager of the Geneva at Lake Geneva since last September, has resigned to take an advertising post in Hammond, Ind. . . . J. P. Adler, Marshfield exhibitor, and Mrs. Adler are in Florida visiting the latter's father.

Roy McMinn, manager of the Beacon at Superior, turned over foodstuffs collected at a matinee at his house last week to the Salvation Army for distribution to the needy.

Twenty-one local houses were dark on Christmas eve, which is about on a par with closings the same night the year previous.

Fox staged pre-New Year's eve parties December 28 for youngsters at 13 of its theatres here with hats, horns and free goodies to all. Admission was 10 cents at all houses. A similar party was staged on the same day at the circuit's Beverly in Janesville and Uptown in Racine.

With the exception of the Riverside, all houses held over their December 20 shows until December 31 with new shows starting New Year's eve. Admissions were somewhat higher than the same night a year ago, ranging from 75 cents at the Riverside to 85 cents at Fox's Wisconsin, Palace and Strand.

Edward Lipson marked his 13th year with M-G-M on January 1. Emily Petersen completes her fourth year with the company on January 12.

CHICAGO

By HAL TATE

MOVIES have always set the pace for their radio rivals. Now radio, it appears, will have its consent decree, too, in the Ascap-BMI musical melee.

With neighboring theatres benefiting by the overflow of crowds attending "Love Thy Neighbor," Paramount's new Benny-Allen picture seems aptly titled.

BOXOFFICE headline: "AAA Will Move to New Quarters in U. S. Rubber Building." Does that mean the consent decree might become elastic?

We see where Samuel Cummins at Eureka Productions, Inc., is exclusive distributor and sole copyright owner of "Ecstasy." Honeymooners will undoubtedly picket Mr. Cummins.

No doubt the M-G-M publicity guys are already racking their brains figuring what kind of a premiere to give GWTW in 1941. After all even FDR has had only three terms—so far.

From a film trade paper: "Mervin Houser is to handle production publicity on the forthcoming feature which the Mex Fleischer Florida studio . . ." "Mex" Fleischer, eh? Looks like he's succumbing to the South American influence.

$10,000 Fee

ST. LOUIS—A fee of $10,000 was allowed by Probate Judge Arnold to the law firms of Cox, Blair & Kooreman and Dubinsky & Duggan for their services in connection with the litigation involving the $100,000 estate of the late Charles H. Turpin, Negro theatre owner and and justice of the peace, who died five years ago. The litigation involved a will contest and the setting aside of a trustee estate through which Turpin attempted to leave the bulk of his estate to his sister and niece.

Any Rain Checks In Collection?

Chicago—This fellow is no "one-eyed Connelly." He never "crashed the gate." He's got his own ticket stubs to prove it. The guy is Al Weinberg, personnel manager of the Filmack Trailer Company, and the ticket stubs are his collection. For Al's hobby is saving ticket stubs from shows, sporting events, etc., which he has attended.

Motion pictures, legits, burlesques, operas, hockey games, prize fights, baseball games, football games, fairs, circuses, side shows, lectures, political conventions . . . he's got stubs for them all.

This unique hobby started some eight years ago as a result of an argument. A "Doubting Thomas" wouldn't believe that he had been at the Democratic convention in Chicago, and Weinberg resolved to save his stubs thereafter—no matter what the event.

TALK AROUND TOWN: Henri Elman's new 1941 calendar. Best he's ever put out. Contains names, addresses and phone numbers of everyone and everybody connected with picture business here. As usual BOXOFFICE has top billing in the trade paper listing. Henri says if by any chance any exhibitor didn't get one he'll be glad to send one out if they'll call him at CALumet 2900. Henri, who gave a terrific New Year's party at his Capitol-Monogram exchange last Tuesday, congratulated ye central ed on his srecent marriage.

Another calendar that is causing much comment is one put out by TWA. Contains beautiful original drawings by Gene Walther depicting landscapes over which the planes fly. Everybody in town is cutting up the calendar and framing the pictures . . . Bill Westlake, publicity director for TWA here for umpteen years, is leaving January 14 to do his stuff for Uncle Sam. Bill an experienced pilot, will join the 108th Observation Squad at Battle Creek, Michigan. No successor, to date, has been appointed.

Tom Gorman has moved the RKO-Theatres offices from the State-Lake Building to the Palace Theatre Building. Official address is 134 N. La Salle Street . . . Van Nomikos has returned from Dayton, Ohio, where he and Spyros Skouras addressed a meeting of Ohio Theatre Owners, in behalf of Greek War Relief Fund. Eddie Silverman and Sidney Spiegal of Essaness have personally contributed $150 and $100 to the fund.

Nate Gross, conductor of the popular "Town Tattler" column in Herald-American devoting much space to film trade news. Says Nate: "William E. 'Doc' Banford, M-G-M branch manager, is in St. Luke's Hospital, where he has had eight transfusions . . . Sabu, star of 'Thief of Bagdad,' blew into town Monday to spend New Year's Eve with Walter Parker at the latter's party in the Panther Room . . . Dennis Scanlon, iron lung inventor and recent winner of a huge judgment against Sonja Henie, has been in town attending Sonja's show at the Stadium . . . The Madlin Theatre of W. Madison St. stole a march on the nearby Chicago Stadium. It hung out huge banners advertising 'Sonja Henie, in Happy Landings,' and some folks nearly fell for it."

Ye Central Ed went to New York last week for first time since he was a kid. The theory of the reputed sophistication of the New York show-goer was blasted. The patrons laughed long and loud at the same brand of humor that the average Chicagoan chuckled at. Of course it is understood that Mr. Average New Yorker didn't attend the shows it being the Christmas-New Year week, and undoubtedly 99 per cent of the theatre patrons were out-of-towners.

Couple impressions of Baltimore—seen for the first time: In Chicago you can get a cab anytime of day or night. In Baltimore you apparently have to know the "right people" to get a cab . . . In Chicago you do the red-caps a favor when you give them some baggage to carry. In Baltimore, the "darkies" act as if they do you a favor for carrying your baggage. (And tipping has nothing to do with the attitudes—since they all get 10 cents per piece of baggage—plus a tip) . . . The sameness of Baltimore houses called for the usual gag: "How does a guy find his own house when he comes home drunk."

Filmrow still buzzing with talk over the $30,000 Fanny Brice collected in her suit against 20th Century-Fox. "Baby Snooks" wanted $750,000 over alleged defamation of character in "Rose of Washington Square." Fanny said the film was injurious and defamatory to her career and character. She got a 30 grand out-of-court settlement . . . Ilah Elwood of local M-G-M exchange rounded out 14 years with the company on Friday. It'll be ten years with Leo for Herman Bezart on January 12.

Brotman Installs RCA

CHICAGO—M. J. Brotman is installing RCA sound in his Rogers here. Other Central area exhibitors who have placed orders for the equipment are: H. P. Vonderschmitt, for his Strand, Crawfordsville, Ind.; Peter Paulos, for his Aida, Oglesby, Ill., and George Settos, for the Cine, Linton, Ind.

Holiday Week Is Slow for Indianapolis First Runs

INDIANAPOLIS—The last week of the year maintained tradition in being a week whose entire punch as far as shows were concerned is confined to the holiday dates themselves, with the week on the weak side.

"Lady With Red Hair," bolstered by Larry Clinton's band on the stage, put the Lyric in front of the Indianapolis first runs with a percentage of 95.

Detail for week ended December 28:

Ambassador—Triple Justice (RKO); Orphans of the North (Mono) 80
Circle—Christmas in July (Para't), plus stage show 80
Streets of Paris on the stage.

Show Goes on Despite Disruption of Power

ST. LOUIS—Officials of the Laclede Power & Light Co. announce that an investigation shows that vandalism was responsible for the disruption of electric light and power service in a wide mid-city area the night of December 25. An automobile skid chain was thrown across a main power line at the company's substation at Evans Ave. and Sarah St., causing a short-circuit that cut off service for 52 minutes commencing at 8:20 p. m.

Among places affected was Fanchon & Marco's Fox. The break came during the showing of "Chad Hanna." In the emergency, the theatre management had performers in the stage show and Will Osborne and his orchestra assemble, and as ushers from the Fox, Missouri and St. Louis theatres held flashlights, the musicians played and Osborne led the audience in singing. Temporary service was installed by running wires to a nearby building which received power from another electric company.

Support Gathers

ZION CITY, ILL.—Despite the opposition of the Zion Church, support is gathering here for a theatre.

Hold Funeral Services For Anna S. Kaimann

ST. LOUIS—Funeral services were held here for Mrs. Anna S. Kaimann, wife of Stephen A. Kaimann, founder of a chain of theatres in St. Louis.

Mrs. Kaimann died December 24 at her home. She was 69 years old.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Anna C. Ballman, and three sons, Clarence H., Francis S. and William J. Kaimann, who are interested in the Kaimann Brothers circuit, which is affiliated with the Fred Wehrenberg houses in the Greater Independent Circuit of 25 neighborhood and suburban theatres.

Deletions Bring Permits to Two Banned in Chicago

CHICAGO—Police Commissioner James P. Allman has ordered the local police censor board to lift their ban on two pictures, "After Mein Kampf," and "Goose Step." Allman also told the censor board to issue permits for showing of the two pictures providing certain portions of the films were deleted.

In "After Mein Kampf," certain caricatures including portraits of Hitler which fade into death's heads were ordered eliminated. Three scenes were ordered cut from "Goose Step." Both films are anti-Nazi pictures.

Seven Theatres Tie With Columbia Radio Station

COLUMBIA, MO.—Seven motion picture theatres in various towns adjacent to Columbia have made arrangements with Station KFRU here to run trailers to announce the station's new frequency of 1370 kilocycles. The trailers list features on the radio's programs.

Book Ray Noble

CHICAGO—Ray Noble has been booked into the Chicago Theatre for the week of January 17. The Four Ink Spots will headline the vaude bill at the theatre next week.

Open in Chicago

CHICAGO—Standard Fluorescent Corp. has opened offices here at 77 West Washington Street. Organizers of the new company are Walter P. Sampson and A. A. Bogeaus.

Bandits Still at Large

ST. LOUIS—Local police have been unable to apprehend the two young bandits who stuck up two employes of Fanchon & Marco's Fox December 25 and escaped with $1,290 in cash. The robbery took place on the mezzanine floor of the theatre.

Observe Anniversaries

ST. LOUIS—Herbert Bennin and Molly Corry observe their 13th and 11th anniversaries, respectively, with M-G-M on Monday.

BALABAN STATEMENT ON DECREE CHEERED BY NORTHWEST ALLIED

Appeal for Cooperation Is "Satisfactory" to Independent Body

MINNEAPOLIS — Northwest Allied is cheered by the statement of Barney Balaban, Paramount president, in an open letter to its executive secretary, Fred Strom, denying that Paramount will have conditioning sales under the consent decree, asserting that if his company offers blocks of five to exhibitors the latter will be free either to buy or not to buy and explaining that subsequent blocks will not be withheld until preceding blocks are sold and booked.

From a trade press interview given by Balaban, Northwest Allied had gathered there would be such conditioning sales and, in an open letter to the Paramount president, it charged that this would violate both the spirit and letter of the decree at the very outset.

The Balaban reply, stating Paramount's position under the decree and his own attitude and feelings toward it, and also calling upon all exhibitors to cooperate earnestly to produce the best results for the industry, instead of anticipating disaster, is "entirely satisfactory" to Northwest Allied, Strom said.

Pledge to Observe

"You and your associates and the exhibitors who are members of your organization need have no concern about the intentions of Paramount and its officers and employes about the consent decree," says Balaban in his open letter to Strom. "We will not violate it in letter or spirit. We intend to try to make it work for the good of all and give it a fair trial, and we hope that our customers will do likewise, regardless of what might have been their views and how may be their criticisms or fears.

"Under the consent decree, beginning with the coming season, five important companies will embark upon a new selling season. None of us has had any experience with it because, as far as I know, there is no exact parallel anywhere. Very frankly, I do not know how pictures will be handled under the new system. Problems must be met and solved as they arise and actual experience will be a better guide than any effort at planning in advance. Product must not be dissipated or sacrificed either by distributor or exhibitor in any arbitrary way, because if this happens everybody loses.

"With the huge loss of revenue from our foreign markets, it is of vital importance to every distributor to avoid and prevent dissipation of product in this country if the producer is to remain in business. The exhibitor, correspondingly, must protect himself against such waste, or he will suffer.

"This is precisely what I mean by saying that there would be no exhibitors' field day, an observation in answer to the suggestion that some exhibitors had something of the kind in mind. There cannot be a field day for either buyer or seller at the other's expense.

Orderly Method Needed

"To take care of our customers' needs and to supply the studio regularly with funds to enable it to function properly and produce entertainment of boxoffice quality, there must be an orderly method evolved for the distribution of pictures in the various territories, according to the differing conditions which may obtain in different places. Considering the fact that second runs must follow first runs and subsequent runs follow earlier runs, it must be apparent that the sale and booking of pictures must be so arranged as to avoid confusion. That will be the task and problem of our distribution department to work out in the most satisfactory and equitable way for all concerned. To attempt to accumulate product for indiscriminate offering, without recognizing the fact that some order is necessary, would not simplify or aid in the solution.

Clarifies Statement

"In my remarks to the reporter—remarks which led to this misunderstanding—I was not endeavoring nor intending to announce any definite plan or formula or hard-and-fast rule for the distribution of product. However, assuming for the purpose of the discussion that Paramount had decided on a uniform plan or policy of putting into the market only one block of five pictures at a time and of refraining from offering any other block until the first block had been completely bought and booked by its customers, I cannot see how that would violate the consent decree in letter or spirit. On the contrary, it would seem to be the one sure, safe course to follow to avoid a violation of the decree or a claim of violation.

"If Paramount should offer a block of five pictures and no others at the time, each exhibitor to whom it is offered is perfectly free to buy or not to buy, strictly upon his judgment as to its merits. And neither the distributor nor the exhibitor under any circumstances could bring any other picture or block of pictures into the equation. Under such a plan, Paramount could not say to an exhibitor, 'Here are several blocks of trade-shown pictures, but you cannot have a block of more which you want unless you take others I am offering you.' On the other hand, the exhibitor could not claim that was the requirement that Paramount imposed, which would be contrary to the decree.

"I trust that the aforegoing will relieve you and your associates of any anxiety that you may have and that exhibitors will not anticipate disaster, but will earnestly cooperate to produce the best results for the industry under the decree."

Storm Legislature With Case

Minneapolis—The board of governors of Northwest Allied will meet early in January to set a date for the convention of all the territory's exhibitors for a storming of the state legislature in a campaign for a code of trade practices which would nullify objectionable consent decree features.

Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary, asserts replies to questionnaires sent out to all of the territory's independent exhibitors were a unit in approving the convention and its purpose.

A number of state legislators already have been buttonholed by exhibitors in their districts and have pledged their support to the proposed measure which will be sponsored by Northwest Allied, Strom says.

One of the proposals is that the exhibitors go en masse from their convention hall to the state legislature to present their case. The code of fair trade practices already drawn up contains the same features relative to cancellation, restriction of chain expansion, etc., which already have been indorsed by distributor leaders, it is stated.

Urges Playdates for "Land of Liberty"

KANSAS CITY—A special appeal for cooperation was issued this week by R. R. Biechele, president of the Kansas-Missouri Theatres Ass'n, for membership support of "The Land of Liberty," patriotic film, which Metro has been requested by the industry to distribute.

Net proceeds derived from rentals are to be used for war emergency welfare work.

Metro is releasing the picture as a regular picture and is designating it according to the grosses established in tests in Memphis, Tenn.; Williamsport, Pa.; Evansville, Ind., and Portland, Ore. If the designation is too low, Metro is asking that exhibitors voluntarily increase the rental; if the designation is too high and the exhibitor loses money, Metro will redesignate it in a lower bracket.

Biechele urged the cooperation of every member of the KMTA.

Role for Randy Scott

HOLLYWOOD—Randolph Scott will play the top male role in RKO's "True to Form." David Butler will produce and direct.

1941 Is Viewed With A Favorable Eye

MINNEAPOLIS—The 1941 outlook for the trade in this territory is believed to be good. Industry leaders hereabouts are optimistic and expect a brisk upturn with the turn of the year.

It is pointed out that agriculture, the territory's mainstay, is sure to start soon to benefit from the increased purchasing power throughout the nation resulting from defense spending. This will mean higher farm prices, leaders assert, putting more money into pocketbooks to spend for entertainment in the territory.

Moreover, more and more industries hereabouts are beginning to get defense orders and that means additional employment and increased buying power, it's also pointed out.

Because it has fewer industries than many sections, this territory is slower in experiencing an upturn, but it invariably comes, even though it's late, exchange heads say. Depression is not so sharp, as a rule, hereabouts, by the same token.

The substantial improvement which has occurred since Christmas will continue and grosses will score big gains, branch managers predict. During the past 10 days, most of the loop theatres have enjoyed exceptionally good business, they say. The Orpheum, with Gene Krupa on the stage, and the State, showing "Love Thy Neighbor," were outstanding.

Comedy Lead for Fuzzy

HOLLYWOOD—Fuzzy Knight will play the comedy lead in Paramount's "New York Town."

He's Planning to Be Around for Awhile

Freeman, S. D.—For 21 years E. J. Kleinsasser has been an exhibitor in Freeman, which is quite an achievement in itself. But that he plans to be around for some time yet, is indicated by the fact he has just completed an extensive renovation program at his Met, which included installation of new cushioned seats and a screen, and the extension of the theatre's balcony to increase its capacity.

Mike Roth Takes Over Rialto at Anita, Ia.

OMAHA—Mike Roth, salesman and exploiteer for various companies on Filmrow, has taken over the Rialto Theatre at Anita, Ia., formerly operated by W. F. Budd, now deceased.

Roth told BOXOFFICE he plans some remodeling and modernization after the theatre has been under his management for a time. The house seats 230 and has been operated by Budd's widow and son.

Anita is located half-way between Omaha and Des Moines, and Roth will buy his pictures through the latter exchange, he said. His wife will assist him in the operation of the theatre.

New Seymour House

SEYMOUR, MO.—A new 400-seat house, built of native stone, is being erected here for opening early next spring by George W. Owen, veteran exhibitor of Western Missouri.

Seeks Quick Action On Prosperity Club

LINCOLN—Chafing under delays in judgment of pleadings in the state's case against the Omaha Motion Picture Exhibitors Ass'n, for the operation and sponsorship of "Prosperity Clubs," Attorney General Walter Johnson filed a motion with the supreme court to come to some conclusion and mete out punishment to the 26 theatres comprising OMPEA.

Johnson's contention is that the Prosperity Clubs are violating the Bank Night knockdown of June 26, 1937, and that all the giveaway elements of lottery are present in the Prosperity Club scheme just as they were in the "Bank" idea.

Nebraska recognizes three lottery elements—consideration, chance and prize. OMPEA disclaims consideration, and admits the other two ingredients. Johnson insists consideration is there, even though registrants need not buy a ticket or be present in the theatres to win. Johnson says anyone even using the muscular energy to show up at the theatre and sign his name is giving consideration, because time and effort is worth something.

The PC plan puts up $500 each Wednesday night, which, if undrawn, goes to $750, then $1,000. No more than $1,000 is available any time as the prize. There are 40,000 registered names at present, as participants in the weekly Omaha stunt.

Johnson charges the OMPEA with evasion of the ruling by ill-disguised window dressing, and says the theatres are trying, by preying on man's gambling instinct, to enrich themselves.

Discuss "Miss Bishop's" Debut—

R. W. Huffman (left), city manager of the Lincoln Theatres Corp., and Gabe York, special publicist for Richard A. Rowland, look over the situation for the premiere of "Cheers for Miss Bishop," which will be in Lincoln January 14. Martha Scott, William Gargan and other stars will attend. Yes, that's the industry's pulse on the desk.

"Abner Askit" Holds Up in Court Test

LINCOLN—City Manager R. W. Huffman and Nebraska house manager, Gene Shanahan, were freed from charges of having conducted a gift enterprise of illegal nature with their weekly Nebraska program, "Abner Askit." Judge Fisher, of muny court, said the statute under which the charges were filed, had been outlawed by supreme court.

He did hint, however, that there may be further recourse, if there is a rub with the state's lottery law, which is very strict. He excused this case because the charges do not make a lottery specification.

"Abner Askit" is played very similarly to Bingo, except that cards are handed patrons as they enter the theatre, and on each card are several answers. Questions are announced from the stage, and the first person to get four correct answers in a row across his card wins a prize—usually groceries.

County Attorney Max G. Towle brought the suit at the request of Marvin Griffith, who said he owned several games similar to "Abner Askit," and wanted to find out whether they could be legally operated in Nebraska. Immediately after the dismissal, Towle filed a new action under the state's lottery law, so the matter is still brewing.

KANSAS CITY

ZACK BEISER of the 110th Engineers (formerly office manager and head booker for Columbia is off for Camp Robinson, Ark. . . . The other evening he had a 99.9 degree temperature, one-tenth under enough to send him to the hospital.

Frank Norris, Warner Brothers booker, and Joe Lysowski of Altec Service, went to Dallas for the New Year's and the Cotton Bowl game.

George Lofink, who used to be here for Universal, and then was on the booking desk for the company at Des Moines, is entering the Navy. He is reported married quite recently.

Joe Allard has closed his Tivoli at Louisburg, Kas.

E. E. Webber jr., ex-exhibitor (that's not double talk), but now a salesman of terra firma, was on Filmrow the other day visiting his sister-in-law, Virginia Gaylord, of Universal.

Outstanding gesture of the year (and we know it was a sincere one) was that of Harry Musgrave, who has the Ritz at Minneapolis, Kas., and the Columbian at Wamego, Kas. Harry, who is well liked anyway by the bookers on Filmrow, bought each booker a Xmas present, and called them down to Screenland to get it.

Jean Fiske (who says she isn't bragging) bowled 163 the other evening for the Warnerettes . . . It just shows what you can do with practice.

Sylvan McDonald, who operates the Community, Sumner, Mo., and who doesn't get in very often, was on the Row the past week.

Howard Kinser, 20th-Fox salesman, spent the holidays hunting deer near Laredo, Tex.

Stanley Mayer, 20th-Fox manager at Des Moines, was in town for New Year's.

John Courter of the Courter, Gallatin, Mo., was through Kansas City last week en route to the Rose Bowl and two months' vacation in California.

Gus Kubitzki of 20th-Fox is in Florida on vacation . . . A card from him at St. Augustine says he took a drink from the fountain of youth, and that he now is waiting for it to take effect . . . Knowing Gus, we don't think he needs it.

Harold Harris, general manager of H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., spent the Xmas holidays in Texas, his home state, with Mrs. Harris . . . Bill Lansburg of Paramount was home at Sioux City for the Xmas holiday . . . Bob Carnie, Paramount salesman and speaker, gave some of the Kansas boys in the National Guard, who are off to the wars, a rousing sendoff the other night.

Speaking of wars, Ernest Nelson, manager of the Ritz at Garden City, Kas., for Commonwealth Amusement, is going, and he has been succeeded by Roy Tucker, assistant manager of the Fox, Liberal, Kas. Frank Kennedy, Commonwealth assistant at Batesville, Ark., is going, along with Bill Smith, operator at the Plaza, Searcy, Ark.

Helen Pyle, formerly at RKO, is at Columbia, now, as booker's secretary . . . Christine Wilson, who used to be booker's secretary, now is head of the Columbia cashier department . . . Does Margie Zimmerman of Columbia have a new boy friend?

On the Row: F. C. Hensley, Pomona, Kas.; M. B. Presley, Globe, Savannah, Binney at Pattonsburg, and Dixie at Belton, Mo., and the Madison at Huntsville, Ark.; Charles R. Gregg, Gregg, Caney, Kas., who hasn't been in for a long time; A. E. Jarboe, Ritz, Cameron, Mo.; Harry Till, Courter, Hamilton, Mo.; E. P. Michaels, Michlo, Braymer, Mo.

Raymond Winch, who operates the Wakefield at Wakefield, Kas., is in the hospital at Fort Riley, following an accident at Camp Funston, where he was working as grade foreman. Winch was injured when a grader maintainer knocked him down and ran over him.

Porter Mendenhall is doing a lot of work on the Ritz at Caldwell, Kas. He has installed new modernistic doors, new carpet, lobby furniture, etc., and redecorated and painted.

The Orpheum at Topeka, Fox Midwest house, has reopened after a short period of darkness. Same policies will prevail as formerly, with double bills.

New lamps have been installed in the DeLuxe at Spearville, Kas., by Ernest F. Quick.

Even his staff has gotten into the habit of writing poetry, so we pass along this effort by the cashier at Tom Edwards' Ozark, Eldon, Mo.:

Anxiously I caught your eye
To read the thought behind it;
I watched your fingers flutter once,
And felt conviction growing.
Two tickets? Yes, sir, there you are.
The feature now is showing.

Our idea, based on observation of theatre ticket buyers, is that the cashier of the Ozark could have said a lot more.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Cowley, who operate several shows out of Siloam Springs, Ark., were on Filmrow last week, visiting with Herschel Kaufman and Jimmie Foland. They have devised a method of giveaway that is unusual, giveaways in very small towns of the type they operate being very unusual anyway. They buy a complete set of dishes, and then give away an entire unit within the set; that is, six cups and saucers, sugar and cream, etc. The giveaway is once a week, and is by drawing. The method is inexpensive, and said to be effective.

Bill Kubitzki, who is with Monogram at Des Moines, was in town for the holidays, visiting his father, Gus Kubitzki, of 20th-Fox. Bill is as tall-and-lean—as life.

Richard Salk, Monogram booker, was in Chicago for the holidays . . . Stan Gold-

Omaha Barkers Will Inaugurate Officers

OMAHA—Members of Omaha Variety Club will inaugurate 1941 officers at the annual inaugural dinner-dance on January 19 at Hotel Fontenelle. Part of the ceremonies will be conducted in the club headquarters at the hotel with the main festivities planned for the hotel ballroom.

The affair will start at 8 p. m. and is open to all members of Variety, exhibitors, filmites and their friends. The house and entertainment committees will be in charge of arrangements.

Mendenhall Chief Barker

Albert "Ted" Mendenhall, Paramount exchange manager, will be installed as 1941 Chief Barker, succeeding Morris Cohn, exhibitor in Council Bluffs, Ia. Mendenhall has served one term as Chief Barker of Tent No. 16 previously. Walter M. Green, Fepco boss, is the newly elected first assistant and Sam Epstein, local circuit owner, is the new second assistant chief barker.

Edward Shafton, attorney connected with the industry, has served as property master since Omaha Variety was founded and starts his seventh year in that office. Meyer L. Stern of Capitol Pictures will be dough guy for 1941.

Canvassmen are Harry J. Shumow, Metro chief; Don McLucas, United Artists boss; Bob Ballantyne of Scott-Ballantyne Co.; Glenn Rogers, Film Transport; John Gillin, Radio Station WOW, and Cohn. Shafton, McLucas and Rogers comprise the Heart of Variety. Cohn and Green will be delegates to the national convention with Shafton and Epstein as alternates.

Initiation of new and transferred members also will be held. Joseph P. Smith, RKO salesman, will be the new member to ride the goat, while transfers are Harry Schiffrin, Warner salesman; Reginald Cadman, Universal salesman; William Brimmer, salesman, and C. W. Allen, RKO boss.

Overrules Motions Seeking Dismissal of Cassil Suit

KANSAS CITY—Motions filed some weeks ago by defendants in the Frank Cassil anti-trust damage suit, seeking a dismissal, have been overruled by Federal Judge Merrill Otis. Defendants in the $450,000 suit are Dubinsky Bros. and major distributors. Cassil operates the Rialto, St. Joseph, Mo.

Briefs on Film

IOWA CITY, IA.—The law library at the State University of Iowa has acquired microfilm records of the United States supreme court briefs for 1938. This makes the Iowa City law library the seventh in the country to use this method in obtaining supreme court records not available in printed form.

: Tall Corn State Story :

DES MOINES—Iowa exhibitors may want to be watching for "The Murder of the Sea Lioness." It's a Tall Corn State story from the author to the murders.

Tom Duncan of Des Moines reports that he has sold the story for film reproduction. The major character, the Sea Lioness, lives right on Des Moines' Grand Avenue. Duncan uses the title "Sea Lioness" as a bit of slang designating a "dowager."

There's a police detective in the story named Shep Millen. Duncan admits that he had Cliff Millen, Des Moines Tribune political writer, in mind, when he drew that character.

Three or four murders are also reported included in the tale. Two of them take place in the Edmundson Art gallery here, which has not yet been built, but which apparently is entirely completed in Author Duncan's imagination.

Artist Ben Boyd has been very startled to hear that a third murder takes place in his studio in the Wallace-Homestead building.

Duncan uses his own characteristics for one of the murder victims—an artist who plugs his telephone, refuses to answer his door, and hangs out do-not-disturb signs while he's working.

As a result Millen (the fiction character, not the Tribune reporter) has to climb down a skylight to find him several days dead.

But the rest of Iowa will be permitted to solve the whole story with much less effort—simply by shelling out four-bits at the boxoffice.

Diamond Opens Orlando Theatre on Xmas Day

KANSAS CITY—Gus Diamond returned this week from Florida, where, at Orlando on Xmas day, he opened his new $50,000, 700-seat Vogue Theatre in the nabe section there.

Attending from the local Row were Ben Marcus, Tom and Mrs. Baldwin, and Bill Bradfield, all of Columbia; Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Block of Warner Brothers; Mr. and Mrs. John Graham of United Artists, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wheeler of Paramount. Gus also operates the Vogue, Salina; Howard, Arkansas City, and Roxy, Eldorado, Kas.

Compilation Starts On Directory

Omaha—Regina Molseed, RKO booker, has started compiling the 1941 Omaha trade area directory of theatres, owners and circuits. Any exhibitor who has changed locations, name or size of theatre, and new exhibitors during 1940 are urged to report these changes to Miss Molseed or the Omaha representative of BOXOFFICE.

No New Registration For DM Bank Nights

DES MOINES—G. Ralph Branton, general manager of the Tri-States Theatre Corp., issued a statement in which he said the expense of registration for Bank Night was too great for the theatres to consider re-registration of all patrons each year.

Branton's statement came in the form of a reply to a petition signed by 200 Des Moines persons and presented to the city council. The petition asked that the council pass an ordinance requiring yearly registration.

State Legislation If Necessary

The petition pointed out that many persons registered at the nine theatres operated in Des Moines by Tri-States have been registered for four years and that some are dead or have moved away. If the city council can take no action, the petition asked that the council recommend state legislation to require re-registration.

Branton, in his reply, argued that 98 per cent of all names called in the theatres have been from Des Moines or its vicinity and that whenever a dead person's name is drawn, it is learned immediately and a new name drawn.

In his discussion of the expense of Bank Night, Branton said Tri-States theatres in Des Moines have given away $12,000 in 1940, $17,000 during 1939 and $15,750 during 1938.

"We believe," said Branton, "the few people who desire a change in the present plan are unaware of the great satisfaction many people have who participate in this advertising plan, and also the great good it does many merchants and other people here."

Granting of License to Gayety Causes Unrest

MINNEAPOLIS—Granting of a license by the city council to Irving Gillman to operate the Gayety, long home of burlesque, as a dime subsequent-run double feature film house, in the face of opposition from other Gateway exhibitors, is precipitating a war in that district.

Harry Dryer, who owns the Bijou, will reopen the Lyra, adjacent to his house, in consequence of the development. As a result there will be two additional houses and 2,000 more seats within a radius of six blocks. All the houses use the same policy.

The Gayety license was opposed on the grounds that the Gateway section already was overseated, the seven houses in operation having 3,000 seats and the going being tough.

If the Palace, a 1,900-seat house with a 15 cent double feature policy, is considered a part of the Gateway, to which it is adjacent, the total seats are boosted to approximately 7,000.

Dryer bought the Lyra, next door to his Bijou, more than two years ago and has kept it closed ever since.

MINNEAPOLIS

SAM GURTZ, the Screen Game man from Chicago, here closing a few deals for his nifty new Bingo game which utilizes an electric device by way of novelty . . . Topping the list of Christmas cards received by this column was that of Ben Spewak, the Tyrol Hills showman. It consisted of a miniature Santa Claus, the torso of which was made of a pinch bottle of whiskey, with the arms and legs being bottles of other spirits. In Santa's sack was a box of double Corona cigars and cigar lighter.

Carlton Duffus, former Minnesota theatre press agent and now a M-G-M key exploitation man in Washington, D. C., vacationing for a few days in home territory . . . Tom Burke, now with Monogram in Des Moines, another home-town visitor . . . Frank Eisenberg, the energetic film salesman, off with the wife to California for a mid-winter vacation . . . Martin Kelly, former Minnesota Amusement Company exploiteer and now a promotion man in St. Paul, vacationing with the wife in Southern states.

Here's what some of the boys are wishing for the New Year: Irving Gillman, a spot in the loop for a new theatre; Sam (Mounds) Zuckman, less talk and more action about grosses; Paul (from aisle to alleys) Manns, another couple bowling alleys; Ben Friedman, a few more bets with the other Ben—Berger; John (State Theatre) Petchalanus, a new horse and a saddle to go with it; Jan (Lyric Theatre) Janssen, a better hair tonic to make his locks stay down; "Nickey" Goldhammer, another "Snow White," making the third successive year that he has made that wish; Dorothy (Welworth) Crane, another blitzkrieg season for the Golden Gopher footballers; Dick Wagner, the Sioux Falls' fireworks king, two Fourths of July; Joe L. (Majestic) Stern, more newspapers and newscasts; Sidney Volk, more parking space and fewer percentage pictures, and his brother, Bill, a trip to Hollywood.

This column asks its two coast subscribers, Ben Aber in New York and Ben Ashe in Everett, Wash., to pass along the season's greetings to the Twin City colony in those parts . . . Kay Green in town, marking time while plans are being completed to put his magic and music show, "Illusions of 1941," on the board in the east . . . Nettie Goldie, popular booking agent, has moved her office from the Pantages building to her home. It is rumored that she plans to undergo a bit of surgical makeup . . . William "Bud" McInerney, former Welworth press agent, now operating a skating rink in Fairbault, Minn. . . . An elaborate merchants and theatre tie-up, revolving around a color book for the kiddies, is being engineered by Garner Northfuss . . . Screening audiences giving much applause to M-G-M's "Flight Command;" Columbia's "This Thing Called Love" and Warner Bros. "Four Mothers."

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Bill Smith, Menominee, Wis.; Walt Lower, Moose Lake, Minn.; George Schraeder, Mountain Lake, Minn.; Carl Sather, Annandale, Minn.; Jack Wright, Red Wing, Minn.; "Doc" Reynolds, Princeton, Minn., and Al Ashenbrenner, Staples, Minn. . . . Gene Thorpe has resigned from the Warner Brothers' booking department to take a position in the Woolworth general offices . . . George Fosdick, Republic salesman, and the wife vacationing in Texas.

Warner's "Million Dollar Book Shelf" is a novel circulating library for local employes. The books are those which have been adapted by the company for the screen . . . Bill Scholl, RKO publicity man, in mourning because, he says, "Topsy" is dead . . . Dick Stahl, Universal salesman, on holiday jaunt to Tulsa, Kansas City, Dallas and New Orleans . . . Leo Devaney, RKO Depinet drive leader, due here for sales meeting next week and by that time "Nicky" Goldhammer, district manager, will be back from his California vacation.

Now that the Sears' celebration is under way, business is so good at Warner Bros. that they've had to employ additional office help. They've just put Dorothy Piper to work . . . Russell Egner, RKO city salesman, prizing a bowling ball that he received for a Christmas gift . . . David, son of "the little judge," Judge Meshbesher, won the door prize and assisted the magician at the Twin City Variety club's children's Christmas party . . . In town for the holidays were Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hawkins of Veblin, S. D., and Mrs. J. A. Hawkins, his mother, who also is an exhibitor at Waubay, S. D.

J. L. Stern of Majestic in North Dakota with his counsel, Sam Halpern, on business . . . Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, and the wife off to Florida and Havana pleasure-bent . . . Ben Blotcky, Paramount branch manager, building a new home at St. Louis Park . . . Everybody happy because Mrs. George Granstrom, wife of the popular St. Paul exhibitor, has recovered sufficiently from her serious automobile accident injuries to go home from the hospital.

Ask Abe Kaplan, independent circuit owner, about his New Year's wishes to Charlie Weiner, film distributor. Incidentally, Charles and his wife spent New Year's eve in Chicago as the guests of Abe Bronfman, president of Seagram's . . . Columbia employes presented "Hy" Chapman, branch manager, with a beautiful gold wrist watch for a Christmas gift . . . Jack Cohan, 20th-Fox salesman, changed his plans and will go to Florida again, instead of Mexico City, for his mid-winter vacation . . . Walter Lower, Moose Lake, Minn., exhibitor, passed through en route to New Orleans on a pleasure trip.

Norman Pyle, M-G-M exploiteer, spent a week vacationing in Chicago . . . Warner Bros. now reserves Mondays for out-of-town exhibitors here to book . . . Charles Stoflet, M-G-M salesman, has figured out a multiplication table for use in figuring group prices on shorts when figuring a deal or setting up a contract . . . Helen Paash of the M-G-M office staff spent the holidays in Duluth . . . Morrie Abrahams, veteran exploiteer and one-time actor, did a swell job as Santa Claus at the Twin City Variety Club's children's Christmas party. And how he enjoyed himself . . . Jack Kelly, M-G-M salesman, visiting his parents in North Dakota . . . Ben Landy, Columbia booker, put out of commission by a flu attack.

The mother-in-law of Mannie Sgutt, Columbia salesman, passed away here. Mrs. Ruby Sgutt, his wife, was in the film business herself for many years . . . Sammy Berg, Gayety manager, traveling in high society these days. He even was invited to one of the local 400's parties . . . Columbia's reissue of "The Lost Horizon" cutting a considerable swath in the territory . . . Universal off to a bang-up start in its Scully sales drive . . . They're saying around RKO that "Kitty Foyle" is one of the year's top-flight pictures . . . Mildred Walker marks her seventh year with M-G-M on Sunday.

Boyer and Goddard

HOLLYWOOD—Charles Boyer and Paulette Goddard will co-star in "Hold Back the Dawn" for Paramount. Richard Maibaum is adapting the Ketti Frings story.

FILMROW here is expected to get back to normal this week after the holiday season . . . Film peddlers at most exchanges received a vacation of a week or ten days and many spent the holidays with relatives or friends in other cities . . . Exhibitors stayed home during the holidays . . . It all added up to a very quiet Davenport Street.

Slim Fraser, Joyo, Havelock, Neb., says business has been on the upswing since Christmas and he hopes it continues . . . Interest in the Filmrow ping pong tournament is expected to pick up, now that the holidays are over . . . Harry Schiffrin, Warner salesman, visited his folks in New England . . . Bruce Holdrege, Shenandoah, Ia., was one of the few visitors to Davenport Street . . . Also Frank Good, Iowana, Red Oak, Ia.

Some very pretty Christmas cards from Mr. and Mrs. D. V. McLucas, Mr. and Mrs. Walt Green, Lew and Olga Kozal and their twins. Also from the BOXOFFICE bosses, Ben Shlyen and Red Kann . . . Sid McArdle has gained 20 pounds since he became United Artists booker. When he was shipper at the same layout the exercise of swinging those films around kept his weight down. Sid had better team with Harold Neumann of Western Theatre Supply for some handball.

The Warner party was a very successful affair, due to the fine work of Harold Martin, Ruth Cogley and Peggy Bragg. Martin is entertainment committee chairman . . . Among exhibitors and filmites who attended the Rosebowl game were Bert Beams, Red Cloud, Neb.; Carl Krumrei jr., operator at the Minne Lusa Theatre, Omaha, and Fred Wickman of Tekamah, Neb. . . . Fred's mother, Mrs. Jennie Wickman, is booking the pictures while Fred is away.

A few exhibitors and filmites had the pleasure to see "The Great Dictator" the other night at the invitation of Don McLucas . . . Ted Mendenhall, Paramount boss, has been on the sick list but is recovering.

Harriett Wolsky was to have been married on New Year's Day at her home to Joe Shulkin of Council Bluffs . . . Last week was old home week for RKO folks formerly of Omaha . . . Bill Foley of Milwaukee; Danny McCarthy, Detroit; John Weinberg of the deep south; Sherm Fitch, Sioux Falls, and Charlie Snyder, Sioux Falls, all were here . . . Joe Smith, who is rivalling John Barrymore as "The Profile," flew to New York for the holidays.

Toby Stewart, Shenandoah, Ia., was in town . . . Carl Resse, Republic boss, went to the Rosebowl game and also visited Kay Stewart, his niece, in Hollywood . . . Kathleen Emerson visited her folks here on a vacation from college . . . The Tri-States annual Christmas party was a huge success. In charge were Ira Crain and Walt Hammond of the Omaha and Bill Trites and Pauline Hunt of the Orpheum . . . The Tri-States employes received a Christmas bonus, also.

Pre-Xmas Bad; Then A Pickup in K. C.

KANSAS CITY—Kansas Citians utilized good weather for shopping, very little for films, in the pre-Xmas week, but business boomed Xmas day and subsequently for first runs. By sandwiching two short weeks in the period the Newman managed a good gross on two programs. "Christmas in July" and Cab Calloway's band just about doubled the ordinary take for four days, which included Xmas and Thursday. A big stage show that combined the best of the city's kid talent with three professional numbers strengthened the Tower's movie offering of "Youth Will Be Served" and gave the house much better than usual.

Detail for the week ended December 26:

Esquire—Hit Parade of 1941 (Rep.)..... 60
Played 6 days, closing before Xmas.

Midland—Dr. Kildare's Crisis (M-G-M); Escape to Glory (Col.)..... 65
Played 5 days, closing before Xmas.

Newman—Christmas in July (Para't); Cab Calloway's Band and acts.....175
"A Night at Earl Carroll's" (Para't) and "World in Flames" (Para't) went six days. "Christmas in July" and Calloway played Xmas and Thursday.

Orpheum—Here Comes the Navy (WB); Lady With Red Hair (WB)..... 70
Played 5 days, closing before Xmas.

Tower—Youth Will Be Served (20th-Fox).....170
Played 7 days, with stage show.

Uptown—Hit Parade of 1941 (Rep.)..... 65
Played 6 days, closing before Xmas.

Post-Holiday Trend an Upward One in Omaha

OMAHA—Exhibitors reported muchly improved business following the pre-Christmas slump. Christmas Day grosses were above average and indications point to possible upward trend first part of January.

"Little Nellie Kelly" and "Sandy Gets Her Man" proved the town's best at the Orpheum against two "brought-back-by-popular-demand" bills. "Here Comes the Navy," in a dual at the Brandeis, was satisfactory while two former heavy-pullers were poorish at the Omaha.

Detail for week ending December 28:

Brandeis—Here Comes the Navy (FN), reissue; So You Won't Talk (Col).....100

Omaha—Trail of the Lonesome Pine (Para't); Thanks for the Memory (Para't), reissues.... 90

Orpheum—Little Nellie Kelly (M-G-M); Sandy Gets Her Man (Univ) 115

Stage Band Lends Power To a Minny First Run

MINNEAPOLIS—Gene Krupa's band on the Orpheum stage was the only first run offering able to overcome the Christmas week slump in Minneapolis. The feature was "South of Suez." "The Letter" held up pasably in its second week at the Century.

Detail for week ended December 30:

Aster—Dreaming Out Loud (RKO); Give Us Wings (Univ) 90

Century—The Letter (FN), 2nd wk. 90

Esquire—Mutiny on the Bounty (M-G-M), reissue 85

LINCOLN

NEW FACES: Eddie Terhune, formerly with Westland Theatres, Inc. (L. L. Dent), in Colorado, has come on here to manage the Kiva, the theatre whose opening made the town lighted 100 per cent theatrically . . . Marcia Beckman and Patricia Griswold joined the "how many" girls at the Varsity and Variety cages, respectively. They're college betty coeds.

Oddest Story: Howard Federer, general manager of Nebraska Theatres, Inc., made out two checks, December 1. One was to Rudge & Guenzel's department store for drapes and fixtures, a matter of $500. The other was in the sum of $300 to E. T. Gregg's electrical supply house. Checks were put in the wrong envelopes and mailed, yet each wrong recipient failed to notice the error, endorsed the checks, and both were cleared at the bank without a hitch. Happiest man in the whole deal was Gregg, who was $200 long of expectancy.

Substitution, Please: Mrs. Barney Oldfield is being groomed at the microphone by Ed Cooper, at KFCR, with the idea of being sponsored on her husband's old Hollywood nightly broadcast by Bob Huffman's Lincoln Theatres Corp. She is currently standing in for her spouse with his weekly film column in the Sunday Journal and Star. Said she, referring to his being called into the army as a captain: "Most women, when their husbands are called, usually start knitting, or wrapping bandages at home. Since mine is notorious for taking care of himself, taking over his radio show is a lot less morbid."

Speed Demon: Bob Livingston and Roy McGraw, one of his operators, went to Omaha the other morning to get a broken part for the Capitol projection machines. Bee-lining home, they passed through Waverly, Neb., a speed-trap, at 60 m. p. h. A safety patroller resented, and gave them a ticket—and not to the policeman's ball, either.

Novel New Year's Greeting: Howard Federer, in the midst of year-end figuring, sent out a note which read like this: "If you don't think there's a reason why this New Year can be happy for you, come and take a look at my books, and see how much better off YOU are than I am."

Guy Named Gabe: The "Cheers for Miss Bishop" publicist, Gabe Yorke, walked back and forth into the Stuart all week long, each time taking a look at the screen. "How come," he asked an usher, "that every time I walk in here I see 'Thief of Bagdad' on the screen?" The usher maybed it was because that was the only feature. Yorke was amazed, having found there was such a thing as a single feature house in Nebraska. He entered the state at Omaha, which always gives a bad impression that way.

Engagement: Paul Anderson, who has just been moved to the Lincoln, Harvey Traylor being switched to the Stuart, announced his engagement this week. The gal, a demure, coedish blonde, is Lois Nobles, and the only thing she knows about the show business is Paul.

Variety-"Star" Bowling Tourney Big Success

KANSAS CITY—In almost reaching its goal of $5,000, the annual Variety Club-Kansas City Star bowling tournament, December 21-22, was outstandingly successful. Also, participation was about three times as great as it has ever been in the past.

Thirteen alleys participated this year: Pla-Mor, S&S Recreation, Plaza Bowl, Clifford-Tessman, Cocked Hat, Tierney-Wheat, Bradford-Thompson, Stratton Baird and Grindel-Lembke, Kansas City, Kas.; Palace Alleys, Waldo Recreation, Oak Park, and North Kansas City Recreation.

Under the general chairmanship of Frank Hensler, the tournament was handled by Variety members and bowling alley managers. Lending special assistance at the alleys were Jay Means, Leon Abraham, R. R. Biechele, George Baker, Fred Meyn, Walt Lambader, Ward Scott, Jack Barnett, Charley Shafer, Nat Hechtman, Bev Miller, Jim Lewis, Homer Blackwell, Charley Gregory and Norris Cresswell.

Trio Installing RCA

KANSAS CITY—RCA sound will be installed by Theodore P. Davis in the new theatre he is building at Parsons, Kas. The equipment has also been purchased by Vincent M. Hoven for his H&H Theatre at Bowdle, S. D., and by E. Van Hyning for the new house he is building in Ottawa, Kas., to be known as the Tauy.

HOLLYWOOD—William K. Howard will direct "Bad Men of Missouri" for Warner. Lester Cole is scripting.

DES MOINES

WE HAVE the piano tuned now, Bill Scholl, so we'll be expecting you around soon again to do that Gilbert & Sullivan stuff on-key . . . Sometime ago, a man who lived in the neighborhood of 13th and High found a belt . . . the length of the thing amazed him . . . he couldn't imagine anybody with a waistline to accommodate it . . . then one day he happened to see Stan Mayer going into the Fox exchange and he knew he'd found his man . . . the two-yard belt belonged to Stan.

Evan Jacobs undoubtedly has the cutest red-headed baby the stork ever delivered on the Row . . . Bart Lawrence began taking charge at the Jacobs residence on October 8 and already has the Filmrow ladies pressagenting for his beautiful, big brown eyes. Edna Greenland (Mrs. Harry Peter Franz) was so disappointed when the customs inspector in Canada didn't ask to see Frank's birth certificate, that she got it out and made him look at it anyhow . . . Edna wasn't going to have all that effort to get the certificate wasted.

Harry Holdsberg had a Des Moines Theatre usher get Ken Clayton on the phone for him . . . Clayton helloed and the usher asked him to wait a minute as he (the usher) handed the phone to Harry, who waited and listened, listened and waited, chewed off both thumb nails, and had reached the toe-tapping stage. Meanwhile, at the other end of the wire, Clayton had balanced the phone between one ear and one shoulder, and then gone on checking a roto layout, thumbing through picture features, and reading a column or so out of PM. Clayton had practically forgotten the instrument propped up on his shoulder when he was startled by the toe-tapping Harry. Harry couldn't stand it any longer and decided to beller "Hello there," whether anybody heard him or not. "Hello yourself," answered Clayton, "D'ja think I got all day to hang onto this thing while you powder your nose?" Time and tide wait for no man, but Clayton and Holdsberg—well, it's a good thing Harry's nerves gave way or those two busy fellows would probably both still be sitting in they're respective offices holding phones with each other.

Lou Patz will hunt all over the DM office of NSS-NSA-AAI (Mein gott und himmel!) and the NSA branch in Omaha for his cigarettes . . . then when he finds them, he starts all over again in search of a match to light the fags.

Sanford Schlesinger contends that there must be easier ways to break into the film biz than by being a third cousin to a Looney Tune . . . Sanford is related in just such a fashion to Leon Schlesinger, who draws Porky the Pig, Looney Tunes and Merrie Melodies for Vitagraph, but when he went to California last summer to start a five-year course in cinematography (take that, you guys) at U. S. C., he found he had to spend two pre-cinematography (a law degree's easier to spell) years in college first . . . So Sanford is back at Drake biding his time.

If you don't think the entire theatre world waits with bated breath for Bank Night winners here, try calling a Tri-States theatre manager along about 9 on any Tuesday night . . . "The Bank Night drawing is on," the operator informs you sweetly. "You'll have to call back later" . . . and your nickel might as well have gone for a small glass down at Louie's.

Next time you see Bill Beckley, ask him about the time he did in Sing Sing . . . Honest—and it's nothing to be ashamed of . . . Don't let him stop until he describes the fella he saw in there with smoke coming off the top of his head. And did you know Bill used to work with G. Ralph Branton in the east . . . which has nothing to do with the time in Sing Sing.

Mel and Fan Evidon are about the most "God Blessing America" people we know . . . Mel, you'll remember, is wearing a little red-white'n-blue pin Phil Dunas sent him, and Fan was wearing the stars and bars in her suit lapel the last time we saw her . . . Mrs. Phil Dunas bought a white hat during her visit in DM, but we hope she didn't wear it in the local smog and ruin it . . . which reminds us of an old DM legend, "If the smog doesn't get it, the starlings will!"

Emil Franke is still wondering how he got in the theatre biz . . . "I took three years and two months of law at Marquette, and all of a sudden I find myself running a theatre," explains Emil, looking a little dazed.

Mabbe the film industry will start turning out more so-called "glamour art" after looking at this Sunday's DM Register syndicated gossip page.

.....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn— By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

IOWA FILM doesn't miss many transportation bets but Iles and McKinney are neglecting opportunity's knock if they don't try a little salesmanship on the Row when Warren Grossman of the Circle Theatre in Nevada, Ia., is booking. Grossman books in the boss' office and the day we saw the Universal staff lugging the booking equipment into Lou Levy's sanctum they looked as if they'd appreciate a little trucker assistance.

George Hake's new Dodge is making him dodge . . . The sleek, green machine is pointed to by every salesman in Iowa as evidence of the Belmond exhibitor's prosperity, but Hake's still shielding himself by insisting: "Cars don't cost so much. I use to be a dealer" . . . If the & Co. memories of his days on a stencilling crew are accurate, the Hake Motor Co. bought its tire covers from the Hinson Manufacturing Co. . . . Yes, and from & Co.'s stencilling table.

Whazzat about union stage hands in the Waterloo high schools? . . . Somebody told us to ask Leonard Kaplan.

Bob Malek tipped his hat to us, not to be polite, but just to prove that he was dark-haired and Bohemian instead of blond and German like a lot of his Gladbrook patrons.

Harry Holdsberg, Des Moines Theatre manager, says ushering is the finest training a young fellow can get, and that it has made a gentleman out of many an ordinary lug . . . "Looka me!" says Harry, "Piano! Flying lessons! Looka me!"

Doc Twedt is all swelled up, but he doesn't weigh any more . . . he's just throwing out his chest over that round table citation he received for promotion and exploitation at his Manly Lido.

For a long time we've had trouble with the first name of MacDermott, Harry Holdsberg's blushing assistant at the Des Moines in DM . . . now we can see why he's apparently been sort of keeping it under cover . . . our pick-up man informs us that it's DELMONT . . . nice, eh?

Rita Hayworth in P. A. at British Benefit Dance

DES MOINES—Rita Hayworth made a successful personal appearance at the Bundles for Britain dance in Des Moines.

From Hollywood Miss Hayworth arrived in Des Moines the afternoon of the dance and left for the coast again early the next morning.

She and her husband, Edward Judson, Texas oil operator and capitalist, were entertained at a buffet supper at the Gardiner (Des Moines Register and Tribune) Cowles jr., home.

The dance drew 1,000 persons at $5 for tickets bought in advance or $6 for tickets at the gate.

Hubbard Heads Union

MINNEAPOLIS—C. J. Hubbard has been re-elected president of the IATSE operators union here for a third term. The only new officers elected were W. J. Yutzy, business representative; L. T. Olson, trustee; A. W. Harris, sergeant-at-arms; G. E. Lauren and C. J. Hubbard, executive committee, and W. J. Christiansen and H. H. Babb, examining board.

Buy Film Alliance Lineup

DES MOINES—The Tri-States circuit of Iowa and Nebraska will play Film Alliance's entire lineup for 1940-41. Norman Elson, FA general sales manager, closed the deal with the circuit.

Santa Claus is real! At least the lads and lasses at Film Delivery believe in him. They all got a Xmas bonus of a week's salary, thanks to Sam "Santa" Abend and Earl "Claus" Jameson.

Mrs. L. P. Davis, mother of Don Davis of RCA, died December 22 at Pawhuska, Ok.

Break open the champagne! Ruth Kelly, veteran employe at Universal, has just announced that she was married last March to Cecil Hollingsworth. She spilled the news at the Universal Xmas party last week. Congratulations!

Alex P. Bill, RCA representative out of Minneapolis, visited Filmrow over the holidays.

Fred Abelson, Universal salesman at Minneapolis, was in Kansas City for the holidays with Mrs. Abelson. Harold Johnson, Universal salesman at Minneapolis, and Mrs. Johnson, stopped over for a brief time on their way to Hot Springs, Ark.

Don Davis reports the sale of new RCA sound equipment to E. Van Hyning for the latter's Tauy, Ottawa, Kas.

A bunch of the boys from Variety Club went to see Peck Baker last Tuesday, and was he glad to see them! In the old days Peck followed for years the practice of bringing candy, etc., to Filmrow.

Captain Tommy Taylor, brother of Harry Taylor, and himself widely known along Filmrow, now is in charge of the theatre at Ft. Leavenworth, Kas. He's in charge of education and recreation at the post.

Good Luck, Joe Manfre! . . . Salesmen of the Paramount exchange here last week took Joe to a private dining room of the Pickwick hotel for a big steak dinner. There were no speeches, except one by a bellboy who presented Joe with a personal radio engraved with his own monogram. Salesmen who participated were Roy Young, Joe Stark, Harry Wheeler, Bob Carnie and George Hinton.

Joe Stark, Paramount salesman, went to California December 26 with friends for a few days' vacation . . . Harry Wheeler, salesman for the same company, drove to Florida with Mrs. Wheeler.

On the Row: M. A. Otto, Linn, Pleasanton, Kas.; H. C. Musgrave, Ritz, Minneapolis, and Columbian, Wamego, Kas.; Bob Gorham, Liberty, Horton, Kas.

A number of Filmrowers got the chance to play S. Claus and have a lot of fun Xmas week when Arthur Cole, secretary of the Variety Club, passed around the experience of taking care of the 15 families the club adopted for the holidays. Those who helped were 20th-Fox, Metro, National Screen, Paramount, Commonwealth Theatres, Republic-Midwest, Columbia, Altec Service, RCA Photophone, Rube Finkelstein, Jack Shriner, Nat Hechtman, Max Barewin and Jay Means. All took care of one, except Finkelstein, who took care of two. They were supplied with cash by the club, and members of the club and friends supplied an unusual amount of clothing, etc. Surplus clothing was given the Salvation Army.

On January 1, Irving Waterstreet of the local M-G-M exchange completed his fourth year with the company. The next day Georgia Ottaviano also made it a quartet of years with Leo. Anna Hays will run her service string to six years on January 12.

The Jayhawk at Chanute, Kas., which has been dark, is being readied for reopening in January by Ray Walsh, who has the Mainstreet there. National Theatre Supply furnished projection equipment, arc lamps and generator . . . National Theatre Supply also furnished projection, lamps, rectifiers, carpet and screen (plastic moulded) to E. Van Hyning's Tauy, Ottawa, Kas. . . . It recently sold one of the new screens to C. C. Rhodes for his Nu-Buflo, Buffalo, Mo.

On the Row: F. L. "Doc" Lowe, Sterling, Kas., who figures building a new theatre (Lebanon, Mo.) is enough to think about for a few weeks; M. S. Heath, Plaza, Liberty, Mo.; Paul Oetting, Lyric, Concordia, Mo.; Morris V. Beisner, Dream, Glasgow, Kas.; Floyd Hill, Hill, Drexel, Mo. . . . The Kansas state board of review has been having the flu: Mrs. Dwight Numbers, chairman; Hallie Tucker, Mrs. Mary Meek. Most of them now are back on the job . . . John Wangberg was in visiting the boys at RKO, and other friends along the Row . . . Rube Melcher of Poppers Supply is back from Milwaukee where he went to get his daughter Marion, who was visiting . . . Irving Waterstreet, who has been exploiteering for Metro, goes to St. Louis, his old stamping grounds, and Claud Morris, long here, returns to Kansas City to replace him.

Illness Postpones Trial Of Suit Against Co-op

Detroit—Trial of the suit of Midwest Theatres against Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, which already has consumed a month in federal court, was postponed this week because of the illness of A. J. Levin, attorney for the defendants. The case is expected to come up again January 7.

Bank Night a Gainer In an Ohio Ruling

CLEVELAND—The Supreme Court of Ohio last week held that a court has no authority in a civil action to determine whether a theatre owner who operates Bank Night is guilty of violating the state lottery statute. This decision was based on the fact that operation of a lottery is a criminal offense and that the legal status of Bank Night in Ohio can be determined only in a criminal action.

On this premise (that a criminal action was necessary for a ruling) the high court refused to grant an injunction to the Troy Amusement Co., enjoining local officials from interfering with Bank Night at the Mayflower in Troy.

In a 6 to 1 decision, the high court overruled a common pleas and a court of appeals ruling in the case of the Troy Amusement Co. of Troy, Ohio, against Andrew Attenweiler, Michael E. Morris, George Hollopeter, justice of the peace, and Frank O'Roarke, constable for Newberry county.

Jury Vindicates

In June, 1939, Attenweiler filed suit in the court of common pleas, Miami County, Ohio, against the Troy Amusement Co., operating the Mayflower Theatre, Troy, for recovery of $10.40 representing money claimed by him to have been paid to the theatre over a 52-week period during the operation of Bank Night. He also asked $100 damages, and further alleged in his petition that Bank Night is a lottery.

Troy Amusement Co. in a jury trial was vindicated of operating a lottery.

Following this, Attenweiler filed a criminal action for the arrest of Manager Christian F. Pfister, charging operation of a lottery. He also obtained a search warrant to seize the equipment used in the operation of Bank Night. Thereupon the Troy Amusement Co. won a request for an injunction restraining Attenweiler from seizing the equipment. Common Pleas Judge Richard L. Cameron of St. Marys, Ohio, then upheld a demurrer filed by Attenweiler.

At this point the Troy Amusement Co. entered an appeal and the court of appeals not only upheld the lower courts but went so far as to designate Bank Night as a lottery.

On the basis of this designation, the case was admitted to the Supreme Court and its ruling was published last Tuesday, throwing wide open the question of whether Bank Night is or is not a lottery in this state, by its ruling that the guilt or innocence of anyone operating Bank Night as a lottery must be determined in a criminal action.

Amended Bill Furthers Suit Of Schreiber vs. Schreiber

DETROIT—The suit of Jacob Schreiber, former owner of the five Woodward Avenue theatres now known as the Midwest Circuit, against Raymond Schreiber, his nephew and present operator of the houses, reached a new stage with the filing of an amended bill of complaint by the plaintiff. Earlier history of the case has been reported previously in BOXOFFICE, particularly when the original bill was filed a year and a half ago in Wayne county circuit court.

The present case does not appear to affect the suit of Midwest Theatres, with Raymond Schreiber as principal, against Co-Operative Theatres, now being tried in federal court here. Although the indeterminate state of "Schreiber vs. Schreiber" was earlier given as a reason for postponing the Co-Op suit, the defendants (Co-Op) now appear ready to go on to a decision regardless of the circuit court case.

Asks Return of Houses

In his amended bill, Jacob Schreiber, who is joined by his wife and six theatre corporations as joint plaintiffs, asks that the five theatres involved—Colonial, Blackstone No. 2, Majestic, Forest and Garden—be returned to him; that the agreement transferring operation from plaintiff to defendant be declared a trust agreement subject to cancellation by the plaintiff; that the agreement be reformed by the court to include numerous provisions covered in the bill, particularly that the defendants pay all debts of the plaintiffs, including especially income taxes, up to the date of agreement (about September, 1938); that an accounting be taken and defendant decreed to pay the plaintiff whatever sums found due; that a receiver be appointed pending determination of the case, to operate the theatres; that defendants be enjoined from disposing of or incumbering any properties involved; that defendants be stopped from making any alterations or repairs, particularly from reseating the Majestic; that defendants deliver to plaintiffs all personal property not covered by agreement.

In his 9,000-word bill of complaint, Jacob Schreiber goes at length into a presentation of the history of the situation and of his story of the agreements. Co-defendants with Raymond Schreiber are Samuel Shapero, attorney, and Sidney Foreman, accounting, and the R. S. Holding Co. and Midwest Theatres, Inc.

According to the plaintiff's bill, he was urged by physician's advice to get out of theatre operation, and originally sold his business to Jack Broder for $125,000, in October, 1937, under an agreement terminated about the next July by alleged default of Broder. Plaintiffs then negotiated with Raymond Schreiber, they state, and further:

That an agreement was reached for purchase at $25,000, payable $150 per week plus interest, with the defendant paying out of earnings all obligations of the plaintiffs; that plaintiffs would receive weekly payment, later agreed upon as $150, for their support; that upon any default, plaintiffs could immediately retake possession; that defendant was not to pay himself or any employes in excess of $125 per week till all obligations had been fulfilled; that in September, 1938, a supplemental agreement was entered into to add $4,000 to the net obligation (originally $25,000), to cover advances made by plaintiffs to defendant plus cash deposits on leases.

Details Differences

Subsequently, the plaintiffs claim, the agreement was found to be different in important respects from what they had understood it to be; "that the written agreements expressly excepted from the obligations any personal income taxes to be paid by plaintiffs;" that "if this situation is allowed to exist, the plaintiffs practically give their business to the defendant;" that defendant refuses to pay particularly certain federal income taxes of the plaintiffs, that he refuses to surrender certain desks and other personal property, that he refused to pay Metro Premiums account of $1,200, that defendant has refused or neglected to pay sundry state, county, city, social security, unemployment, and old age taxes, and that defendant is jeopardizing the Majestic property by incurring, or being about to incur, a debt of $12,000 for reseating—all allegedly contrary to agreement.

The bill goes at great length into details of how the differences alleged between plaintiffs' understanding and the final written form of the agreements arose, and finally alleges "improper" management of the theatres by Raymond Schreiber in that a debt of about $15,000 allegedly has accumulated.

In reply to the amended bill, Raymond Schreiber told BOXOFFICE: "My deal with Jake Schreiber was done honestly, truthfully and legitimately, and I have carried out all provisions of the agreement."

Massillon Police Department Sees Decision Favorable

MASSILLON, OHIO—A decision of the Ohio supreme court upheld in effect the Massillon police department's activities to stop cash award drawings at local theatres.

City Solicitor Sherlock H. Evans has announced he intends to proceed with the prosecution of I. H. Solomon, manager of the Lincoln Theatre, on a charge of selling tickets in a game of chance.

Krims Adapting "George"

HOLLYWOOD—Milton Krims is adapting "The Dealer's Name Was George" for Warner from the Ketti Frings story.

Shuffle Schedule to Put Best in for Holiday

CLEVELAND—The days just before Christmas are proverbially the worst show days of the year and this year was no exception. To meet the situation, first run theatre owners arranged their programs so as to offer new pictures on Tuesday—Christmas Eve—instead of on the regular change day. To accomplish this, four of the five downtown first runs played their product from three to five days, depending upon what day they change programs. The RKO Palace alone adhered to its regular policy and a seven-day run where "Christmas in July" was well received and billed over the vaudeville. "The Long Voyage Home" opened to fair business at Loew's State but built steadily during its five-day run. Warner's Hippodrome played "You'll Find Out" for five days bringing "Santa Fe Trail" as its Christmas offering. "Tin Pan Alley," after 10 days at the Hippodrome, moved to the Allen for a three-day fill in, with "You'll Find Out" taking over for the holiday week. "North West Mounted Police" held strong in its fourth week downtown of which one week was at Loew's State and the rest of the run on a move-over at the Stillman. Weather was ideal.

Detail for week ending December 27:

Allen—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox).....115
Played 3 days on a moveover following a 10-day run at the Hippodrome.
Hippodrome—You'll Find Out (RKO) 75
Played 5 days, making room for "Santa Fe Trail" on Xmas Eve.
Palace—Christmas in July (Para't) 95
Stage show featuring Gray Gordon and orchestra and Wally Brown in his third appearance here this season.
State—Long Voyage Home (UA), 5 days.....100
Stillman—North West Mounted Police (Para't) 100
Played 5 days of a 4th wk. downtown of which one wk. was at the State.

"Alley," "NWMP" Strong In Third Week in Pitt

PITTSBURGH — "Tin Pan Alley" and "North West Mounted Police" in third week engagements were leaders here. Other attractions were below par as strong programs opened for the holidays. Weather was mild.

Detail for week ending December 20:

Barry—Who Killed Aunt Maggie? (Rep); Phantom of Chinatown (Mono) 110
Fulton—Argentine Nights (Univ); Diamond Frontier (Univ) 70
Penn—Little Nellie Kelly (M-G-M)..... 90
Ritz—Dreaming Out Loud (RKO); Mexican Spitfire Out West (RKO) 50
Senator—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox), 3rd wk....125
Stanley—Go West (M-G-M) 85
Warner—North West Mounted Police (Para't), 3rd d. t. wk. 175

A Revival Outranks New Product in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI—"Here Comes the Navy," Warner revival spotted at RKO Shubert, did a surprisingly good business in a week paralyzed by the pre-holiday lull, unduly warm weather and a northern Kentucky street car and bus strike

"The Bank Dick" tied with "Chad Hanna." Lowest gross went to "South of Suez." In the holdovers the Marxes were about 30 per cent off for the second and final week. "Tin Pan Alley," in its fourth, and "Philadelphia Story," in its third week, ran fair to middling, with about 20 per cent off.

Detail for week ended December 23:

Albee—Chad Hanna (20th-Fox) 90
Held over and shifted to RKO Grand.
Capitol—Go West (M-G-M), 2nd wk..... 70
Grand—The Bank Dick (Univ)..... 90
Keith's—South of Suez (WB)..... 70
Lyric—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox), 4th wk..... 80
Palace—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M), 3rd wk... 80
Shubert—Here Comes the Navy (WB) revival.100
To Lyric for 2nd wk.

Holiday Trade Temporarily Arrests Dip in Detroit

DETROIT—Christmas accounted for the slump in local business generally this week—plus the fact that Detroit seems to be enjoying a rearmament depression in show business. Grosses have steadily gone downward, only slightly arrested by holiday trade, and dropping again to below par on Thursday for closing. The fact appears to be that money for the arms program is not going out to the average family in enough quantity to encourage spending at first runs—despite the millions reported assigned to the big auto plants here. Christmas trade in stores was generally good, and theatres are expecting to pick up after January 1—or the first payday after January 10 when Christmas bills are paid off.

Booking schedules were all disarranged this week, with all first runs except the United Artists—which normally closes its week on Wednesday, one day early—and the Cinema, closing after five days, on Tuesday, to start new shows for Christmas, to run nine days in most instances. Three features went into surprisingly long runs of five weeks it will be noted:

Detail for week ended December 26 (adjusted for altered runs reported above):

Adams—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox), 4th wk., after 1 wk. at Fox; Give Us Wings (Univ), 2nd wk. 100
Cinema—Forbidden Adventure (SR) 75
Fox—Escape to Glory (Col); One Night in the Tropics (Univ) 80
Michigan—The Letter (FN); Captain Caution (UA), 2nd wk. 95
Palms-State—North West Mounted Police (Para't); A Night at Earl Carroll's (Para't), 3rd wk., after 2 wks. at Michigan..... 90
United Artists—Long Voyage Home (UA); Comrade X (M-G-M) 100

"Bagdad" and "Bank Dick" Do Standout Business

CINCINNATI — Stimulating reports on "The Thief of Bagdad" have been received by Harris Dudelson, UA branch manager.

According to word from Loew's manager in Dayton, the picture did the biggest Xmas business at this house in seven years; and in Columbus the first three days equalled the week's regular take.

Universal reports "The Bank Dick" also doing an excellent grossage in Dayton and Columbus. This feature was also well received and held over here.

Pre-Xmas Closing Is Generally Applauded

DETROIT—Reactions to the idea of closing the day before Christmas were generally favorable among the several dozen theatre owners who participated. Net figures on the books were actually about the same as they would have been had the house opened, a few confided, inasmuch as the loss in grosses was offset by saving on lights and general operating costs.

However, in some neighborhoods merchants were reported disappointed because they wanted a well lighted spot for that last minute pre-Christmas shopping rush.

A new idea that merits serious consideration for 1941 was broached by William Richmond of the Lincoln Park:

"Closing the day before Christmas is one thing—but would it not be ever so much better to stay open and give the proceeds of the evening, as estimated by a committee of course, to some worthy charity? Think of the worthy effect of such a united gesture from theatres generally—and what a favorable reaction 200 theatres making this move would get from the public at large. Each exhibitor could direct his proceeds toward his own chosen charity. The public would like it a lot better to know that the proceeds of this one evening in the year were being donated to charity, than to find their favorite theatre darkened on this night."

"Grapes of Wrath" Tops Pitt Newspaper's List

PITTSBURGH—Post-Gazette's 10 best pictures of the year were "The Grapes of Wrath," "Gone With the Wind," "Angels Over Broadway," "The Long Voyage Home," "Foreign Correspondent," "My Favorite Wife," "Our Town," "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," "Of Mice and Men," and "Pinocchio."

Order Photophone

PITTSBURGH — Warner's Cambria at Johnstown, Pa., is being outfitted with new Photophone sound. Also, the Kal at Kalkaska, Mich., the Ohio, Bellaire, and the new house, as yet unnamed, that Philip and Antonio La Mantia are building at Nanty Glo, Pa.

To Open Wilt

LIGONIER, PA.—The old Wilt, dark for more than a year, is being remodeled for early reopening. New operator is reported to be Leona Smith. The H. G. Wilts retired when the new Ligonier was opened by Alex Alexis.

Lyric to John Cook

GLENVILLE, W. VA.—John Cook has acquired the Lyric here. Former operator was Arthur Crissman, who is reported entering exhibition at Grantsville.

Dispute Over Employe Blocks an Opening

DETROIT—A novelty in new theatre openings was the failure of the Royal to open last Friday as scheduled. In lieu of the usual special trade preview, general trade invitations good Friday through Sunday were issued, with public opening slated for 6:00 p. m. But, despite a crowd estimated at 4,000 gathered around the 2,500-seat house, it remained dark.

Reason was said to be a demand by the IATSE union that the house employ a stagehand and the insistence of the management that there was no need for a stagehand in the house. Accordingly, the union office allegedly instructed the projectionists to walk out. The management claimed that this walkout notice was not received until 4:30 p. m., with the house scheduled to open at 6:00 p. m.

Action was doubly important because of the way the spotlight has been focused on this house—the first in the territory to be erected jointly by an affiliated circuit—United Detroit, and an independent, Wisper & Wetsman. In addition, it is the first theatre erected as a second run house in ten years in the Detroit area.

Fear a Precedent

The union contends that there is plenty of work in a 2,500-seat house for a stagehand, and specifically points to the need of a man to turn up house lights in case of fire or panic, devoting the rest of his time to house maintenance, such as checking exit doors.

Sentiment of the management appears to be that, with all equipment new and guaranteed for years by manufacturers, there is no need for a high-salaried stagehand.

Significance of the situation lies in the fact that about 50 stagehands are now employed in some 30 local theatres playing pictures exclusively. Admittedly, no serious attempt is likely to be made at this time to attack the employment of stagehands in these older houses, but the sentiment of union members appears to be that failure to put in a man in the Royal would constitute a precedent that could later be applied to any other house, especially if of smaller size.

Local 104 Holds Annual Banquet at Elmhurst

ZANESVILLE, OHIO—The annual banquet of Local 104, operators union, was held recently at Elmhurst.

Mayor and Mrs. Tom V. Moorehead were guests at the party, and Zanesville theatre managers, motion picture machine operators, stage hands and their wives were present.

Howard Winkelman, projectionist at the Weller, was toastmaster, and the committee on arrangements included Arthur Bischoff, president of the Zanesville Federation of Labor; Ed Fuller and Ed Fluke.

Charlie Perry of the Adams in Detroit and Harris Silverberg of National Screen in Chicago are planning an extensive exploration of Beaver Island next summer. Hollis Drew, new commander of the U. S. P. S., and skipper of the Temple Theatre, East Jordan, Mich., promises them an eventful cruise aboard the "Mariho."

Craven Denies Connection With Union in Detroit

DETROIT—Vigorously denying rumors to the contrary circulating along Filmrow, Howard Craven of Exhibitors Service Co., points out in a statement to BOXOFFICE that he has no connection with the personnel or organization of Local 20465 of film inspectors, shippers and poster handlers.

Reports were current to this effect three years ago. Apparent reason is the fact that Craven's service company shares office space with the union, but, aside from the fact that his eligible employes are union members, there is no other connection whatever.

In the Booth, 27 Years Ago—

The booth of the Clay Theatre in Detroit as it appeared one evening back in 1914. The house, now operated by the William Schulte circuit, then was operated by Schulte's father-in-law. The projectionist in the picture is Tony Cici, now supervisor of the Schulte circuit.

BURTUS BISHOP jr., M-G-M's manager, who will be honored at a testimonial banquet in the William Penn Hotel, Monday evening, January 6, was presented with a radio at the company's Christmas party. The M-G-M Pep Club presented him with a fine clock at a "farewell party." He departs for Kansas City the day after the testimonial and will be greatly missed here by members of the Metro staff and by hundreds of exhibitors and trade friends . . . A combination radio and phonograph was presented to John J. Maloney, M-G-M's district manager, from the branch managers of his district and members of the local exchange. A bar was presented to Eddie Moriarty, Leo's local office manager. (Nice fellow this Santa Claus!)

Johnny Harris gifted all his Hornet hockey players with handsome jackets and members of the "Ice Follies" cast with make-up kits . . . Si Steinhauser, Press radio editor; Republic's Sam Fineberg and this corner of Boxoffice *were judges for the Garrick outdoor Christmas lighting contest . . . A. J. Angros, who sold the new Sylvan, Coudersport, to Charlie Fickinger shortly after he had opened it, expects to build another theatre soon, but he isn't saying where . . . Harrisburg Hopper Holds 2,000 Bills

HARRISBURG—The General Assembly will convene next Tuesday in what has been designated by political writers as a "knock-down drag-out" session which may "work" for five or six months while 2,000 bills are thrown into the hopper.

A 3 per cent state personal income tax and a retail sales tax of 2 per cent will come before the lawmakers. Among the perennial bills due for introduction are acts to legalize horse racing and establishing a pari-mutual system of betting, with a percentage taxed by the state; acts licensing pinball devices, slot machines, Bingo games, and such; two-men-in-the-booth measures; possible film tax, state amusement tax and various labor measures which would affect the motion picture industry.

A state lottery act will be introduced in various forms by several members of the legislature.

The present two-body General Assembly would be abolished and replaced by a unicameral legislature under terms of other acts which have been prepared for introduction.

More Relief Aid

PITTSBURGH—Additional contributors to the Filmrow Christmas relief fund were E. S. "Jim" Thorpe, Abe Weiner and William Scott.

Farewell Fete Given For O. E. Belles

CLEVELAND—M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, and the managers of the circuit theatres tendered a testimonial dinner at the Tavern last Monday in honor of O. E. Belles who is retiring after being manager of the Haltnorth Theatres continuously for the past 18 years.

Belles has been active in the exhibition of motion pictures in Cleveland since 1915. At that time he bought the Main Theatre and operated it until 1923 when it was destroyed by fire. Soon after that he joined the Washington circuit. From 1920 to 1921 he served as president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association.

Those attending the testimonial dinner were: M. B. Horwitz, Miss Eva Urdang, secretary to Horwitz; H. J. Mandelbaum, manager of the Plaza; H. L. Horwitz, manager of the Astor; Sanford Leavitt, booking manager; E. F. McBride, manager of the Falls Theatre, Cuyahoga Falls; Lawrence Sutphen, manager of the Alhambra, Cuyahoga Falls, and Ed Cole, who succeeds Belles as manager at the Haltnorth. Frank Belles, Republic salesman, and son of O. E. Belles, was also present.

Belles was presented with a gold watch and chain and attached pocket knife.

Charity Activities Carry Over Into the New Year

DETROIT—Holiday charity activities of show business continue to be spotlighted locally, carrying the spirit of the season right over into 1941.

On Saturday, David M. Idzal, managing director of the 6,000-seat Fox, was host to thousands of crippled and convalescent children from Detroit hospitals and clinics. "Tin Can" matinees may be a relatively new idea in Detroit, but William Richmond, manager of the Lincoln Park, in the suburb of that name, has been staging one annually for a dozen years. His latest drew 2,000 youngsters. The cans of food realized were distributed to indigents through the Goodfellows.

Don Reilly

LORAIN, OHIO—Don Reilly, 27 years old, and a Warner employe for the past eight years, was killed the day before Christmas when his automobile ran into a telephone pole as he was en route from Lorain where he had been visiting his parents, to Lima, where he is manager of Warner's State Theatre. Surviving, in addition to his parents, is a brother, George, of Elwood, Pa.

Back to Burwell

PARKERSBURG, W. VA.—The Burwell here has reverted to N. C. Burwell, owner. House had been operated under lease by R. J. "Riney" Hiehle, local exhibitor, since its opening several years ago. Burwell's new manager is Bruce Day.

CINCINNATI

GENERAL changes at the M-G-M exchange followed the promotion of John Allen, city salesman, to the Washington branch managership. Popular William Devanney steps into Allen's shoes. "Bud" Weigel, head booker, assumes office managership, succeeding Devanney. Tom Smiley becomes head booker; Mike Berger, assistant head booker; Bob Cummings, third booker, and Bob Saunders, formerly general clerk, fourth booker. Allen was presented with a handsome set of luggage by the Variety Club and a desk lamp and radio set by the Cinema Club, at their joint testimonial celebration.

Loew's branch manager, E. M. Booth, and Mrs. Booth spent Christmas in Lafayette, Ind., with Mrs. Booth's family . . . According to George Gomersall, Bob Harrell of the Avalon, Cleves, will tour Ft. Myers, Fla., in his "1929 Ford Model A," recently acquired. And all his friends hope he makes it . . . Lee Goldberg of PRC arrived in Cincinnati from the Cleveland exchange for a several days' visit with Nat Kaplan . . . Warner's Constance Owens was in charge of the Warner Club's highly successful Christmas party, held at the Metropole.

Praised in the passing parade this week on the Row, was Garland Jones, operator of the Queen Anne and Victor, Cincy suburban houses, for his long years of association in the industry. Thoroughly alive to suburban opportunities, Jones belongs to such pioneers as Herman Bley, Andy Hettisheimer, Jerome Jackson, "Doc" Kalb and A. J. Holt. He also operates a house in Frankfort, Ky. . . . "Santa Fe Trail," according to reports filtering in to the local office, will be a top grosser. Much comment is heard on the whistle-able qualities of the theme song, "Santa Fe Trail."

L. B. Wilson, Wilson Theatres, Covington, Ky., and also operator of WCKY, is expected here around January 6 from his recent holiday visit to Florida. Mrs. Wilson is delaying to make a prolonged trip through South America . . . Frank Weitzel, Kenwood, W. Va., visited the Row . . . O. B. Pearce, Opera House, Grandville, was also here . . . Ruth Rudin has been added to the Universal staff . . . Jack Mervis, former manager in Newport, Ky., and now operating four houses in and around Pittsburgh, was along the Row.

Jim Curran, Columbia head booker, was summoned to his home in Melrose, Mass., by the death of his father . . . Milt Gurian, city salesman for Monogram, and Mrs. Gurian spent the holidays in Cleveland . . . Max Goldberg, Falmouth, Ky., exhibitor, has left to join the Naval Reserves at Santiago . . . Nat Kaplan announces "The Devil Bat" booked in Cincinnati and Dayton . . . Lowell Calvert, Selznick representative from New York, was here for the local opening of "GWTW" at popular prices. The opening business was reported highly satisfactory.

Elizabeth Redmond and John Reusch observed their fifth and seventh anniversaries, respectively, with M-G-M the day after New Year's. The real veteran of the exchange, however, is Edna Ossege, who ran her years of service for Leo to 20 a day later. Esther Shedd rounds out her second year with the company on Monday.

CLEVELAND

THE Abe Kramers of Associated Circuit, including their three daughters and son-in-law, are among the first of the colony to arrive in Florida . . . Abe Schwartz of the Lexington Theatre in Cleveland and the Lake in Painesville, left last Thursday, a week later than originally planned on account of Mrs. Schwartz's illness. Their address for the rest of the winter is Miami.

Miss Eva Urdang, secretary to M. B. Horwitz of the Washington circuit, spent Christmas in New York . . . Norman and Mrs. Levin of United Artists entertained a party of friends at their home on Christmas . . . A. M. Goodman, United Artists branch manager, who has been recovering from a recent illness at Clearwater, Fla., writes home that he will be back in harness about the middle of January.

Christmas night business at downtown houses was good, it is officially reported. Christmas Eve and Christmas matinee, however, were not . . . Floyd Price, Newark Theatre owner, invited the local film folks to attend the formal opening on December 27 of his Sarasota Lido in Sarasota, Fla.

Mike Krasman of the Loew State organization, who went with the National Guards to Camp Shelby at Hattiesburg, Miss., received his corporal's stripes for a Christmas present . . . Happy to report that Lester Zucker, Columbia branch manager, is on the okey list again after a brief illness . . . Lou Walters, National Theatre Supply manager, won plenty of "thank yous" for those letter files he gave out for Christmas presents.

Variety Club starts an innovation next week. It has engaged a dancing teacher to give rhumba lessons . . . I. J. Schmertz, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, and Mrs. Schmertz and their daughter, Esty, are vacationing in Florida for two weeks.

Effie Baxter of the local M-G-M exchange observed her 21st year with the company on Saturday.

CORRECTION—National Screen Service boys have formed a basketball team—not a bowling team, as erroneously stated last week. Confident of their prowess, they are inviting contests along Filmrow.

Bill Brooks, former Paramount booker now with Paramount in Pittsburgh, and his wife and child, were in Cleveland over the Christmas holidays and warmly greeted by all on Filmrow.

Plan Two Theatres In Detroit Suburb

DETROIT—Construction of two theatres on opposite corners in the now theatreless suburb of Allen Park is planned, one, a 900-seater, by Max Allen, who owns the nearby Lincoln Park, and the other by Nicholas George, a newcomer to show business, who discloses plans for a 1,500 seat house tentatively named the Allen Park, despite the fact Allen planned to call his either the Allen or the Allen Park.

George's house would be just across the street from Allen's, and would include eight stores at a cost of $125,000. Plans are being drawn by Bennett and Straight, theatrical architects. One possible hitch in George's plans appears in the need to secure closing of an alley for the construction. A petition seeking this right is now before the town council.

General Film Laboratory Takes Over Defunct Plant

DETROIT — The recently incorporated General Film Laboratory has taken over the business of the old Detroit Film Laboratories including the building and equipment at 66 Sibley Street.

The company is specializing in development and printing work for the various commercial film studios in this area.

Edwin Busby, who was receiver for Detroit Laboratories when that firm went into receivership, is the new general manager.

Up Robert Lytle

LORAIN, OHIO—Succeeding Donald Reilly, who was killed near here in an automobile accident December 24, Robert Lytle has been named manager of the Warner Palace in Lima. For the last seven years, Lytle has been assistant manager of the theatre.

Joins Mervis Bros.

PITTSBURGH—E. W. Smith, former manager of the Melrose, this week joined the Mervis Bros. circuit as manager of the Paramount, Brighton Road.

"Enclosed find my first contribution to your 'Exhibitor Has His Say.' I read your magazine from cover to cover every Monday morn and am only glad to contribute to your new department and will eagerly await the first publication."

Shows Yield to Shops In Pre-Holiday Week

BOSTON—New records in pre-holiday shopping skidded Boston first-run theatres to low grosses with not even such draws as "Little Nellie Kelly" and "Trail of the Vigilantes" hitting even average business. Dull weather helped somewhat. Details for week ended December 24:

Fenway—Here Comes the Navy (WB); Melody and Moonlight (Rep) 50
Keith Memorial—Trail of the Vigilantes (Univ); Dreaming Out Loud (RKO) 75
Loew's Orpheum—Little Nellie Kelly (M-G-M); Escape to Glory (Col) 85
Loew's State—Little Nellie Kelly (M-G-M); Escape to Glory (Col) 80
Metropolitan—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox); Murder Over New York (20th-Fox), 2nd wk.. 45
Paramount—Here Comes the Navy (WB); Melody and Moonlight (Rep) 50

Pre-Holiday Pursuits Shove Back Grosses

NEW HAVEN—Heavy pre-Christmas shopping in stores kept film patrons away in droves, and the second week of "Go West" and "Gallant Sons" at the College was the only bill to approach the average line. Xmas opening of new bills cut three of the four houses downtown to a six-day week.

Detail for week ended December 25:

College—Go West (M-G-M); Gallant Sons (M-G-M), 2nd wk. 85
Loew-Poli—Dr. Kildare's Crisis (M-G-M); Dulcy (M-G-M), 6 days 50
Paramount—A Night at Earl Carroll's (Para't); She Couldn't Say No (FN), 6 days..... 50
Roger Sherman—East of the River (FN); The Lady With Red Hair (WB) 75

Hub Majestic Tentatively Picked for "Fantasia"

BOSTON—The Majestic, generally dark Shubert house, has been tentatively set as the roadshow site for "Fantasia," it is reported. The Repertory in Back Bay was considered but finally ruled out, word has it, because of the extended run of "Life With Father," starring Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern.

Business Is Picking Up After Holiday Slump

HARTFORD — Business since Christmas Day has been picking up noticeably in this city. The WB's Strand, for the first week in some time, reported SRO business with "The Thief of Bagdad." The E. M. Loew's started what Manager George E. Landers hoped would be a month's run of "Arizona."

Looks Like Lydon

BOSTON—Frank Lydon, operator of the Hamilton in Dorchester who recently became Allied States Association northeastern regional vice-president, is expected to be unopposed this year for re-election as president of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., New England key Allied affiliate. The organization's annual meeting is scheduled for sometime this month, probably after the National Allied confab in Washington.

M&P Buying and Booking Practices Aired in Suit

BOSTON—Buying and booking practices of the M&P Theatres Corp., New England Paramount affiliate operating some one hundred houses, have been aired here as a part of the Waldo Theatre Corp. vs. the late Joseph Dondis et al. anti-trust case being heard in the local Federal Building before Francis P. Freeman, master appointed by U. S. District Judge John A. Peters of Maine.

Al Bevan, assistant buyer and booker to Philip Seletsky at M&P, told the court that the Mullin-Pinanski operating firm had discontinued "about four years ago" the practice of sending to distributors schedules of protection desired.

An Objection Upheld

George S. Ryan, representing the plaintiff corporation which operates the Waldo in Waldoboro, Me., asked Bevan what method the M&P Theatres Corp. had adopted in order to arrive at protection agreements. Bevan replied, "We took the schedule that we had for the previous year and set down the distributors and tried to make a new one for the coming season."

"Would the result of your conference as to protection be reduced to writing?" Bevan replied that such was the practice.

"Would it then be signed," Ryan continued, "by someone representing the M&P and someone representing the distributor?"

"They used to do it."

"How long did they do it?"

"Maybe a couple of years."

"And then did they make any change?"

"Yes."

"When would you say it was that they stopped signing these written agreements in regard to protection?"

Question on Protection

Edward F. McClennen, defense counsel, objected to this query and the court ruled it as a pretty broad and general question. The question was struck from the records.

"During the last season," questioned Ryan, "that is the season of 1940-41, did you make any agreements with any of the distributors in regard to any protection for any of the M&P theatres?"

"Yes. Some have been finished and some have not."

"Have those agreements been reduced to writing?"

"Yes."

"With what companies?"

"Metro, RKO and Fox."

"As to Paramount, has there been any written agreement?"

"With some of the theatres, but it isn't all completed yet."

"Has there been any agreement with Warner for this season's protection," queried Ryan further.

"No."

"Or United Artists?"

"Yes. It isn't finished."

"Universal?"

"In part."

"Columbia?"

"Columbia? No."

"Are you buying Columbia pictures generally this season?"

"I don't know how to answer that. We haven't up to the present time; if that is what you want to know. What we will do in the future I don't know."

"Did you buy them last season?" asked Ryan.

"No," responded Al Bevan, M&P buyer's assistant.

"Now for the 1939-40 season were written agreements made with any of the distributors in regard to protection?"

"Yes."

"With what companies?"

"All those that we did business with."

"And was it the same the previous season?"

"Yes."

"And the season before that?"

"Yes. Except . . . Just a minute. Warner Brothers haven't had a new clearance agreement for the last three or four years. They are still working on the last one we made with them."

"Was that a written agreement?"

"Yes."

"Was it signed by a representative of the distributors and a representative of the M&P?"

"Yes. I think that last year that we had it it was. Yes."

Back to 1930

"Now, since 1930 was there any method of negotiating the protection other than the method of sending out schedules and the method of signing agreements which you have described?"

An objection by McClennen followed the query but was not upheld, however Ryan found it necessary to reframe the question, to "Was there another way of arriving at protection other than sending out schedules or by getting a written agreement?"

"Yes."

"What was it?"

"Just go up to the exchanges and sit down and negotiate with them and reason with each other as to why you should or shouldn't have what you were asking for."

"And has it been the practice to have the result of your negotiations reduced to writing?"

"Yes."

"Have you made it a practice to get the agreement in regard to protection for the various theatres reduced to writing?"

"Yes."

John F. Caskey, 20th-Fox attorney, objected that Ryan was "attempting to suggest to the court that there was one period of time when there were schedules sent out, and some time later there was a period when there were negotiations which consummated in written agreements. I don't understand that there was such an agreement. My understanding is that there have always been negotiations in

New Haven Neighborhood Houses Hold Late Shows

NEW HAVEN — Although several neighborhoods had announced they would omit the late show this year, policy was changed at the 11th hour and 1941 was ushered in with three downtown and seven neighborhood shows. The Paramount was the only house downtown to run vaudeville, and seats were $1.10 all through the house. The Loew-Poli and Roger Sherman charged 50-75 cents, the latter changing prices at 6 p. m. instead of midnight, and featuring the opening of "Santa Fe Trail" right through the day. The Poli brought "Flight Command" for a single midnight performance, to be returned for a regular engagement the following week.

Nabes stuck to pictures for the most part, although the Whally and Whitney featured several acts. The Dixwell booked "Reefer Madness" and "How to Take a Bath." Other nabes open late were the Strand, Pequot, Rivoli and Forest.

Premiere "First Romance"

HARTFORD—The world premiere of Monogram's "Her First Romance," starring Edith Fellows, was held at the local Harris Brothers' State last weekend.

NEW HAVEN

WITH several exchange Xmas parties staged at fashionable night clubs this year, Meadow Street lacked its usual pre-Christmas holiday aspect, and office parties were exclusive, early afternoon affairs, at United Artists, 20th-Fox, Metro, and Loew-Poli. Politeers gave the boss a gift of cash, and he distributed handsome gifts . . . National Theatre Supply had liquid refreshments and a cheery greeting for all who entered . . . Formal parties were a complete success at the Waverly Inn for Warner's; Oakdale Tavern, Metro and Paramount; Seven Gables Inn for Columbians, and Hotel Taft, Loew-Poli staff . . . Lou Brown's "radio" script, acted at the Poli party by Elliott Kronish, Mickey Mattes, Mrs. Lou Brown, and John McQuigan, was a hilarious hit with the 130 employes of the division and theatres present . . . Harry Shaw subbed at the drums, and Harry Rose at the bass fiddle . . . Lou Cohen was m. c. par excellence . . . Mrs. Morris Mendelsohn copped all the prizes . . . At Metro party, new Manager Morey Goldstein made a speech that dubbed him a "regular fellow." George Weber took beautiful closeups of honor guests. Wolf-Donaldson-Goldstein, and others proving conclusively that Frank Mullen forgot himself to the extent of doing the Conga.

Reservations have already come in from Tom Connors of New York home office of Metro; Joseph L. Stein of New York, Maurice N. Wolf of Boston, and other executives for the farewell testimonial dinner to Thomas G. Donaldson, at the Hotel Taft, January 14. A record crowd is expected to attend to wish Donaldson well on the eve of his departure for his new Boston managership . . . Harry F. Shaw and Barney Pitkin, co-chairmen, promise the event will be outstanding . . . Charlie Lazarus, Metro booker, is treasurer . . . Maurice N. Wolf will emcee.

The Lincoln closed for the duration of the Yale holiday, and manager Jean DuBarry and wife went off to New York to hit the high spots . . . Mr. and Mrs. W. J. E. Brown came in from Washington to visit with the Lou Browns for the holidays . . . Bill Reisinger, Bijou manager, recovered from the grippe just in time to surprise the folks in Dayton, Ohio, with a visit on Xmas Day.

George Weber, Metro checking super, back in New Haven after working for three weeks in the New York territory . . . Jeanette Berliner, Republic booker, is sporting a handsome new two-tone gold watch, a Xmas gift from a New York boy friend . . . Mrs. Sam Rosen is recuperating at home after an operation at New Haven Hospital . . . Jim Memery, Loew-Poli artist, took Mrs. and Jimmy to Pepperill, Mass., for the holidays . . . Dave Kaufman, Loew-Poli division artist, was official photographer at his brother's wedding in New York, Xmas Day.

Harry F. Shaw, Poli "boss," spent Xmas with his mother, Mrs. Ida Shaw, in Bridgeport . . . Mary Barone, Columbia inspectress, ill at home last week as a result of an auto accident . . . Tim O'Toole, Columbia manager, spent a week in Harrisburg, Pa. . . . William Benson, Universal salesman, dashed into Long Island to spend Xmas with his family, and back again Thursday morning . . . Mrs. Fred Quatrano of the Lido, Waterbury, was dismissed from the hospital in time to spend the holidays with her family . . . Andrew Sharick, wound up an exchange tour in New Haven, and hurried on to N. Y. for the Yule season . . . Come the New Year, I. J. Hoffman is probably looking forward to his annual winter vacation in Florida . . . Manager Barney Pitkin of RKO and Manager Lou Wechsler of United Artists are also contemplating early experiences of "Moon Over Miami."

Mortie Kressner of the Plaza, Stamford, reports 500 were turned away at the opening of "Thief of Bagdad" . . . Cash Quiz moves next into the Strand, Gloucester, and Strand, Skowhegan . . . When the present Bijou amateur contest series is finished, winner each week will be pitted against each other in groups of eight, four eliminated each week, until the grand finals are reached, with about 16 competing. No lack of talent or waning of interest evident.

Vernon Burns conducted the Xmas Eve vaude in the absence of Manager Bill Reisinger, then on sick leave . . . Bunny LeWitt of Plainville is a double for your Columbia shipper, Sid Lax . . . The Loew-Poli ushers' Xmas turkey raffle was won by Harold Rudnick, Claire Canavan, and Mary Innocenzi, and the boys are already counting the proceeds toward another dance . . . Sal Demano, former assistant at the Bijou, is married to Fay Morgan and living in Glens Falls.

The Russell-Rubin corner piece for "Flight Command" at the Poli throws fluorescent lighting to good advantage on a big suspended airplane cutout, surrounded by small revolving planes . . . New Year's Eve sound truck was used by the Poli . . . Also Russell revived the popular football heralds for the New Year's week games . . . Monk Maloney offered prizes to students at the Worcester Art Museum School for best reproductions of American painters' sets for "The Long Voyage Home" . . . Huge "Thief of Bagdad" float brought to Bridgeport for opening of the picture, made the press with art and copy.

The boys at the Bijou gave Harry Shaw a surprise when they blacked out the stage in the middle of the Amateur Show, put on the green spotlight, and produced an ape to run Boss Harry off the stage. It was all in preparation for the engagement of "The Ape."

Mike Thomasino and the boys are reminiscing rather more than usual and with unusual tenderness about the days when there was action and excitement on Meadow Street . . . Such as white-washing cars, horseplay, and a good fist fight.

January 1 marked Charles Lazarus' fifth anniversary with M-G-M. Come January 13, Edith Williams, also of the local staff, will have been with the company 11 years.

'Scarface' Reissue Submits To Several Shearings

BOSTON — Neatness doesn't count in Massachusetts, at least when it pertains to men picking up brassieres that during the course of events have fallen to the floor. The first-reel scene of such procedure has been deleted from the reissue of "Scarface" being distributed here by Northeastern Film Company. Other Bay State cuts on the feature, including banning of the entire prologue, are:

"Dialogue 'Lady's house alibi;' all scenes showing Poppy in apartment in lingerie, in part 2. Scenes showing Scarface bombing and shooting up barrooms; scenes showing Scarface shooting patients in hospital in part 3. Scenes showing man being thrown from car and body lying in gutter, in part 4. Scene showing body falling from car; all scenes showing machine gunning of cafes, in part 5. All scenes showing machine gunning of cars, trucks and people; scene showing Valentine massacre; all scenes showing dead bodies of gang on floor, in part 6. Scenes showing bowling alley murder; scenes showing Scarface tearing strap from gown and slapping sister; scenes showing machine gunning of Scarface's car, in part 7. Scene showing Tony shooting Quino in sister's apartment, in part 9."

Thirty-five other motion pictures were approved by Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney in an accompanying list.

Bridgeport Post is running a serialization of "Kitty Foyle," coming to the Warner. The story was planted by Harry Reiners of the RKO Radio home office and is the first time in more than 20 years that the paper has cooperated with a motion picture to the extent of running a full-length novel . . . New England Division Manager Harry F. Shaw and his wife, Flo, were in the city for a visit with Shaw's mother and sister.

Waldo Theatre Suit Airs M&P Buying, Booking Practices

every year. Separately conducted with each company."

Bevan told the court that he doesn't assist Phil Seletsky in buying production but that he was familiar with the practice M&P employs in booking their films. Ryan asked him for the details.

On Availability Sheets

"Well," said Bevan, "you have your release sheets, or availability sheets, from the exchanges. And you use your own good judgment as to where you put them into the theatres."

"Well, now, when you say 'availability sheets from the exchanges,' do you mean that the distributor will send your company a notice in writing stating that certain films specified are available for booking in certain theatres at specified dates?"

"They do that in most theatres, yes."

McClennen interrupted at this point with the question, "When you say 'on,' you mean on or after certain dates? You don't mean to imply that those sheets fix the dates. That they are available at a certain time and thereafter?"

Ryan replied, "And thereafter. Yes."

"Well, are there some of these notices of availability that don't specify any time that picture shall become available?" asked Ryan.

"No," replied Al Bevan.

"For theatres where you are permitted to book on national release date, did you get notice of availability for those theatres?"

"Sometimes they send them and sometimes they don't."

"And how did you ascertain when they became available for first run houses in the big cities?"

"From the national release sheets."

"Do you get those from the distributors?"

"Yes."

"After you get those national release sheets, or notices of availability, is it your practice to send to the distributor a written booking request of some nature?"

"Yes."

"And that gives him the dates that you would like to use the picture at a certain theatre?"

"Yes."

"And in the usual course of business does the distributor then send you a confirmation of the booking, if the date is satisfactory to the distributor?"

"Yes."

"And if the date is not satisfactory do you get some other form of notice?"

"They usually call you up."

"And ask for another date?"

"Yes. Just iron it out between yourselves as to when you will play it."

"Then you receive from the distributor a notice of the booking of the picture for a particular theatre?"

"Yes."

"Pay in a Week"

"Do invoices from distributors of the film come to you?"

"No."

"Are you familiar with the method of payment for the films?"

"Not very. No."

"Do you know whether or not M&P Theatres has any credit period?"

"Yes. Yes, they have."

"What period is it?"

"From my knowledge, the pictures we play last week we pay for this week."

"Is that the same with all companies?"

"Yes."

"Including Paramount?"

"Yes."

"Is Philip Seletsky . . . (This Philip Seletsky who is the buyer and booker) . . . was he at one time in the New York office of Paramount?"

"Yes."

"Was his business then connected with the buying and booking of films?"

"Yes."

"Is there an L. D. Netter connected with the buying and booking of Paramount?"

"Yes."

"And where is he located?"

"New York."

"What are his duties in connection with the Paramount theatres at the present time?"

An objection was raised at this point and sustained.

"At that time," questioned George S. Ryan," was not Sam Dembow jr., an assistant buyer and booker?"

"I think Sam at that time had charge of everything in connection with theatres that were operated by Publix."

"At that time was Netter operating in the capacity of an assistant to him?"

"Yes, I understand so."

"You have been in New York, haven't you?"

"Only once. And I didn't see him."

Refer to Maine Operation

"During the past four or five years have you negotiated protection for Rockland, Maine?"

"Yes."

"Did you bring any of the contracts in regard to Rockland?"

"Yes, I think we have everything except 1936-7 which are at the storehouse. They are trying to dig them out now."

Ryan, getting Bevan to outline the Rockland situation, got into the testimony the fact that M&P books and buys for two theatres in the Maine community, the Strand and Park, the former being classified as an "A" house and the latter as a "B" house.

Ryan asked if the Park has been running seven days a week.

"Not until approximately a year ago," Bevan replied.

"Was the same true with both the Strand and the Park? Not running Sundays until about a year ago?"

"No. The Strand—The Strand ran Sundays for the last three or four years."

"Did the Park Theatre run double feature bills Friday and Saturday?"

"Sometimes. Yes."

"What is the seating capacity of each of those theatres?"

"I don't know offhand, but I think the Strand is about 800 and the Park about 700."

Hearings in the litigation are scheduled to resume January 7.

To Consider Request

WEST HARTFORD, CONN.—The town council's requested appropriation of $20,000 for purchase of an entire block as a site for a proposed recreational center will be considered by the board of finance at a meeting shortly. Charles T. Treadway jr., board chairman, announces.

To Phillips Post

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—E. R. "Chief" Engel, formerly with the Springfield fire department, has succeeded Henry Rickaby as assistant manager at the Phillips.

Boston Councillor Calls For Action on Beano

BOSTON—On the eve of filing a bill for state legislation of Beano, City Councillor P. D. Chase of Boston, seeking banning of the game, declared that the Beano take in Massachusetts is approximately $10,000,000 annually. "Most of the money," Chase alleged, "is pocketed by the operators who are openly and flagrantly violating the law" which says that Beano may be played only for charity.

"The millions made from Beano," Chase contended, "are not going to charity but to professional racketeers. I believe the Commonwealth should investigate and clean up the game in the state.

"The regular law enforcement agencies have either been very lax or have deliberately closed their eyes to the situation. It is known that many of these games are operated by racketeers, and I feel certain that if an investigation is made the resulting disclosures will be shocking to the public."

Theatre boxoffices have long suffered here from Beano competition.

A Bill Filed to Empower State to Handle Beano

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—State supervision of Beano is called for in a bill filed with the state house of representatives' clerk. A license would be issued by the state racing commission and promoters would turn back over 25 per cent of the monetary handle to the municipality and 12½ per cent to the state to help reduce taxes.

Massachusetts Factory Employment in a Gain

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Contrary to the usual seasonal decline, employment increased in Massachusetts factories between mid-October and mid-November, the state department of labor and industries announced last week. Compared with November a year ago, employment was up three per cent and wages were 7.6 per cent greater.

Hold "Souls in Pawn"

BOSTON—Harry Asher of Producers Releasing Corp. signed last week with E. M. Loew for a fourth consecutive week of "Souls in Pawn" at the Gayety in downtown Boston. The continued holdover has given the roadshow the long distance record for recent weeks in local theatres.

DORCHESTER, MASS.—Upham's Corner, 1,200-seater operated here by Frederick E. Lieberman, is being improved with RCA sound and new booth and screen equipment.

Ball by Local 486

HARTFORD—Local 486, IATSE, will sponsor a ball sometime in February. Details have not been arranged as yet.

: Pre-Decree Business :

BOSTON—The transaction of a motion picture theatre three decades ago wasn't the costly and weighty matter it is today. Here's the way they used to do it in 1908, reveals Walter E. Young, present operator of the Strand in Farmington, N. H., and one of the parties involved in the deal.

"Walter E. Young of Rochester, N. H., and Arthur W. Whitney of Boston, Mass., agree as follows," reads the document which is signed by both the aforementioned parties. "The said Young agrees to sell to said Whitney his one-half interest in the Moving Picture Business, known as the Kosy Theatre in the said Rochester for the sum of $39.11 and the said Whitney is to pay the sum of five dollars every week until the $39.11 is paid.

"Now it is agreed that the sum of five dollars which the said Whitney pays every week shall be considered rent for the use of said business if he shall fail to pay any or all of the payments as they shall become due. The first payment shall be due the 26th day of November, 1908. The possession of said business is in the other partner, Edwin F. Dame, until full payment. The said Whitney and Dame are hereafter liable for the debts of the partnership.

Dated this 19th day of November, 1908."

Springfield Film Council Issues Classified List

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The Springfield Motion Picture Council announced its "classified list of forthcoming films" as follows:

Suitable for adults only—"The Long Voyage Home."

Suitable for both adults and young people—"Second Chorus," "Comrade X," "Flight Command," "Love Thy Neighbor," "This Thing Called Love," "Son of Monte Cristo," "Margie," "Gallant Sons," "Melody Ranch," "Chad Hanna," "Boys of the City," "Tom Brown's School Days," "Santa Fe Trail," "Arizona" and "Thief of Bagdad."

Many Bostonians to Attend Donaldson Testimonial

BOSTON—A large Boston contingent planned to attend the Tom Donaldson testimonial dinner at the Taft in New Haven next Tuesday. The affair will mark the return here of Donaldson, former New Haven branch manager for M-G-M and new Boston branch manager. Maurice Goldstein, Boston salesman, replacing Donaldson in New Haven, will be a guest of honor at the affair.

Schulmans Pay Bonus

HARTFORD—A Christmas bonus, based on length of service in the employ of the company, has been paid to all regular employes of the Schulmans' Rivoli, Webster, and Plaza-Windsor theatres, it was announced last week by Maurice Schulman.

Send Unclaimed Articles To China and Finland

HARTFORD—All lost and unclaimed articles which have accumulated in the local Loew's Poli and Loew's Poli Palace theatres during the past six months will be given away to the needy of China and Finland, it is announced by Jack A. Simons, Loew's Poli manager.

The first shipment abroad, composed of four large cartons, will be made as soon as the theatres' employes have brought in old clothes to add to the boxes of gloves, scarfs, shoes, rubbers, and hats left in the theatres. The management, Simons said, is donating cashiers' blouses and skirts as well as blankets made out of old drapery. Other shipments are to be made at three-month intervals.

Ansonia Capitol Marks Its 20th Anniversary

ANSONIA, CONN.—Last Friday night marked the 20th anniversary of the opening of the Capitol, built by I. J. Hoffman in 1920.

The 20th anniversary year of the Warner unit has been marked by a complete renovation, including a new marquee, new electric lights, and a new lobby.

John R. Shields has been manager of the Capitol for the past 14 years.

A full page of congratulatory advertisements by local merchants, marked the anniversary.

Concord Loses a Pioneer Showman in D. J. Adams

CONCORD, N. H.—Concord has lost one of its pioneer film exhibitors in the death of David J. Adams, who, as manager of White's Opera House in this city, made it one of New Hampshire's leading theatres.

Following destruction of the Opera House by fire, Adams for several years conducted a motion picture business in the Concord City Auditorium.

He was also an expert stage carpenter, and, at various times, had served leading performers who came to Concord in "road company" days.

Daniel Schwartz Named Jefferson Assistant

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—William Powell, division manager of the Herman Rifkin Theatres here, announces the appointment of Daniel Schwartz, formerly associated with Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., at the Victory, Holyoke, to the newly created post of assistant manager at the Jefferson here.

Handling Film Alliance

BOSTON—Marcel Mekelburg of Northeastern Film Co. will release the Film Alliance lineup in the Boston trade territory, it is announced by Norman Elson, FA's general sales manager.

Texas Variety's Ball Draws 700 Guests

DALLAS—"An American Party" elaborately staged in the Grand Ball Room of the Adolphus Hotel during the waning hours of last year well into 1941 by the Variety Club of Texas under direction of its newly elected Chief Barker Paul Short, furnished New Year's entertainment for some 700 members and guests, many of whom were from other towns in the southwest.

While the affair was more than colorful a cloud arose in the program of the party in that R. J. O'Donnell, retiring chief barker, was confined at his home with flu and was not on hand to emcee and to induct all the new officers and directors for the coming year as was planned. For that reason, it was pointed out, the induction will come later, probably at the testimonial luncheon for O'Donnell next Monday noon and likewise in the Grand Ball Room.

Paul Short, however, started the party with a microphone introduction of General William McCraw. In turn McCraw introduced the luminaries at their tables which included Kate Smith, Grantland Rice, Clarence Budington Kelland, Bruce Cabot, James Craig, Jim Crowley, the Fordham coach; Homer Norton, A&M coach, the latter two figuring strongly in the Cotton Bowl encounter, and several others.

Following this brief ceremony the American dinner was served with squab being the piece de resistance. Dancing to Hyman Charninsky's hotel and theatre orchestra made for a crowded floor. Biggest in the fun was the floor show in which a dance team individually picked out exhibitors, Barkers and their ladies to perform in the professional manner in old and new dance steps.

After midnight the big name bands here headed by Henry Busse came over from their respective stands for a sort of jam music session for the Barkers.

Some left the dance at two, others at four, with the party ending only a short time before day. The Cotton Bowl game Wednesday was the next highlight for nearly all who attended.

While the out-of-towners were here in large numbers, a few whose names are recalled here for the Variety party, the Cotton Bowl, or both, were: Ray Morrow, of Malvern, Ark.; Henry Rogers, Sweetwater; Harry Hardgrave and wife of Sherman; Yuill Robb, Big Spring; Ed Rowley jr. of the University of Texas; Bruce Collins of Corpus Christi; Audry Cox and Mrs. Cox of Lamesa; W. E. Cox, Seminole; Raymond Cornes and Mrs. Cornes, Farmersville; M. D. Stewart and wife of DeLeon; J. N. Stewart and wife of Kaufman; W. J. Chesher of Littlefield; B. R. McLendon of Atlanta; Lee Smith of Knox City, all of whom are connected with the operation of theatres outside of Dallas.

Coach Jim Crowley Speaker At Monday Luncheon

DALLAS—At the Variety luncheon Monday, visiting coach Jim Crowley, of Fordham, was the principal speaker and was lauded for his talent as an orator. He impersonated Knute Rockne in one of the famous coaches between halves pep talks. Crowley played for Notre Dame under Rockne. Incidentally, he pointed out, the K in Knute is not silent.

The Best in All Texas—

This is the front Major H. S. Cole, operating the Best, Elite and American theatres in Bonham, constructed over the latter house for the holiday season. The attention-getting display was originated by Cole who directed local artists and craftsmen in its construction. Three separate paintings, arranged in three different planes, lend the appearance of heighth and distance. Indirect lighting illuminates the display which is made of canvas and cut-out work. The entire setting is 50 feet wide and 20 feet high and represents an expenditure of $300. Amplified chimes played the traditional melodies during the time the set was up.

NEW ORLEANS—Weather proved a heavy competitor to the key houses, and the neighborhoods as well, there being only one clear day in the pre-Christmas week. The shopping season was the best in years with Canal Street ablaze with lights and decorated windows. The troops (about 3,000) came to town from Camp Beauregard and Camp Shelby which added to the gaiety of the scene. The midnight "girl shows," especially at the Lafayette, drew more than capacity. "Christmas in July" at the Saenger made glad the heart of Bob Blair, resident manager, while the "Thief of Bagdad" more than repaid those who braved the weather. "No, No, Nanette," at the Orpheum, pleased mightily.

Detail for week of December 23:

Center—Seven Sinners (Univ).....100
The film played the Orpheum in November at 200 per cent and was moved to the Liberty where it scored 95 per cent.
Globe—Moon Over Burma (Para't)..... 90
A run at the Saenger in October scored 150.
Liberty—Lone Wolf Keeps a Date (Col).....100
Loew's—Thief of Bagdad (UA) 150
Orpheum—No, No, Nanette (RKO).....150
Saenger—Christmas in July (Para't).....200

Christmas Week Grosses In Dallas Up to Par

DALLAS—Christmas week grosses were well up to par on Elm Street with a good break in fine weather the last half and with Folies Bergere at the Majestic where SRO business was the rule. "Tin Pan Alley" in its third week at the Tower proved to be the sensation of recent weeks.

Detail for week ending December 28:

Capitol—Give Us Wings (Univ) 125
Capitol—Here Comes the Navy (WB) (reissue).125
Majestic—The Bank Dick (Univ).....180
Folies Bergere on stage boosted gross here to the near double mark.
Palace—Go West (M-G-M).....110
Palace—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't).....125
Opened Christmas Day for a possible 10-day run.
Rialto—Hullabaloo (M-G-M) 90
Played four days.
Rialto—Gallant Sons (M-G-M) 100
Played three days. Our Gang comedy kids on stage failed to elevate the gross.

Back From PRC Meet

DALLAS—Jack K. Adams, of the Adams Film Exchanges, and Jack Adams jr., of the same organization, are back from New York where they sat in on a franchise owner meeting of Producers Releasing Corp. when product in the making and future releases were discussed. The Adams exchange handles the Producers films in Texas and was interested in making of the franchise deals for Oklahoma, Arkansas and other southwestern states.

Kincey Men Gather

GREENVILLE, S. C.—About 200 Kincey managers, their wives and sweethearts gathered at Hotel Poinsett here for the annual party by the organization. R. B. Talbot of Spartansburg was toastmaster.

MEMPHIS

THE bookers and office managers on the Row were hosts during the holidays at a cocktail party at the Variety Club. Approximately 200 film people enjoyed their hospitality. There were special door prizes for both the ladies and gentlemen. The committee responsible for it all consisted of Ed Doherty, Mark Sheridan, Tom Kirk and Herman Chrisman . . . B. H. Jordan, Universal salesman, and Tony Carruth, Warner's salesman, together with Mrs. Carruth, left the latter part of the week for Atlanta where Ben will visit his mother and the Carruths will be the guests of Mrs. Carruth's parents.

W. A. Rush of the Houston, Houston, Miss., has been confined to his home for the past ten days with the flu . . . M. S. McCord, secretary-treasurer of Malco Theatres in Little Rock, spent several days in Memphis conferring with M. A. Lightman . . . Bill Osborne, Monogram's branch manager, is back at his desk after a conference with John Mangham in Atlanta.

Eric Landeau, manager of the Linden Circle in Memphis, is convalescing at his home after spending three weeks in the hospital following a major operation . . . B. V. "Brooksie" McDougald, who owns and operates the Amusu and Drew theatres in Monticello, Ark., was a visitor Christmas Day.

Alton Sims, R&R booker, and his mother spent the holidays in Dallas with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sims . . . Exhibitors seen along the Row: George Hale, Globe, Drew Miss.; Guy B. Amis, Princess, Lexington, Tenn.; Jack Wilbanks, Hinz, Walnut, Miss.; W. O. Taylor, Uptown, Dresden, Tenn.; Jack Marshall, Frances, Dyersburg, Tenn.; J. E. Adams, Bruce, Bruce, Miss.; B. F. Jackson, Delta, Ruleville, Miss.; C. W. Tipton, New, Manila, Ark.; H. B. Brewer, Savoy, Clarksdale, Miss.; Jack Watson, Palace, Tunica, Miss.; Bob Martin, Bells, Bells, Tenn.

The holidays brought many familiar faces to Memphis. Among them were Bill and Marie Mattingly, who drove up from Omaha to visit Mrs. Mattingly's parents; Kate and Norman Colquohoun, from New Orleans, and Jimmy and Sarah Frances Prichard of Charlotte . . . Opal Cullum of RKO is back on the job with the aid of crutches after several weeks' absence due to a foot operation . . . The Variety Club was the scene of much laughter and gaiety Christmas Day when M. A. and Mrs. Lightman entertained with a cocktail party.

Homer and Essie Hisey of Warner Bros. spent the holidays with Mr. Hisey's mother in Nashville, Ill. . . . Al Moore, Alice and little Mike enjoyed the holiday season with their parents . . . Lew Andrews, Malco's office manager, says the burglar who entered his home the night before Christmas and took all the gifts from under the tree, plus his best suit, is the "meanest man on earth."

Other Memphis visitors during the holidays were Louis and Juanita Weber (he's Metro's salesman in Dallas), who were visiting Mrs. Weber's parents. Louis was with Metro here for several years before his transfer to Dallas . . . Merritt Davis, Republic's Arkansas salesman, spent the holidays in Charlotte with Mrs. Davis and the children.

Filmrow was saddened on learning of the death of Winfield Snelson's father, Dr. D. M. Snelson, who passed away Christmas morning at his home at Toccoa, Ga. Winfield is branch manager of the local Republic office, and his brother is connected with Al-Dunn Theatres in Toccoa . . . Charles and Mrs. Collier and daughter, Marcia, drove up to Blytheville during the holidays to visit Mrs. Collier's parents. Incidentally, Charles combined business with pleasure as he stopped off on the Row to take care of his bookings.

Gloria Jean, who made a personal appearance at the Malco in conjunction with the showing a "A Little Bit of Heaven," did a terrific juvenile business during her three-day engagement . . . Despite the fact that flu has almost reached the epidemic stage in Memphis and the surrounding territory, all theatres report excellent business.

Herb Cohn, Columbia's ace salesman, postcards season's greetings from New York where he is enjoying a winter vacation . . . The J. A. Wests of the Hollywood in Memphis have been operating their theatre under great odds during the past ten days, as both of them have been fighting the flu. Their son, Allen, who is home from school for the holidays, has been the mainstay . . . Harold Keitle, branch manager for Ross Federal in Dallas, spent the Christmas holidays as a guest of Cliff and Marguerite Wallace, who are at the helm of the local Ross Federal office.

Readying Big Affair For R. J. O'Donnell

DALLAS—Elaborate plans are humming for the big testimonial luncheon to be given by the Variety Club of Texas on Monday, January 6, in the Grand ballroom of the Adolphus Hotel honoring Robert J. O'Donnell, retiring chief barker of Tent No. 17.

Paul Short, newly elected chief barker, has written a personal letter to all barkers stressing this important date. Members are being urged to bring their families, friends and associates. There will be but one speech, that by General William McCraw, who will highlight O'Donnell's outstanding career in show business and in Variety work.

The luncheon starts at 12:15 and tickets are $1. Attendance will be limited to 700, which will include not only circuit and exchange employes, non-resident and local members, but a number of social, civic and business leaders of Dallas and other cities of Texas.

Seaton Adapting "Miami"

HOLLYWOOD—George Seaton is adapting "Miami," Betty Grable starrer for 20th-Fox. The Harry Joe Brown production will be filmed in Technicolor.

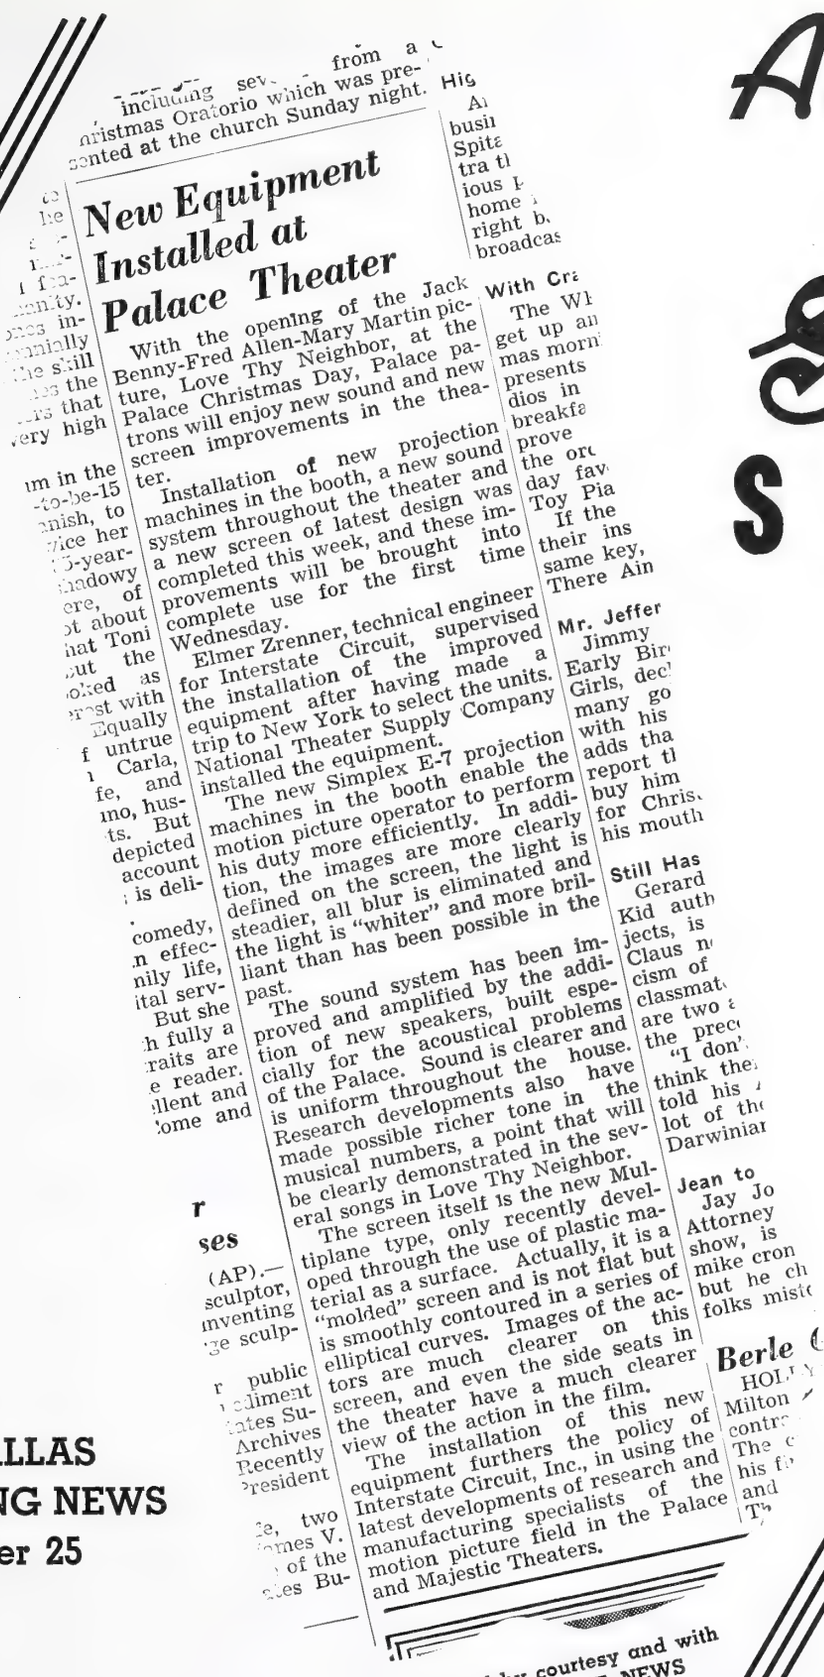
NEW ORLEANS

JOHN L. CALDWELL is building a new theatre in Ruston, La., yet unnamed, which will be opened some time in February . . . Don George of the Glenwood in Shreveport is building a suburban house in Alexandria to take care of the troops at Camp Beauregard.

A. M. Randall has taken over the house controlled by Manager Hughes in Centerville, Miss. . . . A. L. Royal and Monte Hance have sold their Queen Theatre in McComb, Miss., to local interests . . . Vinton L. Thibodeaux of the Fern Theatre, Lafayette, has opened the colored house in Crowley, formerly owned by George Guidry of Elizabeth, La.

Construction has begun on W. A. Prewitt's and Bill Cobb's theatre in Shreveport on Texas St. . . . The Olla Theatre, Olla, La., opened the first week in January . . . A. L. Royal and W. A. Prewitt open the New Royal in Meridian, Miss., January 6 . . . R. O. Sigler and W. A. Prewitt opened the Lake, Greenville, Miss., December 22.

Affiliated Producers local office was closed in observance of the death of Mrs. Martha Brannan, mother of Thomas Brannan, president of the company . . . W. H. Cobb of Exhibitors' Poster Service and family spent the Xmas holidays with his folks in Spring Hill, La. . . . A. N. Lee jr. of Exhibitors Poster Service spent the holidays with his parents in Shreveport . . . The Ritz theatres of New Orleans have purchased the Lutcher in Lutcher, La., and will continue its operation.



The Saengers held their annual Christmas party in the banquet rooms over the Tudor Theatre, attended by executives of the company, managers of the Saenger houses, and managers of the United Chain houses, as well as managers from out of the city.

G. Pipitone has been re-named president of the local (AFL) musicians union . . . Pete Daily, for 11 years a member of the Item editorial staff, is now in Hollywood where he will be a member of the publicity department of Columbia Pictures.

Great preparations are being made for the coming sessions of the Filmrow Hunting Club which meets early in January when the reports of the various committees and officers will be submitted to the membership. The exact date has not been announced, as the secretary says he is too busy—the treasurer is saying nothing but —well that is the way the treasury is supposed to be. It is claimed by the janitor that when the members arrive they will be greeted by a hollow expression on the faces of the dictators.

Visitors to the Row during Xmas week can be reported as nigh zero, the weather being b-a-d and the roads almost impassable owing to rain.

It's seven years with M-G-M for Gladys Villars of the local exchange, come January 13.

New Equipment Installed at Palace Theater

With the opening of the Jack Benny-Fred Allen-Mary Martin picture, Love Thy Neighbor, at the Palace Christmas Day, Palace patrons will enjoy new sound and new screen improvements in the theater.

Installation of new projection machines in the booth, a new sound system throughout the theater and a new screen of latest design was completed this week, and these improvements will be brought into complete use for the first time Wednesday.

Elmer Zrenner, technical engineer for Interstate Circuit, supervised the installation of the improved equipment after having made a trip to New York to select the units. National Theater Supply Company installed the equipment.

The new Simplex E-7 projection machines in the booth enable the motion picture operator to perform his duty more efficiently. In addition, the images are more clearly defined on the screen, the light is steadier, all blur is eliminated and the light is "whiter" and more brilliant than has been possible in the past.

The sound system has been improved and amplified by the addition of new speakers, built especially for the acoustical problems of the Palace. Sound is clearer and is uniform throughout the house. Research development also have made possible richer tone in the musical numbers, a point that will be clearly demonstrated in the several songs in Love Thy Neighbor.

The screen itself is the new Multiplane type, only recently developed through the use of plastic material as a surface. Actually, it is a "molded" screen and is not flat but is smoothly contoured in a series of elliptical curves. Images of the actors are much clearer on this screen, and even the side seats in the theater have a much clearer view of the action in the film.

The installation of this new equipment furthers the policy of Interstate Circuit, Inc., in using the latest developments of research and manufacturing specialists of the motion picture field in the Palace and Majestic Theaters.

Money Prize Game Test Is Pending

SELMER, TENN.—A test of the legality of money prizes given at theatres is pending in chancery court here as a result of a bill filed against the Dixy of Adamsville, Tenn., operated by G. E. Sibley and H. W. Yancey.

The action was instituted by Leonard Ellis, an agent for a railroad at Bethel Springs. The theatre, according to the Ellis bill, operates a "Pot of Gold" drawing each week which is a lottery and, therefore, illegal. It also contends Ellis' name was drawn recently for a $345 award, but that the money was refused him because the defendant claimed he was not the Leonard Ellis whose name was drawn.

His bill asks that, if the scheme is declared legal, he be given judgment for the $345.

Sumter House Reopens

SUMTER, S. C.—January 1 was set as opening date for the newly-renovated Rex here.

MIAMI

CATCHING up with Miami in the rush of new theatre building marking the current season in south Florida, is Fort Lauderdale. The recent announcement that Warner Bros. were coming into the area with a theatre of their own, in addition to an impressive sized group of new houses all over the state, was closely followed by an announcement that the United Theatres, which have all the houses in this county at present, will erect another new Fort Lauderdale house in close proximity to the new Warner spot.

Opening well in advance of its anticipated schedule, was the new Paramount Coral in Coral Gables which threw open its doors the Sunday between Christmas and New Year's Day. The Coral repeats the romantic note which Paramount introduced recently at the Dade with a block of "love seats." Weed & Reeder, architects for Paramount's classic new Beach, were responsible for the design of the Coral.

Miami Beach is still talking about the parade which preceded the opening of the new Beach, with living reproductions of Fleischer cartoon characters, Jack Benny's polar bear, "Carmichael," the Beach police and fire departments and a series of floats . . . Definite proof of the existence of a very healthy sense of humor in California is brought back by Sonny Shepherd, who reports that at 20th Century-Fox studios (during his recent trip to the coast in his Monocoupe plane) a friend of his solemnly observed, "Since you've been here, the weather really is very unusual—it isn't raining!" Shepherd's major business on the coast was to make arrangements for the personal appearances of stars at the world premieres to be presented at the Lincoln this season. Most definite plans were those made at the 20th Century-Fox studios from which will come two of the planned premiere pictures: "Down to Rio" and "Miami." Also anticipated is the premiere of Deanna Durbin's "Nice Girl."

With the reopening of the enlarged and newly marqueed Parkway this week, comes one of the most dazzling facades along the entire length of Coral Way . . . Sunday, January 5, was to be a gala occasion for the Paul Robinsons. (He is city manager in Hollywood for the Sparks interests). It marks their 21st wedding anniversary and a definite improvement in the health of Mildred Robinson who has been making a sporting and tedious fight back to activity after a major operation early this summer . . . On New Year's Eve the area's 33 theatres had midnight performances.

Doll Deal Sours for Eastern Texas Chain

A merchant tieup deal for a doll giveaway over the Tri-State Theatres circuit in Texas did not pan out, according to Barton R. McLendon, general manager in Atlanta, Tex. His letter to BOXOFFICE follows:

"On October 17, 1940, one FRANK G. GULLETT solicited this office for permission to sell a certain doll giveaway deal to the merchants in the various towns where we operate theatres. He presented testimonials and letters of recommendation from various exhibitors, as well as a very strong letter of recommendation purporting to be from the INTERSTATE CIRCUIT of Dallas.

"On the strength of his credentials we also gave him a letter authorizing him to sell the deal over our circuit. This he did, collecting $10.00 in cash or check from various merchants, all of which amounted to a considerable sum, and since then none of the merchants purchasing the deal, or this office, have been able to hear from him.

"This party gave his address as 1600 Broadway, New York, New York, and his deal was called 'World's Fair-est Doll Campaign.'"

Mulkey Is Recovering Following Operation

FORT WORTH—Following a major operation in Methodist Hospital late last week, Homer Mulkey, Clarendon exhibitor, is reported to be making a satisfactory recovery. He has been in the hospital some two weeks for treatments preparatory to the operation. Mrs. Mulkey was at his side all the while. Lee Bell, his manager, came down from Clarendon to be with him. A number from the Filmrow at Dallas called by to see and chat with the patient.

Bill Elliott Completes P. A. Tour in Texas

HOLLYWOOD—Bill Elliott, Columbia western star, has returned to Hollywood after a personal appearance tour through Texas.

Elliott started his tour in Big Springs and visited successively San Angelo, Sweetwater, Colorado City, Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Victoria, San Antonio, Waco and Corpus Christi.

John King P. A.'s

DALLAS

A H. PICKENS, associated with Phil Isley for a number of years, is now headquartering in Dallas as Isley's assistant. Pickens is a former newspaper man and, among other things, is looking after promotion and advertising for Isley's two theatres in Texas, the Plaza in Brownwood and the Granada in Palacios . . . That was a swell Xmas card B. E. Garner sent out from Ranger where for some years he has been the manager for Texas Consolidated. Attached to the card was a neat little calendar.

W. E. Cox of the Tower and Palace in Seminole, Tex., was here Monday to employ a projectionist. He is a brother of the well known Audrey Cox of Lamesa. Both brothers are associated in the Seminole theatres. The Palace was built about four years ago. Oil play this spring brought on the new Tower. It seats 700.

Among Yuletide visitors was Ralph A. Morrow, formerly of Dallas, who has been away from the Row for seven years. Most of this period he has been in Kansas City on sales for Universal. He met many of his old friends here, seeing most of them at one time at the Variety luncheon Monday. Mrs. Morrow and Ralph jr. were with him.

Tate Sanders, former west Texas exhibitor, was here for the Amarillo-Temple game and, we understand, he took back quite a deal from the central Texas fans . . . Hugo Plath, now living at Houston, was in town visiting . . . A. H. Truitt, owner of the Star at Amarillo, was here to see his high school trim Temple. Roy DeVinney, his assistant manager, had just returned to the Panhandle country after a Christmas visit to homefolks in Detroit, Tex., and a booking visit to the Row.

Frank Benson, manager of the Ritz at Bowie, complaining because flu closed the schools in his town . . . Officials and employes of American Desk Mfg. Co. at Temple were up in numbers last Saturday to lend moral support to their state championship contenders. In the party were Joe Bonner, president; A. P. Brashear, general manager; C. V. Griggs, assistant manager; Ray Gibson, secretary; and quite a string of the boys who actually make the seats. Forrest Dunlap, sales manager, who headquarters in the company's Dallas sales office, served a round of eggnog.

B. F. Hammon, manager of the Globe, at Bertram, went down with the flu here on his last booking trip and was detained in Dallas for a week. His young son, B. F. jr., was with him and a flu victim at the same time. Both left for Bertram Tuesday.

Alfred and Lester Sack, of the Sack Amusement Enterprises, drove over to Laurel, Miss., to spend Christmas with members of their family.

Coveted yearly calendars sent out by K. Lee Williams, Oklahoma's roadshow king and now a circuit operator in his own right, began arriving on the Row this week. The picture is a beautiful girl who takes a slightly different pose each year. Many people outside of this business have in the past made frantic efforts to gain one of Williams' calendars.

B. G. Herber, of the Herber Bros supply house stayed at home several days with what he called the "walking" flu.

W. J. (Bill) Chesher, owner of the three theatres at Littlefield, was here to take in the New Year festivities and the Cotton Bowl game. He said he plans a new front on one of the houses.

BOB McBRIDE, erstwhile lobby artist for Interstate here, is now kept busy these days selling State highway signs . . . Visitors in our midst include George Burnett, former straight man who has turned comic, and "Chick" Snyder, Roller Derby business manager, Chicago.

A San Antonio lassie, Anne Gwynne, is in Universal's new air picture, "Give Us Wings," which played a weekend engagement at the Empire . . . United Artists' "Foreign Correspondent" played a return stand at the Palace.

Recent change in service staff personnel at the Texas finds Bob May promoted to chief usher and Charles Lane, upped to assistant chief . . . Add more holiday visitors: Ralph Calderon, Azteca Films, El Paso, and Miss Jean Collins of Southern Methodist University, in for a stay at the Interstate city manager's household . . . All ten of Interstate's theatres held midnight shows New Year's Eve.

On the sick list: Dolly Wildenstein, Texas cashier . . . The Cameo played "Son of Ingagi" as a midnighter last Saturday.

Name Jack P. Barrett AAI Head in Atlanta

ATLANTA—Jack P. Barrett has been named manager of the local branch of Advertising Accessories, Inc.

Well known in local film circles, Barrett entered the theatre business in 1923 with Arthur Bromberg's Progress Pictures. He next joined Educational Films, working under Arthur Lucas. When 20th-Fox absorbed Educational in 1932, he organized Accessory Consolidated Service. He operated this company until June, 1940, when National Screen Service, parent company of AAI, took over.

AA—Robb & Rowley Deal Is in the Making

DALLAS—A deal is in the making by Robb & Rowley-United Theatres and Advertising Accessories, Inc. (National Screen Service), whereby the latter would handle all paper and accessories for the big circuit. C. V. Jones, R&R official, said the deal has not been finally made, but in event it goes through the circuit would discontinue its own poster exchange and rely solely on National.

Mrs. Ula Harrington, formerly employed in the R&R poster department, is now at work with Advertising Accessories. Ben Davis, who has been in charge of R&R paper and shipping for several years, will go over to work for National when the deal is completed, possibly by the middle of January.

This will be the first deal in the territory put through by National for the handling of circuit paper on all releases.

Air-Conditioned Rooms For Charlotte Variety

CHARLOTTE—Air-conditioned quarters for Variety soon will be established on the floor just above the mezzanine at the Hotel Charlotte. An architect, Norman Pease of Charlotte, has been engaged to do over the large space alloted to the organization. Furniture will be modernistic, with a built-in bar and other equipment.

CHARLOTTE

WALTER GRIFFITH, former theatre owner and well known along the Row, is in Memorial Hospital quite seriously ill, with a possible operation pending. With him is Mrs. Pauline Griffith, secretary of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina . . . Mrs. Sidney S. Stevenson, wife of the Henderson-Rock Hill exhibitor, is back at home after a spell in the hospital.

Miss Dorothy Caldwell now is assistant cashier at RKO, having resigned from the accounting department of National Screen . . . The Row was almost deserted, what with the aftermath of Christmas. Among the regulars, however, was Roy P. Rosser of Sanford, setting in some bookings . . . Duck-hunting is D. B. Kazziah, head of Alexander Film here. He is at Lake Mattamuskeet. A three or four-day trip . . . Independent Theatre Supply Co. is spruced up and ready for formal opening soon. Incidentally, their telephone number is reminiscent of exchange terms. It's 50-50.

John Mangham, Southern Monogram prexy, said it with cash at Christmas. That is the enthusiastic report of Jack Lamont, local manager. Everybody was remembered at the Yuletide. Jack just returned from Atlanta after a conference with Mangham and other officials. He became ill shortly after arrival here with a throat ailment, but the illness is nothing serious . . . Bill Talley, Monogram booker, was in Whiteville, N. C., for the holidays . . . M. L. Stevens, the North Carolina salesman, is in Florida for two weeks . . . J. E. McElroy, who handles South Carolina, in Atlanta for two weeks.

Tom Franklin, Filmrow photographer, using extra care, reports no lenses broken after E. E. Heller of PRC had his picture snapped in the West Fourth headquarters . . . Esta Miller, PRC secretary, off to Winston-Salem for New Year's . . . Merrit Davis, now with Republic in Arkansas, but once manager for Grand National here, back to his old haunts for a Christmas visit . . . Jay Schrader of UA chats interestingly of old-timey Texas days, bringing in Henry Hall at Beeville . . . Dave Prince, division manager for RKO, in Charlotte for a Kincey conference . . . Ellis Blumenthal exhibitor of Charlotte and other spots, back in town after a Florida visit.

On the Row were J. B. Harvey of Clover and Lewis Saunders of China Grove, Others included J. E. Simpson of Gastonia, A. O. Harrill of Cliffside and George Hughes of Albemarle . . . National Screen staged a big pre-Christmas party for 33 employes and their families . . . On January 2, Raymond Ervin of the local M-G-M exchange completed 11 years of service with the company. Other localites marking anniversaries with Leo include: Annie Williams, six years, January 7; Pearl Pettus, four, January 13, and Lattie Gilland jr., five, January 14.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX.—Needy children up to 15 years of age were given free tickets for pictures showing at the Majestic and Wichita theatres.

AUSTIN

THAT old comeback, "What do you want me to do, make a record of my voice?" can now be said literally in local Interstate circles. The staff gave its boss a radio-phonograph-recording combination . . . When Katharine Hepburn brings her "Philadelphia Story" story to the Paramount January 7, she will be taken quietly to one side and asked to record her voice for posterity.

The Christmas Eve midnight gift show at the Paramount brought a packed house to see "The Bank Dick" (Univ) and to try for the 42 valuable prizes . . . The New Year's Eve midnight show lineup was as follows: "Comrade X" (M-G-M) at the Paramount; "Dulcy" (M-G-M) and a stage show, "Varieties of 1941," at the Capitol . . . Opening Christmas Day, "Love Thy Neighbor" (Para't) was booked for a week's run at the State. This house ordinarily changes bills twice weekly.

Eddie Milner, recently promoted to State doorman, spent a day at home with the folks in Temple . . . Will Roddy, State, to Troup; Travis Mills, Paramount, to Marshall; Earl Ford, Queen, to Kilgore . . . Xmas Day flicker at the Texas was "Christmas Carol," but few takers because the college mob was still out on vacation . . . Ruth Murchison, daughter of Mary M., the Interstate P. B. X'er, pinch-hitting for mama during the Christmas rush. And doing a nice job, too.

Localites, hungering for the old vaudeville days, are eagerly anticipating Interstate's experiment into musical comedy stock for entertaining Uncle Sam's soldiers in Texas army camps. If the idea clicks, the shows may be introduced into other Interstate situations.

Attention Central Texas Showmen! Send your news stories and personal items for BOXOFFICE to your correspondent, Eddie Cope, University Station, Austin, Tex. There is no charge or obligation for this service . . . Here's wishing you all a very happy, boxoffice New Year!

"Blanket Matinees" To Aid Britain

Oklahoma City—Oklahoma theatres operated by the Griffith Amusement Co. and its affiliates are holding "Blanket Matinees" to help Oklahoma reach the goal of 5,000 blankets for families made homeless by air raids in Britain.

Blankets, old or new, are being used as admission for the matinees.

Again Donates House for Benefit Show for Needy

MEMPHIS—Col. Cecil Vogel, skipper at Loew's State, for the eighth consecutive year, donated the theatre for the Commercial Appeal-American Legion annual Christmas Fund Frolic. Some 1,400 people, the largest crowd ever to attend this benefit affair, netted the fund over $700. The proceeds were turned over to a committee and provided food, clothing and Christmas cheer for the needy in Memphis.

Among those who gave their time and effort were Herbie Kay and his Orchestra, from the Hotel Peabody, and Nick Stuart and his Orchestra, who were holding sway at the Claridge. Also Johnny Long's popular local orchestra and Fred Heck, well known organist; Don and Sally Jennins of the Claridge Balinese Room, and Marie Fontaine and Charles Smith of the Memphis Open Air Theatre. John Cleghorn, WMC's program director, arranged the program. "Babes in Arms" was the feature attraction.

Fred Jack Recovering From Pneumonia

DALLAS—Reports from his office earlier in the week were that Fred M. Jack, southwest district manager for Warner Bros., is recovering from an attack of pneumonia. He is in Medical Arts Hospital where he went last Friday with influenza, which soon developed into pneumonia. Miss Jo Bailey, Jack's secretary, said he was responding well to a new treatment for the disease.

Many Order RCA

DALLAS — Orders for RCA sound have been placed by the following theatres in the south: Fairfax and Pearl, Jacksonville, Fla., and the Florida, Tallahassee; Melba, Batesville, Ark.; Texas, Brownwood, Tex.; Grand, Fitzgerald, Ga.; Martin, Americus, Ga.; Martin, Roanoke, Ala.; Ritz, Talladega, Ala.; Old Fort, Old Fort, N. C.; Royal, Meridian, Miss.

Plans Muleshoe House

DALLAS—C. F. Moeller, owner of the Palace at Muleshoe, Tex., is to build a new theatre there as soon as plans under way are completed. Raymond Smith, theatre architect in the Melba building here, has been retained on the deal, it is understood. The new house would seat about 550, it was said.

An Oldtimer

HOUSTON—R. J. Cooper began exhibiting motion pictures in Kirbyville, Tex., in 1906 when projection equipment constituted the one-pin Edison, using a carbide light.

Cooper's first venture was a "store-show" which lasted three years. He next opened an airdrome, which he operated until 1912 when he built a "de luxe" house with balcony. Cooper continued this operation until 1925, at which time he purchased the property and erected a brick building to house the theatre which he now operates. This theatre he has reconditioned several times, and, in fact, Cooper plans an early remodeling.

During his career as an exhibitor, Cooper has operated houses in Jasper, Newton and Silsbee in Texas.

After reading an account of Homer Mulkey in the BOXOFFICE issue of August 31, Cooper stated: "I feel it is in order that I send you facts regarding my experience in the business without making any challenge of the record of any other exhibitor. Many things have occurred since I first entered this business in 1906. I recall some headaches but many more pleasures. At this time I am happy still to be an exhibitor in the town where I began."

MEMPHIS—M. A. Lightman hosted orphans of Memphis at a special showing of Gene Autry's "South of the Border" at his Memphian recently. Among those attending were the wards of the St. Peter's, Leath Orphanage, Church Home, Father Lane's Gailor Hall, Convent of Good Shepherd, and children of the juvenile court.

Unique Film Reel

MEMPHIS—Webber Hall, local Movietone News cameraman, and his missus had a grand idea for a Christmas holiday feature—film shots of a style show of women's hats decorated with Xmas toys. A group of pretty girls were rounded up and the shots made on the mezzanine floor of a local millinery store. The finished film was shown on the screen at Loew's Palace.

Gala New Year Shows

DALLAS—The Palace and Majestic, Elm Street A houses, went in big for New Year's Eve celebrations with special performances for which the price was upped for all seats to 75 cents, which included the balcony. The Palace put in "This Thing Called Love," and the Majestic showed them "Flight Command."

Open in Wilmington

The Critic's Side

OKLAHOMA CITY—One of the most cussed individuals in the industry is the film critic. Seldom does he see the theatre man's side of the picture and seldom does the theatre man see his viewpoint. Here is how one critic looks at his end of the business.

"Theatre managers and the local representatives of the major film companies alternately regard me as only slightly touched or as a thorough scoundrel," says Bruce Palmer of the Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times. "Rarely, when I have gone completely overboard for a picture, they admit me to the outer fringes of what they hold to be respectability.

"The movie critic needs no great perception, except to be able to cull out the hokum and the conventional phoney business of standard plots. More necessary is a skin of elephantine thickness and a certain talent for smelling out entertainment values as distinguished from true dramatic values. The former often gets by at the boxoffice. The latter usually is better as a picture, poorer as a money-maker. When the two are merged, the result almost inevitably is a great picture from both angles.

"The movie critics can't hope to please everyone and maintain any sort of a standard by which to operate. Actually, I think practically every picture in the 'A' category is basically good; considering the technical difficulties surrounded in its making, it must have some fundamental merit. The difference lies in how much better some are than others. That's where the critic begins to get into hot water."

H. P. (Dusty) Rhodes Wed

ATLANTA—Herman P. (Dusty) Rhodes, booker for Lucas & Jenkins Theatres, was married to Jessie Mae Garrett, Dec. 31, 1940. The service was performed at the home of Riley P. Davis, before a group of friends.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Princess had "40 Little Mothers" for 20 cents, but the Knickerbocker offered only "Four Mothers" for 44 cents. Both are members of the Crescent chain.

Food and Films In Log Cabin

Oklahoma City—Chet Humphrey's Log Cabin Theatre, which opened recently on Northwest 39th St., is the first of its kind locally.

The theatre was remodeled from an old log cabin style roadhouse. Rocking chairs, a crying room, 50 love seats "for large people or two children," a fountain-grill and food from ten-cent hamburgers to a 50-cent steak are all offered.

The honorary pallbearers were members of Mr. Kemp's band, Skinnay Ennis of Hollywood, John Scott Trotter of Hollywood, Mel Adams of New York, George M. Ivey of Charlotte, Fred Waring and Rudy Vallee of New York, Leibert Lombardo and Sam Cheer of New York, Jimmy McNeely of Charlotte, Jules and Billy Stein of New York, Sonny Werbling of New York, Harold C. Libby of Charlotte, and John Randolph Hearst of New York.

Formal Garden and Crypt For Body of Will Rogers

OKLAHOMA CITY—Work is under way on a formal garden and crypt for the body of Will Rogers at the Claremore Memorial.

The plans include a formal terraced garden leading down the slope southwest from the Will Rogers Memorial Museum. At the lower end will be the marble crypt.

Rites for Niver

DALLAS — Funeral services for Henry Niver, 48, were held here last Friday. He was known as an organ expert to many exhibitors of the southwest during silent days. When sound replaced the organ in theatres, Niver continued on with organ sales and maintenance in churches and homes. He is survived by his wife.

Rules Films Evidence

JACKSON, MISS.—Motion pictures may be admitted as evidence in Mississippi courts, according to a ruling just issued by the state supreme court.

Webbo Gives Away Radio

HARRIMAN, TENN.—The Webbo gave away a 1941 model Zenith radio on Christmas Day to the holder of the lucky ticket. Matinee admissions are 5 cents and 10 cents, evening prices 10 cents and 20 cents.

Bonnie Kate Robbed

ELIZABETHTON, TENN.—A lone bandit held up Miss Mamie Cannon, cashier at the Bonnie Kate, and escaped with all the cash in the ticket booth. The armed bandit made his escape down an alley.

Industry's Prominent At Masters Banquet

TORONTO—A swanky function was the testimonial banquet which was tendered Haskell M. Masters, general manager of United Artists Corp., Ltd., by 75 business associates and friends at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, December 28, as a personal tribute on the occasion of his promotion to the post of western sales manager of the company in the United States which he took over commencing with the New Year, with headquarters at the home office in New York. Most everybody who is anybody in the film industry at Toronto and nearby points turned out in formal style to do honor to a man who had been a leader in the development of the business in the Dominion during the past 20 years and was personally known to film exchange and theatre men from coast to coast by reason of his close contact with activities in every city and town of importance.

Home Office Represented

Adding to the lustre of the occasion was the presence of a number of prominent executives from New York City including T. P. Mulrooney of United Artists' home office, Arthur Gottlieb, Ed Schmitzer, Monroe Greenthal and David Griesdorf, all of whom contributed their quota of praise and reminiscences. The special speakers were four, three of whom represented important branches of the moving picture business. Leo M. Devaney, recently appointed national captain of the Ned Depinet Sales Drive for RKO Pictures, delivered the eulogy in behalf of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada; N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., spoke for the theatre chains and N. A. Taylor, vice-president of the Independent Theatres Ass'n, delivered the address in behalf of organized independents. Egmont L. Frankel, prominent in the community life of Toronto, was the speaker for Masters' legion of friends outside of the industry. A highlight of the farewell celebration, echoing with words of regret over the loss of the guest of honor as a member of the community and congratulations on his promotion to a higher sphere, was the presentation to Masters of a handsome memento in the form of engraved silverware. The chairman, master of ceremonies and toastmaster was J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players Canadian Corp. The formal program was relatively brief but the gathering took full advantage of the opportunity to indulge in a complete evening of social indulgences.

An Effective Committee

Responsibility for the genuine success of the gathering rested with a committee comprising Louis Rosenfeld, general manager of Columbia Pictures of Canada, Ltd.; Oscar R. Hanson, president of Empire-Universal-Films, Ltd.; Ben Geldsaler, headoffice supervisor of booking for Famous Players Canadian Corp., and E. L. Frankel.

Among those present were Claire Hague, president of the Canadian Picture Pioneers; Col. John A. Cooper, chairman of the board, Motion Picture Distributors of Canada; James P. O'Loghlin, general manager of 20th Century-Fox Corp. of Canada and president of the Motion Picture Distributors; M. A. Milligan, general manager of Paramount Film Service; Henry L. Nathanson, managing director of Regal Films, Ltd.; Jules Cohen, Warner Bros.; A. W. Perry, general manager, Empire-Universal-Films, Ltd.; numerous officials of Famous Players, Bloom and Fine Theatres, Theatre Holding Corp., Hanson Theatres Corp., Associated Theatres and Independent Theatres Ass'n, and many personal admirers in the business life of Toronto apart from the film colony.

In Many Activities

Masters has been associated with many activities of the trade, always having been one of the first to be appointed to committees for special trade and philanthropic campaigns. In recent months he had served as an executive organizer of the Win the War Campaign in aid of Canada's war effort and was made a member of the general board of the Canadian Motion Picture War Services Committee which sponsored the patriotic rodeo at Toronto. He had been elected a director of the Canadian Picture Pioneers at the November annual meeting and was a member of the Red Cross Committee of the Motion Picture Distributors which organized a whirlwind campaign in October. He took an active part, as a member of the motion picture section, Toronto board of trade, in the negotiations which led to the formation of the Ontario Provincial clearance board to work out booking reforms and has been a member of various committees of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada. Within the trade, Masters has been known as a man who gave the small independents a break, yet he was held in high esteem by chain executives.

In his private office has been standing the handsome N. L. Nathanson Trophy, emblematic of the Motion Picture Industry's Canadian golf championship which was won the last time in 1939 by the United Artists' team of which he was a playing member. But he can't take it with him. Haskell Masters has taken with him, however, the earnest wishes for continued achievement.

Sam Glazer Succeeds Haskell M. Masters

TORONTO—Sam Glazer, veteran Toronto branch manager of United Artists Corp., Ltd., has been named successor to Haskell M. Masters, who has taken a home office post at New York, as Canadian district manager, according to local information.

A. J. Jeffery, manager of the UA branch at Montreal, is being promoted to the management of the branch at Toronto which has jurisdiction over the important Ontario territory. Other promotions are under consideration in the Canadian personnel, following Masters' departure.

Borrow Joan Fontaine

HOLLYWOOD — RKO has borrowed Joan Fontaine from David O. Selznick for a role opposite Cary Grant in "Before the Fact." Alfred Hitchcock will direct.

Draw Line Between Segments of Trade

TORONTO—A distinct line has been drawn between distributors and exhibitors in Canada in the operation of representative organizations under recently adopted policies of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada and the newly formed Ontario clearance board.

The MPDC no longer has any exhibitor members, and announcement has been made that the association will deal only with distributors' problems in the future, this pronouncement having been made by President James P. O'Loghlin. When asked about the activities of the clearance board, which is made up of chain and independent theatre representatives on the basis of three men from each group, Col. J. A. Cooper told BOXOFFICE: "They have their own exhibition problems to settle and the distributors will be consulted when necessary."

Under the new setup, the only common meeting place of all branches of the industry, including producers, equipment officials and technical services as well as exhibitors and exchange managers, will be the motion picture section of the Toronto Board of Trade which will deal with trade developments in which all are interested.

With the holidays cleared away, the Ontario clearance board is holding its next meeting on January 7 when further organization will be effected. Members of this board comprise Ben Geldsaler, T. J. Bragg and M. Stein of Famous Players Canadian Corp., and Harry Alexander, Hyman Freedman and N. A. Taylor of the Independent Theatres Ass'n.

Orpheum and Circle Are Reopened in Toronto

TORONTO—The Orpheum, Queen St. West, has been reopened by N. Rittenberg after extensive alterations and is offering vaudeville as well as pictures.

The Circle, in North Toronto, has been reopened by Hyman Freedman after a remodeling of the interior, the house having been closed for two weeks for reconstruction. The Lee has been opened at Camp Borden, Ont., under the auspices of the federal government, primarily for the entertainment of troops. The Lee is fully equipped for both screen and stage shows, with films booked from Toronto exchanges on a regular basis. The theatre has been named in honor of Col. S. A. Lee, commandant of the camp until recently.

Holiday Impels Transfer Of Premium Nights

TORONTO—There has been a general shifting of giveaway nights among Toronto exhibitors during the past two weeks because the holidays fell on Wednesday when most gifts are in evidence during ordinary weeks. The majority of theatres transferred the premium offers from Wednesday to Tuesday night.

TORONTO

MANAGER CHARLIE QUERRIE of the Palace, Toronto, and his entire staff cancelled its annual staff celebration, a custom at the end of the year since he opened the house in 1921, and the proceeds of the party were handed to the Toronto Telegram to be forwarded to England for the relief of bombing victims. The newspaper published a picture of Querrie in the act of presenting the substantial check to the publisher. The office staff of Regal Films, Ltd., Toronto, made a combined donation of $100 to the War Victims Fund and proudly displayed the formal receipt on the wall of the exchange.

Leo M. Devaney, general manager of RKO Distributing Corp., returned to Toronto from New York where he had been arranging preliminary details for the Ned Depinet sales drive of which he had been promoted to New York in the UA organization, and Devaney fell into the duty of offering the eulogy to Masters in behalf of the distributors.

Harry S. Dahn, general manager of Consolidated Theatres, Toronto, had occasion to call at the Trenton Air Station of the Royal Canadian Air Force to arrange film bookings and was invited to lunch at the camp. Ever since, Dahn has been telling everybody about the wonderful "chow" the sky pilots are getting . . . A. C. Simpson, manager of the Toronto Hollywood and lately from Ingersoll, signaled his invasion of the big city by putting on a newspaper teaser campaign on "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?" right under the noses of a hundred local managers.

Another old-timer passed on in the death of Fred Waldo Stair, manager of theatres in Toronto and Hamilton for years. In failing health, Stair had gone to Pasadena, Calif., where he had been living with his sister during the period before his death.

Everybody around the headoffice of Famous Players Canadian Corp. was made happy at the fadeout of 1940 by the receipt of a bonus equal to two weeks' pay, just double the size of the honorarium at the close of 1939. Theatre managers of the Canadian circuit earn their extra money on the quota system and usually get their bonus during the summer.

Manager Lloyd Mills of the Ottawa Elgin skating with Sabu, the star of "The Thief of Bagdad," and got the surprise of his life when the "Elephant Boy" outskated him. The fact was that Sabu had learned the rudiments of the ice pastime while attending school in England. Sam Glazer, Toronto branch manager of United Artists, and Lou Guimond, director of promotion, went to Ottawa for the personal appearance of Sabu . . . Syd Taube, prominent in the affairs of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, sold several hundred dollars worth of Canadian War Savings Stamps to a trade executive in the United States and has suggested that officials at New York home offices generally should be circularized by the Pioneers.

Col. John R. Booth, Canadian millionaire who sponsored the production of "The King's Plate" in the Dominion some years ago, entertained 100 war refugee children from Britain in his private theatre, the program comprising "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and several Disney shorts which were provided through the courtesy of RKO Distributing Corp. Assisting in the arrangements were Frank Badgley, director of the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau, and Mrs. Badgley.

What to do with old automobile license plates has been solved by Manager Charlie Stephenson of the Century at Kitchener, who has offered a theatre pass to every juvenile who brings a pair of the 1940 markers to the theatre. The plates are to be sold for the manufacture of war munitions and the proceeds will be turned over to the Red Cross.

For four days Manager Leon Bishop of the Tivoli in downtown Toronto handled throngs of boys and girls who attended the theatre for the annual holiday treat of the Toronto Star for its many carriers. Manager H. Marshall of the Ottawa Rideau put on a Sunday show for the United War Services to buy equipment for the troops while Manager Lloyd Mills of the Elgin organized a special performance under the auspices of the Lion's Club to provide treats for war pilots and a Saturday morning performance to which 1,000 juveniles brought canned goods to be distributed by the Kinsmen's Club.

Manager Louis Gauthier of the Cartier in Hull had a theatre night for the Lions Club as a benefit for the poor. Manager Ingram of the Bayview at Leaside had a midnight show for the Lions when a donation of $200 was made to the War Victims' Fund. Harry Alexander, proprietor of the Toronto Lansdowne, held a midnight screen show in aid of Mount Sinai Hospital. Manager Ted Fraser of the Century, Trenton, put on a special show to help the Salvation Army in its work among the poor.

Wide Circulation for Films on Dominion

OTTAWA—A detailed report of the Canadian department of trade and commerce with respect to the work of the government motion picture bureau during the past fiscal year, shows that 6,662 prints of official motion pictures, including 1,710 new copies, were in circulation throughout the world last spring, this number being 300 more than the total of any previous year.

Thirty-one countries and dependencies are listed as territories in which Canadian government films were circulated during the 12 months, but the fate of some of the prints can be left to the imagination because they were in enemy countries before hostilities broke or in territories which subsequently were occupied.

The latest data shows that 3,496 prints were in use in the United States for both theatrical and commercial or social presentation, this being the largest total for any country. In the British Isles there were 530 prints and 279 in Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania, with 89 in a group that is listed as Central European countries. Incidentally, there were 83 in Germany, 70 in Italy, 64 in Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland and 43 in Greece, Turkey and Egypt. Holland is listed as having 33 Canadian government films. Whether or not these are in the safe-keeping of United States' embassies along with other records and documents is left to conjecture. China, too, had 51 prints while Japan had been using 19 copies and Belgium had 76.

Among other territories, it is shown that 38 Canada films are in the possession of South American countries, 83 in South Africa, 39 in India, 35 in the Hawaiian Islands, 45 in Cuba and the West Indies and 33 in the Straits Settlement and East Indies. The film service will be continued to allied and free countries.

Sabu in P. A. in Toronto

TORONTO—Sabu of Mysore, India, spent Christmas in Toronto during the course of a personal appearance tour.

VANCOUVER

MAX and Ben Chechik distributed cigarettes to all the boys around the Film Building at holiday time . . . The table radio raffled by Harry Howard of Theatre Equipment was won by Willard Adamson.

Florence Copley, 23-year-old daughter of Herbert Copley, manager of the Grandview Theatre, was in a fatal accident the night of December 20 while on her way to the theatre where she is cashier.

P. G. Allan of the Orpheum at Dawson City, Y. T., attributes a current dip in business to the unseasonably mild weather his sector is experiencing . . . T. Shiels jr. closed his Olympia Theatre to permit completion of extensive renovations, including new carpeting, exits and rest rooms.

Christmas bonuses went to the staffs of Paramount Film Service, United Artists, Columbia and Regal Films . . . Empire Universal again gave their annual Christmas banquet for their employes at the Hotel Vancouver. Bonuses and an exchange of gifts were part of the festivities which were attended, among others, by Larry Bearg, Hugo Ray, Roy McLeod, John Dawson and Earl Hayter.

Mild weather brought excellent Christmas Day and Boxing Day business to Vancouver first runs . . . Oak Theatre Owner Andy Digney's son Ernie is home for the holidays from Camp Borden, Ont.

J. H. Fletcher has turned over some $1,500 to the West Vancouver Red Cross, this sum being the proceeds of several special Sunday shows Fletcher has been giving . . . Owen Bird copped the turkey at the recent Burnaby table tennis tournament.

Montreal Again Sees Allens in Operation

TORONTO—History was made when the Allen theatre interests of Toronto resumed active operations once more in the City of Montreal on January 1 when the Amherst was taken over from United Amusement Corp., Ltd., to be operated by Premier Operating Co., an Allen subsidiary under the supervision of Raymond Allen of Toronto. Rene Daigneault will continue as manager of the Amherst, it was announced by Mr. Allen.

In this move, a third generation of the Allens becomes identified with the direction of theatres in Montreal. At one time, in the somewhat distant past, the late Ben Allen with his sons, Jules, J. J. and Herb erected and operated a number of theatres in that city, chief of which were the Palace, Westmount and Amherst. Eventually these houses passed into the control of Famous Players and United Amusement companies and now this farther step in the progressive comeback of the Allens arouses wide interest.

Raymond Allen also announced that the LaSalle in Kirkland Lake, center of the Gold Mining Belt in Northern Ontario, had been taken over from Cinema Rousson-Trudeau Limited, to be operated by Theatre Holding Corp., Ltd., an Allen circuit company which has the three theatres in Kirkland Lake. The LaSalle, which is a comparatively new house, has accommodation for 716 persons. The three other theatres there are the Capitol, Strand and Uptown which have 516, 951 and 693 seats respectively.

The Allens opened the new Strand at Parry Sound, Ont., on Christmas Day but will continue to operate the Royal, formerly the one theatre in that town. The Nobel Theatre has been opened at nearby Nobel and all three theatres will be under the management of Jack Wellard.

The Allen chain now comprises approximately 40 theatres, all of which are located in the Province of Ontario with the exception of the Amherst in Montreal. From a small start in Brantford, Ont., a quarter of a century ago, the family has made theatre history in the Dominion.

Allen Names Silverthorne To Post in Tillsonburg

TORONTO—Raymond S. Allen, general supervisor of the Allen chain, has announced the appointment of Jack Silverthorne as manager of the Strand at Tillsonburg, Ont., in succession to Albert Glazer who is joining the colors January 6 as a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force. He is the son of Sam Glazer, executive of Canadian United Artists. Silverthorne, who has been assistant manager of the Grand at Sudbury, a unit of the Hanson Theatres' circuit, is a brother of Chairman O. J. Silverthorne of the Ontario board of moving picture censors. Another manager to be lost to the Allen circuit is Dave Rubin of the Westdale, Hamilton, who is enlisting as a petty officer in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Allen has also announced the appointment of Miss R. Fuller as manager of the Maitland, Ingersoll, Ont., this being the first occasion on which a woman has been placed in charge of a circuit theatre in the Dominion. Miss Fuller succeeds A. C. Simpson who was promoted to manage the Hollywood, ace unit in Toronto, a few weeks ago. Simpson replaced Douglas Watt who had been transferred to the management of the Waterloo at Waterloo, Ont. Walter Helm, former manager of the Waterloo, is now manager of two theatres in Northern Ontario, the Classic at Cobalt and the Strand at Haileybury. Doug Watt is a brother of William Watt, manager of the Capitol in the nearby city of Kitchener.

MONTREAL

CHRISTMAS and New Year parties were celebrated with greater enthusiasm this year than has been the case for a few year-ends. Not that the war and the troubles of the British people have been forgotten, but there is a general feeling of optimism, and the Filmrow and the theatre world share it and are pepped up accordingly.

Not only the first run theatres but also chains and independents marked New Year's Eve with special performances, extra music, stage shows and favors. Most of the United Amusement theatres notably of the Rosemount, Papineau, Rivoli, Francais, Monkland, York, Granville, Corona, Rialto, Seville and Snowdon gave gala shows with special pictures and other entertainment, balloons, noisemakers, etc.

Mount Royal displayed the new Jewish picture, "Where is My Child?," for seven days. Hudson's Bay Company will cooperate in the publicity for the 20th-Fox film, "Hudson's Bay," which opens January 16 in western Canadian cities and January 26 in eastern Canada . . . Jack Butler, former Empire-Universal branch manager at Saint John, now manager of the Imperial, Moncton, launched a novelty in the form of a special performance in aid of the police relief fund. Receipts were split fifty-fifty.

Cartier Theatre gave a Christmas tree entertainment under the auspices of George Wakeman, manager, to 1,000 wives and children of the members of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, now on active service. Max Ford, of the Canadian Legion War Services, was master of ceremonies . . . Aluminum Company of Canada, whose head office is in Montreal, has presented the Canadian Government Department of War Services with a check for $10,000 to be applied to production of a new film depicting Canada's war effort on the industrial front.

Contributors to the Greek War Relief Fund collection in Montreal include the following: United Amusement Corp., $250; Hartney Company, Ltd., $50; Confederation Amusements, Ltd., $100; Employes of Westmount Theatre, $25, and J. Eliasoff and Sons, $25 . . . 20th-Fox will have the cooperation of the Canadian, British and United States governments in the production of "The Eagle Flies Again." Training sequences will be filmed in Canada.

Ruby Grierson, who initiated the making of the new child evacuee film just released, was responsible for the human quality in a great many British documentaries. To her personal credit she had "Cargo for Ardorssan," "Today We Live," several Zoo films, and three recently completed food films. Her five-minute Ministry of Information film, "They Also Serve," not yet released, is said to be one of the best of the series.

Thomas Archer, film critic of Montreal Gazette, reviewing the entertainment year, finds that the United States has acquired leadership. "Above all," he says, "the motion picture has been developed, if not perfected, on this side of the Atlantic. While many great pictures have been produced in Europe, the output there cannot be compared to Hollywood in scope or richness. Proof thereof is the fact that even though European countries attempted to foster their own industries by quotas and other artificial regulations, the Hollywood film continued to provide the staple fare for the picture houses of all the chief European capitals."

Century Theatre of Kitchener, Ont., under the inspiration of Charlie Stevenson, manager, has collected 812 automobile license plates weighing 450 pounds to be sold as scrap iron for the benefit of Kitchener Red Cross. Stevenson offered a theatre ticket to every child who brought a pair of automobile license plates to the theatre. Four large boxes were filled. The markers will be transported to steel mills. They included several 1939 license plates. Kitchener, by the way, is the greatest bingo center in Ontario, if not in Canada. On one recent night close to 30,000 individual "bingo" plays were recorded. So enthusiastic are the citizens that they have formed three major leagues for Bingo, the proceeds going to the Canadian Legion.

Aluminum Co. Contributes $10,000 to Film Making

MONTREAL—The Minister of National War Services, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, today announced the receipt of a gift of $10,000 from the Aluminum Co. of Canada, Ltd., to be applied to the production of a new film depicting the war effort of Canada on the industrial front.

In making the gift, directors of the company expressed warm approval of the government's first industrial war effort film, "Front of Steel." This was produced by the national film board on behalf of the director of public information and was released to approximately 900 Canadian theatres last July.

For a Role in "Sunny"

HOLLYWOOD—Metro's John Carroll has been borrowed by RKO for the male lead opposite Anna Neagle in the Herbert Wilcox production, "Sunny."

Pilots "Man Hunt"

HOLLYWOOD—Fritz Lang will direct "Man Hunt" for 20th-Fox.

See BMI Recognition Netting Complications

OTTAWA—The theatres of Canada are confronted with the prospect of split control of performing royalties on compositions, in addition to a complication of copyright authority, if the copyright appeal board officially recognizes the new organization, Broadcast Music of Canada, Inc., with its proposed lower schedule of fees for the use of its musical works in the Dominion, as compared with the license fees imposed by the Canadian Performing Right Society which, thus far, has enjoyed the sole attention of the government board in the regulation of annual charges. The Society, which is the Canadian counterpart of Ascap, was organized in 1925 as an agency for the licensing of the use of thousands of compositions over which it has exercised control.

The issue at the moment is of direct importance in the radio broadcasting field with the BMI of the United States building up an extensive proportion of compositions of its own for network use, which are to be made available in Canada. The belief prevails that the BMI will eventually become a factor in the theatre field, particularly if the newer radio hits creep into picture production and become recordings which would be auxiliary entertainment in theatres.

Others May Be Affected

Still another angle is the fact that at least seven major programs originating in Canada are relayed to networks in the United States as International exchange features and these are affected by the advent of BMI. It has been reported that the British National Anthem, which, in its official form, is identical with the music of the American National Anthem, will become involved in the dispute between the rival copyright-control interests, both in the States and in Canada. The Anthem is a required part of every theatre program in the Dominion.

At its meeting scheduled for February 12, the copyright appeal board will find it necessary to make a ruling that any organization, other than the Canadian Performing Right Society, is legally qualified to place a schedule of royalty fees before the board, it is stated. For some years the Society alone has imposed a seat tax on all Canadian theatres for the us of its works in any form, apart from the score charge of the film producers, and official recognition of the BMI of Canada may throw the situation wide open insofar as all music users are concerned.

Theatre Building In Sharp Rise

Montreal—According to MacLean Building Reports, Ltd., contracts for theatre building in Canada in November totaled $232,500 compared with $45,900 in the identical period last year.

WINNIPEG

A SUM of money collected by employes of Vitagraph to be used for a Christmas present for their manager, has been turned over to I. H. Allan to be contributed to the Lord Mayor of London's fund. This fine gesture will help swell the sum being collected here to aid the war stricken in Britain . . . Harold Bishop carried out an extensive campaign in publicizing his current showing of "Love Thy Neighbor." Bishop made a tieup with General Foods which netted him window and store displays throughout the city as well as 200,000 fliers plugging his playing date.

According to a communication from Mayor John Queen of this city, Grand National Films, Ltd., has undertaken to contribute 20 per cent of the gross receipts from the showings of "Hitler—Beast of Berlin" and "The Warning," to the fund in aid of London's air raid victims. Mayor Queen appealed to the residents of Manitoba to aid in this work by attending the showings of these two films. Playing dates are now being set for the entire territory.

New Year's Eve was a gala night in the city with all houses throwing midnight shows. At the Capitol, Harold Bishop had a monster celebration with a stage show in addition to his feature showing of "Tin Pan Alley." On the stage, Bishop presented a CBC orchestra, professional acts from the Cave, local dining spot, and a number of local amateur acts. At the Metropolitan, Syl Gunn had an elaborate stage presentation consisting of Herbie Brittain's popular orchestra and six vaudeville acts. The film shown was "Second Chorus."

All FP employes in the city, with the exception of house managers and projectionists, received Christmas bonuses of two weeks' pay. Western Theatres, Ltd., employes also found something extra in their socks on Christmas morning with President J. Miles playing Santa Claus to the extent of a week's pay . . . H. J. Allen, general manager of Grand National Films, with offices in Toronto, was a Winnipeg visitor.

George Frazer of 20th-Fox will arrive here next week in connection with the publicity campaign which he is to direct for "Hudson's Bay." Assistant Manager Jack Fitzgibbons will work with Frazer . . . There is a rumor to the effect that Nate Rothstein is about to acquire three more theatres in the Saskatoon district . . . "Mein Kampf," which has been described as Germany's book of doom, was screened here recently and is booked for an early showing . . . John Schuberg of Vancouver, who was in the city recently, has returned to the coast.

Long Illness Is Fatal To P. J. Greenlees

TORONTO—The death has occurred of P. J. Greenlees who devoted the last 30 years of his life to the operation of the Princess, a 413-seat theatre at Woodstock, Ont. Pat Greenlees, one of the most colorful figures in the film exhibition field in the Dominion, long professed that he had never changed the outward appearance of his theatre and it was regarded as an old stand-by, to modernize which would have meant the loss of its originality. He died after a lingering illness.

Despite a heavy fall of snow, a deputation of Toronto men motored to Woodstock for the funeral mass, including W. A. Baillie, veteran owner of the Adelphi, Sam Brint of Empire-Universal, Harry Ginsler of the Iola and Len. Hoffman of Perkins Electric.

May Show 16mm Films on War Effort to Groups

REGINA—Tentative plans have been made by the local branch of the National Film Society to include in its 1940-41 activities the free showing of 16mm films to clubs or groups who might be interested. The films, short features of an informative nature, would deal for the most part with Canada's war effort and be shown twice a week or every two weeks.

Films to Train Troops

REGINA—Visual education, fast being employed by schools throughout Canada, is now being used to train Canada's armed forces. All training camps in Canada are being equipped with projectors for showing 16mm sound films.

: SASKATCHEWAN :

JACK WILLIAMS has replaced Billy Ellison on the Met, Regina, ushering staff. Ellison is with the Navy.

Annual staff party of the Grand Theatre, Regina, put on by Famous Players Canadian Corp. and Mrs. J. Graham, owner of the theatre, was held December 21. Staff members were given bonuses of two weeks' pay.

Saskatoon is expected to have the opening of Paul Muni's latest picture, "Hudson's Bay," simultaneously with openings in other parts of Canada on January 16, according to an announcement made in Vancouver recently. First showings of the picture will be in Vancouver, Victoria, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Calgary, the announcement said. Arrangements are being made to have some of the stars appear at the openings.

Elks Lodge at Estevan took over the Orpheum Theatre December 23 and played host to all boys and girls of the town under 13 years of age. Free candy and peanuts went with the show.

Sabu in Montreal

MONTREAL—Sabu, boy star of "The Thief of Bagdad," was guest of honor at the meeting of the Ottawa Rotary Club in the Chateau Laurier, on December 23. Sabu was accompanied by his brother, Shaik, and Lou Guimond, Canadian representative of United Artists.

Miller and Peters Earn Metro Honor Awards

NEW YORK—M-G-M has awarded Honor Roll Buttons to Managers Frank Miller, Metropolitan Theatre, Morgantown, W. Va., and George Peters, Loew's Colonial, Reading, Pa., for their outstanding exploitation campaigns for "Bitter Sweet" and "Hullabaloo," respectively.

Highlights of Miller's "Bitter Sweet" campaign were: Electrical transcription planted with local radio station and played one day in advance of opening. Two thousand heralds distributed house-to-house. The same number of duo-tone photos set with leading department store chain. One thousand cards mailed to members of music clubs. Thirty-five hundred chocolate tabs distributed by a young lady dressed in a similar costume to that worn by Jeanette MacDonald in the picture. Inquiring Reporter stunt with best answers receiving guest tickets. Drawing contest conducted by art department of Morgantown High School from photos of Miss MacDonald, with winning entries displayed in lobby. Still displays planted with numerous stores.

Highlights of Peters' "Hullabaloo" campaign were: Treasure Hunt at Reading's busiest five-and-dime store. Newspaper contest on words assembled from letters in the title. Several thousand heralds distributed at local dances, football games, hotels, etc. Corresponding number stunt, with cards for boys and girls distributed, similar numbers teaming up and being admitted to theatre free. Opening night parade to theatre led by 60-piece cadet band. Headless man ballyhoo, with sign reading: "I laughed my head off, etc." Proclamation on part of Mayor for a Laugh Week during film's engagement. School essay contest offering prizes for best short radio script. Numerous window still displays in leading stores.

"Boom Town" Week Hypos Selling in Evansville

EVANSVILLE, IND.—With the declaration by the mayor of a "Boom Town" Week, Manager R. H. Suits of Loew's Evansville, and Harold H. Marshall, Metro exploiteer, were able to go to town in selling the feature.

Five hundred downtown poles were placarded with "Evansville celebrates 'Boom Town' Week;" merchants featured "Boom Town" sales; the press cooperated with art and stories; a hotel put on a buffet dinner opening night for oil pioneers, which civic dignitaries attended; a parade with police escort led from the hotel to the theatre; a broadcast was carried from the lobby; taxis carried bumper strips and all downtown street corners were stenciled.

Club Draws New Patrons

BOSTON—Designed to bring children from outlying districts to the Warren Theatre in Roxbury, the Honor Roll Club, devised by Manager John Buckley, is credited with hypoing boxoffice business at the suburban house. The prime purpose of the Club originally was to insure a better relationship with the children, parents, and school authorities. In the final analysis, it tended to attract a substantial percentage of juveniles who were not accustomed to patronizing the house.

John Buckley laid down the rules of the Warren Theatre Honor Roll Club as follows:

"(1) Any boy or girl in Roxbury or Dorchester attending either a public or a parochial grammar school was eligible to become a member.

"(2) To become a member a pupil must be on the honor roll in school.

"(3) A member is entitled to one month's free admission to the theatre on Saturday afternoon. In order to avoid duplication or fraud, he listed the children alphabetically by schools. This prevented children from switching report cards in order to obtain Honor Roll Club cards.

"Although we did not receive official recognition from the school authorities," Buckley said, "many teachers informed their classes about the club. This club was one of the few plans we have had over which both children and parents alike were enthusiastic."

Buckley provided a short trailer explaining the rules of the club and made regular announcements from the stage as well as giving the enterprise lobby exploitation.

Trailer copies stressed the fact that a pupil must be on the Honor Roll for two months. This angle was made particularly clear as many parochial schools in the vicinity issue a monthly report card. The two-month period for a parochial school child was made to coincide with the two-month period of the public school pupil. Membership cards were given to each Honor Roll student.

Girls "Date" Stars

MILWAUKEE—Three girls were selected from among 300 contestants to "date" Robert Preston, Lynne Overman and Preston Foster during their personal appearance here in connection with the opening of "North West Mounted Police" at Fox's Palace and Wisconsin theatres. The girls accompanied the actors to a luncheon and to the theatres.

Obtains Chain Calls

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—George Freeman of the Poli Theatre invited the press and 40 women members of the Motion Picture Council to a screening of "The Long Voyage Home." Each woman, a member of an organization represented in the Council, reported on the picture to her organization and agreed to call five other women and ask them in turn to call five more, and urge attendance at the picture.

Redeemable for a Pass—

Above is pictured an entire month's program as printed in the newspapers by Claude Allison, manager of the Strand Theatre in Indianapolis. In the margin are instructions to the reader to clip and save the program. At the end of the month Allison chooses names from his mailing list, who, if able to present the program, receive a guest ticket. The stunt is popular with the patrons.

College Prank Made National Publicity

NEW HAVEN—When Bob Russell, manager of the Loew-Poli, attended a dinner for the Yale University Band and made a speech, he couldn't resist the temptation to put in a plug for "Go West," opening at the Loew-Poli that week, "two weeks in advance of New Year's, specially for you Yale boys," as he put it.

Little did he dream what seeds of mischief he had planted in fertile student minds, until some days later, six members of the Yale Pundit Club, among the most prominent students at Yale, had a brainstorm and started one of the biggest publicity stunts on the picture ever to be pulled on any picture—a stunt which has been given space and art in papers all over the country.

Simultaneously in various parts of the center of the college towns, six automobiles were stalled in the Christmas shopping traffic, six Grouchos alighted from the allegedly stalled cars and began busily repairing the cars, with typical Groucho antics. Appreciative crowds gathered in record time, whereupon the police took over and dispersed the crowds, and the boys went on their way. When it became evident that the stunt was all over the place, the police were considerably dazed and a good portion of New Haven Christmas shoppers were Groucho-conscious. Then the costumed hoaxers wound up their quiet day by buying tickets for "Go West" at the Loew-Poli.

In Celebration—

Local merchants donated the cake over which Rufus Shepherd, right, stands guard. The occasion was the 12th anniversary of the Fisher Theatre in Detroit, which Shepherd manages.

Which is where Nat Rubin, assistant at the Loew-Poli, came right in with a flash of genius. Immediately aware that this was great stuff, Nat summoned a photographer and got the "Marxes" to pose. Upon identification, the boys turned out to be Charles Spalding of Lake Forest, Illinois, Phi Beta Kappa president and Yale News columnist; Larry G. Tighe jr., of New Haven, chairman of the Junior Prom Committee and the Yale Dramatic Association; William E. Jackson, Yale News editor and son of the attorney general; George H. Meade jr. of Dayton, football manager at the university; John B. Madden of Brooklyn, captain of the 150-pound football team, and Charles Potter Stevenson of Buffalo, varsity hockey player.

The team of Russell and Rubin got to work on a little publicity and the pictures taken so hurriedly in the lobby made the press of the various Connecticut towns with splash stories in no time at all. Almost immediately, there were requests for pictures from Life and other publications; the New York Times had a story, as did Chicago, Washington, and other cities over the country.

The Russell-Rubin team is still trying to recover from the excitement of turning a college gag into a publicity stunt which netted thousands of dollars worth of free space for "Go West." It's the first stunt, they pride themselves, to have assumed such proportions in out-of-state press.

Jewelry Display Uses Stills

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Manager George French of the RKO Albee obtained a window display for "They Knew What They Wanted" at a local jeweler's. Stills of Lombard wearing jewelry made the centerpiece.

Boxing Match for "Leather Pushers"

New Haven—H. W. Reisinger, manager of the Bijou Theatre, made his booking of "Leather Pushers" noteworthy by staging a three-round boxing match between local youngsters on the stage of his theatre at the evening show. New England's heavyweight champion served as referee, and various local sport gentry participated. Ads were spotted on the sport page as well as the amusement page, and space was garnered in the sports columns of the dailies. Reisinger permitted announcements from the stage during the amateur show, as to boxing matches.

Peanut Cart for "Go West"

St. Louis—Digging up an antiquated whistling peanut cart and utilizing it for the cuffo distribution of 200 pounds of peanuts on the downtown streets was the highlight of the outdoor bally conceived by Jimmy Harris, p. a. at Loew's, for "Go West." Distributors of the goobers were three pseudo Marx boys and when timid pedestrians hesitated in accepting the peanuts the lads stuffed them in pockets and dashed back to the cart. A string was affixed to the steam whistle and the boys amused pedestrians with their antics with the whistle.

The Union Pacific railroad placed 500 "Go West" cards in depots in this area and Harris and Harold "Chick" Evens, manager of the theatre, made a deal with 19 Walgreen drug stores to imprint all menu cards with "Go West" copy during the talker's run. Similar deal was made with the Thompson's chain of restaurants with 20,000 paper napkins being imprinted.

Ask 'Em to Sing—

Lobby display used by Loew's Criterion for the New York first run of Republic's "Hit Parade of 1941." A live mike carried requests for songs to a Hugh Herbert imitator, who played the recordings requested. The sign above the cutouts reads: "Step up to the microphone and ask Hugh Herbert or Mary Boland for your favorite tune from 'Hit Parade'." Then are listed several of the song titles.

Interview Star by Phone

MINNEAPOLIS—As a plug for "Spring Parade," the St. Paul Orpheum had Jules L. Steele, St. Paul Dispatch film editor, interview Deanna Durbin over the long distance telephone.

TREMENDOUS changes have taken place throughout the country in the local retailing of motion picture attractions to the regular and potential audiences in the community. Exhibitors have cleaned up and greatly improved their showmanship and their EXPLOITATION. They have found, among other things, that diminutive heralds, equally small size printed house programs and occasional circular throwaways are inadequate vehicles for intelligent promotion.

Managers and owners HAVE TURNED TO MOVIE TIME, THE THEATRE'S OWN ILLUSTRATED, REGULARLY-ISSUED WEEKLY NEWSPAPER as the perfect medium for increasing theatre goodwill and attracting greater patronage.

To create such a weekly newspaper for your theatre would be an expensive undertaking, quite beyond any average theatre's means. Magazine grade paper in small quantities is expensive. Fine screen illustrations are equally so. You have no Hollywood staff to gather gossip, news and features and you would be obliged to print stale matter rewritten from the newspapers.

MOVIE TIME—now in its eighth month of consecutive weekly publication and used by theatres throughout the country—was created to provide you a peppy, snappy, colorful, newsy and intelligent weekly house organ AT LOW COST. It has gained immense popularity. It is within reach of almost the smallest of theatres.

Based on their size our theatre clients use from 1,000 to 5,000 copies per theatre per week. We ship it to them flat and local printers imprint on Page 1 the name of the theatre and on Page 4 (a full blank page) the house programs and advertisements of local stores, shops, soda fountains, lunch rooms, dry cleaners, cocktail bars, cigarette and candy outlets to cover a large part or all of what MOVIE TIME costs them.

MOVIE TIME is offered on an exclusive basis in your zone or neighborhood. When you have it a competitor cannot get it. It is high time you got samples of it. When you have examined them we believe you will become one of the alert and progressive exhibitors using MOVIE TIME.

Signs Along the Way

TAKE a brief stroll with us behind the scenes. We hope it will be of interest. We know it ought to be.

Here we were the other day, feet on desk, giving that favorite spot on the office ceiling another steady and unblinking stare. Ideas, some good and some—let's skip it—have come out of these goings on in the past. The theory, of course, is the harder the concentration the better the ultimate idea. And, while there is nothing written in law or legend that this always works out, frequently it has.

Anyway, here we were belatedly and slowly recouping from a New Year's Eve party, wondering and pondering somewhat over the kind of a year this will turn out to be in terms of attractions, grosses and the like. It occurred to us, as it has often in the past, that this business, strangely and forever trying to set itself apart from all others, continues to construct its present and its future along lines most pleasant to itself but with little or no regard to trends and drifts milling and swirling on the outside. It is an effort let loose very definitely on the impossible side.

The Search for Facts

FOR instance. There have been times in past years when general business was off, unemployment staggeringly higher, money tight. Other industries sought to do something about all of these factors, but not this one. Budgets stayed immutably fixed, salaries kept on skimming along the clouds and the only things which did not meet were income and outgo.

Because it has been your observer's opinion, and incidentally another of his unshakeable ones, that the picture business inevitably must reflect what goes on around the country, he directed a series of questions to Washington.

BOXOFFICE's news bureau there was asked, calmly and painstakingly and without any enthusiasms unwarranted by the facts, to comb the situation. Labor indices, national defense, a rise or a fall in the national income—what about these factors? What, exactly, is the available information and what, reasonably enough, might they mean to the men of this industry?

In this issue, you will find the answer, probably as closely as anyone can fairly reason the future. It is an interesting answer and one that ought to rekindle business hopes in a lot of hearts and minds across the nation.

For example, the conclusion is that theatre business generally will be better in 1941, the upsurge asserting itself as soon as the effects of the $5,000,000,000 expected to be actually spent on national defense this fiscal year—it ends June 30—begin to make themselves evident.

"Every section of the country will share in the beneficial results of increased national income which ran around $74,000,000,000 for 1940, is currently at $76,000,000,000 and may reach as much as $80,000,000,000 for 1941," part of the Washington report goes.

The Wheels Turn

THE ARMY uses 45,000 different items, the navy 28,000 and all of them have to be manufactured by someone somewhere in the land. Railroad freight traffic, an infallible marker, is up seven per cent over last year and is expected to increase seven to ten per cent in 1941. This, naturally, means goods of all kinds are being made and on the move.

It means more men and women are returning to work, getting pay envelopes where they have not been getting them before or getting them more regularly than before.

It means the rank and file, which are the sinews of the country, will be seeking entertainment. Not necessarily film entertainment, but all forms of entertainment and that, in their search, there is all reasonable expectancy this industry will get its proportionate share.

How much of a share? That, as usual, depends firstly on the product they are asked to patronize. But also it depends on efficient theatre operation attuned, as it always should be, to the best in service and in comforts.

If the public gets a big admission's worth, the climax of this tale will write itself. It will need no embroidery rolling out of this typewriter.

$5,000,000,000 FOR DEFENSE SEEN AS SURE-FIRE 1941 HYPO

All Areas Expected to Share; Unemployment Forecast Is Puzzler

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Despite conflicting views as to the actual unemployment situation throughout the country at the present time, one fact stands forth clearly—exhibitors, who in 1940 did a better business than in 1939, will do a still better business in 1941. This is the Washington view.

With federal appropriations for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30 next, at the all-time high peace level of some $17,842,000,000, of which $8,800,000,000 was for national defense although actual expenditures probably will not exceed $5,000,000,000, and with probably as much or more to be appropriated for the coming fiscal year, with defense expenditures placed at around $10,000,000,000, the conclusion is inescapable.

Every section of the country will share in the beneficial results of increased national income, which ran around $74,000,000,000 for 1940, is currently at $76,000,000,000 and may reach as much as $80,000,000,000 for 1941.

The amusement business has been on the up-grade for many months, as is demonstrated by the steadily increasing admission tax collections, even with generous allowances for the results of the reduction of the exemption which became effective last July 1.

This improvement has been a reflection of the impetus given by the defense program, even in its early stage of tooling up for the heavy production which will get under way within the next few months.

The defense program has meant increased employment. Initially spotty and confined to a relatively few centers, such as those of machine tool production, airplane manufacture and the like, the increased employment is spreading rapidly as the machines and tools are distributed among the thousands of factories which are preparing to produce military equipment for the government.

Army orders for 7,000,000 pairs of shoes, millions of uniforms and overcoats, underwear, rifles, machine guns, tremendous quantities of food; the construction of many large cantonments; orders for ships—and the army uses some 45,000 different items and the navy 28,000—are making the wheels of industry hum and giving new heart to agriculture. Railroad freight traffic is seven per cent above last year and due to increase seven to 10 per cent more during 1941.

All this means more jobs, but there is a decided difference of opinion as to the extent of the re-employment to be given by defense activity. Originally, government economists figured 6,000,000 men and women would be put back to work by next summer, but they have scaled their forecast downward. Labor organizations calculate 3,000,000 will be a generous figure.

CIO View Dark

Just what the employment situation is today will not be known until around the end of next month. Latest available figures show conditions in November and there is some controversy as to what they will be in January, federal agencies believing there will be further improvement while the CIO forecasts that unemployment will be as great as in last July because of the idleness of agricultural workers.

However, for what they may be worth, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported on December 27 that total non-agricultural employment in November was 36,535,000, more than 1,100,000 greater than in November, 1939, and 40,000 more than in the preceding month.

On January 2 the National Conference Board figured November employment in both agriculture and industry at 48,132,000, an increase of 1,816,000 over the same year before.

But the board figured, too, that in November total unemployment increased by 573,000 over the previous month to 7,217,000, due to a drop of 805,000 persons in agricultural employment, but the total was 1,120,000 less than in November, 1939.

The most important feature of the figures of both organizations was the fact that industrial employment increased in a month when normally it shows a seasonal decline.

Geographically, the gain in employment during the year ended with November was spread over the entire country, but the degree of expansion was dependent in each area on the type of activity predominating.

The largest increases were six per cent in the east north central and 5.1 per cent in the Pacific areas, where the manufacturing industries and building construction accounted for most of the gains. Slightly smaller increases occurred in the South Atlantic (4.9 per cent) and New England (3.9 per cent) regions, the result of higher levels of employment in manufacturing, construction and government. The east south central area showed an increase of 3.4 per cent, due mainly to increased activity in manufacturing and building construction, while gains of between two and three per cent were registered in the other regions.

While the initial impetus toward economic improvement is given by our own defense program and the British war orders, the effects will be cumulative as the workers in the armanent industries demand new suits and shoes and shirts and a multitude of other things. That demand will give employment to workers in civilian industries, whose own increased buying

This Is How Scene Looks Right Now

Washington—Summary of the national business situation, as seen by Earle A. Dyer, head of the Washington bureau of BOXOFFICE:

"For the moment, the economic picture is rosy. True, there are disagreeable omens in the tea leaves—portents of increased taxes, restrictions of non-essential production and the ominous question of our future after the liquidation of the preparedness effort.

"But the country lived through the 'Terrible Thirties;' it will meet new problems as they come. And the signs now all point to a healthy progress, locally and nationally, through the coming year."

"Time for Action"-Schenck

New York—"How do you regard business prospects for the industry in 1941," BOXOFFICE asked Nicholas M. Schenck.

The president of Loew's, who makes infrequent statements but makes them to the point when he does, replied in 18 words. Here they are:

"Nobody can make a forecast of the future. This is a time for action and not for words."

ADMITS SMOOTH DECREE ERA IS MONTHS, MAYBE YEARS, AWAY

Budgeteers Get Busy

New York — The AAA budget committee, comprising P. M. Haight, representing the AAA; Van Vechten Veeder, chairman of the appeals board, representing the court, and Joseph H. Hazen of Warner Bros., representing the industry, met Wednesday for the first time to allocate expenditures and allowances for arbitration tribunals under the decree. Because of illness, Haight, however, has resigned from the committee. Paul M. Warburg replaces him.

The principal topic was how the "Big Five" should contribute at this time toward the total of $490,000 for the first year. It was stated, following the meeting, the contributions will not be made in one lump sum, but probably quarterly payments.

AAA to List Clerks, Arbiters Soon Now

NEW YORK—The American Arbitration Ass'n in a few days will list local addresses of the 31 film tribunals expected to be in operation February 1, as well as the names of clerks selected and arbitrators who will make up local panels. This was decided upon the return over the weekend of J. Noble Braden, executive director, from a trip that took him through a number of southern cities.

Meanwhile, and in readiness for the opening gun, the AAA has appointed Elbert Morse Wood as comptroller and the firm of Kurz and Kurz as auditors of the arbitration system. Wood is a member of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants, the National Association of Cost Accountants and a charter member of the Accountant's Club of America. He spent four years in the near east as district auditor for the insular government of the Philippine Islands. During the war Wood was called to Washington to assist in the formation of an accounting system for the American Red Cross.

Invite Theatre Partners To Para't Decree Talks

NEW YORK—Paramount's theatre affiliates will be invited to attend meetings being held at the distributor's exchanges where Austin C. Keough, general counsel, and Louis Phillips, his assistant, explain legal angles of the decree.

The first meeting was held January 3 at the New York exchange with Barney Balaban, president; Leon Netter, circuit executive, and Robert M. Weitman, managing director for the Paramount, in attendance with other home office executives.

About 50 exchange and home office representatives were present at the local meeting held in the projection room. J. J. Unger, eastern division head, was not there. He was in Boston at the time. Keough, Phillips and Irving Cohen of the home office legal department were on hand.

"Drive-In" Hearing Feb. 3

BOSTON—The Miami Drive-In anti-trust action against the majors goes before Special Master Arthur Black here February 3.

"Little 3" Motions to Be Heard Jan. 30

NEW YORK—Applications of Columbia to dismiss and of UA and Universal to force the government to amend its new complaint against them has been set for a hearing before Trial Judge Henry Warren Goddard in the federal court for January 30. Applications were due to be heard earlier in the month, but Edward C. Raftery, attorney for UA and Universal, had to go to California, while Louis Frohlich, attorney for Columbia, was up to his neck in the Ascap situation.

Numerous reasons are submitted for the relief sought, the most important of these being that in its new action the government has included all the charges of the old suit, including as defendants the five producer-exhibitors who signed the decree. In order to simplify the charges, the court is asked to strike out all allegations referring to the producer-exhibitors. Columbia's plea also mentions the necessity by virtue of the terms of the decree of the government securing a court ruling against the non-theatre owning defendants by June 1, 1942, which places these three companies in the guise of "guinea pigs."

Rites for Cowdin's Father

NEW YORK—Funeral services were held Thursday for John Elliott Cowdin, retired silk merchant and father of J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board of Universal. He was 83 and had been ill for some time.

5 Grapes in Bunch, Is Zanuck's View

New York—"What do you expect to happen at the studios under the decree?" a BOXOFFICE reporter asked Darryl F. Zanuck who had just accepted the New York Film Critics' award for "The Grapes of Wrath" as the best film of last year.

"I'm not sure," he replied, "but all five in each group probably will have to be as good as 'The Grapes of Wrath'."

In his broadcast acceptance, Zanuck said the film was 20th-Fox's most successful commercially last year.

Justice Dept., Though, Expects Industry to Iron Kinks Slowly

WASHINGTON—Many months, perhaps several years, will be required for all branches of the industry to reach smooth operation under the consent decree if it lasts that long, it is admitted by officials of the department of justice. But, they believe, the industry quickly will reach a point of equilibrium and that such kinks as are bound to occur will be ironed out gradually and, it is hoped, amicably.

In informed circles, reports that a decade or more will be required to get the decree working smoothly are not taken seriously. Instead, it is believed that, if the decree doesn't show results within a very limited time, it either will be quickly amended or a stiff fight made for congressional action defining finally and exactly how the industry shall operate.

Any deficiencies in the setup ordered by the decree, it is expected, will make themselves apparent within a year. If serious, they may be made the subject of further court action to correct them.

Department officials declined to speculate how long it would take to get the decree working properly. But they indicated very clearly they could not see a decade of controversy ahead over its provisions, although they predicted there will be controversies in the industry so long as it exists, just as there are in all large industries.

In an address before a group of Florida exhibitors at Miami a few days ago E. L. Kuykendall, MPTOA president, declared Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, had told him it will take 12 years before the decree will function properly.

Indirect Arnold Plea For More Appropriations

WASHINGTON—An indirect plea for increased appropriations is carried to the new Congress in the annual report of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, in charge of the anti-trust division of the department of justice.

Pointing out that for many years only small funds were provided for anti-trust law enforcement, Arnold reports that "the funds now available, while neither adequate nor ample, are no longer insignificant and the consequent vigor and scope of the enforcement program has revealed for the first time the utility of the anti-trust laws.

"The lesson learned in recent years is that when the anti-trust laws are actively enforced they become an efficient weapon, usable on a broad front, in the battle to save the free competitive system from self-destruction," he says.

In the anti-trust drive now under way,

Sees Challenge in 1941 And Need to Re-Valuate

By MURRAY SILVERSTONE

Chief of World-Wide Operations, United Artists

NEW YORK—The year will bring to the industry the sharpest challenge in its entire history. The structure that our industry has built, predicated on the increasing popularity of American motion pictures in other countries, must be re-examined and re-evaluated. Over a period of 30 or more years our films have found an increasingly large audience throughout the world. But in this past year alone, many doors leading to this market have been closed.

We have a great industry. We have the best manpower that any industry can have. We have the ability, the materials, the spirit and the imagination to make the finest pictures Hollywood has ever produced.

The challenge that the new year brings will be the challenge to utilize that manpower, those materials, that spirit and that imagination to the end that Americans will flock to motion picture theatres in ever greater numbers.

If we meet this challenge, the doors that have been closed to us in other parts of the world will not constitute a too serious threat.

Northwest 1940 Income Highest in 11 Years

MINNEAPOLIS—The film industry here is much encouraged by figures just published by the Greater North Dakota Ass'n, in its annual report, showing that North Dakota's agricultural income for 1940 aggregating $235,000,000, was the highest in 11 years.

power will lead to further demand and further employment.

With new jobs and new money, this increasing host of workers is expected to look for recreation in picture theatres, among other places, and so exhibitors seem destined to come in for their share of the broadened national income.

In the agricultural areas where there is little or no manufacturing, improved farm income will be the basis for increased spending. The 1940 farm return was materially greater than that of 1939; the 1941 will show another increase despite the loss of many important foreign markets for cotton, tobacco and other staple products.

General Improvement

But not every exhibitor in every locality will benefit equally by the improved conditions which are developing. The extent of the individual's benefit will depend upon a number of factors—volume of employment, wage levels, living costs—in his immediate locality. No picture can be drawn and no chart drafted, only the general conclusion can be reached that the theatre business as a whole will be better this year than last.

Theatre attendance, in most areas, is better than it was a year ago. But how rapidly further improvement will develop will depend upon the speed with which defense contracts get under operation. In general, full development will be slower in the interior of the country than along the seaboard.

This is due to the fact that, for the most part, industrial activity prior to the defense program was concentrated largely along the coasts and at a few strategic inland points. Large defense contracts are to be produced in the interior, however, but in many cases it was necessary for the government to have special plants built. These plants are now going up, some of them nearing completion.

Big Plants for Midwest

The procurement plans of the government call for the decentralization of defense production, with many establishments located at interior points which will be safe from air raids in the event of an emergency. The result will be that in the near future there will be large industries in communities not now known as industrial centers.

The isolationist midwest, where 1,500 miles of land and 3,000 miles of water have been considered an adequate protection against war coming to its doors will be given many important military orders as part of the administration's program to make America defense conscious, a project long known and enthusiastically aided by exhibitors. The Northwest will get new plants, as will the south.

Meanwhile, because they had facilities available, the established industrial centers are producing the bulk of the immediate needs of the army and navy. It is in those areas, as shown by the labor department figures, that the greatest increases in employment have occurred.

Flashes From the News Front

Sustains Ascap Tax

MILWAUKEE—The 1935 state statute requiring licenses for music brokers and payment of a 25 per cent franchise tax was sustained here in a federal court ruling in the case of Leo Feist, Inc., vs. Wiley Young, a West Allis tavern keeper.

Settle Copyright Suit

CHARLOTTE—The case of LeGette Blythe against M-G-M on charges of infringement of "Marshal Ney: A Dual Life" in the production of the featurette, "The Bravest of the Brave," has been settled by stipulation in federal court here.

Airs Paramount Setup

BOSTON—George Ryan, plaintiff attorney, attempted to point up Paramount's "wide influence" in New England's exhibition field in testimony during the trial here of the Waldo Theatre vs. the late Joseph Dondis and major interests. The company's corporative setup was aired at length.

Would Legalize Beano

SPRINGFIELD—Legalization of Beano and other forms of cash games is proposed in a bill introduced in the Massachusetts legislature. Beano games are making inroads on theatre grosses over the state.

Heads Boston Club

BOSTON—Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres partner, has been named chief barker of the Variety Club.

Honor O'Donnell

DALLAS—Nearly 600 industry members and their wives turned out for the Variety Club luncheon here to R. J. O'Donnell, Interstate Circuit general manager, to signal his retirement as chief barker after five continuous terms in that post. He is succeeded by Paul Short.

PCCITO Meeting Jan. 13

PORTLAND—Albert J. Law, general counsel of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, will attend the first meeting since his appointment when the trustees confer here January 13.

Out of Crescent Suit

NASHVILLE—Dismissal of the Crescent Amusement Co. suit as it applies to the five distributors party to the consent decree has been formalized in federal court.

Ohio Tax Need Seen Less

COLUMBUS—Increased tax collections and reduced relief costs in estimates for 1941 as compared to 1940 are raising hopes that the legislature will not boost the present three per cent tax on admissions.

Would Repeal Colorado Tax

DENVER—A bill has been introduced in the legislature to repeal the Colorado service tax of two per cent on tickets over five cents.

New England Is on Definite Upgrade

BOSTON—Theatre business in New England is definitely on the up-grade, industry observers state. Marked increases, moveover, are expected to follow during the succeeding months of this year. The current business boom, which has already shot industry here 10 per cent above normal, is concretely tied in with the film spurt.

The film industry increase, however, is marked with certain definite characteristics. Patronage in many localities is being held back, it is felt, because the local citizenry is still trying to pay up deficits incurred during bleak years. Another extreme, that of potential patrons being too taxed by over time work to find time for movie relaxation, has arisen.

There is also a psychological angle, it is felt. Many potential moviegoers have been deprived of the chance so long to rub two coins together that their new found prosperity has incited temporary hoarding motives.

It is felt, and special holiday shows bore it out, that lower price houses including the numerous neighborhoods, will be skipped by the newly prosperous. The New Year midnight shows, in particular, found neighborhood houses deserted while de luxers, even though running at increased prices, had to turn them away. Swelled pocketbooks are in many cases making for fancier tastes.

Zanuck Is Brimful of Optimism for 1941

NEW YORK—Darryl F. Zanuck is brimful of optimism for 1941, he declared during a brief stay here. The 20th Century-Fox producer came to New York from the coast to accept the New York Film Critics' award of the best film of 1940 on behalf of "The Grapes of Wrath."

Zanuck attributes a business rise to a number of reasons. He feels the decree will make for better, although perhaps fewer, pictures and that the defense program will step up industry generally. "The first money a man gets he uses to pay his debts. The second is spent in stores. The third is used in luxuries and, although films come in this last class, because of their universal appeal picture people will benefit by more spending in this third group than ever before," he observed.

The producer spent Monday in Washington, then flew west.

O'Shea on First Tour As Division Manager

NEW YORK—E. K. "Ted" O'Shea, newly appointed central division manager for M-G-M, is on the first wing of exchanges under his new jurisdiction. He left late in the week for Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Memphis and Oklahoma City and plans to be back in two weeks when he will move into his new headquarters at the home office.

Omaha Territory Bullish, But Fingers Are Crossed

OMAHA—Exhibitors in this exchange area—Nebraska, western Iowa and southern South Dakota—expect improved business conditions during 1941, except in spots. But most of them have their fingers crossed until the increased grosses get here.

Indications point to a definite upswing in the metropolitan areas. However, the rural sections may not feel the effects of the upturn until later months. Exhibitors plan to play their cards close to the vest until they see what happens, what with the consent decree, competition and a few other uncertain elements in sight.

Omaha has been definitely selected as site for a $10,000,000 bomber plant to be constructed about 10 miles south. This plant may employ 25,000, and construction is expected to start in February. This situation definitely will mean increased grosses for Omaha theatres, as well as the smaller houses in towns within a radius of 25 miles.

Exhibitors are not sure just what effect national defense will have on the smaller theatres in Nebraska and Iowa towns and smaller communities. Possibly the upswing will catch on there, too.

The last part of 1940 was decidedly downward in trend, hitting a low prior to Christmas, according to circuits and independents alike, in both metropolitan and rural areas. Since then and starting in 1941, things have been brighter.

Business in the Nebraska-Iowa area will be no different in 1941 than in 1940 and the prior eight years unless the national defense boom helps. Theatres depend on the agricultural situation, usually, and outlook along this line is only fair.

Exhibitors that are not directly affected by national defense construction hope the national upward trend of business helps them.

Seventy Held Over

PITTSBURGH—Seventy features were held for extra playing time here during the past year. Seventeen Metro pictures garnered a total of 49 weeks.

What the Studios Are Doing

Goldstone Asks $1,500,000 For "Damaged Goods" Ban

HOLLYWOOD—If Hollywood's independent production gentry has its way, the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America is apparently destined to be the vortex of the next flood of litigation and dissension which seemingly must continue to be a standard prop on the industry scene.

Two broadsides were aimed at the Hays organization, one openly and in the courts of California, the other a subterranean grumbling campaign . . . Criterion Pictures, independent unit, and its head, Phil Goldstone, have filed a $1,500,000 damage suit in U. S. district court here against the MPPDA charging it, Will Hays, Joseph Breen and other members of the organization with violating the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws. Specifically, plaintiffs assert the MPPDA's production code administration refused a purity seal for Criterion's "Damaged Goods," feature dealing with syphilis, but later gave a seal to Warner's "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," treating of the same disease. The charge adds that the MPPDA controls almost all first-run theatres and excludes all independent producers from the first-run market.

Code Seal Fee Boost Irks Independents

The underground complaint, which may flare into a united movement in protest, came into being when a little-publicized MPPDA manifesto declared that, effective January 1, production code service fees on pictures with a negative cost of $100,000 or less would be raised to $100 from the previous $50 to $25. Independents contend the 300 per cent increase affects picture-makers who can least afford it. The MPPDA asserts the previous rate was insufficient to cover deficits in operating costs . . . In the meantime, the Hays office and the Screen Actors Guild are keeping wary eyes on a development which revived the perennial issue of local theatre censorship. The police commission and city counsel have instructed the city attorney to draft a suggested ordinance empowering police to arbitrarily close any stage or screen show which the law might deem indecent. SAG has adopted a ruling barring from membership anyone participating in such shows and, with the Hays office, is fighting the censorship move because it "threatens the American principles of freedom of expression."

Production Holds Up Despite the Turmoil

Despite threatened turmoil, production promises to progress at the pace maintained in the past several months . . . A minimum of 40 pictures have already been announced for the first quarter of 1941 . . . Universal has announced it will deliver its full 1940-41 program of 63 pictures, despite losses from abroad . . . Most popular in coming films are straight dramas, comedies and westerns, in that order . . . Warner is joining the South American bandwagon with the announcement it will make "Carnival in Rio," starring George Raft. Same studio will smash at the Nazis with "Underground," story of anti-Nazi radio hookups.

36 "A" and 16 "B" From M-G-M for Next Season

By BILL ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK—M-G-M will produce 36 "A" and 16 "B" pictures for 1941-42 and the company's first block of five to be sold under the terms of the decree will be ready for trade showing in July and the second block in August, so stated Al Lichtman while in town for a week of home office conferences.

No changes in the studio setup will be necessary to conform to the decree, he added, and budget for the new season will be set on each picture as it comes up rather than a blanket spending allowance for the entire program.

Lichtman pointed out M-G-M does not operate on a set outlay for the season's program, but takes up the individual expenditures as productions are scheduled.

There is no particular type of feature to be stressed in the forthcoming program, he continued. "We will make any type that in our opinion will please the public. We have no preconceived ideas or notions of what will please the customers at the boxoffice," he added.

Already lined up for the 1941-42 season are two for Greta Garbo, one "Madame Curie," by the scientist's daughter, and the second a comedy as yet untitled.

Norma Shearer in Two

Norma Shearer will appear in two, "Tonight at 8:30," based on a series of one-act plays by Noel Coward, and the second, "The World We Make," from the Sidney Kingsley play.

Clark Gable and Lana Turner will appear in "Honky Tonk," which will be one of the big ones from the lot.

Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland will be co-starred in "Broadway Melody of 1941."

A lavish musical will be "Big Time."

The Marx Brothers are slated for "Step This Way," tentatively titled.

William Powell and Myrna Loy will be co-featured in "Married Bachelor" and another in "The Thin Man" series.

Louis Bromfield's novel, "Night in Bombay," will serve as a starring attraction for Joan Crawford.

Spencer Tracy will have the title role in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Wallace Beery will star in "Combat Car," based on the mechanization of the cavalry.

Another Spencer Tracy starring attraction will be "The Yearling," a best seller.

Pandro Berman is now finishing "Ziegfeld Girl," his first for the company.

Present indications are that there will be no reduction in shorts. This season the company is releasing 91 reels. In this category are the "Crime Does Not Pay," the Pete Smiths, James A. FitzPatrick Traveltalks, Our Gangs and a cartoon series.

The group of pictures to be screened in July will be released in September and the block to be tradeshown in August will be released in October and so forth, Lichtman stated.

M-G-M to Release 48-49 This Season

New York—M-G-M will hold to its regular custom this year and release 48 or 49 in the program of 44-52 announced for the season, according to Al Lichtman, production executive.

Asked if the company planned another production on the scale and calibre of "Gone With the Wind," Lichtman said M-G-M would like to make a picture of that type once a month, but it is "impossible," adding "That also goes for one a year."

Loew's 1940 Earnings Slightly Under 1939

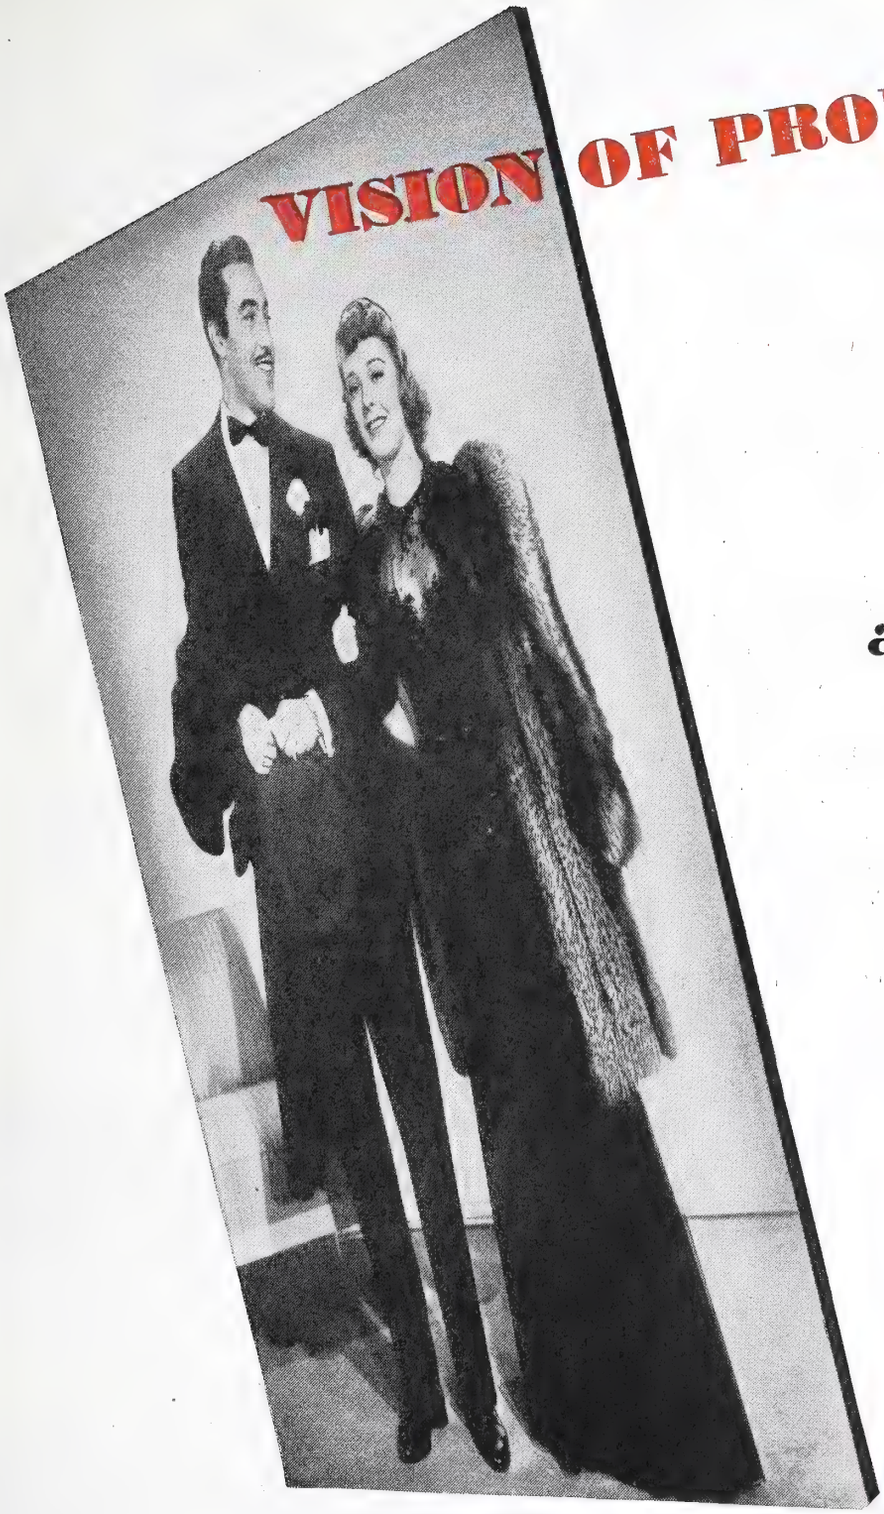
NEW YORK—Loew's earnings for the year ended August 31, 1940 were $8,908,469.74 or $933,060.87 less than the previous year, it is revealed in a consolidated profit and loss statement sent to stockholders over the weekend. Theatre receipts, rentals and sales of films and accessories for 1940 aggregated $133,375,150.96 as compared with $122,577,542.84 for the year ended August 31, 1939.

Net income before taxes is listed at $11,393,055.18 as against $12,338,751.83 for the same 1939 period. Federal income taxes were decreased from $1,958,851.13 to $1,800,855.28.

At the last regular board meeting the directors declared $1.62½ dividend on the cumulative preferred, payable February 15 to record holders of January 31.

In a special balance sheet notation various changes and items are explained for the benefit of stockholders.

"Cash in foreign countries," the statement declares, "all subject in some degree to export restrictions totaled $4,446,848.86. To the extent of such cash balances included for respective countries $1,278,983.17 has been received in the United States up to January 2, 1941. The net amount of all assets in all foreign countries (not including portion of cost of film productions allocated to foreign but retained on books in the United States) was $14,456,999.01, of which net current assets (with the same exclusion of cost of film productions) amounted to $3,223,946.64. Of the current liabilities due to foreign banks by foreign subsidiaries, Loew's has guaranteed $1,855,753.83.



"Reserve has been accumulated since 1928 by surcharging production costs with 10 per cent of the cost of books and rights used and the net profit on sales of books and rights. It is considered that after charge-offs made in 1940 and prior years the balance of this reserve, plus the substantial value of books and rights previously used in productions and available for reissue or remake (the specific costs of which have been written off), offsets the costs of specific books and rights carried in the accounts which may not ultimately be used.

"Including appraisals made in 1925 with subsequent additions at cost. Since 1925 the equity in net undistributed profits of partly owned subsidiary and affiliated corporations has increased $1,792,671.98.

"Other investments include fixed deposits in Yokohama Specie Bank, Ltd., San Francisco, due 1941-42, $230,240.15; 600 shares of Loew's, Inc. $6.50 cumulative preferred stock at cost $59,937;

Paul Short's Division Top in NSS Drive

NEW YORK—Paul Short's southwestern division scored first place in the National Screen 20th anniversary testimonial drive for Herman Robbins. The drive started September 15 and concluded December 28 and marked the first time Robbins has permitted the use of his name for a sales campaign. It was also the most successful drive in the organization's history, according to George Dembow, vice-president.

The top ranking exchange was Dallas where Wallace Walthall, is manager. Second was Louis Boyer's New Orleans branch. Third was Gilbert Clark, Oklahoma City; four, Herbert Washburn, brother of Bryant, the actor, St. Louis; fifth, Arthur Manheimer, son of John, ITOA of New York secretary, Cincinnati; Bob Simral, Charlotte, was sixth.

The first 10 salesmen chalking up the best results, in the order named, were Edward Sonz, Cincinnati; "Doc" Allen, Dallas; Cecil Rudnick, Boston; Milton Smith, Washington, D. C.; Joe Stokvis, Philadelphia; Arnold Cohen, New York; L. George Ross, Cincinnati; Ben Lass, St. Louis; Herbert Cass, Seattle; Henry Reiner, New York.

South Holds Spotlight In Activity; Canada Construction Dips

New theatres entering the field in the U. S. and Canada in 1940 totaled 329, or 60 less than the number for the previous year, a BOXOFFICE survey shows. Six states did not have any new candidates in the final tally for the 1940 period, these being Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Montana, North Dakota and Vermont. In 1939 the same total of states showed a blank for new theatres, but then they were Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon and Rhode Island.

The south again holds the spotlight in activity with such states as Alabama adding 12 new houses, Arkansas, 11; Florida, 12; Georgia, 10; Kentucky, a small state, four; Louisiana, 11; Tennessee, 10; Texas 25, and West Virginia, 13.

25 New Ones in Texas

Texas again was the leading state with a tally of 25 newly opened structures as against 32 in 1939. California, which followed on the heels of Texas the previous year with 31, again claims that honor with an aggregate of 24 new theatres in 1940.

Third leading state was Pennsylvania with 23 newly opened houses in 1940. For 1939 this state reported only 12 new projects entering the field. Ohio was fourth with 18, the same number as in 1939.

Canada showed a drop of seven in the comparative years. For 1939 there were 22 new units built, but in 1940 the total dropped to 15. This apparently is due to the war.

In a quarter-by-quarter analysis as between 1939 and 1940, the last three months of the past year were considerably disappointing as compared with the same period in 1939. For instance, in 1939 the number of new houses opened from October through December totaled 143. In 1940 for the same three months there were only 86 new theatres finished.

Nine Less Than in 1939

With a tally of 69 newly opened houses for the first quarter of 1940, this was nine less than the number for the same three months in the year prior. The second quarter of the year just ended showed 83 completed structures, as compared to 82 for the same three months in 1939. The third quarter of 1940 was the best for the year and even showed an improvement over the July-September period in 1939 when 86 new theatres began operation.

One of the surprises was the lack of theatre building in New York state, which in 1939 reported 15 new ones and in 1940 came through with only eight. New Jersey also is in the same class with one for 1940 and two for the year previous.

Monogram Sets Up Annual Drive Plans

ST. LOUIS—Monogram franchise holders, meeting here over the weekend, mapped plans for the annual "March of Monogram" sales drive to be launched February 22 and continued until April 11.

Cash awards for winning districts will be made, according to W. Ray Johnston, president, who announced a division of the country into zones, each of which carries the name of a picture or a star.

The "East Side Kids" will be the territory covering New York, Boston, Albany and Buffalo; "Frankie Darro's Hell Raisers": Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburgh; "Tex Ritter's Rhythm Rangers": Atlanta, Charlotte, Memphis and New Orleans; "Gene Stratton-Porter's Gold Diggers": Cincinnati, Cleveland and Detroit; "Keye Luke's Bombers": Chicago, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and Minneapolis; "'Swimmin' Hole Gang": Des Moines, Omaha, Kansas City and St. Louis; "Range Busters": Oklahoma City, Dallas, Denver and Salt Lake, and "Jack London's Forty Niners": Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Among those attending the local sessions in addition to Johnston were Howard Stubbins, west coast franchise holder; George West, Kansas City and St. Louis; "Steve" Broidy, general sales manager, who came on from New York, en route to the studio where he will make his headquarters; John Mangham, Atlanta; Ben Welansky, Boston and Pittsburgh; Harry L. Berkson, Buffalo; Henri Elman, Chicago; Nate Schultz and William Onie, Cleveland; John Franconi and Ed Blumenthal, Dallas; Lon T. Fidler, Denver; F. E. Judd, Des Moines; William Hurlbut, Detroit; Charles W. Trampe, Milwaukee; B. L. Nathanson, Minneapolis; Carr Scott, Oklahoma City; Sol J. Francis, Omaha.

RKO Basic Formula for Meetings on Decree

NEW YORK—RKO has adopted a basic formula for meetings to be held in all branches for the purpose of explaining operations under the decree to sales personnel, according to Ned E. Depinet. Each session will consume from four to five hours.

They will be in charge of William Zimmerman of the company's legal staff, who is presently en route to all exchanges for that purpose. It is estimated he will cover 20,000 miles in five weeks. Zimmerman conducted a "laboratory tour" of five branches and reported, as a result, that the company is in possession of a "broad cross-section of all the basic problems likely to arise anywhere in the country."

miscellaneous securities issued by subsidiary and affiliated companies at cost—$103,248.50.

"Sinking fund payments of $400,000 semi-annually commence January 31, 1945. In addition to certain properties which are mortgaged for payment of these bonds, inter-company mortgage indebtedness of subsidiary companies consolidated amounting to $2,449,000 (eliminated on consolidation) are also pledged as collateral.

"Of these, 48,492 shares reserved for options issued to an officer (Nicholas M. Schenck) in connection with personal service contract, and exercisable at $40 a share at the rate of 9,698 2/5 shares cumulative annually from December 31, 1937 to March 1, 1942.

"No dividend on common stock is permitted while dividends or sinking fund requirements on preferred stock are in arrears. No dividend or other distribution by Loew's is permitted if the consolidated surplus is thereby reduced below $37,000,000, or if consolidated current and working assets are thereby reduced to less than twice consolidated current liabilities, but dividends on common stock payable in common stock of Loew's may be declared if such dividends do not reduce the consolidated surplus below $5,000,000.

"Table of amortization of film costs applicable to pictures released on and after September 1, 1939 was revised by (1) allocating 75 per cent of cost to the United States and Canada and 25 per cent to foreign (previously 65 per cent and 35 per cent respectively), (2) increasing percentages of amortization in earlier weeks of release. Revised table results in amortization in earlier weeks of release. Revised table results in amortization of total cost at end of: 12 weeks, 56.5 per cent; 24 weeks, 74.3 per cent; 36 weeks, 83.7 per cent; 52 weeks (1st year), 94 per cent; 80 weeks, 98.2 per cent; 104 weeks (2nd year), 100 per cent. Through such revision, operations have been charged with approximately $3,150,000 more film amortization expense than would have resulted had the table not been changed.

"Contingent liabilities: As joint guarantors of mortgage and note of affiliated corporations—$858,000; additional federal, state and foreign taxes subject to final adjustment and also judgments and settlements which may result under pending litigation."

Although the current and working cash is listed at approximately the same as last year, the report shows a sizeable increase in government and agency securities from $3,380,651.43 in 1939 to $18,181,807.36 for 1940.

The total funded debt is lower. In 1939 it was $36,323,954.42 and the latest calculations show it at $32,832,442.35.

The consolidated earned surplus account, after deductions, is listed at $56,715,616.56 as compared with $52,339,175.57 for the year ended August 31, 1939.

Batcheller Supervising Production for PRC

NEW YORK—George Batcheller jr. has been appointed supervisor of production for Producers Releasing Corp. and now is in the new post at the company's headquarters in Hollywood. He will handle all contracts with writers and producers, according to O. Henry Briggs, president.

Batcheller was associated with his late father in Chesterfield and Invincible Pictures, later moving over to Republic as an associate producer and lately producing commercial subjects for Roland Reed in Hollywood.

On Monday, PRC headquarters in the Paramount Building will be moved to larger quarters on the 18th floor. Briggs plans to leave for the coast soon to spend about a month getting new pictures under way. Several new producers are being lined up to complete the 18 of 38 planned for the current season.

Smooth Decree Era May Be Far Away

in which the film industry has been one of the targets, he tells Congress "a long neglected task of great national importance is at length being undertaken." But, he adds, "the truth is that we have scarcely touched the task that needs to be done."

Defending his division against charges that its proceedings are too long drawn out, the anti-trust chief explains that the large cases require a period of three years or more for completion.

The first year, he says, is consumed with planning and various kinds of preliminary work, blocking out the possible sectors of investigation and obtaining evidence from persons affected by restraints. "Incidentally," he says in this connection, "the government does not go out and hunt situations which may be developed into anti-trust cases.

"When a legitimate complaint comes in, the anti-trust division has either to refuse relief to oppressed citizens or to institute proceedings against the guilty persons. Defendants who decry the activity of the department are not any more indignant than those oppressed citizens who complained to the department in the first instance."

"Second Year Hardest"

During the second year, an appropriation must be secured, a staff trained, studies completed and evidence gathered.

"The second year is usually the most difficult," Arnold says, "because in anti-trust enforcement it is often necessary to prove an unlawful course of conduct by evidence of a series of hidden practices which, when pieced together, constitute a pattern of prohibited conduct.

"Most of the evidence upon which an anti-trust case is built frequently must be sought in the files of the offending parties. And after 50 years of experience the seasoned violators are no longer careless about the contents of their files."

By the beginning of the third year, the government normally is ready to go to trial. The trial may last only a few months or, as in the aluminum case, it may last three years.

The need for vigorous anti-trust law enforcement is greater today than for many years past, due to the defense emergency, Arnold asserts.

"It is well known that large scale expenditures for military purposes are always accompanied by the danger of booming prices and by other dangers born of relaxed business standards and relaxed public vigilance," he declares. "In these times, when all ramparts need to be watched, it is particularly urgent that a domestic rampart such as anti-trust enforcement be kept at full strength."

To Army Reserve Post

WASHINGTON—Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production for 20th-Fox, has been appointed a lieutenant colonel in the army's signal corps reserve.

Starts UA Post—

David E. ("Skip") Weshner who on Monday assumes his new job as director of exploitation at UA under Monroe Greenthal. For years, Weshner has been a Warner Theatre executive-general zone manager in northern New Jersey, national advertising director for the chain in New York, Wisconsin zone manager, and resigned his current post as supervisor of key run theatres in Philadelphia for the UA affiliation.

Schlaifer Is Leader Of UA Kelly Drive

NEW YORK—L. Jack Schlaifer has been named sales drive leader for the Arthur W. Kelly drive which began January 6 and continues until April 19.

The country has been divided by UA into three groups and each group will act independently of each other. In Group A are Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and San Francisco. In Group B are Atlanta, Cincinnati, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Seattle, Washington, Buffalo, Dallas and eastern Canada. In the last group are Charlotte, Denver, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, New Haven, New Orleans, Omaha, Salt Lake City and western Canada.

Instead of a first and second prize, there will be three first and three second awards. A grand total of $20,000 is to be distributed and every employe in the winning exchanges will participate. There also is to be a special $1,000 prize to the district manager whose branches, collectively, show the highest percentage of efficiency in sales and playoff.

Judges will be Harry L. Gold, eastern sales manager; Haskell M. Masters, western sales head; Schlaifer, Paul Lazarus, Nat Thompson and Charles Steele.

Allied to Meet

WASHINGTON—Allied directors will hold their meeting here January 27-28. It is to be a national conclave.

No New Trade Bills As Congress Opens

WASHINGTON—Convening of the 77th Congress brought nothing in the way of proposals for new motion picture legislation, although Representative Francis D. Culkin (Rep., N. Y.) reintroduced his bill to outlaw block booking and Congressman James P. McGranery (Dem., Pa.) again submitted his measure to set up a fine arts bureau in the interior department, while in the Upper House, Senator Matthew M. Neely (Dem., W. Va.) reintroduced his bills prohibiting block booking and divorcing exhibition from other branches of the industry.

With a Congressional session dedicated to the national defense, there appears little likelihood that any great attention will be given matters of less than major importance. Neither of the two bills introduced at the opening of the session were considered in that category.

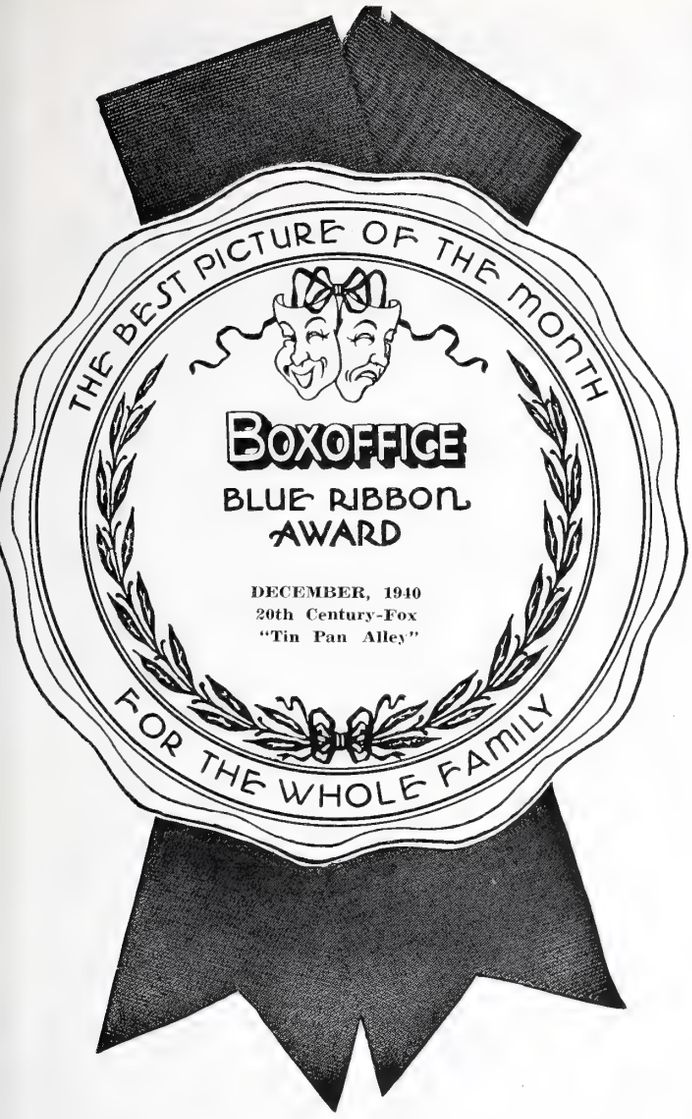
Eye Excess Profits Taxes

The first highlight of the new Congress was President Roosevelt's annual message, revealing that large new tax revenues would be asked for. However, it was indicated, the bulk of these revenues will come from excess profits taxes, rather than from additional levies on consumers, to which the administration is opposed, although reports are current that the admission tax exemption will be reduced to ten cents or, perhaps, eliminated entirely.

New taxes, said the President, are part of the personal sacrifice which the people of the nation must make for preparedness and national defense.

"No person should try, or be allowed, to get rich out of this program," he told an applauding Congress, "and the principle of tax payments in accordance with ability to pay should be constantly before our eyes to guide our legislation."

Cloakroom discussion of taxes at the Capitol centered around the raising of a billion dollars, but there were members who expressed the belief that at least twice that much should be secured.



Huge Take From Admission Tax

Reduction of the admission-tax exemption on July 1, last, will increase the revenue from the federal levy to $68,900,000 for the fiscal year which then began and to $74,200,000 during the year which begins July 1, next, it was estimated in the annual budget sent to Congress by President Roosevelt January 8.

The actual collections for the fiscal year which ended June 30, last, were $21,887,916.

The President discussed the tax situation more fully in his budget message, but made no recommendations more specific than that Congress might find increased additional revenue in a scientific revision of the present tax system.

He made it clear, however, that he proposed that a greater part of the cost of national defense be paid out of current revenues, but warned against the imposition of levies which would tend to restrict consumption or business activity, a possible indication that there will be no increase in the rate of tax on admissions, although the 20-cent exemption may be further reduced so as to catch the cheap amusements of beaches, parks and the like.

This Award is given each month to the film receiving the highest number of votes by the members of the National Screen Council, whose selection is governed by outstanding merit and suitability of the film to whole-family entertainment. Members of the Council include over 200 motion picture editors of leading newspapers throughout the country, motion picture reviewing committee of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, and state motion picture chairmen of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Tin Pan Alley" BOXOFFICE December Blue Ribbon Film

Twentieth Century-Fox pays tribute to the street that gives the world its greatest songs, in its production of "Tin Pan Alley," which film was voted by members of the National Screen Council as the outstanding picture released in December, and winner of the BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award for that month.

Set in the years just prior to the World War and bringing to the screen the melodies of the times, "Tin Pan Alley" was produced under the directorial hand of Walter Lang, with Kenneth Macgowan as its associate producer. The latter has won previous BOXOFFICE Awards for, "In Old Chicago" (April, 1938), "Young Mr. Lincoln" (June, 1939), and "Stanley and Livingstone" (Aug. 1939). Darryl F. Zanuck, executive producer, has also received similar Awards for his productions of "The Country Doctor," "Wee Willie Winkie," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "In Old Chicago," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Young Mr. Lincoln," "Stanley and Livingstone" and "Drums Along the Mohawk."

Alice Faye has won BOXOFFICE Award plaques for her performances in "In Old Chicago" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Jack Oakie received the same insignia honor in October, 1940, for his portrayal of "Napaloni" in "The Great Dictator."

Top Men at Loew's Paid $2,220,730

NEW YORK—Aggregate annual remuneration paid to Loew officers and directors, as a group, for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1940 amounted to $2,220,730.30, according to a proxy statement sent to stockholders over the weekend. Five of the company's directors are not employed with the parent or subsidiary firms.

In notifying stockholders of the annual meeting February 11 at the home office, the principal business on hand will be the ratification of Nicholas M. Schenck's new five-year contract as president on the same terms he now enjoys. His current arrangement ends December 31, 1941. His salary and bonuses totaled $318,881.97 in 1940.

In addition, 12 directors are slated for re-election. Their stock holdings as of December 24, 1940 are recorded as follows:

George N. Armsby, 100 shares of common; David Bernstein, 22,200 shares of common; Leopold Friedman, 612 common; John R. Hazel, 100 common; Al Lichtman, 100 common; Charles C. Moskowitz, 900 common; William A. Parker, 600 common—he is president of Incorporated Investors of Boston which owns 28,000 common—J. Robert Rubin, 25,015; Schenck, 2,817; Joseph R. Vogel, 200; David Warfield, 7,000; Henry Rogers Winthrop, 100.

Under the terms of his current deal, Schenck has the right to purchase 48,492 shares of common up to March 1, 1942 at $40 a share.

The board has already authorized the new five-year personal service contract to begin January 1, 1942, subject to stockholders' approval, with the highlights summarized as follows:

Schenck will receive $2,500 a week, (which includes an allowance for expenses, except expenses incurred while traveling) and two and one-half per cent of the combined net profits of the company, its subsidiaries and ventures. However, before he can participate in such profits there is first deducted:

(1)—$2,745,744 per annum which represents $2 per share on the presently issued and outstanding common stock other than 292,841 shares issued as a stock dividend.

(2)—$2 per annum on each share of common hereafter issued for cash or property, including shares to be issued under stock options.

(3)—Cumulative dividends on any present or future preferred stock (not exceeding seven per cent per annum) and dividends on the preferred stock of companies in which Loew's has a stock interest (to the extent that such preferred stock is held by others than the company).

(4)—All taxes except taxes arising from profits on sales or exchange of property where such profits are not included as income for the benefit of Schenck.

(5)—Interest on bonds, mortgages and moneys borrowed and amortization of discount and expenses in connection with the issuance of bonds, mortgages, preferred stock and borrowed money.

(6)—All fixed compensation but no percentage paid or payable to any employe or executive based on the combined net profits.

(7)—Depreciation on the Culver City studio and on all real and personal property, but in the case of other buildings owned in fee (that is where at least 51 per cent of the aggregate value of the land on which a building is constructed is owned in fee) only half of the depreciation value shall be taken, (which half for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1940 amounted to $578,473.60) and no depreciation shall be deducted on newly constructed theatres from the date of their opening to the end of the then current fiscal year.

Profits or losses from companies and ventures in which the company owns an interest of 25 per cent or more are included to the extent of such interest in net profits or losses, and dividends or receipts from all other companies and ventures are included only if actually earned and paid to the company.

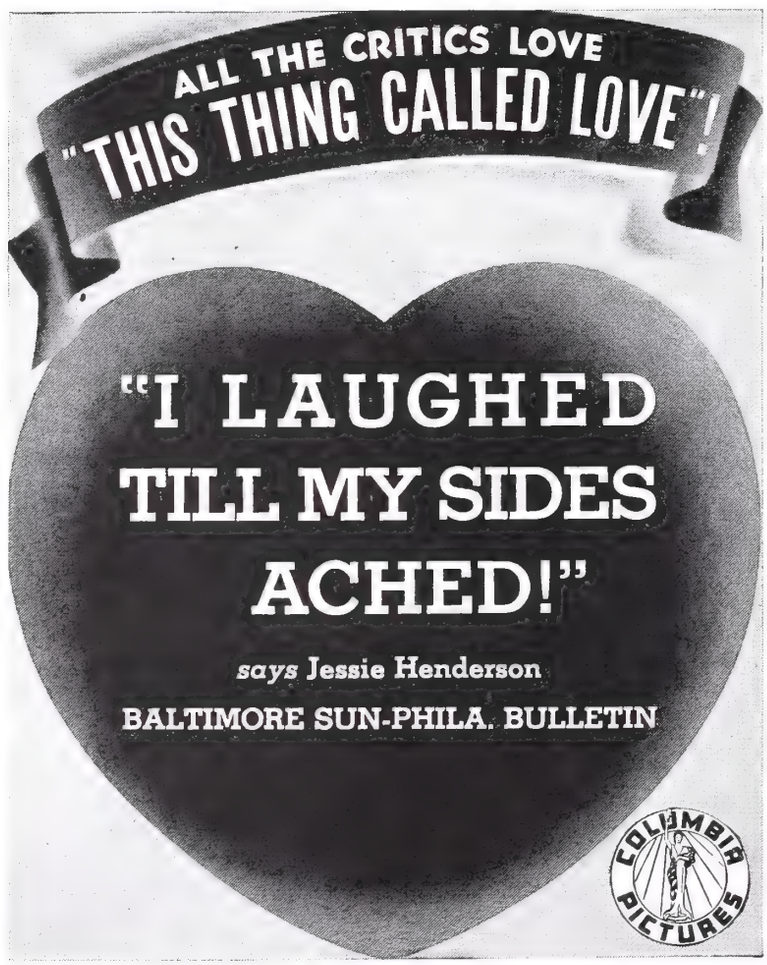
Profits from the sale or exchange of real estate, buildings or leaseholds or stock in companies owning the same, purchased prior to September 1, 1926 are excluded in the computation, and losses on such exchanges are also excluded.

Schenck Pact Chief Business of Meet

Under the terms of the contract, Schenck is granted an extension of his existing option to purchase at the same price of $40 a share the aforementioned 48,492 shares of common (or so much thereof as to which said option may be unexercised on March 1, 1942, the date when his present contract expires) as follows:

One fifth or any part thereof on and after December 31, 1942:

One fifth or any part thereof on and after December 31 of each year thereafter to and including December 31, 1946.



All options expire March 1, 1947.

The contract contains restrictions against the sale by Schenck prior to March 1, 1947, without the consent of the company, of any stock which may be purchased under the option, at a price less than $15 in excess of the price paid by him therefor. In the event of the termination of Schenck's employment prior to December 31, 1946 for any reason other than his voluntary default, all rights cease except that Schenck or his representatives are entitled within six months after termination of his employment:

(a) To exercise any option which he could have exercised at the time of such termination;

(b) To purchase the proportion of additional shares to which he would have had a right to exercise an option on the next succeeding date as the number of months of service prior to such termination (and subsequent to the last preceding option date) bears to 12.

The contract contains provisions designed to protect the options against dilution resulting from stock dividends or changes in the capital structure of the company and provides for the company to offer Schenck in case it issues common stock or convertible issues or warrants to the amount of the then optioned stock. The contract also requires the company to pay taxes legally imposed on the issuance of the shares, to make application for listing the shares on the New York Stock Exchange and to register them with SEC as may be required by law.

Korda Pre-Trial Quiz In Goldwyn's UA Suit

NEW YORK—Alexander Korda has been ordered to submit to an examination before trial in federal court January 15 in connection with Samuel Goldwyn's suit against UA. Judge Edward A. Conger, in so ruling, declared that if the New York examination should prove to be inconvenient to the producer he was to notify the federal court by January 10, and the examination would be shifted to the federal court in California for January 28.

Goldwyn is seeking to break his 10-year distribution contract with UA which has until August, 1945, to run, claiming the company conspired to drive him out of business. He also seeks damages of $1,000,000 for alleged interference with the distribution of "The Westerner," on which he says he had deals set up with Paramount and Warner, which were subsequently cancelled by reason of warnings on the part of UA, it is claimed.

FEATURE REVIEWS

No, No, Nanette

F — Musical Comedy

RKO Radio (114) — 96 Minutes — Rel. Dec. 20, '40

Molded in the same light and airy vein as his earlier "Irene," Producer-Director Herbert Wilcox's second plunge into the filmization of famed American musical comedies emerges as an opulent, tuneful and diverting undertaking that will probably accomplish satisfactory results at the box-office. Particularly should this prediction hold true because of the still-existent and widespread popularity of "Tea for Two," "No, No, Nanette" and other songs from the stage production, which have become classic examples of popular-song writing. Anna Neagle fits easily into the title role and the supporting cast, mostly of the comedy variety, does its part in contributing to the film's general quality. Outstanding among them are the droll Roland Young, wise-cracking Helen Broderick and, for the love interest, Richard Carlson and Victor Mature. The plot is, as was to be expected, frothy and insignificant. It centers around Young, married to Miss Broderick but constantly becoming involved in extra-marital entanglements from which Miss Neagle, his niece, must exert all her ingenuity to extricate him. In so doing she finds herself constantly in hot water.

Anna Neagle, Roland Young, Helen Broderick, Richard Carlson, Victor Mature, ZaSu Pitts, Eve Arden, Billy Gilbert.

EXPLOITIPS: Award starring credits here to Anna Neagle, Roland Young and Richard Carlson. Plug the famous tunes via a public address system in the lobby, in sheet-music and phonograph record stores, and over the radio. String cut-out musical notes around the marquee. During the week preceding the showing, dress usherettes in ballet costumes on which are imprinted the picture's title. Conduct an amateur singing contest on the stage, in which "Tea for Two" and "No, No, Nanette" are the songs to be rendered, and award an "Anna Neagle" trophy to the winner.

Wyoming Wildcat

F — Western

Republic (074) — 56 Minutes — Rel. Jan. 6, '41

A story that varies substantially from the routine lifts "Wyoming Wildcat" to interesting dramatic levels in addition to providing the usual quota of action elements. Don Barry has the featured role and will probably add to his following. Set in the period following the Spanish-American War, the story sets up Barry as the son of an outlaw who tries to avert the onus of his parent's activities by leading an honest life in the employ of a stagecoach company. He and a pal are fairly successful at this until the father's henchmen learn of his connection with gold shipments and frame him in proper style. Barry is jailed. He almost loses his girl. However, when the erring father learns of his son's plight he comes to the rescue and vindication losing his life in the process but saving the gold shipment. George Sherman directed.

Don Barry, Julie Duncan, Frank M. Thomas, Syd Taylor, Dick Botiller.

EXPLOITIPS: This is Don Barry's best contribution to the western scene to date. His first western vehicle was called "Wyoming Outlaw." This might be of advantage in concocting a catchline. Miss Duncan, an efficient actress, is also noted as a horsewoman having won many steeplechase contests. The film utilizes the Wells Fargo Express for much of its story content. Barry is the name for the marquee. There are a number of prepared stories about him for release to newspapers which should attract other than the regular western audience.

Maisie Was a Lady

F — Comedy Drama

M-G-M (118) — 80 Minutes — Rel. Jan. 10, '41

Don't let the title fool you—Maisie is still the lovable hoyden-with-heart-of-gold that she has always been. Whether or not the customers think that her latest film adventure compares favorably with predecessors in the series will be dependent upon personal entertainment tastes. Many of the laughs which have highlighted earlier chapters are lacking to make room for a more serious, melodramatic and, in spots, slightly maudlin screenplay. In other departments—production, direction and supporting cast—the same highly acceptable level has been maintained. This time Maisie, again in the person of Ann Sothern, is found as the "headless woman" in a sideshow, who loses her job because of an inebriated playboy, Lew Ayres. She joins his family household as a maid, rescues his sister from the clutches of a fortune-hunter, saves her from suicide, and reforms Ayres and his wealthy clubman father. Then, still under the impression she can't live up to Ayres' conception of a lady, Maisie hits the trail once more—but he discovers her in a cheap vaudeville act and brings her home, with wedding bells in the offing. Edwin L. Marin directed.

Ann Sothern, Lew Ayres, Maureen O'Sullivan, C. Aubrey Smith, Joan Perry, Paul Cavanagh, Edward Ashley.

EXPLOITIPS: Put Lew Ayres' name on the marquee along with that of Ann Sothern, who again essays the title role. Maureen O'Sullivan might also be mentioned in support. Dress your usherettes as maid-servants, with picture billing stamped on their white aprons, and have one of them parade the streets carrying a tray. Hold a "Maid's Night Out" showing to which servant girls and their escorts are invited at special rates. Prepare throwaways as teaser post-cards, in a woman's handwriting, and signed "Maisie."

Romance of the Rio Grande

20th Century-Fox (125) — 73 Minutes — Rel. Jan. 17, '41

In which the love bug nearly catches up with the Cisco Kid. And while the tender passion is engulfing that perennial caballero, audiences will be delighted to see the very marked improvement in this chapter of the established western series as compared to its predecessors. The feature reflects forward strides in every department—production, story, direction and supporting cast. It is definitely above average as program material, will be more than welcomed by Cisco's fans and cannot help but please all patrons, whether sagebrush enthusiasts or not. Cesar Romero again portrays the Robin Hood of the border and in this installment successfully undertakes a dual role. With his trusty henchman, jovial Chris-Pin Martin, Cisco stumbles upon a stagecoach holdup and finds one of the victims, who is nearly killed, bears a remarkable resemblance to himself. He assumes the identity of the wounded man, heir to a vast rancho, and continues the masquerade sufficiently long to save the estate for his coincidental counterpart and expose a rascally cousin. Directed by Herbert I. Leeds.

Cesar Romero, Patricia Morison, Lynne Roberts, Ricardo Cortez, Chris-Pin Martin, Aldrich Bowker, Joseph McDonald.

EXPLOITIPS: Give marquee credits to Cesar Romero, Chris-Pin Martin and Patricia Morison. The dual-role angle suggests you invite all twins and doubles to attend at special rates and give prizes to those most identical. Costume house employes in Mexican attire with serapes and sombreros. Tie in with the public library on a display of O. Henry's books, especially those dealing with the Cisco Kid. Plant stills showing Romero with a guitar in music-store windows.

The plus and minus signs indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the review. Where our compiler is unable to form any opinion from the review the sign "o" is used. Blank spaces indicate no review. This department serves also as an Alphabetical Index to feature releases. Listings cover reviews appearing by the Saturday preceding date of this issue. It will be brought up to date from week to week. The meaning of the various signs and their combinations is as follows:

The Living Corpse

A — Drama

Juno Films (——) 85 Minutes Rel. ——

This French version of Leo Tolstoi's original story has long been a strong dramatic piece on the stage. In films, its theme has been rewritten and presented again and again, sometimes to advantage, sometimes not. In brief, the fundamentals deal with the return of the long-thought-dead husband in time to save his wife from the gallows. She stands conviction for his murder, a point which is arrived at through a devious route. Other contributing factors include the innocent friendship between the wife and a law court associate of the husband. Told in French it is pedestrian. The performances are definitely out of date. It's an importation that might fill the bill where audiences simply must have their quota of La Cinema Francaise. English subtitles.

Victor Francen and Gaby Morlay.

EXPLOITIPS: For name values that will attract devotees of the foreign film this has Victor Francen and Gaby Morlay. Enlarged portraits of both should be tastefully framed and displayed in the lounge. The film has a Russian background. In many cases the foreign film house serves refreshments. Procure a samovar for advance promotion of this picture, dress a girl in Russian costume and have her serve tea in glasses. Also tie in with the local circulating library with a display of Tolstoi's works, pictures of the cast, scenes from the film and posters. Tie up with restaurants, and with schools that teach foreign languages. Victor Francen will be readily recognized by devotees of the foreign film. However, the exhibitor might remind his customers that he had previously appeared here in "Double Crime on the Maginot Line," "End of a Day" and "The Open Road."

Film Alliance (SR) 54 Minutes Rel. ——

London's Fleet Street has a trans-Atlantic counterpart of "Front Page." This film attempts to show it but merely becomes a standard dramatic exercise for its players and also probably for its spectators. One good performance is turned in by a supporting player. The others merely go through the usual rigamarole. John Lodge plays a crime reporter with a temporary critic's post in order to chase down the murderer of a young woman in a small town. He beats his confreres in interviews, getting evidence and finally having a suspect arrested who later is revealed to be guilty, is tried and hanged. Meanwhile his sweetheart stews, but she gets her claws into him just as he is about to start another adventure.

John Lodge, Diana Churchill, Francis Lister, Margaret Vyner, Athene Seyler.

EXPLOITIPS: This is an English importation that with all its regulation treatment and stereotyped situations manages a few moments of excitement and rapid-fire dialogue delivery. Lodge is of the Boston Lodges. The girls featured are fairly good examples of English pulchritude and dramatic art. There is a cigarette bearing the same name as the film which might be looked into for possible tieups wherever they are sold. There is a fair collection of stills available for advance display in the lobby. Aim the exploitation for opening business.

Mayer-Burstyn, Inc. (——) 90 Minutes Rel. ——

There is every indication that this, the original French version of "Algiers," was the master die from which the American production was struck. Transatlantic translation did not detract from merit as a sound piece of melodramatic entertainment played against a colorful background. The original has a much more convincing air of realism. For the audience that missed "Algiers," it will prove sound entertainment. The audience that attempts comparison should be delighted in its findings, for the resemblance of one cast to another is amazing particularly in the supporting parts. Jean Gabin is featured and Mireille Balin plays the "femme fatale." The Algiers Casbah setting seems real. After all, it is a French protectorate and two days' sailing from Marseilles. The story concerns French jewel thief who lives within the protecting walls of the native quarter of Algiers surrounded by his cutthroat cronies where he is safe from the police. A native police inspector is out to get him and eventually does when a young woman finds in the crook a grand passion. So strong is the crook's romantic feeling that he leaves his quarter, but in going away overlooks the scorned woman, his native sweetheart. She betrays him to the police. Concluding, he kills himself as he watches the ship carrying his love sail away. It achieves compelling tenderness. Julien Duvivier directed.

Jean Gabin, Mireille Balin, Gabriel Gabric, Charpin, Dalio, Lucas Gridoux.

EXPLOITIPS: Jean Gabin is probably most popular through his screen appearances in this country. Charpin has a reputation as a comedian. His role is not humorous but good acting. The Casbah setting lends itself to interesting exploitation. Makeover the lobby to resemble the scenes in the film. Rig up a wall map with the Casbah district outlined.

Here is another example of a good story idea gone astray in spite of a director who knows his stuff and who is regarded as a past master of satire and the smart injection of Gallic wit. As entertainment this film is a little better than fair. A few highly comic moments account in the eventual analysis. Maurice Chevalier and Jack Buchanan, a pair of hoofers, decide to reap the rewards of publicity and so dim the aura that surrounds producer-actress June Knight who happens to own a musical revue in which the boys play walkon parts. Buchanan conveniently disappears. Chevalier, with much difficulty, succeeds in convincing the world and particularly Fleet Street that he murdered him. Chevalier stands trial, is convicted and saved in time by Buchanan. They are a success. Made in England.

Maurice Chevalier, Jack Buchanan, June Knight, Marta Labarr, Wallace Douglas.

EXPLOITIPS: There are four potent names on which the exhibitor might focus his exploitation talents in this one; Chevalier, Buchanan, Cole Porter, who wrote a song for it, and Rene Clair, the latter for the students of the international film. On the basis of the Porter name, tieups are indicated with music stores and record shops. A handbill listing all the names might prove worthwhile. There should be a good collection of stills on showing business behind the scenes for the lobby cases. Get up a throwaway with the Chevalier lip and straw hat done in silhouette.

CATCHLINES: A Riotous Comedy From ■ Master . . . With Your Old Favorite Maurice Chevalier.

He Plays at Murder . . . And Almost Gets "Burned."

Must "Sell" Industry, Balaban Tells Ampa

NEW YORK—Instead of minimizing the "grave reality" of the depletion of revenue from abroad, the industry should recognize the "alternative is to increase the take at the boxoffice so that there can be adequate liquidation of the film in order to bring in the dollars required by the producer for the continuous flow of product so necessary to the exhibitor."

And in the process, according to Barney Balaban, Paramount president, men and women in the advertising field "will be called upon to shoulder greater responsibilities," not so much, perhaps, "on selling the product" but with "more emphasis on selling the industry as an institution."

His remarks were addressed to about 325 members and guests of Ampa at a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Edison. The occasion was the signal for a record turnout for a film executive. In addition to the company's executive family, all of whom surrounded Balaban on the dais, and many upper grade employes, the Sun Room saw more outside company executives than usually come out for an average testimonial. Charles C. Pettijohn introduced Balaban. Before that, Stanton Griffis tossed out a few jocular nifties, Austin Keough, John W. Hicks jr., and Walter B. Cokell took bows, and a perfectly grand and touching gesture was tendered Adolph Zukor when the entire audience rose in tribute to the company's founder.

Decree Problems Most Urgent

Balaban started off with the observation that, with the government suit behind the industry, the major task ahead is the meeting of new problems created by the decree. No small share of this will be borne by members of Ampa, who, he said, should attempt to counter loss of prestige and public confidence engendered by the public airing of problems "which we should have settled among ourselves."

"If the public is to have a true conception of the industry," he declared, "it is you men and women who can give it to them. It is true that there have been a few incidents which have provided opportunities for misconception of the standards of our industry, but these have been the exceptions rather than the rule. We know many stories were circulated by disgruntled persons who had been unable to make the grade in Hollywood and who capitalized on their failures by writing exaggerations and, for the most part, untruths about us.

Trumpets and Fanfare for "Back Street" Premiere

HOLLYWOOD—Universal intends to open "Back Street" in Miami, February 4, to the blare of trumpets and Hollywood fanfare. It will mark the world premiere of the picture. Critics from key cities, celebrities from Hollywood and home office and studio executives will attend.

Bruce Manning, producer, will head the studio group. A twin premiere is planned in Miami Beach with arrangements now being made for an elaborate celebration.

Sights Competitive Jolt in Progress of Television

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—If there's a man in the house who doesn't think he, his heirs or successors aren't in for a stiff competitive jolt from television, let him step up and be converted.

A quick reader reaction to the above, if there be any reaction at all, might be: "It won't be in my day; why worry?"

Well, it's like this. Let's say that Hollywood bosomed silent films so long the films let out such a yelp that became wired for sound. Let's also say it was anywhere from five years upwards that color, and limited color at that, was added to sound.

Then consider this: It's probably no more than two years since the television industry has been attempting to get its baby into homes with a diversified program. And it hasn't even scratched the surface. But the other afternoon this reporter saw the first public showing of direct pickup television in color. And it was amazing.

True, color television is still in the laboratory. But if its fundamental problems have been surmounted, and CBS engineers claim they have been, it would seem to be no more than straightforward engineering effort before its commercial application might be anticipated. Moreover, the impression gained from the color demonstration, per se, coupled with the technical ease said to accompany it presages an earlier and faster development of television in color than in black and white.

Accomplish Color "Pickup"

Responsibility for this presaging rests entirely with CBS engineers, who told this reporter color pickup, as distinguished from color films which up to now have been the chief source for experimentation, is accomplished with a lower level of illumination than is necessary for black and white pictures. This, technically for the moment, is the result of an orthicon tube which even now is being further developed to the stage where it will require even less light than the one used in the demonstration.

About 100 persons were present at the showing held in the new CBS studio. The color pictures were picked up by a television camera in the company's laboratories about one long block distant and transmitted by coaxial cable. The pictures were reproduced on two receivers, one a regular black and white, and next to it and considerably smaller, a table model color receiver which also includes a standard broadcast radio receiver. The latter, especially designed for the occasion, is designed to illustrate that color need not add bulkiness to the television receiver. The screens on both receivers measured five and one quarter by seven and three quarter inches. As pictures were received it was possible to make easy comparison between the colored and black and white images, since both were shown simultaneously.

And the magic of color never got a better sendoff. The flat statement is made

$100,000 to Set Up Arbitration Boards

NEW YORK—Establishment of the 32 arbitration tribunals and other items incidental to setting up the boards, such as leases and traveling expenses for J. Noble Braden, executive director of the film tribunals, will cost the "Big Five" $100,000.

The budget committee which met Wednesday decided on this figure and it was agreed the five theatre owning companies immediately pay this amount to get the operations going. Insofar as salaries for clerks, secretaries and other incidental expenses are concerned, these will be paid from monthly contributions to be made by the "Big Five."

Percentages which each of the five producing-distributing-exhibition companies will meet have not been completed. This is being handled by a separate committee which will use the gross business of each company as a base.

Paul Felix Warburg has replaced P. M. Haight on the committee, the latter stepping out because of ill health. However, the other two men continue unchanged. They are Van Vechten Veeder, chairman of the appeals board, and Joseph H. Hazen, aide to Harry M. Warner and very active in the drafting of the decree.

Dismissing "Big Five" From Schine Action

NEW YORK—First move in the government's anti-trust suit against the Schine circuit will be to eliminate the "Big Five" as it has done in the Crescent and Griffith cases in Nashville and Oklahoma City. No date has been set for this, but it is believed a motion to dismiss against the "Big Five" will be entered in the Buffalo court shortly.

Following this, it is reported negotiations may be worked out for a settlement as against the circuit itself. Willard S. McKay, counsel for Schine, has been in touch with department of justice representatives in an effort to effect some arrangement precluding trial.

One hitch is said to be the government's insistence the circuit curtail its expansion generally and agree to accept a "standstill" clause in a decree similar to that recently entered into by the "Big Five."

Denies Joelson Dickers For Consolidated Chain

NEW YORK—Reports Julius Joelson is negotiating for the Consolidated circuit are emphatically denied by Laurence Bolognino, operating head. The reports have been current for the past few weeks, but Bolognino said he had not heard them. In addition, he added, they are not true.

BROADWAY

SAM ECKMAN jr., managing director for M-G-M in London, is asking donations of binoculars. These, field or opera glasses are of value to the British, he reports, not only because of their military use but because every large factory or place of business stations an unofficial observer in its roof so that those at work may continue without worrying about air raid warnings until the Messerschmidts or the Dorniers get close. The foreign department at M-G-M in New York, therefore, observes that anyone interested in helping may send the contribution in the form of binoculars, field or opera glasses to the Loew Building. They will be forwarded to Eckman.

Harry Allen of the Allen circuit in Canada has been spending a few days in town . . . Jack Partington of F&M has been on the coast the past week . . . What with his serving on so many committees, Harry Brandt will forsake his winter vacation in Miami this year. But Louis Brandt and Lionel Toll will head there the end of the week . . . Harry Furst, back from Florida, says he met a host of local exhibitors vacationing in the southern resort . . . Neil F. Agnew and Bob Gillham are back from the coast after a quick visit to the Paramount studios . . . Delight Evans, editor of Screenland magazine, has awarded "Flight From Destiny" the honor page for the March issue . . . Jules Levey is in Hollywood preparing for his next Universal production . . . Eddie Golden, now a producer for Monogram, has been in town all week on personal business . . . Jack Adelman, manager of the Abbye Errand Service to which a number of companies subscribe, married Isabel Kerschner on Sunday.

O. Henry Briggs, president of Producers Releasing Corp., is finding himself a winter bachelor for 10 days while his wife sojourns in the land of sun . . . Tommy Rodgers, Bill's youngest son, was laid up for three days with a sore throat in Chicago while en route to the coast for a month's vacation. Tommy, all right again, is now absorbing the sun at Palm Springs . . . Harry Berinstein, who operates a number of upstate theatres, was in town on product buys . . . Grad Sears and Charles Casanave, in a serious huddle at Nick's Hunting Room . . . Charles Stern, UA district manager, was tendered a welcome home party Tuesday night at the Lincoln by local exchange employes . . . Gene Autry in town for a quick visit with Herb Yates . . . Otto Bolle, 20th-Fox South Africa manager, has succeeded in getting reservations on the City of New York, which sails February 1, for his return trip. Which means he will not go to the coast by train.

The New York Critics Become Hosts—

Their invitational list sharply slashed this year, the New York Film Critics, nevertheless, entertained by the hundreds at the Rainbow Room when NBC broadcast their winning awards for 1940, led off by "The Grapes of Wrath." It is Bosley Crowther, film critic of the New York Times who is presenting the major plaque to Darryl F. Zanuck, who cut a vacation short at Sun Valley to come east for the acceptance ceremonies. Then Crowther again, this time presenting a special award to Leopold Stokowski for his participation in "Fantasia." At the table are Mrs. Joseph I. Breen, wife of the production code administrator; W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Music Hall; Marion Rogers and Monroe Greenthal, newly appointed director of advertising and publicity at UA. Broadly grinning is Rodney Bush of 20th Century-Fox as he converses with David A. Lipton who, on Monday, officially took over advertising and publicity reins at Columbia.

A message to 1,187 THEATRES —including YOURS!

THE week starting January 16th has been set as "MARCH OF DIMES" WEEK in the motion picture theatres of the New York exchange area. There are 1,187 theatres in this area—including YOURS! So far over 760 theatres have gladly, enthusiastically volunteered to cooperate. Indications are that every one of the 1,187 will join this worthy cause—including yours.

It is hoped to gather millions of dimes from moviegoers for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis! If you are at all familiar with this inspiring charity, we know you will lend your cooperation eagerly. This is one charity your patrons will be happy to help with their dimes.

Special, colorful receptacles will be supplied for all theatre lobbies by the Infantile Paralysis Foundation campaign committee at no cost to you. A special emblem, to give those who contribute, will be supplied to you at no cost. (This expense has been paid by private donations from several exhibitors.) Trailers to insert in newsreels will be sent to you gratis.

This is a grand opportunity for the motion picture exhibitors to do a great public service. Write, wire or phone your zone committee chairman that you will cooperate.

Roach Sues Loew's For $1,263,993

NEW YORK—Hal Roach Studios, Inc., has filed a $1,263,993 suit in the federal court against Loew's, Inc., and M-G-M Distributing Corp. seeking damages on numerous causes of action including overcharging on footage, improper distribution of pictures, failure to pay rebates and cancellation of contracts.

Of the total asked, $355,159 is against Loew's alone and the balance against Loew's and M-G-M Distributing. The complaint covers the 14-year period from 1926 to date of Loew's distribution of Roach's films and over 350 shorts and features.

The first cause of action is typical of the balance which covers more than 30 pages of the complaint. It is charged that in 1926 Roach signed the first of his five contracts with Loew's for distribution of his product. He says he was to receive 60 per cent of the receipts and, when his share equalled the cost of the picture plus advances, 50 per cent. Under the first contract which ran for four years, Roach claims M-G-M developed positive prints from 53,357,005 linear feet of film, but charged him in excess of the 3/10 cent per foot agreed on, making the total owed him on this transaction $142,122. It is claimed M-G-M received a rebate from the government of $51,099 which Roach wants; that after the prints became junk M-G-M sold them for their salvage value at six cents per pound and realized $17,626, which is also sought; that a rebate from New Zealand was received in the amount of $3,261 on two pictures, "Perfect Day" and "Blotto," which is asked for and that, after re-issuing these two shorts, Laurel and Hardy contracts for distribution totaling $15,622 were cancelled.

Questions Bookkeeping

Other parts of the complaint are identical in the other four contracts. The first direct charges against Loew's alone total $309,840, and attack bookkeeping on foreign exchange matters on 14 pictures released in Italy with the lira being given more value than it possessed at the time.

It is charged that in 1938 in paying its share of the Movie Quiz which cost $110,000, Loew's improperly charged Roach $7,258 against "Blockheads," and charged lesser amounts against other product of its own which cost far more.

It is also charged Loew's failed to properly distribute "Topper" in the 1937-38 season and failed to get the revenue out of it that should have been received. Roach asks $275,000 on this charge and $50,000 more for publicity spent on "Topper" and "Merrily We Live" by Loew's as being much too high and more than the company spent. The grand total sought is thus $1,328,357, but, since the defendants had advanced $64,364 to Roach on loans and other advances, he is deducting that, making the amount asked $1,263,993.

New RKO Uruguay Pact

NEW YORK—RKO's distributor in Uruguay, Cinematografica Glucksmann, S. A., Montevideo, has renewed its contract for 1941 product, according to Phil Reisman, head of the foreign department.

Foreign-Press Reviewers Select "Grapes" as Best

NEW YORK—Motion picture reviewers of leading foreign-language newspapers here have chosen "The Grapes of Wrath" as the "outstanding American picture of the year." Other selections, the result of a poll conducted by the foreign educational orientation division of the American Schools and Colleges Ass'n, are: "Hotel du Nord," best foreign film; Conrad Veidt in "Escape," best American male performance; Ginger Rogers in "The Primrose Path," best American female performance; Jean Gabin in "The Human Beast," best foreign male performance; Arletty in "Daybreak," best foreign female performance; William Wyler for "The Letter," best Hollywood director, and Marcel Carne for "Hotel du Nord," best foreign director. A special award was given to "London Can Take It."

Monroe Stein Is Aide To RKO Chain Booker

NEW YORK—Preparing to meet the new demands of the consent decree, John J. O'Connor, vice-president and general manager of the RKO circuit, has engaged Monroe Stein, until recently a partner in the Cocalis circuit, as booker under Fred Meyers, chief film buyer and booker.

Stein and his father owned a large interest in a number of Cocalis houses, but since the death of Jack Springer and Sam D. Cocalis various units have been leased or sold. The Skouras circuit and RKO recently acquired a number of Bronx houses.

McCarthy Resumes Work On 16mm Shorts Lineup

NEW YORK—Having lined up 12 franchise holders of the 52 he plans to handle his 16mm subjects on political science, Leo J. McCarthy, former head booker for Fox Midwest, left for the coast the latter part of the week to start production on three new subjects. His plans call for 16 shorts, one of which is finished and now in circulation. He produces under the name of Del Cal Theatres, Inc., of which he is president and production head.

Elson Trans-Lux Job Added to FA Duties

NEW YORK—The appointment of Norman W. Elson as general manager of Trans-Lux theatres in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington will not interfere with his present post of general sales manager of Film Alliance of the United States, the latter declares. The two companies are partners. Elson's theatre work, largely confined to buying and booking film, merely supplements his sales post.

It's Sir Randle

NEW YORK—It's now Sir Randle F. Holme for the chairman of RKO's English company. According to Phil Reisman, head of RKO's foreign department, King George VI has conferred a knighthood on Holme for distinguished service.

Many Volunteer for Drive on "Polio"

NEW YORK—Theatre managers, home office executives and district representatives met at Loew's home office Friday to outline plans for aiding the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis fund drive.

After the session it was revealed more than 800 of the 1,187 theatres in the exchange area have volunteered to cooperate in the "March of Dimes" drive, which gets under way in theatres, January 16, although the national drive begins January 13 and runs to January 30.

Circuits represented at the meeting included Loew's, RKO, Brandt, Skouras and Randforce. Their representatives went over numerous details, including a special receptacle to be placed in lobbies for the collection of funds, routines for supplying uniformed girls to preside at the dime-boxes, and the special emblem that will be given to all contributors. The committee will supply gratis two short pieces of film for insertion in newsreels, one in which Spencer Tracy appears, the other featuring Charles Chaplin.

The following sub-committee appointments have been made by Co-Chairmen Charles C. Moskowitz and Harry Brandt:

New Jersey—J. J. Thompson and Harry Hecht.

Upstate New York—Max Cohen.

Long Island and Staten Island—Si Fabian, who is acting as treasurer.

Bronx—Laurence Bolognino and Joe Katsch.

Brooklyn—Samuel Rinzler and Dave Weinstock.

Manhattan—Leo Brecher and Martin Levine.

Queens—Frank Moscato and Samuel Strausberg.

Nicholas M. Schenck is national chairman of the industry committee.

Coordinate Staff for Added Metro Duties

NEW YORK—Marvin Schenck, recently appointed talent chief in the east for M-G-M, in addition to his other duties as assistant to C. C. Moskowitz, is coordinating his staff of four which will be located on the 11th floor in the Loew Building. Al Altman and Sidney Phillips, now on the sixth floor, and Benn Jacobson and William R. Deering, now at the annex, will move up to the 11th floor as soon as the offices are ready. Schenck will continue his seventh floor office for his theatre duties and have another office on the 11th floor for talent activities.

Signs Deal With Two

HOLLYWOOD—Jack Benny has concluded a new deal with Paramount and at the same time signed a long-term deal with 20th-Fox, which is a new affiliation for him. Both studios will work out arrangements for operation of the contracts harmoniously. Each is now busy preparing scripts to fit the schedule.

A Variety of Minor Suits Mark Week

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was featured by a variety of minor suits but nothing of major importance. A minor revival of the extinct Fox Theatres estate featured the somewhat dull week, as Senior Federal Judge John C. Knox denied a request by the trustees of the estate, Kenneth P. Steinreich and Leopold Porrino, to reduce the amount of a final allowance to Attorney Archibald R. Watson from $15,000 to $10,000. Watson was trustee for the former trustees and is said to have saved the estate hundreds of thousands of dollars. Affidavits testified his services to be worth in excess of $100,000. Steinreich and Porrino had attempted to cite former Judge Martin T. Manton's opinion that Watson's services were worth only $10,000, but Judge Knox refused to listen.

Trial of Isabella Knowtter's suit against Hal Roach Studios, M-G-M Pictures, M-G-M Distributing Corp., Loew's and Culver Export has been set for June 16, 1941 in the federal court. The plaintiff is a resident of France and a citizen of the Netherlands and is unable at the moment to get out of France. She thinks she may be able to get to America in six months. The suit claims that two Roach pictures, "Swiss Miss" and "Way Out West," plagiarize her story, "Two Down and Outs." An injunction, accounting of profits, and damages are sought.

Settle WB Plagiarism Suit

Louis Klotz has filed a supreme court suit against Jacob Rabinowitz, known as Jack Robins, William Lorenz, the Willor Mfg. Corp., and the Mechanical Mfg. Corp., claiming the defendants engaged him to develop and exploit a continuous sound projector and promised him 10 per cent of the gross sales or rentals. They are now denying the existence of the agreement, Klotz claims, in seeking court aid.

A suit by M. and G. Amusements, Inc., against Warner for $150,000 damages for alleged plagiarism of plaintiff's play, "Sh, the Octopus" in the Warner film of the same name, has been settled and discontinued out of federal court. The plaintiff claimed the film company only owned silent and not sound rights to the story.

Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck has reserved decision after a two-day trial of Stephen Tamas' suit against 20th Century-Fox in which the plaintiff, a Hungarian author, claimed his scenario, entitled "Stowaway," was lifted by 20th-Fox in the Shirley Temple starrer of the same name. He seeks an injunction, accounting of profits, and damages.

Federal Judge Edward A. Conger has authorized the examination before trial of Radtke Patents Corp. and Leonard Day, attorney, in connection with a suit by Photometric Products Corp. against them, and Warner. The suit seeks to have a patent called "Methods for and Means of Optically Recording and Reproducing Sound" declared the property of the plaintiff.

Selwyn and Co. have filed a rebuttal to the answer of Bayard Veiller in the federal court in connection with its $7,500 suit against the author. Veiller had claimed that Selwyn was dissolved in 1936 and had no claim to the play, "The Miracle." Selwyn admits being dissolved, but claims to have obtained a certificate of annulment in 1939 cancelling the dissolution. The plaintiff received all rights to Veiller's play in 1914 and claims that in 1939 the author sold rights to Loew's for $7,500, which it now seeks.

Trial of Joseph M. Schenck and Joseph H. Moskowitz for alleged evasion of income tax returns will begin in the federal court February 10. The date was set by mutual agreement between government and defense counsel with the trial expected to last two to three months. Both defendants maintain their innocence of any wrongdoing and insist any errors are bookkeeping ones, rather than intentional attempts to evade payment.

Sues Rogers and Pickford On Pact Breach Charge

NEW YORK—Arthur T. Michaud and James V. Peppe, managers, have filed a supreme court suit against Charles (Buddy) Rogers and Mary Pickford, seeking $300,000 damages, $150,000 against each, for alleged breach of contract. They say they signed as Rodgers' managers for 10 years in May, 1939 and contract was broken in August, 1940. It is claimed Miss Pickford forced the breach by threats of divorce and promises to secure Rogers producing and acting jobs in pictures if he returned to California with her.

Suit by Robert L. Buckner against Paramount and Charles Beahan has been discontinued in federal court. The action sought an injunction, accounting of profits, and damages against the picture "Midnight," claiming it is based on Buckner's play, "Dearly Beloved."

S. O. S. Signs With Unions

NEW YORK — S. O. S. Cinema Supply Corp. has signed contracts with AFL Local 20940 of Office Employes and with the International Brotherhood of Machinists, also an AFL affiliate. The pacts cover all S. O. S. employes.

Deals in Company Stocks Are Slow

WASHINGTON—Transactions involving 1,500 shares of film company stocks are shown in the first December report of the securities and exchange commission on transactions of officers and directors in the securities of their corporations. Deals for only three companies were reported, as follows:

Consolidated Film Industries: Disposition of 100 shares of part preferred stock by E. H. Seifert, director, Fort Lee, N. J., leaving him with 100 shares:

Twentieth Century-Fox: Acquisition of 1,000 shares of common stock by Sidney R. Kent, officer, New York, giving him a total of 2,180 shares.

Universal Corp.: Acquisition of 200 common voting trust certificates by Preston Davie, director, New York, giving him a total of 2,600 held direct and 26,500 held through Standard Capital Co.

The SEC reported that Pathe Film was among the first companies to file reports under the new investment company act, showing the stock holdings of officers and directors and beneficial owners of more than 10 per cent of any class.

The report showed the holdings as of November 1, last, when the law became effective, as follows:

George J. Bonwick, officer, New York, none; Henry J. Guild, director, Adams, Mass., none; Donaldson Brown, beneficial owner, New York, none direct but 58,102 shares of common and 1,844 shares of preferred through the Broseco Corp.; T. C. Davis, director, New York, 100 shares of common; Allan P. Kirby, director, Morristown, N. J., 2,100 shares of common direct, 1,000 shares through Holding Company A, 4,000 shares through Holding Company B, and 600 shares through a trust; Kenneth M. Young, officer, New York, 400 shares of common; Robert R. Young, director, Cleveland, 20,497 shares of common; Mabel M. Malone, officer, New York, one share of preferred.

Altec Men Observe Anniversary—

No Date as Yet for Remittance Parley

NEW YORK—No date has yet been set for arbitration of M-G-M's contention its share of the new British remittances should be based on the same system as set up by the British government instead of on the gross business for the eight major companies for the year ending October 31, 1940.

Commenting on the situation, Arthur Loew, head of M-G-M's foreign activities, stated, "It's a matter of principle and we will win."

20th-Fox Schedules Sales Meeting in Porto Rico

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox will hold a convention at San Juan, Porto Rico, about January 16. Walter J. Hutchinson and Irving Maas will attend from here.

Paramount, too, will hold a convention of its Carribbean area managers February 6-8 at Panama City. John W. Hicks jr. left for it via Mexico Sunday. Arthur L. Pratchett will be in charge.

Dan Greenhouse, former manager for RKO in the Philippines, has arrived in Santiago to take over representation in Chile. George Kallman, manager there, will assume Greenhouse's former post.

N. Schenck to Coast; Dietz Vacationing

HOLLYWOOD—Nicholas M. Schenck, head of Loew's and M-G-M, is due here shortly for a brief studio visit before he leaves on his annual vacation in Miami the latter part of the month.

Al Lichtman and Bernie Hyman are back from a visit to the east where they saw the new crop of Broadway shows. Howard Dietz is vacationing at Palm Springs and will most likely visit here before returning to New York.

State Department Into Brazilian Situation

WASHINGTON—The state department will step into the Brazilian situation by making presentations to that government in protest to its proposed plan of imposing an eight per cent tax on earnings transmittable to New York. It would be retroactive to 1935. The Brazilian government is threatening to block all remittances otherwise.

Four "Fantasia" Dates

NEW YORK—The first of four scheduled out-of-town, roadshow engagements for "Fantasia" is set for the Carthay Circle, Hollywood, January 23, to be followed with the Majestic, Boston, January 25; Aldine, Philadelphia, January 30, and an undisclosed Chicago house on February 10. All engagements will be of an indefinite duration, two shows a day, all seats reserved.

REVIEW FLASHES

CONVOY (RKO)—Producer Michael Balcon, with the cooperation of the Royal Navy and some highly effective model work, has concocted in "Convoy" a naval thriller based on the present war. Clive Brook, John Clements, Judy Campbell.

LARCENY STREET (Film Alliance)—An English variation on the "Thin Man" style of crime detection. Jack Buchanan produced and has the leading role. Generally quite funny and exciting, the story leans heavily on dialect comedy. Tim Whelan directed.

SIX LESSONS FROM MADAME LA ZONGA (Univ)—Again taking as a nucleus the tune and title of a popular song—this time one of more recent vintage—Universal has wound around it a fast-moving, diverting tuneful comedy which should prove to be a welcome half of any program. Lupe Velez and Leon Errol are co-featured. Joseph G. Sanford produced; John Rawlins directed.

VIRGINIA (Para't)—Way down yonder in the land of cotton they'll tear the doors down to see this one. What's more, its popularity will not stop at the Mason-Dixon line, because customers everywhere should love it for its many idyllic qualities, a sterling cast, a swell romantic story, the beauties of its Technicolor photography and, above all, a show-stopping performance by Carolyn Lee, as clever a moppet as ever donned grease paint. Edward H. Griffith produced and directed.

YOU'RE OUT OF LUCK (Mono)—With minor variations, this is cut from the same pattern as preceding Frankie Darros for this company in which he plays a juvenile detective; and, by the same token, compares favorably with them as good supporting program material. Darro, Kay Sutton, Mantan Moreland. Howard Bretherton directed.

Paramount Sales Meet For Panama City Force

NEW YORK—John W. Hicks, Paramount foreign chief, and Arthur Pratchett, Central American manager, depart the end of the week for Mexico City where they will conduct a three-day meeting of the company's sales force in Panama City, starting February 6.

While here on a short vacation, Pratchett indicated the Cuban government shortly will publish a decree which will limit the sales of pictures to groups of 10 and also provide for an arbitration system similar to that contained in the government's decree against the "Big Five."

Discuss New Year

ALBANY—A meeting of Schine district managers will be held in Gloversville, January 14. Plans for 1941 are to be discussed.

Big Pictures Swell Government Take

WASHINGTON — "Gone With the Wind" and other "big" pictures of early 1940 contributed materially to the government's revenue from the admission tax, boxoffice collections for the fiscal year ended last June 30 totaling $19,389,056.16, compared with $17,096,415.63 for the preceding fiscal year, it is shown by the annual report of Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering.

The 1940 figures represent the last collections under the 40-cent exemption, for with the beginning of the current fiscal year last July 1 the 20-cent exemption became effective, indications being that collections for the present year will be almost trebled as a result of the additional taxable admissions and generally improving business as economic conditions get better.

Total admission-tax collections for the period were $21,887,916, compared with $19,470,801.85 for the 1939 fiscal year, but they included, in addition to taxes paid at the boxoffice, $612,358.20 collected on free or reduced rate admissions, compared with $667,099.52 in 1939, and nearly $1,900,000 received from leases of boxes or seats, admissions sold in excess of established prices, sales by ticket brokers and admissions to roof gardens and cabarets.

Commissioner Helvering's report indicated that theatres throughout the country generally did a better business in 1940 than in 1939. Boxoffice tax collections did decline in California, Delaware, Georgia, Kansas and Wyoming and in Hawaii, but the losses were relatively small except in the case of Georgia, which dropped $68,000 or something over 30 per cent.

On the other hand, it was shown, other states reported substantial increases, running well over $465,000 in the case of New York, indicating that the losses in the five states were due to local conditions.

Smallest revenue producer of all was North Dakota, which returned $7,453.95, approximately $2,000 less than its neighbor, South Dakota, which reported $9,443.57. These were the only states to return less than $10,000, but seven states reported between $10,000 and $20,000, and 14 states and Alaska and Hawaii reported between $20,000 and $100,000. Sixteen states and the District of Columbia reported between $100,000 and $500,000; five states reported between $500,000 and $1,000,000; three states reported between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, and one, New York, more than $2,000,000.

Warners Invest Heavily In Company Debentures

NEW YORK—Collectively, Harry M., Albert and Jack L. Warner own $2,765,000 of Warner six per cent debentures, it is disclosed by SEC. Separately, Harry holds $750,000 worth; Albert, $1,500,000, and Jack, $515,000, all as of August 27, 1940.

The report also states James Cagney's salary for the fiscal year was $363,333, while H. B. Wallis received $265,000, and Edward G. Robinson, $255,000.

latter part of the week. He had been there on special Pathe business . . . Charles E. McCarthy left for 20th-Fox studios Friday to look at the new crop of pictures . . . Milt Kusell's new license plate reads MK-56, in case you're interested . . . Bill Brown was in from Greenwich still bemoaning the fate of the beautiful Pickwick there . . . David L. Loew and Albert Lewin are in from the coast to confer with UA home office executives on distribution plans for "So Ends Our Night."

Harry Brandt started the week in a blaze of glory. His Colony, Jackson Heights, had a fire in the booth, and the theatre had to remain closed while Paramount dug up another print of "Arise, My Love" . . . Sol Schwartz, RKO Bronx division manager, flew out to Dallas for the Fordham-Texas A&M game. The reason: He had the entire Fordham team appear in person at the Fordham Theatre Monday night, including Coach Jim Crowley . . . Bill Scully is due back from the coast Monday ere he swings south for a siesta in Miami . . . Joseph Bernhard is due from Hollywood next week . . . Clayton Bond and Leo J. McCarthy swapping old time stories about Chicago days at the Astor . . . Morris Sher of Loew's legal staff is back from a 12-day Miami vacation where he spent a lot of time putting the pill . . . Walter Hutchinson is figuring on another South American tour for 20th-Fox soon.

Dorothy Kennedy, Loew's receptionist on the seventh floor, is mourning the loss of her mother who passed away after a very short illness . . . Bill Sussman and the missus are in Miami for a month's vacation . . . Manny Reiner is doing a bang-up job on the Quiz Kids. The radio troupe arrived Saturday from Chicago and were met by Mayor LaGuardia and Dr. Dafoe. On Thursday they were the guests of Eleanor Roosevelt at the White House. Incidentally, they will make a series of shorts for Paramount, the productions to be sandwiched in between school and their Wednesday night broadcasts . . . Jack Zurich, Buffalo Warner salesman, had his Buick stolen while he was in town vacationing . . . Rose Lichtman is planning to come east as soon as she completes decorating her new home in Beverly Hills. The house, recently purchased by Husband Al, was formerly owned by Ruth Chatterton.

Leah Peterson, cashier at the local Paramount exchange, leaves January 18 for a two-week Miami stay . . . Charles M. Reagan, western division manager for Paramount, is back from a trip to Chicago . . . Joe Unger, eastern divisional head for the same company, has been visiting New England exchanges . . . Joe Philipson, formerly booker and buyer for the Joe Cooper circuit in Oklahoma City, has joined the Paramount home office distribution department. Ditto for Jack Bannon, lately with Astor Pictures and prior to that with Sam Dembow after the latter left Paramount some years ago . . . Joe Hornstein is back from another junket to Miami where he spent a couple of weeks with his family . . . Ed Lee of M-G-M's legal force managed to get to see his family in Utica over the holidays.

Morey Marcus, general manager for M-G-M in Japan, will be heading for his headquarters soon . . . Ben Cohen, former Poli manager in New England and now in charge of India for M-G-M, has gone back to his territory after a vacation in Hollywood, New York and New England . . . Stanleigh Friedman was in Lindy's the other day with his family for lunch and, as is his custom when he takes the boys along, walked out with a jar of pickles. At other times it might be herring, but it's always something to take home when the children are along . . . Among local salesmen back from Miami vacations are Joe Vergesslich, Abe Blumenstein, Moe Kurtz and Irving Rothenberg. Gus Solomon of the local Warner staff is back from Arizona where he spent his vacation . . . Ed Hatrick is now ensconced in the penthouse at the Cromwell, Miami Beach . . . Mort Spring has a reputation for being one of the best bowlers among the film crowd . . . Louis Frisch has gone to Miami for an indefinite rest. He's been holding his own lately for which many are thankful.

Harry Buxbaum jr. has joined the M-G-M exchange in Detroit as a junior salesman. Jackie Buxbaum recently became engaged to Charles Moses' step daughter, Betty Nordenhold . . . Arthur Greenblatt did a swell job as m. c. at the Bookers' Club induction of officers the other evening . . . Harry M. Goetz is on the coast in the interest of "The American Way" for RKO . . . George J. Schaefer is expected in Hollywood January 15 and plans to stay for some time. Barret McCormick is also planning his regular RKO studios visit within the very near future . . . Having visited M-G-M exchanges in Washington and Cincinnati, H. M. Richey is due in St. Louis, Monday, for a two-day stay, and from there will go to Des Moines, due there January 15-16; Omaha, 17-18, Denver, 19-20; Salt Lake City, 21-22, and then Los Angeles. However, he may be called to the coast sooner than his schedule calls for by Bill Rodgers, now there.

"Story," "Neighbor" and "Fantasia" Top B'way

NEW YORK—Broadway managers aren't complaining a whit over the first week's business of the new year.

Their enthusiasm is the more marked in light of the fact that 10 of the 11 first runs were holdovers. True, there were plenty of youngsters still around town, who hadn't yet returned to school from their holidays and not a few straggling tourists who stuck it out over the week-end, but, by and large, this business is not credited as a particular factor at the de-luxers. The theatres willing to attribute the extra pickup to the vacation trade were the two roadshows.

Most of the huzzahs came from the Music Hall, where $111,000 was rolled up in the second week of "The Philadelphia Story." Runner-up in cash turnover and staying power was the Paramount, with close to $80,000 for the second stanza. The Capitol, with "Comrade X," and the Strand, with "Santa Fe Trail," the latter winding up its third week, hit well above average takes.

Capital First Runs Are Crammed on New Year's

WASHINGTON — New Year celebrants heeded traditional siren and crammed first run shelters right through midnight showings, as four top releases made debuts. Bad weather setback following holiday, was offset by strong weekend take, to average out excellent grosses. "Kitty Foyle" at RKO Keith's in top spot, with "Flight Command" at the Capitol, "Comrade X," at the Palace, and "Santa Fe Trail" pressing for the honor. "Tin Pan Alley," in a changeover to the Columbia for second week showing, doing better than average, while "Here Comes the Navy" at the Metropolitan making excellent showing in comeback.

'Santa Fe' Big in Philly As Theatre Takes Soar

PHILADELPHIA—Post-holiday good spirits sent the boxoffice soaring at several downtown houses. "Santa Fe Trail," at the Fox, led the parade with a spectacular $26,500; close behind came the Earle, playing "Escape to Glory," but bolstered particularly by a stage show including Humphrey Bogart, Mayo Methot, Harriet Hilliard and Ozzie Nelson's orchestra. "Thief of Bagdad" was petering out in its third week at the Aldine, but "North West Mounted Police" finished strong in its third stanza at the Stanley.

Unfortunately, the public is not concerned with their authenticity."

In addition to being "super salesmen" of goodwill, publicists have still another task in bringing about a "harmonious relationship among the various branches of production, distribution and exhibition," Balaban asserted. In this connection he is of the belief advertising, as now controlled from New York, will be "somewhat decentralized."

"It may be necessary," he said, "to properly synchronize your campaigns with release dates. There are also advantages to be gained from this—such as more freedom of thought on the part of local advertising representatives who are right on the scene, and if they are of proper calibre, can render real service."

Although Balaban said he was "against changing the old method of selling," he pledged that Paramount "will put forth every effort to make this new method work. We intend to tackle this job conclusively and without regard to the fact that there is such a thing as the escape clause in the consent decree."

Still Finds Romance In the Business

NEW YORK—Few persons in or out of the industry will challenge Barney Balaban's authority to speak on the evolution of the picture theatre.

Therefore, when he observes there is romance in the business, he undoubtedly knows whereof he speaks. And to substantiate his observation he offers the fact that the first week's receipts at his Chicago Theatre in 1908 were $88, while the second week's receipts at the Paramount on Broadway for "Love Thy Neighbor" were $80,000.

The Paramount president was speaking before the company's Pep Club. He was introduced by Claude F. Lee, who presided. Balaban declared that while the industry is the third largest in the country, it is "first in public interest." How his family has sought over the years to capitalize on this interest formed the basis of his talk. Reduced to its fundamentals, the process has been "improvement and progress," he said.

Four Transfers Follow Weshner's Resignation

PHILADELPHIA — With resignation of David E. Weshner to join UA and appointment of Maurice K. Gable to succeed him as a Warner theatre district manager, other changes follow:

Harry Tarrente, former manager of the Aldine, takes Gable's former post at the Boyd.

George Balkin, formerly an assistant manager, takes the Aldine.

Harold Seidenberg, manager of the Fox, takes the Earle.

Bill Israel, manager of the Earle, switches to the Fox.

O'Shea, Bowen, Pielow Guests at Induction

NEW YORK—E. K. "Ted" O'Shea, Jack Bowen and Ralph Pielow, M-G-M sales executives recently promoted to division manager, district head and New York branch manager, respectively, were special guests of honor at the induction of newly elected officers of the M. P. Bookers Club Monday night at the Club Loyale. Pielow came down from Albany to be on hand for the occasion although he officially does not take over his new duties until January 14.

On January 13 at the DeWitt Clinton Hotel in Albany, Pielow will be tendered a testimonial dinner by his friends. On the committee are Clayton Eastman, chairman; Arthur Newman, J. Myer and Louis W. Schine, Moe Silver and Charles Smakwitz, Si Fabian and Lou Golding, William Smalley, Mike Kallett, Joe Miller, Nate Sodikman, Jere Spandau, Paul Krumenacker, Herman Ripps and Moe Grassgreen.

Ripps, former local salesman for M-G-M handling upstate, Long Island and a few New Jersey towns, has been promoted to Albany manager succeeding Pielow. Bob Bernstein, for the past two years salesman in Detroit, has already taken over Ripps' former territory here.

Elections of bookers recently saw Harold Klein of the Cocalis circuit continued for another year as president and Leon Greenfield of the Boro Hall, Brooklyn, as vice-president.

Paul Laube Winner Of Skouras Drive

NEW YORK—Paul Laube, manager of the Manhassett, Manhassett, L. I., has been declared the winner in the latest Skouras circuit drive which ended December 14 after 15 weeks. Cash awards were distributed to a long list of winning managers at a special meeting early in the week at the Skouras home office.

Second was Fred Weiber, manager of the Tivoli, Jersey City, with the other five winners as follows, in their respective order; Tom Burns, grandson of the great heavyweight champion, Monticello, Jersey City; Emanuel Sussman, brother of William of 20th-Fox, Crescent, Astoria; Al Unger, Capitol, Jersey City; Morris Hatoff, Brook, Bound Brook, and Burt Hoffman, Fulton, Jersey City. A special award was given Harry Fuchs of the Fox, Hackensack, N. J.

George Skouras has always made it a point to give special awards for the best holiday lobby. This year the religious angle was stressed and the following were awarded prizes: Ken Henry, Capitol, Port Chester; Dick Carnegie, Roosevelt, Flushing; Fred Lichtman, Lafayette, Suffern; Sam Norman, Grand, Astoria; J. Santeiamo, Strand, Jersey City, and Joe Ghighlionie, Corona, Corona, in addition to 16 others.

Four other awards were made for best results during individual manager's week. They are Benny Friedman, Ward, Bronx; Norman Gluck, Teaneck, Teaneck; Emanuel Sussman, Crescent, Astoria, and Bob Wernicke, Granada, Corona.

"Competitive Jolt" Due From Television

for whatever it's worth, that the black and white images were like ash remains as contrasted to the flaming red fire that left them. Now, that's not a remark to covet admittance to the Smithsonian Institute, but it is this observer's studied opinion that perhaps nothing the film industry has in use today can match the potentialities, competitive-wise or entertainment-wise, color television offers once it is harnessed for mass consumption.

The CBS system, as demonstrated, is unequivocally declared to be capable of transmitting every natural color the naked eye can see. Whether this means New Yorkers could see the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena on their television sets—meaning is distance a factor in transmission?—is something CBS is cautious on. But they do state there that weakness of light signals as applied to transmitting images over distances is of much less concern in color television than in black and white because of the "definition" color affords. Also, it is said that, despite differences in current of power supply lines between the point of pickup and the point of reproduction, a method of synchronizing the color disk in the receiver with the color disk at the point of origin overcomes this.

Home Experiments Soon

Among the objects shown in the demonstration, especially to illustrate that colors do not "break up" if they are moving, were a map which was rapidly spun around in both directions, colored liquids poured from tumbler to bowl, loose confetti and other items.

This reporter asked a CBS engineer what he expected the next step in the development might be. He was also asked if it is possible to blow the images up to something approaching theatre screen size. This is his answer:

"We expect to put it on for home use, purely in experiment form, in a few months. From then on it's the television industry's baby; those who make the sets, and so forth. It is easier to blow up to screen size than for reproduction on home-type sets."

Moskowitz Announces Managerial Changes

NEW YORK—Charles C. Moskowitz of Loew's has effected the following promotions and transfers in the metropolitan circuit managerial personnel:

Paul Murphy, assistant manager of the State, is now manager of the Ziegfeld, replacing Gil Marbe, now managing the new American. S. Schwartz, assistant at the 83rd Street, replaces Murphy at the State.

Kenneth Towers, chief of service at the Mayfair, becomes assistant at the Apollo. Robert Spodlick, chief of service at the Sheridan, is now assistant at the Triboro. Nat Slater, assistant at the Mt. Vernon, transfers to the 83rd Street, while Edwin Lucey, chief usher at the 83rd Street, becomes assistant at the Mt. Vernon.

"Miss Bishop" Leads Off Out-of-Hollywood Bows

The next out-of-Hollywood premiere on schedule is the debut of Richard A. Rowland's United Artists production, "Cheers for Miss Bishop," in Lincoln, Neb., January 13. In addition to Martha Scott, William Gargan, Sterling Holloway and other cast members set to make appearances, Director Tay Garnett also will attend. He is scheduled to address the student body of the University of Nebraska on the making of motion pictures. The midwestern city is the locale of much of the action contained in the film.

This event will be followed January 21 by the world premiere of Paramount's "Virginia" at the Paramount in New York. Attending from Hollywood will be Stirling Hayden and Carolyn Lee, members of the cast, while studio attaches have announced Gov. James H. Price of Virginia has accepted an invitation to be guest of honor at the event. He will be accompanied by other officials of the state.

Walt Disney has secured the Carthay Circle as the location for the Pacific Coast premiere of "Fantasia," which will open a two-a-day run in the house January 23. Specially-devised Fantasound equipment will be installed for the booking.

World premiere of Universal's "Back Street," co-starring Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan, has been set for February 4 in Miami, Fla. Newspaper critics from key cities will be brought there by plane and train. Producer Bruce Manning and leading members of the cast will head the contingent of attending Hollywood celebrities.

Dramatic Films Lead First-Quarter Lists

Independent Index Swinging Upward

The production index among independent units currently is taking an upward swing, with indications the increased tempo will continue for the next several weeks, at least.

Sigmund Neufeld has announced he will produce four westerns during the month for Producers Releasing Corp. They will include "The Lone Rider Crosses the Rio," with George Houston; two "Billy the Kid" sagebrushers, and Tim McCoy in "Outlaws of the Rio Grande." In February, Neufeld will roll "Alimony Jail," a feature comedy.

Harry Sherman has set a January 20 starting date on "The Sheik of Buffalo Butte," next in his Hopalong Cassidy western series for Paramount release.

Larry Darmour has gunned an untitled "Ellery Queen" detective film, starring Ralph Bellamy, for release through Columbia. At Universal, and for release by that company, Lawrence Fox has signaled a start on "The Man Who Lost Himself," co-starring Brian Aherne and Kay Francis.

Incorporation of two new independent units has been announced. John Krueger will release under the Hal Roach banner through United Artists, his first vehicle tentatively titled "Washington Correspondent." Sam Coslow, Matty Kemp and Harry E. Sokolov have filed articles of incorporation in Sacramento for Cameo Pictures. No production plans or details of release have been announced as yet. Coslow withdrew recently from Voco Productions.

Shirley Temple's Metro Contract Is Sealed

After months of negotiation, Shirley Temple's acting contract with M-G-M has been set. The juvenile star has signed a one-year ticket, effective February 15, and is tentatively set to co-star with Mickey Rooney in "Babes on Broadway" as her first assignment. Her mother, Mrs. George Temple, has been signed to a separate contract calling for her services as Shirley's tutor and coach.

Straight dramatic offerings hold the lead as to the type of film fare to be turned out by Hollywood studios during the first quarter of 1941, 16 pictures in this category already having been announced for production. Closely following are comedies and the inevitable sagebrushers, with eight and seven titles, respectively, now on the call sheets. Additionally, at least five musicals are being planned, while widespread interest in the war and national defense has caused four films treating of these topics to be announced.

Dramas

Dramas include Warner's "Woman From Singapore," "Strange Alibi" and "Danger Zone;" Paramount's "American Vagabond," "College Mystery" and "Hold Back the Dawn;" Metro's "A Woman's Face," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Blossoms in the Dust;" "Blood and Sand" from 20th Century-Fox; "Before the Fact" and "The Devil and Daniel Webster" from RKO Radio; Republic's "Mr. District Attorney," "The Great Train Robbery" and "The Lady From New Orleans," and Columbia's "Senate Page Boys."

Comedies

Among the comedies are Paramount's "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" and "Skylark;" Universal's "Model Wife" and "Almost an Angel;" Metro's "Mr. Co-Ed;" RKO Radio's "My Life With Caroline;" Republic's "Sis Hopkins," and Columbia's "A Girl's Best Friend Is Wall Street."

Westerns

Westerns will include "Bad Men of Missouri," from Warner; "The Sheik of Buffalo Butte," from Harry Sherman for Paramount; "Pioneer Woman," also from Paramount; 20th Century-Fox's "The Cowboy and the Blonde;" RKO Radio's "Range Raiders;" Republic's "Call of the Canyon," and Columbia's "Texas."

Musicals

Twentieth Century-Fox will turn out two musicals, "Miami" and "The Great American Broadcast." RKO Radio lists "Sunny," Alexander Korda will make "New Wine" for United Artists, and Columbia is preparing "Betty Co-Ed."

Martial

War and national defense films include "Sergeant York," to be made by Warner; Argosy's "The Eagle Squadron," which will be released through United Artists by Walter Wanger; Republic's "You'll Never Get Rich," and 20th Century-Fox's "The Eagle Flies Again."

Resentment Mounts on Hiked Film Seal Costs

Considerable smoldering resentment—which may at any moment flare into a united movement in protest—is being felt by Hollywood's independent producers as a result of the little-publicized manifesto from the Hays office declaring that, effective January 1, the production code administration has raised the service fees on feature pictures with a negative cost of $100,000 or less from the previous $50 or $25, to a minimum of $100 each. The sum involved constitutes the charge for reviewing, approving and attaching a production code seal to each film.

For obvious protectional reasons, those independents who have voiced their dissatisfaction with the boost in cost and their opinion regarding its unfairness refuse to be quoted on their reactions. One such individual, however, told BOXOFFICE that he and many of his contemporaries are up in arms over the action and are discussing ways and means of uniting to protest the increase. "It's too much for us to pay," this producer asserted, "for the services which the producers association render." He contended also that there should be a lower service charge on pictures with negative costs of $50,000 or less, instead of attaching the blanket $100 minimum to all features costing $100,000 or less.

May Resort to Legal Action

Another who was most outspoken in his condemnation of what he termed "the Hays office's arbitrary procedure" informed BOXOFFICE that he is consulting his attorneys to ascertain whether or not there is some legal action to which he might resort to protect himself against what he termed a "ruinous increase." This producer pointed out the production code seal is a necessity on his features so that they may be booked into theatres which are in any way affiliated with the producers association; and which, because of such affiliation, have to insist upon the purity seal on all product to reach their screens.

He stressed the fact that the 300 per cent increase affects that class of motion picture-makers who, under current conditions, can least afford it, and asserted the amount of increased revenue accruing to the association as a result could not possibly total enough to be much of a factor in that organization's financial operations. This producer pointed out, further, that a more sizeable sum would result if the code administration had seen fit to attach even a small increase to the service charge on larger-budget films.

"Dependent on Fees"

The letter informing producers of the change in tariff, and signed by Joseph I. Breen, production code administrator, explained that the code administration is "dependent entirely upon fees received for servicing pictures for producers and distributors," and that since its inception in 1934 the organization's income from these services "has been insufficient to cover the actual cost of operation," which deficits, Breen declared, have been paid by the code's signatories.

"An exhaustive analysis," Breen continued, disclosed that as concerns pictures with negative costs of less than $100,000, the previously existing fees "have been entirely out of line with the work involved and the service rendered." He asserted "it is imperatively necessary to maintain the production code administration on a self-sustaining basis" and explained the boost in fees had been unanimously voted by the code's signatories. The letter further pointed out that the change in fees on lower-budgeted features was the only one made.

The new table of fees is as follows:

1. Class "A"—Feature pictures with negative costs in excess of $200,000 ..... $525.00
2. Class "B"—Feature pictures with negative costs from $100,000 to $200,000 inclusive $350.00
3. Class "C"—Feature pictures with negative costs of $100,000 or less $100.00
4. Feature-length pictures produced completely outside the United States—service charge one-half of the regular fee for Classes "A," "B," and "C."
5. Reissues — all feature-length pictures $25.00
6. Short subjects (any film of less than 3,000 feet) $25.00

An unofficial estimate discloses that from 95 to 125 or more films to be made during the season will be affected, since they will be shot on budgets of $100,000 or less. Perhaps hardest hit will be Producers Releasing Corp., which has announced a lineup of 50 features—none of which will be made on a budget of more than $100,000. With few exceptions, Monogram's product is also turned out at costs considerably under the $100,000 minimum. Should it re-enter production, Million Dollar Productions, making all-Negro features for state-right release, would also be subject to the code-seal boost, as would Forum Films, Harry S. Webb and other units currently dormant.

Even the majors who voted the increase wil not escape. RKO Radio lists five Tim Holt westerns to be made on budgets just under the $100,000 borderline. Universal plans seven Johnny Mack Brown sagebrushers and seven Richard Arlen-Andy Devine actioners, none of which will cost more than $100,000. Republic's program includes 24 westerns to be produced at an average of $75,000 each. Listed under Class "B" in the revised table, and therefore not subject to the increase, are such independents as Larry Darmour, Harry Sherman, Stephens-Lang, Pyramid Pictures and others.

"Monopoly" Charge Reply Up to Hays

From Will Hays, in New York, must come any comment upon an answer to the $1,500,000 damage suit filed against the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America in U. S. district court here by Criterion Pictures, local attaches of the Hays office have declared. The suit charges the MPPDA, Hays, Joseph I. Breen and all members of the organization with constituting a monopoly in restraint of trade and with violating terms of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws.

Attorney Leo Shapiro, representing Criterion and its president, Phil Goldstone, bases the complaint primarily on the contention that the MPPDA's production code administration refused in 1937 to grant a seal of approval to Criterion's "Damaged Goods," film dealing with syphilis, but that subsequently the code administration gave a seal to Warner's "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," which dealt with the same disease. The plaintiff charges that, through its purity seal administration, the MPPDA dominates and controls almost all first-run houses and excludes all independent producers from the first-run market. It is further charged that Criterion had no voice or control in connection with the preparation or enforcement of the production code, but that despite that, it was compelled to pay a service fee for each picture produced by it and approved by the code administrator.

Defendants are accused of "wrongfully, unlawfully, unfairly and unreasonably" refusing to give "Damaged Goods" a purity seal, as a result of which gross receipts estimated at $500,000 were lost. Trebled damages of $1,500,000 are asked under the Sherman anti-trust law provisions.

"TO CARRY on the ideals represented by Irving G. Thalberg is the privilege of the Academy in sponsoring this award. It shall be given each year for the most consistent high quality of production achievement by an individual producer, based on pictures he has personally produced during the preceding year. It shall be in the form of a specially designed trophy which will, each year, become the permanent possession of the producer to whom it is awarded."

That is the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' own description of the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award.

When Hollywood starts looking around for its "man of the year," the producer who is to be the recipient of the singular honor represented by the Thalberg Award, the man who in 1940 performed the greatest service for the advancement of the screen, it will do well to focus its attention upon an independent—Walter F. Wanger.

Wanger is president of the Academy and the fact that he has been responsible for bringing the organization to its greatest service and efficiency is well recognized.

Certainly few Hollywood producers have devoted as much time, intelligence and energy to the cause of better pictures and a better industry as has Wanger. The records show that there have been few years when at least one Wanger film has not been among the ten best. In 1940, for example, when he made only "Foreign Correspondent" and "The Long Voyage Home," both were listed among the ten best in 14 separate polls—including that of the impartial National Board of Review. In 1939 "Stagecoach," and those who made it, collected many honors—John Ford won the New York Critics Circle award for its direction; Thomas Mitchell, in the lead, grabbed the Academy kudos, as did those who wrote the musical score.

But Wanger didn't stop there. Confident that "Foreign Correspondent" and "The Long Voyage Home" were good pictures, he went on the road, at his own expense, to aid in the exploitation. And the trip was only secondarily on his own behalf—primarily it was to bring about a better understanding between producer, distributor and showman. To that end he traveled 32,000 miles in three months; appeared on 12 radio broadcasts, not only to plug his pictures but to boost and advance the industry; visited nine Variety Clubs to ask theatremen their problems and acquaint them with production obstacles in Hollywood; addressed advertising and women's clubs, the National Library Ass'n convention in San Francisco, and spoke on the Town Meeting of the Air broadcast as well as the University of Chicago's Round Table of the Air.

On that tour he gave editors ideas for patriotic editorials and wrote many himself. He has kept in constant touch with hundreds of international developments of interest to the industry.

His extra-curricular record in Hollywood is likewise enviable. He has been a leader in every charitable enterprise and a tireless worker for Americanization. Probably no Hollywood film executive attended more meetings, interested himself in more enterprises or worked more selflessly on behalf of his industry than Wanger.

His own words sum up Wanger's attitude and outlook concisely and clearly:

"We must view our business in the light of today, not yesterday. We must clear away cobwebs of indecision and carelessness and we must roll up our sleeves and get back to work. A good portion of our national audience has slipped away. We must get it back not by appealing to the same audience over and over again but by making pictures that appeal to new types of audiences. We must think and produce in terms of talent and enlightenment."

In view of his record—and the above only briefly touches thereon—there seems to be but one possible barrier between Wanger and the richly-deserved Oscar—his own modesty. Being president of the group that votes the Thalberg Award, and inasmuch as no previous president has been so honored, he might feel embarrassed at accepting the accolade. In the event such a syllogistical impasse presents itself, it is incumbent upon other Academy officials, and in the same spirit of fairness which controls all of their deliberations, to completely disregard it.

BALLYHOODLUMS — Continuing to manifest their urge toward a zoological touch in publicity pipedreams, which the advent of George Brown as department head apparently did little to discourage, Paramount praisers hit a new high in a yarn concerning the alleged efforts of a producer to import genuine tse-tse flies from Africa for a safari sequence in a current picture. The release declared the Department of Agriculture ruled only one of the germ-bearing insects could be imported at a time. The choice morsel ends with the erudite observation, "the flies spread sleeping sickness." As do such releases . . . Henry Rogers is the only freelancer to offer a preview service to the press. Note such tidbits as "First cutting of 'Tall, Dark and Handsome' reveals Virginia Gilmore follows up promise she indicated in title role of 'Jenny'" and "William Gargan in 'Cheers for Miss Bishop' does a repeat of his top performance in 'They Knew What They Wanted.'" If you're a Rogers client you've got to be good . . . With characteristic modesty Leo's welkin-ringers take a bow for the Italian defeat in Africa with the following: "When Australian troops poured into Bardia, they were lustily singing 'We're Off to See the Wizard!' hit theme song of 'The Wizard of Oz.'" Too bad Producer Mervyn LeRoy wasn't present to lead the singing.

Sunshine, Sagebrush and Sleuths

If the preview lineup during the first week of the new year may be considered criterion, series pictures will continue to be a decidedly dominant note in Hollywood's production tune during 1941. Of six features shown to the critical fraternity, only one—and that an import from England—was not of the chapter film variety.

Pair rating first consideration was Metro's "Maisie Was a Lady" and Fox's "Romance of the Rio Grande."

Despite the title of the first-named, Maisie—in the person of Ann Sothern—remains the lovable hoiden with heart of gold. In this chapter many of the laughs which highlighted predecessors in the series are missing—probably so that Betty Reinhardt and Mary McCall jr., who scripted from an original by Miss Reinhardt and Myles Connolly, could squeeze in more serious, melodramatic and, in spots, maudlin moments. But J. Walter Ruben's production, direction by Edwin L. Marin and other technical contributions are at the same high level which characterized earlier "Maisie" adventures, and how audiences will take to it depends upon personal entertainment tastes.

Customers will be delighted to see the very marked improvement in "Romance of the Rio Grande," newest in the Cisco Kid's sagebrush sagas. It reflects forward strides in every department—production trappings by Sol Wurtzel, direction by Herbert I. Leeds and script by Harold Buchman and Samuel G. Engel, from Katherine Fullerton Gerould's novel. It is above average fare and cannot help but please all the customers.

Further in the sagebrush motif was "Doomed Caravan," newest of the Hopalong Cassidy westerns as turned out for Paramount by Harry Sherman. It contains all the ingredients which have made Hoppy's adventures top outdoor entertainment, is packed with action, thrills and scenic beauty and features workmanlike direction by Lesley Selander. Screenplay by Johnston McCulley and J. Benton Cheney is pointed for action and suspense all the way and the feature measures up in every respect to the best Sherman has ever made.

Two were of the time-honored cops and robbers theme. Monogram's "You're Out of Luck," latest in the sleuthing adventures of that perennial juvenile, Frankie Darro, is cut from the same pattern as preceding features, with only minor

Conferences Absorb Executives at Fox

Executive conferences anent the consent decree, production plans and budgets for the balance of the 1940-41 season are underway at 20th Century-Fox, with the return from New York of Darryl Zanuck, studio production chief. Participating, in addition to Zanuck, are Herman Wobber, sales head; President Sidney R. Kent, Joseph M. Schenck and William Goetz. Huddles are expected to continue for a week or more.

Ned Depinet, RKO Radio's sales head, has delayed his arrival here until January 15, at which time he will accompany President George Schaefer from New York. Schaefer and Depinet will probe detailed production plans for the next few months in huddles with Harry Edington, Lee Marcus and J. J. Nolan of the studio staff. Depinet will return east at the conclusion of the conferences, while Schaefer intends to remain at the studio for several months.

W. Ray Johnston, Monogram president, checked out for Kansas City to preside at a franchise-holders' meeting Jan. 11. He was accompanied by Geo. West, franchise holder in St. Louis, Kansas City and Cincinnati; and Howard Stubbins, west coast franchise holder. Meeting was called to complete arrangements for the annual "March for Monogram" drive, slated for February 22-April 11. Johnston, West and Stubbins will return here January 14.

Unexpected business matters requiring his presence in the east forced Murray Silverstone, United Artists head, to delay his proposed Hollywood arrival for another ten days. He will be accompanied here by Arthur Kelly, UA sales manager.

At the conclusion of Universal product huddles the company announced it will deliver the full 63 pictures announced for the 1940-41 season, despite revenue losses from foreign sources. Further, President Nate Blumberg announced budgets will be boosted on a number of forthcoming vehicles. J. Cheever Cowdin, board chairman, was the first to return east. He will be followed next week by William Scully, sales head, and Joseph Seidelman, foreign sales manager, with Blumberg planning to remain here.

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, and Howard Dietz have checked in at M-G-M for conferences with studio officials on spring releases. Dietz was accompanied by Al Lichtman, studio official, who spent a week in New York meeting with homeoffice executives.

To set up detailed production and budgetary plans for the final quarter of 1940-41, Herbert J. Yates is due at Republic January 15. He will huddle with M. J. Siegel, production head. Not awaiting Yates' arrival, James R. Grainger, sales chief, checked out after a week at the studio to begin a swing around the company's exchanges.

After four days of conferences with Y. Frank Freeman, Henry Ginsberg and other studio officials, Neil Agnew, distribution head for Paramount, and Robert Gillham, advertising-publicity chief, returned to New York. David Rose, Paramount's managing director for Great Britain, will leave January 17 en route back to London. He has been here for a month, vacationing and discussing British production plans with studio executives.

Producers David Loew and Albert Lewin have gone to New York to confer with United Artists officials anent release plans for their first picture, "So Ends Our Night." They also plan to discuss their year's program, which includes "Landfall" and "Night Music." The producers will stay in the east to catch the Music Hall opening of "So Ends Our Night" early in February.

Robert Schless, Warner foreign sales manager, and Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Theatres, have checked in at the studio. They will await the arrival next week of Gradwell Sears, sales head, at which time the visitors will launch parleys with studio executives.

Korda Drops Plans for Co-Producing "Wine"

Alexander Korda has retired from the arrangement whereby he was to have co-produced and released "New Wine" through United Artists in association with Dr. William Szekeley. Szekeley will produce the Ilona Massey starrer himself and will negotiate a release directly through UA or some other major. Reinhold Schunzel is slated to direct.

New Preview System Already Is Cracking

Less than a month old, the new preview system which went into effect December 15 and which was hailed as the logical solution to the "press" preview headache by the major studio publicity chiefs responsible for its adoption, has already during the past week given three evidences of cracking up.

So that the trade and critical press would no longer be forced to play second fiddle in the matter of seats and coverage to a host of preview gate-crashers who had nothing to do with the fourth estate, the publicity directors had decided that after the middle of December there would be no more so-called "press" previews in theatres. They would all be held in studio projection rooms, the bulk of them in the afternoon, and exclusively for the press.

But the rule was quickly broken in a mad scramble on the afternoon preceding New Year's Eve, when tired reviewers looking forward to that annual celebration were confronted with the task of covering three pictures—all announced with a bare hour's notice—and all on the same afternoon. The offenders were Warner, unfurling "Father's Son," and 20th Century-Fox, which had a dual feature, no less—"Romance of the Rio Grande" and "Michael Shayne, Private Detective."

Studio attaches hastened to explain the situation was no fault of theirs; that they had been forced to stage the screenings for the press because their respective exchanges had booked the features into various houses throughout the city as "New Year's Previews." And so the weary critics were given their option: To cover the films that afternoon or spend New Year's Eve in a theatre looking at the pictures there.

Rabbit punch number two was struck at the new "system" when Paramount, one of the studios aiding in its promulgation, chose the evening of January 9, and an unannounced theatre, to debut "Virginia" for the press. Invitations attempted to camouflage the break by dubbing it the "first sneak press preview," and by announcing the studio was keeping the theatre chosen a secret. For that reason reviewers were guests at dinner at the studio and were transported to and from the preview in chartered buses. Maintaining it was "making a genuine effort to make press previews just what the name implies" by inviting only the press, the announcement forebore any explanation of why a theatre, and not Paramount's own projection room, was utilized.

Loew-Lewin Protest

Then the reeling "system" almost went down for the count when Producers David Loew and Albert Lewin used the pretext that projection-room previews are "another ill-timed move to rob Hollywood of its color" to announce the press showing of "So Ends Our Night" would be January 21, in the evening, at Grauman's Chinese Theatre. This refusal to become a party to the agreement eliminating night previews they explained by charging it is unfair to any picture dependent upon audience reaction for its "mood" and "feeling" to show it in a small room before a small group. "Take away the previews and the premieres," they assert, "and you have robbed Hollywood of a portion of its most marketable product, glamour."

At a Sound Stage Dedication—

The past mingled with the present in Hollywood when Republic dedicated its new $250,000 sound stage to the memory of the late Mabel Normand, silent-screen comedienne. The occasion called for a party on the sound stage, to which scores of film capital notables were invited. Here the cameraman catches, left to right: Y. Frank Freeman of Paramount; William Farnum, one of the chief speakers; Gene Autry; Mrs. Freeman; Mr. and Mrs. Sol C. Siegel, and George "Gabby" Hayes. Judy Canova, Republic star, unveiled a bronze plaque dedicated to Mabel's memory, following which one of the late comedienne's greatest successes, "Mickey," was projected. Among those attending were Noah Beery, Mae Busch, Chester Conklin, Edgar Kennedy, Raymond Hatton, Charles Ray, Jack Mulhall, Charlie Murray, Louise Fazenda, M. J. Siegel, head of Republic production; Walter Abel, Wallace Reid jr., Ann Miller, Eddie Quillan, John H. Auer, Erle C. Kenton, Roy Del Ruth, Wallace MacDonald, Joseph Santley, Frank McDonald, James R. Grainger and dozens of others.

Early Resumption Is Seen for Selznick

Pointing to an early resumption of picture-making activity, David O. Selznick Productions, Inc., has announced the following officers were elected at a special meeting of the board of directors:

David O. Selznick, president; Daniel T. O'Shea, vice-president; E. L. Scanlon, treasurer; Loyd Wright, secretary; Charles E. Millikan and Katharine Brown, assistant secretaries. Directors include Selznick, O'Shea, Scanlon, Wright and Walter S. Orr.

Under exclusive contract to the company are Ingrid Bergman, Alfred Hitchcock, Joan Fontaine and Alan Marshal. Vivien Leigh's contract is exclusive save for one picture yearly with Alexander Korda. The company also has an option on the services of Director Robert Stevenson for one picture yearly.

Further indication that Selznick is planning to re-enter production shortly is seen in the recent appointment of Victor M. Shapiro as publicity director. The company has a two-picture distribution deal with United Artists.

Start Film Soon for Use In Training Draft Army

To be launched within the next few days, as soon as a studio site is selected, is the first in a series of short subjects to be turned out by Hollywood in cooperation with the U. S. Signal Corps for use in training the nation's new draft army.

This was indicated with the return to Hollywood of Darryl Zanuck, chairman of the industry defense group's sub-committee in charge of producing the reels. Zanuck stopped in Washington en route here from New York to be sworn in as a lieutenant-colonel in the signal corps, and spent several hours in the nation's capital conferring with army officials.

Dr. Francis Abdo has become the fourth Paramount studio doctor to be ordered to active service, having been assigned to duty at Fort Winfield Scott in San Francisco.

Meantime a brief lull is hovering over the charity front. Next great effort in which Hollywood will be called upon to participate is the national infantile paralysis campaign, of which Joseph M. Schenck is national vice-chairman and chairman for the state of California. Schenck is expected to announce detailed plans for securing industry pledges within the next few days.

Paramount Story Head

William Dozier has been appointed head of Paramount's studio story and writing departments, joining the company February 3. For the past five years Dozier has been in charge of writers and story sales for the Berg-Allenberg agency. Julian Blaustein will continue at Paramount as associate story editor.

Bonus Arrangement for Holden at Paramount

William Holden and Paramount have smoked the pipe of peace and Holden has reported to Columbia for a loanout assignment in the starring spot in "Texas." Holden had been suspended by Paramount for refusing the role, the actor contending he was entitled to a wage boost which the studio refused to consider. Holden still has not gained his salary increase, but a bonus arrangement has been worked out to the mutual satisfaction of him and the studio, Paramount officials reported.

Anthony Veiller, Paramount producer for the past two years, will check off the lot upon completion of editing duties on "New York Town," his most recent assignment. Veiller has announced no plans for the future. Also departing the Paramount roster is Arthur Jacobson, an assistant director for 14 years and, more recently, in charge of the talent department.

After six months on the lot without assignment, Jules Dassin, stage and radio director imported to Hollywood by RKO Radio, has been released.

Benjamin Cohn Forms Independent Firm

Benjamin Cohn, formerly with Warner's exploitation staff in New York, has established headquarters here and announced the incorporation of an independent production company with plans to make three pictures during 1941, budgeted at $500,000 each.

A major release arrangement will be revealed by Cohn within a few days, as well as titles and other details of the pictures he plans.

changes; and compares favorably with them as supporting material. Ed Kelso's script stretches its story values as far as the law will allow, while Lindsley Parson's production and Howard Bretherton's direction reflect favorably upon their respective efforts.

Fox's "Michael Shayne, Private Detective," is a fast-moving entry which thrill-hunting audiences should find eminently satisfying. It's the initialer in a proposed series with Lloyd Nolan in the title role, directed by Eugene Forde, produced by Sol Wurtzel and scripted by Stanley Rauh and Manning O'Connor from a novel by Brett Halliday.

The exception, "Blackout," is a United Artists release of an English production, loaded with suspense, dramatic vitality, and topflight performances. It was smartly and competently directed by Michael Powell and boasts a story so cleverly handled that American theatregoers should find it highly intriguing fare.

Academy Governors Re-elect Wanger

New Board of governors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has re-elected Walter Wanger president of the organization. Re-named vice-presidents were Frank Capra and Edward Arnold, with two new vice-presidents added—Darryl Zanuck and Jane Murfin. New secretary is Mervyn LeRoy, replacing Robert Riskin, while Nathan Levinson supplants John Aalberg as treasurer. New positions of assistant secretary and assistant treasurer were filled by Allan Scott and Henry Fonda respectively.

Board also discussed plans for the forthcoming annual Awards banquet, but reached no decision as to the definite date and locale for the affair, which will be held some time in February.

Previous to the yearly election of Academy officers, a special balloting was held to break a tie vote in the technicians' branch, as a result of which John Aalberg, Farciot Edouart and Thomas Moulton were named to the board of governors from the technicians' division.

Producers' Election Feb. 3

Meantime the producers association, in its regular monthly meeting with Y. Frank Freeman presiding, disclosed its annual election of officers has been scheduled for the next session, February 3. John Zinn has been appointed as the organization's representative in negotiations with the Screen Actors Guild relative to enforcing terms of the SAG-producer standing committee's recent report recommending a purge of so-called "casual" extra players to aid the bit-players' unemployment crisis.

A second meeting was held by the committee headed by Walter Wanger which is planning a testimonial dinner honoring Frank Capra for his 20 years of service in the motion picture industry. No date has yet been set for the affair. Fred Beetson has been made to head a sub-committee to select a date, while J. P. McGowan heads another group which will endeavor to secure the cooperation of the various Guilds. Attending the meeting in addition to Wanger, Beetson and McGowan, were Y. Frank Freeman, Donald Gledhill, Dore Schary, Sheridan Gibney and Kenneth Thomson.

Atwill and Dr. Frenke Form Independent Unit

Formation of a new independent production unit headed by Lionel Atwill, character actor, and Dr. Eugene Frenke has been announced, together with the disclosure they have purchased "The Dark River," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, as their first production. James Whale has been signed to direct and a release now being negotiated will be announced shortly. Production will start when Whale has completed his current Columbia assignment, "They Dare Not Love." Anna Sten will probably be starred in "The Dark River."

Would Empower Police to Shut Any Show in L. A.

Los Angeles—The issue of censorship of local theatres, both legitimate and motion picture, which has periodically insinuated itself upon the local political horizon, has again raised its head—and gives promise of being one of the major problems confronting Southern California showmen during 1941.

Latest step was taken when the police commission and city council instructed the city attorney to draft a suggested ordinance which would empower police to arbitrarily close any show, stage or screen, which the law might deem indecent or salacious. Such a scheme has been under discussion spasmodically by the city fathers for several years and last came into the limelight about a year ago, when action on the matter was tabled indefinitely.

The proposed ordinance, it is understood, would not be directed at motion picture theatres exhibiting films bearing the Hays office's purity seal, but would be employed principally against stage productions which, in the police commission's opinion, transcend the bounds of decency. It would also be utilized in halting the screening of salacious imported films.

A Hearing Necessary Now

A present city ordinance provides that showings of such indecent films and stage plays may be halted only after a hearing and trial at which the defendant is allowed to plead his case. The proposed amendment would empower police to issue and arbitrarily revoke licenses at their own discretion.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the proposal by at least two Hollywood groups—the Screen Actors Guild and the local branch of the Hays office. The former announced adoption of a ruling seeking to bar from Guild membership and appearance in motion pictures any person who, after notice, performs in a production termed "unfair" by any of the actors' organizations within the Associated Actors and Artists of America. This would be a blow at salacious productions in Los Angeles, since Actors Equity membership regulations also prohibit appearances of professional actors in salacious plays.

"Firm, united action against such productions is needed," the SAG declared, asserting that the ruling can "in the future maintain standards of decency on the stage."

At the same time SAG spokesmen declared they will fight vehemently against the adoption of the censorship ordinance on the grounds that "the principle of vesting power over the theatre in an administrative body has been tested in the past and has been found undesirable. Whether it affects the press, the stage, the screen or others, the wielding of censorship or similar arbitrary power by any administrative body threatens the American principles of freedom of expression and trial by jury."

Similar sentiments were expressed by Hays office attaches, who declared they would cooperate with the SAG in protesting adoption of any such ordinance.

PRC Has Two Features Set for Early Starts

Producers Releasing Corp. has two features lined up to go before the cameras within the next few weeks. First under way will be "Outlaws of the Rio Grande," western starring Tim McCoy, with Peter Stewart directing. This will be followed in February by "Alimony Jail," from a story by George Bricker. Sherman Scott is slated as the pilot. Sigmund Neufeld is producing both.

A February 10 starting date has been set by Merian C. Cooper, head of Argosy Productions, on "The Eagle Squadron," which will be released by Walter Wanger through United Artists. Cooper is at present in the east gathering data on the script, which is being written by Hurd Barrett and Major Harold Buckley. No director or cast assignments have been made.

For Monogram release, Sam Katzman will shortly launch "Air Devils," starring the East Side Kids. Al Martin supplied the original screenplay.

Herbert Wilcox will launch "Sunny," starring Anna Neagle, early this month as the next in his series for RKO Radio release. Wilcox will both produce and direct. Universal will garner release on two other independent entries to roll this month—Frank Lloyd's "The Lady From Cheyenne" and Lawrence Fox's "The Man Who Lost Himself."

Incorporation of Oxford Pictures, with D. A. Benson as president, has been announced. The new independent unit is headquartering at International Studios, where it will embark about January 15 on a series of six films with British backgrounds. Harry Levin has been set to direct. Pictures will be given state right release.

Company Transactions Slow During December

Washington—Transactions involving 1,500 shares of film company stocks are shown in the first December report of the securities and exchange commission on transactions of officers and directors in the securities of their corporations. Deals for only three companies were reported, as follows:

Consolidated Film Industries: Disposition of 100 shares of part preferred stock by E. H. Seifert, director, Fort Lee, N. J., leaving him with 100 shares.

Twentieth Century-Fox: Acquisition of 1,000 shares of common stock by Sidney R. Kent, officer, New York, giving him a total of 2,180 shares.

Universal Corp.: Acquisition of 200 common voting trust certificates by Preston Davie, director, New York, giving him a total of 2,600 held direct and 26,500 held through Standard Capital Co.

The SEC reported that Pathe Film was among the first companies to file reports under the new investment company act, showing the stock holdings of officers and directors and beneficial owners of more than 10 per cent of any class.

The report showed the holdings as of November 1, last, when the law became effective, as follow:

George J. Bonwick, officer, New York, none; Henry J. Guild, director, Adams, Mass., none; Donaldson Brown, beneficial owner, New York, none direct but 58,102 shares of common and 1,844 shares of preferred through the Broseco Corp.; T. C. Davis, director, New York, 100 shares of common; Allan P. Kirby, director, Morristown, N. J., 2,100 shares of common direct, 1,000 shares through Holding Company A, 4,000 shares through Holding Company B, and 600 shares through a trust; Kenneth M. Young, officer, New York, 400 shares of common; Robert R. Young, director, Cleveland, 20,497 shares of common; Mabel M. Malone, officer, New York, one share of preferred.

New Year Week Rockets Los Angeles Grosses

LOS ANGELES—Special New Year's Eve performances rocketed grosses in almost every first-run house to near-record proportions, with business generally reported as holding up well after the holidays. Top hits were Paramount's "Love Thy Neighbor" at the Paramount, which was a sell-out New Year's Eve, on a reserved seat basis, coupled with a stage show, and "Philadelphia Story," which opened simultaneously at the Carthay Circle, Loew's State and Grauman's Chinese. Poorest showing was made by Warner's "Flight From Destiny," which carded less than normal in its first stanza at the Four Star.

A Bill Would Repeal State Service Tax

DENVER—A bill to repeal the state service tax has been introduced in the state legislature. This law now covers the two per cent tax on theatre tickets over five cents, and, according to information from the state house, the bill faces a tough battle.

The bill was introduced by Democrats, and already Republicans are threatening to introduce a new income tax bill that would greatly reduce the exemptions. The Republicans claim the income tax boost will be necessary to replace the loss of revenue occasioned if the service tax is repealed.

A bill also has been introduced that would do away with tax tokens. If this passes and the service tax is retained, the tax would be dropped from tickets up to 15 cents, one cent on tickets from 15 to 65 cents, and two cents on tickets from 65 cents to $1.15.

SEATTLE

TOPIC of the day is the Ascap scrap with the networks and other fields. Newspapers feature articles telling of the battle and how it will give the music-writing youngsters a better change to get attention. Billy MacDonald and his Royal Highlanders, featured at the Trianon ballroom, were cut down to four numbers when they went on the air the opening day of the restraint. Ascap had all the rest. All local radio bands and musicians are taking good old numbers and arranging them to various tempos and rhythm, with the result many novel classics are being heard. Tommy Thomas of KIRO thinks the radio stations will have little trouble, because BMI has cleared some 400,000 tunes already and is sending out more every day. Ascap, doing a little doubletime thinking, sent permission to KTW to play any and all Ascap songs free of charge. KTW happens to be the station of the First Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. C. Foss, in charge of programs, quickly announced that KTW will play only church music and nothing popular. Some years ago, Seattle amusement centers rose up in rebellion against Ascap for collecting revenue from them for the use of various tunes. They went to federal court and Ascap was forbidden to operate here without applying for a license, which they never did.

The city council stuck the owners of pinball games a license of $25.00 per year on each game, and the owner of the establishment where they are placed must cough up $7.50. No games to be placed within a certain radius of schools, and any establishment owner caught allowing any one under 21 to play the machines, is subject to $300 fine or one year in jail or both . . . One of the local councilmen has prepared an ordinance which he will present to the license committee which would regulate "juke boxes." The measure provides for an annual fee of $15 for each mechanical music machine. Heavy penalties for reproduction of vulgarity or obscenity . . . Roy and Adelaide Cooper up from San Francisco for the New Year's and to spend some time at the hospital visiting Roy's mother, who is still in a serious condition. Mother is Mrs. Rose Bloom, wife of Al of United Artists.

Seattle epicures, who for the past few months have been sending up prolonged howls because of the closing of the famous Rippe's dining center, are now cheering. John G. von Herberg, northwest theatre owner, reopened the cafe under the name of Von's, and the opening day he played host to over 1,500 enthusiastic customers. Von will keep the eatery open 24 hours a day . . . Lloyd and Harriet Lamb, arriving back in town from Chicago and without telling a soul, not even his own brother. Good to see the couple. They will stay here for a few months . . . Frank and Billie Sheffield of the Denver Republic branch, and Harold and Emily Sheffield of the Portland branch of Republic, holding a reunion here at the home of their uncle, J. T. Sheffield, northwest president of Republic. "Sheff" himself was called away at the time of the gathering to attend a very important meeting at the Republic studios. History in the making.

Speaking of Republic, Paul McElhinney, salesman east of the mountains for the outfit, drove out with his wife and youngster for Salt Lake to visit his folks. They returned in time to holler Happy New Year here. Mrs. Paul will present papa with an addition some time in February . . . Rex Stevenson, of the booking department for Golden State Theatres in San Francisco and formerly of the Sterling booking department here, is another of those guys who creep in town at dead of night and leave without saying hello. If you don't know it, fellows, Rex was here for a few days . . . Ben Shearer announces he has transferred Ted Lay from the Los Angeles office to Seattle. Ted is on the sales force.

Paul Aust back from Los Angeles where he spent four weeks because of the death of an aunt and the serious illness of his mother . . . Jimmy Ewing has officially taken over the Granada in Auburn. He has signed a lease with Frank Graham to operate the place . . . Ned Edris up and about after two weeks home battling the flu . . . John Lee of the Marjo in Ephrata spending some time here closing deals . . . Hal Daigler is home with flu . . . Harry Landstrom back to his bailiwick in Butte . . . Merle Vaughn of the Music Box back from Lewiston, Ida., after spending Xmas with the folks . . . Ruth Lund of the same theatre ill in bed.

First Meeting for PCCITO Counsel

LOS ANGELES—The first organizational meeting of 1941 to be held by the trustees of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners January 13 in Portland, Ore., will be especially significant because it will be the initial one attended by Albert J. Law, new general counsel for the PCCITO, since his appointment to that post recently.

While not disclosed, it is expected the topics to be covered at the meeting will include a discussion of the consent decree and a strengthening of the PCCITO's platform to solidify a united front of independent showmen along the Pacific Coast.

Attending, in addition to Law, will be: H. W. Bruen and Jack Y. Berman of Los Angeles, together with R. H. Poole, the PCCITO's executive secretary; Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin of San Francisco; Bob White and A. West Johnson of Oregon, and William Ripley and L. O. Lukan of Washington.

Poole, who doubles as executive director of the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., recently returned to his desk after a week's vacation spent in the mountains.

SALT LAKE

UTAH special taxes, exclusive of those for unemployment compensation, reached an all-time high in 1940, according to J. H. Bankhead, cashier of the state tax commission here. Salt Lake City bank clearings increased appreciably the past year, it was reported . . . Paramount is enjoying very good business on "Love Thy Neighbor," which opened on New Year's at the Center, Salt Lake; Paramount at Provo; Roxy, Brigham City, Utah; Orpheum, Ogden, Utah, and the Pinney, Boise, Idaho.

Both recent releases made in Intermountain towns, "Arizona" and "Santa Fe Trail" are doing good business at first runs here. "Santa Fe" is in its second run at the Studio, and the former is in its first week at the Utah . . . Salt Lake folk this year had one of their most gay and expensive New Year's Eve celebrations in a decade, reports by theatres, restaurants and hotels indicate . . . Approximately 1,200 Salt Lake old folks attended a special showing of "The Thief of Bagdad" at the Paramount, Intermountain house managed by Norman Sprowl . . . All Intermountain Theatres' houses enjoyed big crowds at their specially arranged New Year's shows . . . Sam Gardner, branch manager for M-G-M, reports that John P. Byrne, district manager, who was intending to make his headquarters in Salt Lake, is now headquartering in Denver. He will arrive here soon, however, for a conference. Ditto Western Sales Manager E. M. Saunders, who comes on from New York.

Lon T. Fidler, division manager for Monogram, is recovering from a prolonged illness, according to local manager, W. W. McKendrick . . . Salesman C. F. Rose of Monogram went to Los Angeles for the holidays . . . Manager Bill Seib of Columbia reports "Arizona" is doing exceptionally big in this area . . . Universal salesmen are back in their respective territories, H. W. Landstrom having returned from Seattle and Jack Allander from Spokane. James French remained in Salt Lake over the holidays . . . The Paramount Theatre announces a special performance, January 15, of the San Francisco Opera Ballet . . . RKO's "Kitty Foyle" is being well received throughout this region, after opening at the Rialto in Salt Lake.

Hollywood Paramount To Get a New Name

LOS ANGELES—When President Charles P. Skouras of Fox West Coast Theatres and his aide, Andy Krappman, return from their current New York huddles with National Theatres executives, they will bring with them a new name for the Paramount Theatre, FWC subsequent-run house in Hollywood.

Decision to change the theatre's name was reached before Skouras left for the east, chiefly because it conflicts with that of the Paramount in downtown Los Angeles, a first-run house operated by Fanchon and Marco. The FWC unit will, at the same time, be given a new and modern marquee and a redecorating job.

DENVER

RICK RICKETSON, manager of the Fox Intermountain division of National Theatres, has been named chairman of the local Greek Relief campaign, with $100,000 the quota for Denver. Downtown headquarters were established following the visit here of Spyros Skouras in the interest of the drive . . . Frank Roberts, salesman at United Artists, has resigned and accepted a post with a former employer, the J. H. Cooper Theatres, with headquarters in Oklahoma City.

Harry Huffman, city manager for Fox Theatres, has been re-elected president of the Denver convention and tourist bureau for the 12th year . . . R. J. Morrison, 20th Century-Fox exchange manager, was in the hospital with the flu, but is now recuperating at home. Several others of the exchange also experienced a siege of the flu, including Rene Buchanan, Hazel Morgan, Merle Gwinn, Helen Stone, while Hugh Rennie, salesman, is back on the road after being home ill. Christina Metzger was limping around a few days as the result of a turned ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kerby of the Kerby Theatre, Worland, Wyo., passed through Denver on their way to California for a two-month vacation . . . J. J. (Jap) Morgan, manager of the National Theatre Supply branch here, left for Los Angeles for a sales meeting . . . Joe Stone of National Theatre Supply is back from a holiday visit with his mother in Cincinnati . . . Harold McCormick of the Skyline and Rex theatres at Canon City, Colo., and Miss Jean Rolfe of Denver were married here Wednesday. They will make their home in Canon City.

The Coppell Amusement Co. has moved to 828 Twenty-first Street . . . Jack Price, Premiere exchange, whose mother, Mrs. Ann Price, has been an inspectress for years, expects to leave soon for at least a year's training with the Colorado National Guard. Jack, a radio technician, will be stationed at Camp Forrest, Tenn. . . . Lester L. Savage, Columbia auditor, is here checking accounts.

A one-day pep meeting was held by the RKO exchange, presided over by Leo Devaney, Canadian division manager and captain of the Depinet sales drive. With Devaney were C. E. Smith, western division manager, and Herb MacIntyre, western district manager . . . The Christmas party of the Paramount exchange was held this week—finally. It had been postponed twice—once when Chet Bell, manager, was called to Los Angeles for a sales conference, and again when he had the flu. The affair, with 32 in attendance, was held at Hillcrest, and was replete with all the trimmings of a Christmas event.

Pauline Hall, Paramount secretary, went to the hospital for an operation for a growth on her ankle, occasioned by a fall about a year ago . . . Helen Liddeen, contract clerk at Paramount, also to hospital for an appendectomy . . . Lee Cronk, head shipper at Paramount and president of the Film Employes' Union, is home with the flu . . . Commercial Film Exchange has contracted for six Fine Arts and three Coronados—Dorothy Page westerns—formerly released through Grand National.

David, four-year-old son of Charles Klein of the Black Hills Amusement Co., is very fond of salami. His mother thinks too much of it is not good for him, but his father slips him some extra on occasion. Now David wanted to do something special for Santa Claus, so with his own hands he made a salami-rye bread sandwich and placed it on the mantle Christmas Eve. The next morning, as David was looking at the crumbs, he said to his father, "Gee, dad, I forgot to leave Santa a bottle of beer!"

Assign Busby Berkeley

HOLLYWOOD—Busby Berkeley will create and stage two dance numbers for Metro's "Ziegfeld Girl."

Starts New Year With Boxoffice Marathon

San Francisco—Bucky Williams set a new record while greeting 1941. Business was so good at midnight on New Year's Eve that the manager decided not to close—sat himself at the cashier's board and started issuing tickets. Surprisingly, business was as good between 5 and 6 a. m. as an average day's matinee and so Williams kept right on going. His was a 36-hour marathon continuous run.

Pre-Opening Inspection For New Circuit Unit

SAN FRANCISCO—A pre-opening inspection party was held Friday at the Fox West-Coast San Carlos Theatre. Invitations were issued and admittance was by reservation only. Charles Skouras and other circuit executives were on hand to welcome their guests. The theatre was to be opened to the public Saturday.

SAN FRANCISCO

CHRISTMAS paid a return visit to 104 employes of the Golden State and San Francisco circuits this week when $2,500 in prizes was awarded in the holiday scrip book drive. The checks were distributed at a breakfast in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel which was attended by 233 employes of the two chains. R. A. McNeil and Ray Cooper made the presentations.

Gordon Allen has checked out on a tour of the territory for Monogram . . . Abe Blanco is sending post cards from Mexico where he is evidently having a swell vacation . . . Perry Leiber, RKO publicity director, is on his first vacation in two years and is spending it in San Francisco . . . Crooner Dick Powell sang a new song this week. Powell served as recruiting officer for the Army when the mobile unit backed its truck up to the Golden Gate Theatre where Dick is appearing. Between performances he told prospective recruits the advantages of working for Uncle Sam.

The branch managers and circuit heads met at luncheon on Tuesday to map plans for the "March of Dimes" which starts on the 15th. On Wednesday, Joseph M. Schenck and Milton Berle spoke at the Civic luncheon for the same cause. The Northern California theatres hope to duplicate last year's record when they collected over half the money taken in by California theatres . . . Mike Newman in town for work on "This Thing Called Love" . . . Joe Smith was installed as president of local B-17 of the IATSE this week. Joe recently was promoted to head shipper at Paramount. Ray Kaliski was upped by Paramount from shipper to booker . . . V. Preston, Warner booker, is confined to his home as the result of burns suffered extinguishing a small fire in his home . . . The Coniglio Brothers have taken over the Rio in Rodeo from Cecil Pace.

The Golden Gate conducted a city-wide search for a girl singer in connection with the personal appearance of Bob Crosby and his orchestra. The winner was Dorothy Fretwell, student teacher at the S. F. State Teachers' College. She was given an audition with the band, plus several appearances on the stage of the Gate . . . The Golden Gate Turf Club has made a sucker of this correspondent with their continual postponements after our announcements of each scheduled start of the racing in Albany. We are trying again, as Slip Madigan, majordomo of the track, announces the 11th as the definite beginning of the 33-day season.

Redwood Circuit opens its Tower in Marysville on the 17th . . . Herman Cohen and the missus are in the south for a short vacation. They attended the Rose Bowl game . . . Booking on the Row: Gerald Hardy, Hardy Theatres, Fresno; J. Lee, Town Hall, Quincy; Arthur Fukuda, Cochran, Cochran; Herb Harris, Mandarin, Stockton; Yates Hamm, Livermore, Livermore . . . Ed Levy reports his new theatre in Dinubia will be ready soon . . . Jim Riley and his missus are absent from the office with the flu.

George and Allen Harvey, formerly of Arbuckle, have taken over the Ferndale in Ferndale and will reopen on January 18 . . . The Row was saddened by the news that Ann Cramton, wife of Charles Cramton, manager of the Walnut Creek in Walnut Creek, was seriously injured in an automobile accident. Mrs. Cramton and her mother were driving east when the accident occurred. Cramton's mother-in-law was fatally injured . . . Warner's previewed "Four Mothers" this week . . . Sid Weisbaum is back at his manager's desk at Republic after a holiday trip to Denver.

PORTLAND

JOHNNY HARVEY, Bee Gee Theatre, Battleground, had a serious accident on N. E. Union Avenue and his brother-in-law was badly hurt. Johnny escaped serious injury, but his car was wrecked . . . Warner will start remodeling the week of January 13, and Auditor E. W. O'Brien hopes to be over the flu in time to watch the new counter and other knick-knacks going in.

Al Sather kept his record clear this New Year's with a minor crack-up. For the past several New Year's Al has had the questionable distinction of having some sort of a car wreck (not punning at his Plymouth), but this year he says he was minding his own business and someone hit him anyway.

A cable off the grapevine tells of an uneventful siege of batching by Jim Beale and Lou Metzelaar. Mrs. Beale left the two to their own cooking while she visited in Cheyenne, Wyo. Reports were that neither of the boys could cook, but so far the eggs have been sunnyside up.

Mr. Jones of the Vista, Portland, had the unique experience of having a dog guard his theatre door the other night, but he wouldn't let the customers come in. The dog belonged to a boy who had left his bicycle too near the door while he was inside enjoying the show. The canine pal was guarding the bike and unintentionally guarding the door. Jones wishes he could train the dog to bring patrons to the door instead of keeping them away.

O. J. Holmes, bigwig of the Holmes Projector Co., was in recently conferring with "Mac" MacLeod of Theatres Utilities Service Co., and L. S. Brown, newly appointed division factory representative for the Holmes company. Brown came here from Salt Lake City to meet Holmes . . . The boys are telling the story on MacLeod that business was so bad the past week that he took time out to repair the family refrigerator, disproving the old theory that a carpenter won't repair his own house, etc.

Other Portland visitors: Avery Combs, Camas and Washougal; Ted Francis, Newberg; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dow, Veronia and Tigard; Mr. and Mrs. Foster Blake, Los Angeles; Heaton Randall, Seattle; Harry Lanstrum, Universal salesman in Butte; Mr. and Mrs. Curl, Jefferson; George Gessler, Sweet Home; Mendy Mendenhall, Grants Pass, all in town booking, visiting and picking up film . . . Frank W. Sheffield, from the Republic office in Denver, was in town visiting his brother, Jim. They later went to Seattle with their families for the holidays.

The Orpheum in Portland reverts to a vaudeville-pictures policy January 13. The opening attraction will be the Major Bowes' Amateur Unit and "Second Chorus," starring Fred Astaire and Paulette Goddard. Del Milne, well known orchestra leader, will be master of ceremonies and also assistant manager. Frank Newman remains as manager . . . Mildred Johns of Fox was installed as chaplain in Ameranth, an organization associated with the Eastern Star. Frances Tillman was voted associate conductoress of her chapter of Eastern Star.

Gracie Fields will head the benefit show to be given at the Public Auditorium, January 22. It is for British War Relief . . . Roy and Mildred Brown came back from a San Francisco vacation with the distinction of being the only local filmites to attend the East-West football game . . . Tom and Mrs. Shearer were in S. F. but they were visiting with the Homer Tegtmier and Rotus Harvey families.

Miss Agnes Lemmermier, head usherette at the Orpheum, is to be married early in February . . . Marian Mahoney, Orpheum cashier, is back at work after a siege of flu . . . Booker Andy Anderson, of Universal, down with the flu too . . . Don Radabaugh, Roseburg; Sam and Charlie Whitesides, Corvallis; Ken Spears, Winlock, were in town . . . Earl Baltazar, Rainier, stopped in long enough to do some booking and tell about plans for remodeling his house. Will reseat and redecorate.

Fox-Evergreen Plans Third in Bremerton

SEATTLE—A new 1,500 seater will be added to the Fox-Evergreen circuit in this territory. Bremerton is the site of the new house. Fox at present operates two theatres in the town.

The present ship-building and defense program in Bremerton is responsible for the new building.

Start in Bremerton on Second Shearer House

SEATTLE—B. F. Shearer announces work has been started on his new theatre being erected in Bremerton. It will seat 1,000 and be up-to-the-minute in every detail. Shearer also owns the Tower in the same town.

Jane Darwell to Warner's

HOLLYWOOD—Warner's has borrowed Jane Darwell from 20th-Fox for a character role in "Thirty Days Hath September."

Stays in High Gear Despite Illness

San Francisco—Charlie Schlaifer didn't let a little thing like a concussion stop him when bed-ridden as "The Thief of Bagdad" hammered at the United Artists Theatre. Against doctor's orders, Schlaifer had artists and Lloyd Cohen, his assistant, come out to his bedroom each day for exploitation mapping. Result: The biggest week for the house in seven years. Charlie is back on the job after a two-week "layoff."

Gilboy Terminal Fire Loss Is Heavy

San Francisco—The fire at the Gilboy terminal was still conversation this week. The loss to building and contents was set at approximately $50,000. The building will have to be completely rebuilt as the celluloid fire was so terrific it twisted steel girders out of shape. Gilboy expresses most of the film in this territory and local exchanges had at least two cans of film destroyed. The origin of the blaze is still undetermined, although it is believed that gasoline combustion set it off.

REVIEW FLASHES

CONVOY (RKO)—Producer Michael Balcon, with the cooperation of the Royal Navy and some highly effective model work, has concocted in "Convoy" a naval thriller based on the present war. Clive Brook, John Clements, Judy Campbell.

SIX LESSONS FROM MADAME LA ZONGA (Univ)—Again taking as a nucleus the tune and title of a popular song—this time one of more recent vintage—Universal has wound around it a fast-moving, diverting tuneful comedy which should prove to be a welcome half of any program. Lupe Velez and Leon Errol are co-featured. Joseph G. Sanford produced; John Rawlins directed.

YOU'RE OUT OF LUCK (Mono)—With minor variations, this is cut from the same pattern as preceding Frankie Darros for this company in which he plays a juvenile detective; and, by the same token, compares favorably with them as good supporting program material. Darro, Kay Sutton, Mantan Moreland. Howard Bretherton directed.

Local 150 and First Runs Will Talk New Contract

LOS ANGELES — Conferences will be launched shortly relative to the drafting of a new contract between Projectionists Local 150, IATSE, and first-run theatres in this territory. A 26-month pact expired last November and the new agreement will be made retroactive until that time.

Spokesmen for the projectionists assert the local will seek improved working conditions in certain spots but will not ask for a wage boost. Boothmen in first-run houses now receive $76.10 for a six-hour, six-day week.

Negotiating committee for the local comprises Earle Hamilton, president; Ralph MacDonald, business manager; Mort Sands, secretary, and Ed Larsson. First-run theatre representatives include Dick Dickson for Fox West Coast; Ben Wallerstein, for the Warner Theatres; Marco Wolf, Paramount; Charles Koerner, western divisional manager for RKO Theatres, and Rodney Pantages of the Pantages.

Contested Election Stymies Solons

Jefferson City, Mo.—Because the election of Forrest Donnell, Republican, as governor of Missouri is being contested by Lawrence McDaniel, his defeated Democratic opponent, it looks like there will be very little legislative activity for some weeks to come. Until the matter is disposed of, the legislative mills cannot function. Thus any film bills which might have been thrown into the hopper, will have to mark time until the point is settled.

May Loosen Ascap's Grip in Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE—In exhibitor circles it is believed that a ruling handed down by Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy here sustaining a 1935 statute which requires licenses for music brokers and the payment of a 25 per cent franchise tax will have a considerable effect in lessening Ascap's power in Wisconsin.

The decision was handed down in the case of Leo Feist, Inc., vs. Wiley Young, West Allis tavern keeper and an official of the Tavern Music Protective Ass'n of Wisconsin.

In the action, taken under advisement last May by Duffy, Feist sued to collect a $250 copyright infringement fee, claiming that Young had permitted the playing of "The Waltz You Saved for Me" in his tavern last January 6 without permission.

Injunction Is Denied

Young filed a counterclaim, contending that neither Feist nor Ascap had complied with the 1935 law and requested an injunction to restrain them from collecting fees for the playing of copyrighted music. Although sustaining the franchise tax, Duffy refused Young an injunction, holding that "there would seem to be no such emergency, or irreparable damage situation, which calls for such action at this stage of the controversy."

Answering Feist's claim that the state law was unconstitutional, Duffy said:

"It is admitted that Feist has made no attempt to comply with Chapter 177, and the same is true with reference to Ascap.

"Chapter 177 is, in form, a revenue measure. The payments to be made thereunder are expressly stated to be a franchise tax. The motives which the legislature may have had in enacting this law are matters beyond the scope of judicial inquiry. A recent case decided by the U. S. supreme court shows the wide latitude that a state has under taxing power—the state of Wisconsin vs. J. C. Penney Co., decided Dec. 16, 1940.

"While plaintiff herein claims Chapter 177 is unconstitutional, yet it contends that the case at bar is not a proper one in which to test that issue. Certainly, the presumption must be that this state acted within its constitutional power. The motion of plaintiff to dismiss the counterclaim and to strike portions of defendant's answer must be denied.

"As to the defendant's motion for a temporary injunction, there would seem to be no such emergency, or irreparable damage situation, which calls for such action at this stage of the controversy. Furthermore, this court is informed that one or more cases are now before the U. S. supreme court in which there is at issue the validity of state legislation pertaining to the public rendition of copyrighted music. The decision of such cases may throw some light on the issue raised in the case at bar. Such decisions are expected to be rendered prior to the time that the trial of this case can be reached. The motion of the defendant for a temporary injunction is denied."

The court also held that any "threat of suit" by Ascap to force compliance with a copyright, as cited by Young, was unlawful under the Wisconsin statute and that investigators employed by Ascap to determine violations of copyright by tavern keepers would have to obtain licenses from the state.

The Wisconsin law originally set the franchise tax at five per cent, but this was increased to 25 per cent by an amendment in 1937. Under the act, violators are subject to fines of from $200 to $500 for each offense. Robert A. Hess, Wisconsin counsel for Ascap, is expected to advise an appeal in the ruling.

If the law is sustained, it is estimated that Ascap will be obliged to pay $50,000 annually on the reported $200,000 it collects in Wisconsin.

'41 Starts Off With Bang In Chicago Loop Units

CHICAGO—Business for '41 started off with a bang in Chicago's loop with "Kitty Foyle" at the Palace, "Love Thy Neighbor" at the Chicago, and "Mannerheim Line" at the Studio heading the boxoffice parade.

RKO's "Kitty," coupled with the same company's "Saint in Palm Springs," is proving the best boxoffice draw the RKO theatre has had in ages, the women especially, amply provided with hankies, making a bee-line to the Palace. Tom Gorman says it should run about three weeks.

The second week of Paramount's "Love Thy Neighbor" at the B&K flagship, the Chicago, is packing them in especially with a top-notch stage show headed by Tamara. Herb Elisburg's Studio is the meeting place for the "artier" patrons these days with Artkino's "Mannerheim Line" going into its fourth week and proving to be the best draw ever shown at the Van Buren Street house.

Detail for week ended January 2:

Apollo—Arizona (Col) 115
Second good week.

Chicago—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't).....150
Second week at the B&K flagship. Good reviews and favorable word-of-mouth packing in the customers. Nice stage show headed by Tamara also partly responsible for success of film.

Garrick—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox) 130
After two terrific weeks at the Chicago, the Zanuck success keeps 'em coming in at the Garrick.

Oriental—Lone Wolf Keeps a Date (Col) 140
Stage show, Ted Weems' band, is pulling 'em in.

Palace—Kitty Foyle (RKO),; Saint in Palm Springs (RKO) 200
Though "Kitty Foyle" opened on a bad day, Tuesday, it warmed up New Year's Day and has the women lined up on Randolph Street.

Roosevelt—Thief of Bagdad (UA) 130
Swell holiday film and bringing in adults as well as youngsters.

State-Lake—East of the River (WB) 130
Film and stage show cashing in on general strong loop business.

Studio—Mannerheim Line (Artkino) 200
Best thing that ever hit the Studio. Did 300 first week, 250 second week.

United Artists—Bitter Sweet (M-G-M) 120
Picture profiting from general good business.

Hiked Admissions Help to Build Milwaukee Takes

MILWAUKEE—Hiked admissions for New Year's Eve starting at 5 p. m. of 75 cents for the Riverside and 85 cents for the other first runs helped up grosses for the week together with new shows on New Year's Day at Fox's Wisconsin, Palace and Strand theatres. These latter houses played special programs for New Year's Eve only.

Detail for the week ending January 2:

Palace—Second Chorus (Para't); Texas Rangers Ride Again (Para't), 2nd wk.; Arizona (Col), New Year's Eve only 125

P. J. Hanson Dead

OSHKOSH, WIS.—Death last week claimed P. J. Hanson, 83, onetime operator of the old Bijou in Rhinelander and father of Harvey Hanson, operator of the Palace in Antigo. Besides his son, Hanson is survived by his wife, two brothers and a sister.

A "Different" Policy For "Tobacco Road"

By HAL TATE

CHICAGO—"Twentieth Century-Fox will release 'Tobacco Road' differently from any other film that has ever been released in this country," Darryl F. Zanuck, the company's vice-president in charge of production, told BOXOFFICE when he passed through Chicago en route to New York to accept the "Best Picture of 1940" award from the New York Film Critics for "Grapes of Wrath."

Discussing the film's distribution, Zanuck termed it "a completely revolutionary idea that's never been done before." He declined to give more information on the plan, saying he preferred waiting until details had been more completely arranged in conferences with Sidney R. Kent, president, and Herman Wobber, general manager of distribution.

Zanuck stopped off in Chicago on his way east to participate in the New York Film Critics broadcast which was heard over a coast-to-coast NBC-Blue network Sunday night. He was accompanied east by his secretary, Edward Laggewie. While in town, Zanuck conferred with Eddie Silverman of the Essaness circuit and Clyde W. Eckhardt, Chicago branch manager for 20th Century-Fox.

May Premiere in Chicago

BOXOFFICE learned from Zanuck after he had conferred with Silverman that the latter made an attractive offer for the world-premiere of "Tobacco Road" in Chicago. If 20th Century-Fox accepts, after Zanuck discusses Silverman's proposal with Kent and Wobber, the premiere will be held at the Woods in the spring—probably about the early part of March. All the leading stars of the film, including Charles Grapewin, who plays the leading role, and possibly other leading stars on the company's roster, will converge in Chicago should the premiere materialize.

Zanuck noted the similarity between "Grapes of Wrath" and "Tobacco Road." Both have themes of social significance and both have had the same technical setup: John Ford directing, Nunnally Johnson handling the scripting and Zanuck, himself, in charge of production.

Mirror American Scene

Zanuck told BOXOFFICE that the company's pictures in general will strive to portray the American scene. He said that, for the present at least, pictures of the "Four Sons" anti-Nazi type would be tabled, with comedies and musicals sharing a great deal of the camera spotlight.

Zanuck said that his firm would handle distribution of several outside pictures this year. These include two Howard Hughes productions of which one is "The Outlaw," currently in production. To date no definite plans have been formulated on the selection of Hughes' second film. He said 20th-Fox also would release pictures of the new actors "group" which includes Ronald Colman, Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer.

Flu Epidemic Hurts

DEXTER, MO.—A flu epidemic closed schools here a week and seriously affected theatre attendance.

Critics' Award, Later—

ST. LOUIS

JIMMY IRVING, manager of St. Louis Amusement Co.'s Maplewood, has received many compliments on the kind of service Virgil (Wink) Dion, doorman, accords the cash customers. It seems that Virgil, in addition to the customary work of doorman, has converted himself into a one-man information bureau, helps kiddies and elderly folk across busy thoroughfares and tells patrons where to park their automobiles with a minimum of delay.

Paul Beisman, manager of the American Theatre and the Municipal Opera, made 12 round trips via airplanes to New York during 1940 . . . Nina Lee, warblist, is convalescing at her home here from injuries received in a recent automobile accident near Decatur, Ill.

"Ice Capades of 1941" will open a six-night engagement at the Arena January 20 . . . Nick Stuart, orchestra leader who has appeared in a number of Hollywood productions, played an engagement at the Case Loma ballroom.

Missouri's ever-growing sales tax knicked the men, women and children of the state for $24,004,384 in 1940, according to an announcement by the auditor's office at Jefferson City.

"Ladies in Retirement," with Flora Robson in the top role, did only $10,000 at the American. Eight performances with a top of $2.80, except New Year's Eve, when patrons were knicked for $3.30.

Frances Dee to "Citadel"

HOLLYWOOD — Republic has ticketed Frances Dee for the lead opposite John Wayne in "Citadel of Crime."

Flock to Chicago to See Film Machines

CHICAGO — Midwestern exhibitors and representatives of production companies together with other people in the industry are expected to flock to Chicago Monday to personally inspect the new tavern film machines, several of which will be shown for the first time at the Coin Machine Industries Convention to be held here at the Sherman Hotel, January 13-16.

To date, four companies have already leased space for showing of their new dime-in-the-slot movies. They are: Mills Novelty Company, Chicago; Repeatoscope Coin Movies, Inc., New York City; Phono-Film Distributing Co., Inc., New York City, and Visograph Corp. of America, Los Angeles.

Leading midwestern exhibitors are watching the new three minute films with a leery eye, fearful that another nightmare similar to radio competition may be in the offing with the launching of the machines on a national scale.

Jack Kirsch, president of Illinois Allied, when questioned by BOXOFFICE, came out flatly against the new machines saying that he felt they may lead to the eventual showing of "stag" reels at the neighborhood taverns. Then, too, the Allied executive, said "Jimmy Roosevelt wants us to support him with his 35mm film then he turns around to produce competition for us in the 16mm film." Other leading exhibitors, when questioned by BOXOFFICE, also indicated their disapproval of the new robot movies.

The Mills Novelty Co., pioneers in what is currently considered a "step-child" of the picture business, will have two exhibitions of their "Panoram" machines. One will be at the Grey and Rose Rooms of the Hotel Sherman while the other will be at their factory on Chicago's northwest side.

All top-notch Mills executives will converge in Chicago for the showing of the machines.

"Open house" will be held by the Mills firm at their factory-showrooms on Tuesday (January 14). Top stars in show business, who will be in Chicago this week, are expected to participate.

One hundred and twenty-five manufacturers of coin machines, including Canadian and Mexican, will be represented at the convention. Already 236 space reservations have been made at the Hotel Sherman with 4,000 registrations in.

St. Louis Exhibitors to Aid Cause of Greece

ST. LOUIS—A committee of local theatremen to raise funds for Greek war relief, was organized here following a meeting addressed by Spyros Skouras, National Theatres president who is in charge of the campaign nationally. Members include: Al Rosecan, Princess; Johnny Caparal, Wellston, and Tom James of the New Comet, Douglas and Strand theatres.

Billie Burke on Loanout

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount has borrowed Billie Burke from M-G-M for a topline in "One Night in Lisbon."

CHICAGO

HARRY BRANDT, president of ITOA, was to have presided at luncheon meeting of midwestern motion picture defense committee at Drake Hotel last Thursday. John Balaban, Jack Kirsch, Eddie Silverman, Jimmy Coston and others were to have attended . . . Christ Otto and his Chicago Film Carriers can take a bow for going "over top" in Chicago Community Fund. They contributed over $500 to the $30,500 which the amusement division generously donated.

Irving Schlank, whose appointment as district manager for United Artists, newly created post, was announced several weeks ago in BOXOFFICE, will be given testimonial dinner at the Congress Hotel, Friday night. Talk is that only top-notch film executives will attend . . . Exhibitors tickled to death at Ascap-BMI battle. Seems the sameness of the tunes on air is driving air-patrons to theatres.

Rumor department: Herb Elisburg's Studio Theatre being considered for "Fantasia." Scheduled to open here in February, no house, as this column went to press, had been definitely chosen . . . Tom Gorman going to town on ads for record-breaking "Kitty Foyle." Says Tom (in his Palace Theatre ads): "The most terrific smash hit ever screened in Chicago."

Movie-Radio Dept.: Tamara, who recently completed nice role in RKO's "No, No, Nanette," and who finished successful two weeks' engagement at the B&K Chicago Theatre, Thursday night, appeared as guest star on BOXOFFICE-Joy Candy Shoppes weekly "That's Show Business" program over WAAF on Sunday, January 5. Broadcast is at 1:00 p. m. . . . Fritz Blocki, for eight years publicity director of Jones, Linick and Schaefer's Oriental Theatre, has resigned to devote full-time to radio. Jack Hess taking Fritz's place. Fritz now producing "Your Dream Has Come True" program broadcast Sunday afternoons over NBC. Prior to his radio and publicity work, Blocki was drama and critic and theatrical columnist on the Chicago American (now the Herald-American) for six years . . . Francis Trout is back on the "Scattergood Baines" radio show after appearing in the screen version of the show before the Hollywood cameras. He will appear on screen as "Pliny," same character he portrays on the air. Wrigley, sponsor of the show, really going to town on promoting picture . . . Michael Bartlett, who has leading role in "The Lilac Domino," picture which recently played at the World Playhouse, appeared as lead in WGN-Mutual presentation of "The Chocolate Soldier."

Gleaned here and there: Mort Singer, III, is recent Chicago stork delivery. Proud papa is Mort Singer, II, associate producer at Universal. Mort Singer heads RKO-Singer circuit with headquarters here . . . Irving Berlin, here in town recently, says he's working on music for new Paramount picture. One song is called "This Is a Great Country," other one is "Everybody Knew It But Me." Berlin will withhold release of songs until Ascap-BMI fight is settled.

Warner Theatres installing Coca-Cola vending machines which dispense 300 drinks without refilling . . . Eddie Silverman back from Wisconsin hunting trip . . . Louise Campbell and hubby, Horace MacMahon, after spending holidays in town with the "folks," have gone to New York where the pair plan on doing stage play together . . . Clyde Eckhardt reports that he sold "Night Train" to World Playhouse. Film, made in England, got nice-sendoff in Winchell's column January 7.

Bob Snyder, in picture business for the past 20 years, and who came here from New York a year ago to head J. H. Hoffberg Productions in Chicago, is now salesman for Al Dezel Roadshows. Al has nice new office in Exhibitor's Building at 1325 S. Wabash . . . Spector's Restaurant remodeling and putting in all stainless kitchen and own bakery department. Will be ready February 1 . . . C. J. Bulliet, News film critic, says he notices improvement in the new season's pictures. Says: "They are directed with more intelligence and merit greater public acceptance."

Legal stuff: Schubert Theatres are starting something new in Chicago. Sponsoring spot announcements on WGN for various attractions at their houses . . . Bert Lahr, Frances Williams and Benny Baker, stars of "Du Barry Was a Lady," currently at Erlanger, starred on WGN-Mutual's "In Chicago Tonight" show last Thursday night . . . Local Chicago Repertory Group, similar to New York's Group Theatre, made hit with local critics with their recent original musical: "Not on My Life."

Will Osborne Quits

ST. LOUIS—Will Osborne, orchestra leader for the past 12 years, quit as head of the organization at the conclusion of his engagement at Fanchon & Marco's Fox last Thursday. Dick Rogers, his piano player for the past seven years, has taken over the baton. He recently was elected president when the band incorporated. Osborne will go to Hollywood where he plans to appear in short films.

WE HAVEN'T seen "Cheers for Miss Bishop," but that beautiful four-page ad in BOXOFFICE last week of Martha Scott should, in our opinion, be titled "Cheers for the United Artists Advertising Dept." A very neat job.

Here's why exhibitors go crazy. Try squeezing the titles of these two forthcoming releases on your marquee: Paramount's "Aldrich Family in Life With Henry" and Producer's Releasing Corporation's "Glamour Girls Never Say No."

Say what you will, we keep punching at BOXOFFICE. For the convenience of exhibitors, even our Picture Guide-Reviews Service is punched.

Is there anyone who hasn't heard at least 4,286 versions of the Paulette Goddard Hollywood episode?

Editor "Red" Kann seems to believe in a realistic attitude even in the title of his column. He's switched from "Notes to You" to "Men and Events."

Herb Kenney jr., film critic for the Indianapolis News, selected "Grapes of Wrath" as the best picture of 1940. Second and third places went to "Rebecca" and "The Long Voyage Home," respectively . . . Charles Williams, formerly with National Theatre Supply in Chicago, and more recently with Joe Goldberg, Inc., of Chicago, is now connected with Indiana Theatre Supply Co.

Christmas Basket Parties Prove Very Successful

CHICAGO—More than 40,000 needy Chicago families were furnished Xmas feasts this year as a result of the success of the sixth annual Movie Xmas Basket Parties held at neighborhood theatres. This marks a new high in the generosity for the film patrons attending the special shows arranged and contributed by the film industry. Last year the canned goods and nonperishable food-stuffs totaled 32,000 baskets.

Encouraged by the increase of more than 8,000 baskets, the Movie Christmas Basket Parties committee, headed by Morris G. Leonard and Jack Kirsch, has already set 50,000 as next year's goal. Distribution of the food, as in previous years, was made by local relief and church societies, and the Federated Women's Clubs under the supervision of Mrs. Richard McClure.

MILWAUKEE

THOMAS J. Daly and Miss Jeanette Johnson, manager and cashier, respectively, of Fox's Uptown in Racine, failed to identify two local youths as the bandits who held up the Racine house December 22.

Truman Schroeder, formerly assistant manager of the Brin in Menasha, has been stationed at Janesville temporarily.

The Rivoli at La Crosse was host to children of St. Michaels orphanage at a showing of "Little Nellie Kelly."

Henry J. Weinberger, projectionist at the Rex in Sheboygan, was married last week to Miss Emily Kunstman.

Droll Theatre Supply Co., Chicago, has been licensed to do business in Wisconsin, with Oscar Olson listed as the Wisconsin agent for the firm.

Otto Meister, operator of the Whitehouse here, has been confined to his home with neuritis.

Latest in theatre giveaways is a new fur coat, being offered by the Crescent at Shawano.

William Exton has inaugurated a new policy of three changes each week at his Roosevelt in Kenosha and a price policy of 15 cents until 7 p. m. each evening except Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

How to operate motion picture theatres profitably

"Slot" Films Have Their Troubles

Minneapolis—Dime-in-the-slot films are having plenty of trouble here, and more impends.

Following a demand by the booth operators that one standby operator be employed for every machine, the slot machine films are few and far between. It is known several establishments where they were placed had them taken out after representatives of the booth operators' union made their demands. What's more, pressure now is being brought by Northwest Allied on the city council for the enactment of legislation which would require establishments having the machines to take out theatre licenses at a cost of $100 per year.

If the aldermen balk at the $100 fee, independent exhibitors probably would be satisfied with a somewhat smaller one. However, they have indicated, they will make a hard fight for some sort of a license fee.

N. W. Allied Sets Convention Dates

MINNEAPOLIS—Tuesday and Wednesday, January 21 and 22, have been set by Northwest Allied for its mid-winter convention here to study and analyze the consent decree and to consider proposed legislation for introduction in the state legislature to abrogate and nullify the decree's five-picture buying provisions and other "undesirable" features.

The independent exhibitors also will map out plans to combat proposed adverse theatre legislation and to obtain the enactment of measures to curb 16mm film competition and new theatre construction and to knock out the Ascap tax, if possible. Among the proposals that will come before the Minnesota state legislature are a state theatre admission tax and the prohibition of theatre giveaways.

Considerable time at the convention will be devoted to the discussion of ways and means to stimulate patronage, according to Fred Strom, executive secretary. Many of the body's leaders feel an increase in theatre attendance is still a major problem and might afford the cure to many of Northwest exhibitors' ills, he says.

Attention also will be given to present film buying problems, "particularly the demands of some distributors for what Allied officers term excessive and unreasonable percentage demands," says Strom.

Abe A. Kaplan, prominent Twin City circuit operator, has been appointed by President E. L. Peaslee as convention chairman with full authority to conscript any privates whom he desires to serve on his committee.

To Warner Staff

MINNEAPOLIS—Bill Watmough, former Grand National branch manager and M-G-M booker here, has joined the Warner booking staff. Joe Behan, head booker at that exchange, has resigned.

Urge Rental Readjustment In Shift of Population

Threaten Dime Shows As Loop Units War

MINNEAPOLIS—While stage show war is going on in the loop as a result of reopening the 4,000-seat Minnesota by independent interests, neighborhood houses are threatening to lower their admission prices to a dime.

A bargain scale of 28 and 39 cents has been established by the Minnesota for its stage shows and independent feature pictures and shorts. The first show had Ken Murray and Dixie Dunbar as headliners and Lou Holtz, Arlene Judge, Wendy Barrie and Lola Lane in person are topping current bill. The big "Marcus Show" follows.

Orpheum had Gertrude Niesen, Ada Leonard and Frank Gaby among its stage array, plus "Go West" on the screen, against Minnesota's Ken Murray. At the Orpheum Cab Calloway will oppose the 'Marcus Show." Then the Orpheum brings in Joe Venuti's band, the Andrews Sisters and "The Three Stooges" on one show. It runs major "A" pictures with its stage shows, but charges 39 and 55 cents.

Independent neighborhood exhibitors claim many of their patrons are being attracted away from them to the loop by the stage magnets and entertainment bargains, and they feel their 28 cent admission scale is out of line.

Northwest Agricultural Income Upped in 1940

MINNEAPOLIS—The film industry here is much encouraged by figures just published by the Greater North Dakota Ass'n, in its annual report, showing that North Dakota's agricultural income for 1940, aggregating $235,000,000, was the highest in 11 years.

As other factors forecasting still further improvement in years ahead, the association listed establishment of new industries, new developments in irrigation and lignite coal, active prospecting for oil and natural gas, increased tourist traffic, new cash crops, better tax payments and reduced farm debts.

Increased income and boosted purchasing power mean better boxoffice returns for North Dakota theatres, exchange heads here point out. The state's 1940 farm income was 36 per cent above the $173,000,000 average for the five previous years. Moreover, number of cattle on North Dakota farms increased last year from 1,337,000 to 1,433,000 and sheep and lambs 915,000 to 960,000.

Minnesota and South Dakota, serviced by Minneapolis film exchanges, also showed as big, if not bigger gains, in 1940, and western Wisconsin, part of this territory, too, is said to be improving by leaps and bounds.

MINNEAPOLIS—Independents want major distributors to investigate the shift of population away from this territory due to the letting of defense contracts and increased employment elsewhere and government's military training program and the effect upon Northwest exhibitors.

If the distributors will do this they will realize the necessity of more equitable film rental terms for exhibitors in this territory, according to Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary.

Because of the population shift, the situation is extremely grave for Northwest theatre owners, Strom declares.

"If this situation becomes more aggravated, it will not be a matter of lower rentals on new film deals, but definitely a necessity to make downward adjustments on contracts already signed if many theatres are to continue to remain open," he avers.

Has Alternate Plan

One way, however, that distributors could prevent possible mid-winter shutdowns of theatres or wholesale contract adjustments, Strom points out, would be to extend to exhibitors "equitable terms and playing arrangements" on the bigger pictures, "thus enabling the exhibitor to recover some of the losses sustained during the showing of poor product."

It is declared that there is a veritable exodus from this section of the country.

"Thousands of men, women and children, all potential customers of our exhibitors, are leaving the non-industrial centers and rural and farming areas of the territory for sections benefiting to a much greater degree from national defense contracts, as well as sections in which army camps are being located, according to our survey," asserts Strom.

Industrial Centers Feel Effects

"Even the industrial centers of the territory, where no benefits are being derived from war contracts, are feeling the effects of the exodus of young men from civil life into the service and others treking to more likely job-hunting grounds. Distributors, fully aware of the shift in population, already are boosting rentals sky-high in areas profiting from this shift. The necessary realignment of charts on which rentals are based and adjustments of present contracts and playing terms would not reduce annual average income of distributors."

Strom calls attention to the fact that "every major film company, with one exception (20th-Fox), showed improved earnings during the past year, despite loss of much of the foreign business, while the independent exhibitors' earnings have been virtually wiped out in the same period." This "just doesn't make sense—one industry branch improving its financial position all along the line, while another branch, the independent exhibitors in the Northwest, is, for the most part, facing financial ruin," according to Strom.

Omahans Defy Weather For Sterling Film Fare

OMAHA—Despite unfavorable weather, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day business here was much above average due largely to good product well sold in advance. First days of 1941 were cold and rainy at the start of a cold wave.

Orpheum was well satisfied with $16,300 for stage-screen combination. Cab Calloway's revue on the stage and "One Night in the Tropics" on screen were good for sell-out $3,000 at New Year's Eve show at $1 per person. Rest of week prices were tilted to 55-cent top.

"Love Thy Neighbor" and "Youth Will Be Served" dual at Omaha also very good. Preview New Year's Eve at 55 cents with regular run starting next day at regular prices.

"Kitty Foyle" and "Saint in Palm Springs" were doubled at the Brandeis for exceptional week, including a New Year's Eve show at 55-cent top. Bill will be held a second week.

Minneapolis Loop Houses Get Off to a Good Start

MINNEAPOLIS—The New Year has started out encouragingly for loop boxoffices. In particular, "Comrade X," at the State, and the Minnesota, with "Hit Parade of 1941" and a big stage show, have been doing sensational business. "Comrade X," after running eight days and New Year's Eve at the State, moves to the Century for an extension of its downtown first-run.

: "Smoothies" Too Rough :

DES MOINES—The Des Moines Tribune wants its film smoothies smoother. It thinks films should be wised up on the facts of life.

The picture villain may have shaved the handlebar mustache off his upper lip, but it still adorns his manner and carriage far too obviously, according to a recent Tribune editorial.

Observes the disillusioned editorial writer:

"LESS OBVIOUS VILLAINS"

"A New York movie reviewer, who used to rail a good deal against people who thought the movies should be strained down so they wouldn't hurt children, finds his attitude changed somewhat now that he has an 8-year-old daughter.

"His old 'Let them stay away' argument turns out to be impractical without 'a barred castle, surrounding by electrically charged barbed wire, and kept by a corps of trusted child specialists.'

"But he still doesn't like the standards of 'wholesomeness' that most reformers advocate.

"The conventional 'wholesome' movie has virtue triumphing over heavy odds, against villains that the dullest child in the house can spot for what they are on first appearance.

"In the real life for which the children are being prepared, black and white are more mixed, and the successful villains are plausible chaps who are not always found out until it is too late.

"Hence a REALLY 'wholesome' show would cast people like Clark Gable, Mickey Rooney, Errol Flynn and Don Ameche as the villains and let Rathbone, Karloff and Lugosi take a turn as heroes occasionally.

"How about it, Hollywood?"

Producers Releasing Corp. Is Formed in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—Producers Releasing Corp. has been formed here, with offices at 1820 Wyandotte, by John Muchmore, W. Lee Norris, R. H. Patt and William Pincus. Muchmore and Patt have the Holmes Projector Sales Co. at the same address, and will continue with it independently. Norris has been operating the Norris Distributing Co. with independent product, and William Pincus has been operating the Royal Film Exchange. Norris and Muchmore will do the selling. The corporation has 12 pictures for release, with 38 for the year.

Urge "Fireside Chats" For Monday Nights

MINNEAPOLIS—If President F. D. Roosevelt heeds the pleas of local independent exhibitors, he'll give his fireside radio talks on Monday nights, instead of Sundays. A petition asking for this change is now in circulation among theatre owners here.

The petition will point out that Sunday night usually is one of the week's best for theatres and the fireside talks cut heavily into patronage, thus depriving the government of considerable tax revenue.

On the other hand, too, it's stated, the President probably would reach even more listeners on Monday nights, because most people are accustomed, apparently, to remain at home on that evening. There is considerable theatre attendance and churchgoing on Sunday nights even when the President talks, the exhibitors point out.

There is no more powerful opposition, however, than the President's radio talks, according to the exhibitors.

Metro Again Sets Percentage Deals

MINNEAPOLIS—M-G-M again is said to be the only company which is demanding and getting percentage deals from Twin City independents. Four of the pictures on the 1940-41 contract call for percentage.

Prior to the start of each selling Northwest Allied, representing the Minneapolis and St. Paul independents, take a stand against percentage and insist that no exception will be made in the case of M-G-M and just as regularly its members yield. This year, if anything, the organization was more firm than ever before in its demand that M-G-M sell flat.

In explanation of the fact that the members now have, or are, buying M-G-M on the latter's percentage terms, it is stated that the present fight wasn't started soon enough this year, but that "it will be different in 1941." In other years, too, it is explained, the effort to knock out M-G-M percentage pictures began too late.

The current Northwest Allied bulletin gives the organization's analysis of buying, based on its survey. It says:

"Early returns from our product survey indicate that RKO, Columbia and Universal are still leading in volume of contracts negotiated. The standing in volume of sales is due to the fact that these companies have made deals for less, or the same money, as the previous season in approximately 50 per cent of their deals. The sales of the four remaining major companies have bogged down considerably, due principally to exhibitor resistance against the terms which are being demanded. Monogram and Republic are making a satisfactory showing."

Selling policies of the various companies in the territory are said to have been as follows:

Paramount

"Paramount continues to sell the majority of their deals on all-flat basis. This company has a strict tendency toward insisting upon the sales of their shorts and newsreels, but where exhibitor resistance is sufficiently strong a contract can be negotiated without any, or at least a very limited, quota of shorts and newsreels.

RKO Radio

"RKO Radio is selling the majority of its accounts on a flat basis. Many deals were selective and RKO has not applied severe pressure to obtain contracts on shorts or newsreels. Its willingness to grant 10 or 20 per cent cancellation privileges and to sell at the same terms, or less, than those which obtained last season, accounts for its lead in the volume of sales obtained.

Warner Bros.

"Vitagraph, in most instances, insisted upon percentage deals until December of last year. It is deviating from that policy for 1940-41 and will negotiate all flat rental contracts. However, the flat rental terms are determined by the boxoffice figures which it obtained on percentage pictures from exhibitors last year.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

"Metro is selling a minimum of four pictures on percentage. Although some of the more ambitious sales representatives of this company are demanding, and even insisting upon, percentage for their second group of 10 pictures, the company positively is approving deals in which there are only four on percentage. In fact, our survey reveals that the majority of exhibitors are buying the second group flat.

20th Century-Fox

"Twentieth-Fox has sold mostly flat deals. It grants cancellation varying from 10 to 20 per cent. In many instances, it has sold selective contracts. Where percentage was sold, it usually was without a guarantee or preferred playing time.

Universal

"Universal generally has sold flat and given a cancellation privilege of from 10 to 20 per cent. It does not force shorts in the majority of cases.

United Artists

"United Artists has no set sales policy. It is offering 22 or more pictures with a very wide variation in the sorts of deals sold. Usually the pictures are sold flat.

Republic, Monogram

"Republic and Monogram, with the exception of competitive spots, has sold exhibitors on favorable terms. Some exhibitors have made spot-booking arrangements with these companies.

Columbia

"Columbia—As is the case with Monogram and Republic, exhibitors have bought Columbia at practically their own terms. The majority of deals have been flat. It has sold selective contracts or granted a large cancellation privilege. The nature of the very few percentage deals does not warrant comment."

Screenings Aplenty Seen Under Decree

KANSAS CITY—About twice a week, in the future, exhibitors can expect to be offered a full day's program of features for inspection, according to the terms of the consent decree. After sitting through one feature in the morning, two in the afternoon, and two in the evening (if he gets that far), the exhibitor will begin to realize what the average patron has been going through with double, triple and quadruple bills, one film man commented here last week.

Exhibitors are shaking their heads over the prospect. There is little talk about the arbitration feature of the decree; a good deal about the blocks-of-five. Exhibitors already are admitting that they don't believe they'll look at all the pictures. Further, they point out, under the decree the exhibitor isn't going to be any surer about the marketability of the product than he was before, because "you can't tell by looking at them."

Exhibitor: Will I have to look at all those pictures?

Distributor: No, but we'll have to screen them so you can see them if you want to.

Exhibitor: Well, I can tell you right now, I'm not going to look at them!

Distributor 2: It's going to cost $450,000 for arbitration the first year. Arbitration is supposed to be a substitute for going to court.

Exhibitor 2: You can buy an awful lot of litigation for $450,000 a year!

Which moved one observer to comment that apparently it isn't the fighting within the industry that exhibitors mind, but the cost of it.

Omaha Barkers Swing Into Active Season

OMAHA—The winter social season for Omaha Variety Club is now in full swing and indications point to a lot of "good times" at the club's layout in the Fontenelle Hotel.

The grand inaugural ball and dinner-dance will be held January 19, in the Fontenelle ballroom, starting at 8 p. m. Tickets for the dinner and dance will be $2.50 per person.

Gene Blazer, attorney connected with the film industry, will have open house at his new home in West Omaha on February 2 for all Variety Club members and their friends. The advance notices promise to tell everyone "how a bachelor lives."

An old-fashioned Valentine box social will be held February 16 in the clubrooms. Each lady will bring a box containing food for two and the boxes will be auctioned to the highest bidders. There will be a grand award for the most outstanding box.

Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, in town . . . Al Putz, M-G-M office manager, has a hobby. It's carpentering and wood carving. Accommodatingly, he made numerous articles of furniture for the girl employes charm room in the exchange. To show their appreciation, the femmes gave him a friend chicken luncheon and presented him with a mitre box for his workshop. He was the only male present at the affair. Lucky Al.

Ernie Hill, Bill Grant and Earle Perkins of the local Warner office, fifth, sixth and seventh, respectively, nationally, the first week of the Sears 20th anniversary sales drive . . . "Shim" Chapman, Columbia salesman in Milwaukee, here after a Florida vacation to visit his brother, "Hy," head of the Columbia exchange here . . . A. Selby Carr, Paramount office manager, avers that his company's colored cartoon comedy, "Raggedy Ann," is one of the finest things of its kind that he ever has seen.

The "little judge" Ben Meshbesher, Republic salesman, driving a new car. Says he can thank Gene Autry . . . Ben Landy, Columbia booker, who has been complaining because, for a certain reason, he had to change his brand of cigars, is going great guns in the Y. M. C. A. handball tournament . . . Morgan Ames, Mort H. Singer's general manager, a visitor . . . Tom Burke, Monogram branch manager in Des Moines, here on a brief vacation, looking the home town over again.

Charlie Jackson, Warner salesman, and the wife went through the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., for a complete physical checkup. The clinic pronounced both of them 100 per cent sound . . . Amy Podvin and Mary Kuth of the M-G-M office staff off to Chicago for a week's vacation . . . RKO exchange flashily decorated for the Ned Depinet drive which starts January 25. Its "Kitty Foyle," highly acclaimed, goes into the State here December 17.

Bill Scholl, RKO exploiteer, claims he's "all through" romancing . . . The father-in-law of Joe Wolf, Paramount city salesman, passed away here . . . Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Mrs. George Johnson, Colfax, Wis.; W. J. Carter, Plainview, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis.; Sheldon Grengs, Clouquet, Minn.; J. S. Johnson, Galesville, Wis., and Joe and Mrs. Schindle, Granite Falls, Minn. . . . Plenty of Hollywood celebrities in town this week, including Lou Holtz, Wendy Barrie, Lola Lane and Arline Judge. They're playing a personal appearance engagement at the Minnesota Theatre. The Orpheum has the Andrews Sisters and the "Three Stooges" on the way.

Leo Adler, United Artists home-office traveling auditor, in town . . . Plenty of Filmrow bunch in the south vacationing. They include Gilbert Nathanson, Republic branch manager; George Fosdick, Republic salesman; Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, and Jack Cohan, 20th-Fox salesman. Two who returned this week are Ben Blotcky, Paramount branch manager, from Florida, and L. E. Goldhammer, RKO district manager, from California.

OMAHA—Apparently the Omaha correspondent for BOXOFFICE has a direct wire to all parts of the globe (including the North Pole), or a good crystal ball or something. Recently the Omaha column was in the form of a letter to Santa Claus asking for gifts for the various exhibitors and filmites. The letter tried to make the gifts appropriate in keeping with the exhibitors' hobbies. Here's the result:

"Dear Friend Monte Davis: Just a short note to tell you that you are a mind reader, or you have a direct pull with the man that is called Santa Claus.

"Some few weeks ago I read that L. E. Burkey of the Ritz Theatre, Deshler, Neb., wanted a rod and reel as his gift from Santa Claus. I still think you have strings that can be pulled. This is to notify you that the Old Boy brought the rod and reel.

"Thanks to you and pass the good word on to old St. Nick that the gift was more than wanted and I'm more than thankful." Signed—L. E. Burkey.

Discards Role of Critic In Picking "Ten Best"

OMAHA—Keith Wilson, Omaha World-Herald film critic, selected his ten best pictures of 1940 "just because he liked them" and not from a critic's viewpoint, he told BOXOFFICE.

They are: "Rebecca" (UA), "Gone With the Wind" (M-G-M), "Grapes of Wrath" (20th-Fox), "I Love You Again" (M-G-M), "The Great McGinty" (Para't), "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" (RKO), "Susan and God" (M-G-M), "Our Town" (UA), "Spring Parade" (Univ), and "Angels Over Broadway" (Col).

Team Mowbray and MacBride

HOLLYWOOD—Alan Mowbray and Donald MacBride have been signed by RKO to appear as a team in four pictures yearly.

Set Final Plans for 'Miss Bishop' Debut

LINCOLN—Premiere of "Cheers for Miss Bishop" gets under way Monday, January 13, when Authoress Bess Streeter Aldrich and Director Tay Garnett lead the procession of personalities into Lincoln. Mrs. Aldrich will have a session of autographing books, and Garnett will lecture on "How to Make a Movie" at the University of Nebraska.

They will be honored at a dinner that evening at the Capitol Hotel. The next morning about 8:30 o'clock, the Hollywood train gets in with a dozen players led by William Gargan, Marsha Hunt and Mary Anderson, of the film's cast.

There will be a public reception at the University coliseum, a luncheon at the chamber of commerce, a tea at the Cornhusker Hotel, a banquet in the evening, and the premiere with personal appearances at three theatres. Gabe Yorke and Bernie Evens, publicists, have been on the job here four weeks.

Friedl and Friedman To Defense Council

MINNEAPOLIS—John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. president, and Ben Friedman, prominent independent circuit owner, have been appointed to represent the motion picture industry here on the national defense council.

DES MOINES

STAN and Marguerite Mayer's flag-waving Christmas greeting which awaited us when we got back home was right in tune with our God-Bless-America-We're-Proud-to-Be-Americans' attitude now that we've seen Mexico . . . we're in the market for the biggest flag we can afford to buy . . . we faithfully promise to pledge allegiance every morning and are instructing Mitzi, who insists on saying grace at the dinner table, to include the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave in family devotions . . . in other words, we're so glad to be home.

On our way back to DM, we stopped in at the home of BOXOFFICE in Kaycee and met Boss Ben Shlyen (blond, spry, serious-minded sort of gent with a nice twinkle in his eye, and a definite purpose in life); Editor Formby (alert, straightforward, and what was most surprising to us, not at-jay!); Moneybags Morris Schlozman (just as human as you and I, and honest he didn't say a word about finances all the time we were there!) We were introduced to the entire staff, including the nice boy who along with us probably knows more about The Hague's significance in international affairs than Haig's importance to the liquor market (he read and failed to correct our Hague & Hague to Haig & Haig—maybe we both need a lesson from Mitzi who calls the famous pinch-bottle simply, "a snort").

Stopped up at Tri-States a minute and found Harry Holdsberg fretting about the snow . . . Hazel Dunn was doing her stenoing chores like a good girl . . . Art Stolte was dreaming about fishing days to come, and promised us again that he'd show us those color pictures he's taken of his past triumphs over the finny tribe . . . We saw one of our unmentionables in the hall . . . talked with DD long enough to find out that she and family had one fine time in the Dakotas . . . now DD is having one fine time finding room for herself in her office atop all the newspapers and tear sheets thoughtfully and lovingly saved for her by Stolte, Holdsberg and Dunn . . . G. Ralph Branton was getting ready to leave for NY . . . and this reminds us, Nancy's pic was in the Sunday R&T again . . . we think the sheet oughta put the young pretttiful on the payroll.

Exploitation men crossed paths in Des Moines, Monday, but not at the R&T . . . Dapper, air-minded Jack Thoma was around to push "Arizona" a little harder for Columbia . . . Discovering & Co. was burrowing through stacks of vacation-accumulated Hollywood stills and in no mood for more, Jack concentrated, to his sorrow, on Emil Franke . . . Thoma should have known that Emil was an expert on the pin-ball machine right next door.

Louis Hellborn took Chuck Lounsbury's word that BOXOFFICE & Co. were still south of the blizzard zone . . . Chuck discovered later in the day, when he collected the hellos sent by Friedel and Gilmour from Santa Fe, that he's given the Metro celery shipper a bum steer . . . A Sunday condensation of the Morley book in the R&T mag section helped Franke make a debutante out of RKO's white collar gal, "Kitty Foyle" . . . Her boxoffice ranking at the Orpheum currently is second only to "Follow the Fleet," house record-holder, and she's reported to be getting kicked out after nine days only because of the pressure of upcoming film.

EDDIE DUNN—skywriting: Things I never knew until I took up flying (with apologies to W. W.):

That a mile square airport looks like a postage stamp when you try to land the first time . . . That a seven or eight hundred pound plane could bounce so high . . . That after a very bad session, the plane will leer at you . . . That there must be at least 100 air traffic rules to haunt you . . . That a Civil Airway becomes very "uncivil" when a 25-mile-an-hour wind starts blowing . . . That anything could be so lonely as that first solo hop . . . That it is more convenient to eat after flying in rough weather. It saves the extra meal and the appearance of the ship . . . That you don't have to be a millionaire to fly, but it sure would help!

BILL BECKLEY, crawling with type lice, scratches: I used to be in the publishing business myself, down in St. Louis—but it was in the advertising end. Then they built the Orpheum a few blocks away from the Post-Dispatch and I started hanging around there. First thing I knew, I was in show business.

STAN MAYER gets around in spite of his size . . . These observations of his prove it:

Audubon, Iowa—The very beautiful and unusually attractive canopy of Floyd Thompson's Rose Theatre.

Osage—The "Burgomeister Pipe" hanging on the wall of Ed Mason's office that he so emphatically states makes his ears flap when he smokes it.

Charles City—Debonair Jack Kuech—the fashion plate of Iowa exhibitors and such a perfect host and hustling showman.

Hampton—The very attractive and comfortable "Nautical" Cottage of the Peterson's at Bead Lake—where all the film men are so anxious to put up for the night, and for good reasons. Three good reasons are Walt Peter's three "little bundles of joy," Sue, Sally and Sandra, and another showman in the family, "Charles" Rule.

Fairfield—The famous recreation room of Lou Gaines—without a doubt he is the Exhibitor Ping Pong Champion of Iowa. Anyway, I will bet my money on him.

Corning—The genial smile and pleasant visit we always enjoy with Lawrence Kuhl.

Washington—Pratt Brothers have one of the few towns that have proven conclusively that we are still in the show business and that it can be operated successfully without giveaways, premiums, banknights, cut-rate tickets, etc.

Bedford—The famous fudge that Mrs. Hahn so capably makes—for which all Filmrow is so grateful—especially around Christmas time (this is no hint).

Laurels—How we miss that big broad smile and wit of Jim Fair.

Eldora—The Home Office of "The Allied Theatre Owners of Iowa" . . . and the perfectly appointed and operated theatre of Leo Wolcott.

Maquoketa—That fireplug out in front of the theatre I always want to park in front of—hoping that Stuart Peake is still Mayor.

Iowa City—One of the few exhibitors left that really goes to town with some real old fashioned and effective showmanship that is no doubt inherited from Thomas sr., who is noted for his outstanding ability.

Muscatine—Another old-timer who can easily go back to the good old days and who maintains and operates his theatre as a sight for sore eyes.

Bloomfield—To hear the real out-door tales of a master hunter and fisherman who knows what it is all about and, incidently, does a great job of providing fine entertainment for his community.

Guthrie Center—The miracle that was brought about by a fire—with the erection of the new Garden Theatre which is certainly a source of great pride to Allen and Son and the community.

Stuart—Lee Henry and his inexhaustible supply of "first run" stories (where I get most of mine) which reminds me of the one about the traveling salesman . . .

DES MOINES—There oughta be a law! Yes and mebbe even a senate investigation!

Things have come to a pretty pass on Filmrow here when gal gets hugs on the job that challenge those she gets at home.

If you don't think so, ask Mr. Begley, the guy who not too long ago put a ring on the finger of Paramount's Mildred Johnson and ruled the domestic roost.

That was before Big Boy came along!

Big Boy is the 650-pound tame grizzly bear that appeared in "Untamed." He was in town recently and strolled over to the Paramount exchange to inquire into the reception of his film efforts in Iowa.

Big Boy climbed the stairs there and waddled, unattended, into Manager Ray Copeland's office. He scared Ray out of 19 years' growth here and clear down to Kansas City. You've probably read about the transfer.

Big Boy was feeling romantic and offered to demonstrate a bear hug. Mildred volunteered to cooperate but thwarted gossip-mongers by performing out in front of the exchange where all the world might watch.

So Husband Begley is boasting these days.

"It takes a good man to beat a 650-pound hug."

Teamed on Cohan Play

HOLLYWOOD—Don Ettingler and Edwin Blum are scripting "Song and Dance Man," from the George M. Cohan play, for 20th-Fox.

cluding the very latest bulletin from the bedside of the red-headed Throckmorton:

That counter Butch De Frenne is building in the basement of his new home—with assistance of Larry Hensler as advisor (whose advice he ignores) can be identified as soon as the brass rail is installed.

SY HARLAN mixes business and pleasure in unequal parts thusly: To me belongs all the credit for picking the first white woman ever employed by Iowa Film . . . Yeah, I know it's not considered good manners, and certainly it's unconventional in the film racket, but I still prefer brunettes. Sure, business is darn good . . . Iles & McKinney appreciate the Filmrower business they get at the Old Colony Service. Say, have you heard that Les Knapp is buying silverware . . . d'ya s'pose that means anything?

EMIL FRANKE thinks patrons are as entertaining as the programs they pay him to see and Emil's not slandering his own programs. Observes Emil:

Chap about 9 came ranting out of the Orpheum balcony and demanded to know whether the show was the same in the balcony as on the main floor. He had seen both features, but no Donald Duck, which was his reason for coming. Fact was, he had entered just at the conclusion of Donald Duck and couldn't wait a minute longer for the next showing.

As an elderly gentleman patron asked Bob Lester, chief of service, where the Orpheum drinking fountain was, his upper plate fell to the floor. Bob, believing in service, picked it up and handed it to the gent, who then proceeded to the fountain, carefully washed his plate, and placed it where it belonged.

William Scholl, RKO exploiteer, enjoys his beans at Thompson's, then gets tomato soup at Harkert's . . . Orpheum patron and camera fan presented theatre with a framed night shot of theatre front, all done up in color.

BOB HILDRETH signs on with an appeasement policy: You'll have to call it Filmrow (as in now) instead of Filmrow (as in go) if Nate Sandler and his gang keep on arguing about five block booking plan on street corners.

His "Oscar" Ready

MINNEAPOLIS—In his column in the Times-Tribune, Merle Potter, film editor, this week stated that he already has selected his candidate for the best male performance of 1941. It's Billy Gilbert for what he does in "Tin Pan Alley," says Potter.

On His Own

MINNEAPOLIS—Arnold Dobrin has resigned from the 20th-Fox accessory department to engage in business for himself. He will open a gasoline service station on Plymouth and Morgan Aves. north here. He is succeeded at 20th-Fox by "Chuck" Mercereau who comes from Columbia.

LINCOLN

WAS Gabe Yorke surprised: When out touring with chamber of commerce committeemen on ballyhooing mission for the premiere of "Cheers for Miss Bishop," he stopped in Grand Island when he was introduced to Harry Schiller. "Gad," said Gabe a little later, "when I turned to shake hands with him, I thought it was Frank Morgan."

Test Case: William Youngclaus of the Island in Grand Island, Neb., was in court again last week, but the test was not against the film bigwigs as has been his usual court missions. Seems he had a cashier, Ruby Knapp Cresswell, who quit and got married, then tried to collect unemployment benefits. Judge ruled in Youngclaus' favor, that an employe who takes such action voluntarily, is not entitled to such compensation.

Wedding Bells: That wedding of Gene Shanahan's will come about February 1, and the bride to be is Elizabeth Hanson. He's the manager of the Nebraska Theatre . . . Laugh: Everybody in Lincoln advertised exclusive and scoop pictures on the Rose Bowl game, yet everybody had them about the same time.

Somebody's missing a bet: Why don't theatre operators take advantage of this BMI-Ascap squabble. Tone of conversation about music at the present time is that it's so lousy, radios are being turned off wholesale. Showmen, who have had radio operating at their expense in the past, should not miss this opportunity to step out and tell the neighbors the place to be entertained is more than ever the theatre, because the radio has hit a new low with a jillion arrangements of "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair." Since theatres are still doing business with Ascap, latter might help with the campaign.

Must be love: Bernie Evens, the UA exploiteer from St. Louis, was tied up here so long plugging "Cheers for Miss Bishop," he couldn't stand the loneliness. So, he called up his frau and she came up to stay out the last 10 days with him . . . Press: Lincoln, for that preem, will probably have as guest newspapermen, such gents as Merle Potter of Minneapolis; Jake Rachman and Keith Wilson, Omaha; Bob Locke, Kansas City Journal, and others.

Missed: Jeanne Mitchell, that girl who calls people up and warns about Metro screenings in Omaha, is still hospitalized . . . Stock excuse: Everytime Charlie Lieb wants to get away from somebody, he has a traditional excuse. He claims he just must go home and feed the baby. Charlie!

Sick man: M. E. Lofgren, in York, has been flirting with pneumonia, flu, or some other germal affliction. The doctor says nothing would revive him like a good box-office report, but he's been afraid to show him any of the daily till-tallies lately for fear of a relapse.

Bowler: Don Monroe, who went to the Tournament of Roses, did not come back the regulation route. He took a return ticket which would bring him back to Lincoln via all the California tracks. He had to recoup from the "Nebraska and seven points" bets.

Some deal: Bob Livingston tried to buy "Boom Town" second run for $400 flat, but Harry Shumow wouldn't hear. Bob took it pct., but it ran so good, he wanted to hold over. He wired Shumow: "Will pay you $600 flat, or pull the picture. Business too good."

"Motion PROmotion" Is Jerrel's New Booklet

DES MOINES—"Motion PROmotion" is the title of Burton B. Jerrel's new booklet designed to sell business firms on increased use of their own industrial sound motion pictures.

Insertion of television methods into salesmanship by the use of film is the theme. Quotes from film advertisers, newspapers, theatre men, and, yes—BOXOFFICE—praising various Jerrel productions, provide the clincher on the argument.

Beckley to Phoenix With Wife for Her Health

DES MOINES—Bill Beckley, veteran manager of the Strand, leading second run house of the Tri-States circuit here, is scheduled to leave for Phoenix, Ariz., where he plans to continue in the theatre business. Mrs. Beckley's health is responsible for the shift.

Warner's Set Bellamy

HOLLYWOOD—Warner Bros. has signed Ralph Bellamy for a top line in "Affectionately Yours."

Occasional Flesh for Two in Des Moines

DES MOINES—Two local theatres, the Paramount and the Orpheum, are opening 1941 with a return to periodic use of "live talent" to augment film programs.

The Paramount started the return to stage shows Friday with Cab Calloway and his group of entertainers on the bill. G. Ralph Branton, general manager for Tri-States Theatres Corp., left Tuesday for New York to arrange for future talent.

Emil Franke, manager of the Orpheum, expects to bring his first unit show to Des Moines, January 24. It will be "Screwballs of 1941," now being rehearsed in Chicago. After a brief tour, the show will return to Chicago to play at the State-Lake Theatre.

Both houses will increase prices 10 cents after 2 p. m. when stage shows are on the bill.

Son to Emory Scotts

CRESTON, IA.—Emory Scott, manager of the Uptown here for the Commonwealth circuit, is the father of a 9-pound, 6-ounce son born to his wife last week. The newcomer has been christened Roger Allan.

Lowe Is Building New Theatre at Lebanon

LEBANON, MO.—A new 500-seat theatre, modern from the ground up, is being constructed here by F. L. Lowe, who operates theatres at Lyons, Hays and Hoisington, Kas. With W. A. Snell, Lowe operates as the Star Theatre Co. The new theatre will be an ambitious one, and will be completed before spring.

Subs for Husband

LINCOLN—R. W. Huffman, city manager for the Lincoln Theatres Corp. (J. H. Cooper-Paramount), approved Mrs. Barney Oldfield to go on the theatre-sponsored KFOR radio broadcast, a spot formerly held by her husband, who now is in the army. The show takes off under Mrs. Oldfield, January 18. Airing is five minutes each night, 6:10-15.

Schools Eye Equipment

OMAHA—Public schools here are considering a suggestion to buy six projector and sound machines for educational purposes. Bids are to be taken by the board of education soon. Omaha has for several years used the services of a commercial operator who went to most of the 60 school buildings regularly with educational films.

Directs Loretta Young

HOLLYWOOD—Gregory Ratoff will direct "Tonight Is Ours," starring Loretta Young, for Paramount.

Hard on Fathers

MINNEAPOLIS—Don Guttmann, general manager of the Harry Dickerman circuit, was the subject of a lengthy paragraph in Cedric Adams' column in the Minneapolis Star-Journal recently. Said Adams, the Walter Winchell of this section:

"The Don Guttmanns were expecting a baby. Mrs. G. had been taken to Abbott Hospital to wait. Early the other morning Mr. G., unable to sleep at home, drove down to the hospital. Nothing had happened.

"The two of them sat there chatting. Don's eyelids started to droop. Suddenly he spotted a wheelchair out in the hall. An idea came.

"'Listen, honey,' he suggested to his wife. 'Don't you think it would be a good idea if you got in that wheelchair and rode around a little?'

"She agreed. Anything, you know, to help. So into the wheelchair she got and shoved herself off down the hospital corridor. That nice warm bed was too much for the drowsy Guttmann, so in he crawled. In 30 seconds he was snoring.

"Thirty minutes later Doc Lange, the attending physician, came into the room to find the wife still in the wheelchair, the husband still sound asleep in the bed. Expectancy is awfully hard on fathers."

A Musical by English

HOLLYWOOD—Richard English is preparing an untitled musical for Producer Jack Cummings at Metro.

Des Moines Up Notch; 55th Largest City

DES MOINES—Des Moines theatre business should have climbed a notch during the last 10 years. If it didn't, it isn't keeping pace with the city.

Census figures show that Des Moines, with a 12.1 per cent gain in population, now ranks 55th in size among the cities of the nation. In 1930, it was 56th.

Ted Davis Formally Opens New West in Parsons

PARSONS, KAS.—Ted Davis formally opened his new West Theatre here on Wednesday, with the event carrying over into the next day. It was an invitational affair, with a number of trade folk from Kansas City attending.

New Theatre Firm

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—The Ritz Theatre Corp. has been formed here to operate theatres and a theatrical booking agency. Stockholders and directors are Misses Dorothy Uhlinger, Arna Taylor and Gladys Christiansen, all employed as secretaries in the law office of Culver, Phillip, Kaufman and Smith. Immediate plans were not announced.

Modify Proposal to License Operators

CLEVELAND—Widespread opposition to certain provisions of an ordinance proposal to license all motion picture operators using film 16mm or greater film has led city officials to agree to an amendment exempting users of "safety" film. The amendment, to be introduced by Councilman Ray C. Miller, author of the original measure, will virtually eliminate all but professional theatre projection machine operators from licensing provisions.

William D. Guion, commissioner of buildings, at whose request the ordinance was submitted, agreed to the amendment after Fire Chief Warden Patrick E. Barrett pointed out that most film used outside the theatre is of the safety variety, hard to set afire and slow-burning if ignited.

The amendment to eliminate licensing operators of 16mm films will directly affect all amateur photographers and all schools, churches, hospitals, etc., which use 16mm film chiefly for educational purposes.

The ordinance would increase the present scale of operators' licenses from $10 to $25, with annual renewal fees from $1 to $10. Licenses for apprentices would be $5 with $1 yearly renewal fee.

A. Milo DeHaven to Add Two Theatre Properties

DETROIT—A. Milo De Haven, who resigned several months ago as manager of the Woodward Grand and Belmont theatres in Highland Park as well as promotion manager for the Sam Brown circuit, is planning to take over two additional theatres in Ohio. DeHaven now owns the Town at Whitehouse, Ohio, and will rename the other two spots the Town also.

Enters Not Guilty Plea To a Lottery Charge

MASSILLON, OHIO—I. H. Solomon, manager of the Lincoln Theatre here, pleaded not guilty to charges of selling tickets to a lottery when arraigned before Judge Robert G. Hoffman in municipal court. The charge was made in connection with a "Prosperity Club" award at the theatre. Judge Hoffman set a tentative date for the hearing later in the month. Solomon may request a jury trial until that time.

Declares "Dictator" Will Not Be Shown at Wilson

DETROIT—Plans for a roadshow engagement for "The Great Dictator" at the Wilson are definitely off, Moe Dudelson, UA manager, discloses to BOXOFFICE.

Dudelson said the picture will go into a local house in about a month at regular first run prices.

Braden Confers on Arbitration Setup

Cleveland—J. Noble Braden, executive secretary of the American Arbitration Ass'n, was in town last week conferring with chamber of commerce officials, regarding the local film arbitration setup in accordance with the consent decree.

It was learned a meeting of a representative group of Cleveland men was held at the chamber, and that Braden will choose the arbitration board and its clerks from among those present. However, no information as to personnel will be given out until later in the month.

Herrington to Allied Nat'l Board Again

PITTSBURGH—Fred J. Herrington, secretary of the AMPTO of W. Pa., has been designated again as the local exhibitor organization's representative on the national Allied board of directors. Fred A. Beedle is AMPTO's new president.

Herrington will attend the national Allied directors' meeting in Washington, January 27 and 28. Also arranging to attend this two-day session are Beedle, William R. Wheat jr., William and Harry Walker and M. A. Rosenberg, former local Allied president, who now is chairman of the unit's directors.

New Year's Shows Are Picketed in Detroit

DETROIT—Demands of the Building Service Employes International Union have resulted in pickets being sent to a number of theatres here, the first appearing for New Year's Eve shows at downtown houses of the United Detroit and Wisper & Wetsman circuits and the Adams. Ray Carroll, International representative, said the union's demands are for a $5 a day wage scale, an 8-hour working day, and a six-day week. He said that conditions vary from house to house at present, running $12 to $20 a week for a usual seven days, with men working 9 to 10 hours daily in most cases.

Business did not appear to be hurt by the picketing, particularly at the New Year's Eve show.

Goldberg Holds a PRC Meeting in Cincinnati

CLEVELAND—Lee Goldberg, PRC franchise owner, with headquarters here, last week held a meeting of his Indianapolis and Cincinnati sales organization in Cincinnati. Those present included Sam Abrams and Joe Bohn of Indianapolis and Nat Kaplan and Don Duff of Cincinnati. Goldberg arranged to move his bookkeeping department to Cleveland on January 15 when Miss Marcelle Binstein will come here temporarily to install the system currently in use, after which she will return to Cincinnati.

Discounts Ohio Need For Ticket Tax Hike

By B. O. TELLER

COLUMBUS—Much has been written elsewhere on the possibilities of the Ohio legislature increasing the three per cent excise tax on admissions. When the new legislature convened Monday such action seemed rather unnecessary to theatrical observers. All tax collections in 1940 were ahead of 1939, the state now having on hand a substantial surplus, leaving more than a reasonable doubt as to the need of any new taxation measures. Arguments, as presented by a meeting of city officials in Cleveland, that additional taxes are necessary for relief, are made questionable by the announcement by state officials that relief costs for 1941 will not exceed $16,000,000, as compared to $24,500,000 for 1940.

The only possible immediate need for increased tax revenues can be tied in with the fact that the federal administration may boost old age pensions while reducing direct relief. However, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce holds that reallocation of monies earmarked for other uses will be the only necessary action. If, on the other hand, new or upped taxes are found to be essential, it seems quite likely that big business will suffer—in all probability a heavy corporation levy being considered first.

As for the need to impose additional theatre taxes, there are several important angles to be considered. First, other taxes:

1. The federal tax has already been increased as a defense measure, with all indications pointing to a reduction on exemptions to include everything from the first penny.

2. Suit on the three per cent sales tax on film rentals will be settled before the year is out. And if the state can collect this levy, and it seems highly probable that it can, another tax is imposed on exhibitors.

Secondly, two new sources of revenue will be pointed out to the legislature:

1. Provision for taxes on the coin-operated motion picture "juke" boxes.

2. Action to define Bingo as an amusement, thus making it possible to tax the thousands of games conducted over the state.

Rowlands and Mulligan Get Title to Columbia

COLUMBUS—County recorder files disclose that the title to the Columbia Theatre has been given to Fred W. Rowlands and Norbert J. Mulligan by the Steelton Theatre Corp. At the same time, it became known that F. W. Rowlands, H. N. Bloss and A. D. Rowlands had leased the Main Theatre to the Main Theatre Corp. for a 10-year period beginning May 1, 1938, at a monthly rental of $2,000.

Al Lostetter to Wed

PITTSBURGH — Al Lostetter and Ruth Kurtz will be married on Tuesday. The bridegroom is the cashier at the New Universal exchange.

'GWTW' Collars Big Dough In Return to Cincinnati

CINCINNATI—"Gone With the Wind" collared the big dough here last week in a return engagement at popular prices, and was held over at the RKO Capitol. All seats were 50 cents until 5 p. m. when prices ranged from 55-65 cents with 25 cents for children at all times. "No, No, Nanette" drew a little better than average and stayed a week. "Here Comes the Navy" held for six extra days at the Lyric, making way for a return of "Philadelphia Story."

Business is slowly settling back to normalcy following an orgy of last-minute Xmas spending unequalled in local department store history. The weather continues unusually mild.

Cleveland's Downtowners Have Terrific New Year

CLEVELAND—With employment almost up to the 1929 level, business 16 per cent better than last year, and department stores taxed to the limit to meet the requirements of the buying public, holiday show business here was very gratifying. New Year's Eve crowds were terrific downtown with Loew's State reporting it played to 23,500 people in two days—Tuesday and Wednesday—chalking up the biggest New Year's business in four years. Other downtown houses duplicated this experience. Weather was ideal with temperature in the fifties.

Krug's "Ten Best"

PITTSBURGH—The Sun-Telegraph's film critic, Karl Krug, has selected his "10 best" pictures of 1940, as follows: "Angels Over Broadway," "The Grapes of Wrath," "Of Mice and Men," "The Great McGinty," "Gone With the Wind," "The Long Voyage Home," "The Biscuit Eater," "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," "Rebecca" and "Our Town."

225 at Testimonial For Burtus Bishop

PITTSBURGH—Two hundred and twenty-five friends of Burtus Bishop jr., said "goodbye and good luck" to the newly appointed midwestern district manager for M-G-M at a testimonial banquet in his honor in the William Penn Hotel, Monday evening. C. J. Latta was toastmaster, and M. N. Shapiro general chairman.

At the speakers' table were Harry Goldstein, Paramount district manager; Edgar Moss, 20th-Fox district manager; C. C. Kellenberg, Variety's new chief barker; Harry M. Kalmine, Warner circuit zone manager; John H. Harris, Harris Amusements, and local branch managers, Abe Weiner, UA; Peter Dana, Universal; James H. Alexander, Republic; Art Levy, Columbia; Herb Greenblatt, RKO, and Fred Beedle and M. A. Rosenberg of the AMPTO of W. Pa.

Also present were Mark Goldman, Monogram; Dave Kimelman, Paramount; Lew Lefton, Producers Releasing Corp., and George Elmo, Cleveland's Paramount manager. Also, Sabu, star of "The Thief of Bagdad," who happened to be in town.

Bryan D. "Buck" Stoner, former Cleveland sales representative for M-G-M, who succeeds Bishop as local branch manager, was introduced.

Bishop was presented with three fitted traveling cases. Also an oil painting of two dog heads, the work and gift of Milton Antonoplos, youngest son of the East Pittsburgh and Turtle Creek exhibitor.

Proceeds of the dinner, more than $500, will be given to the Variety charity fund.

"GWTW" Returns to Pitt For Popular Engagement

PITTSBURGH—"Gone With the Wind," which opens its return popular-priced engagement here January 17 in Loew's Penn, will be exhibited four times daily, Marty Burnett, manager, announces. Admission is 55 cents evenings and 40 cents matinees, tax included.

Metro will deliver all prints without any scene cuts, the running time remaining three hours and 45 minutes. Loew's Penn will be open at least 16 hours daily for the display of this attraction. "GWTW" opened its roadshow engagement here in the Warner January 26 of last year and enjoyed a run of ten weeks.

Billposters Re-Install Officers for 1941

DETROIT—Billposters Union, Local 94, last week re-installed their re-elected officers for 1941 including: John Carano, president; Roy Van Geison, vice-president; Michael Noch, business agent, and William F. Hines, secretary-treasurer. This will be his 35th year in office.

Newly-elected trustees are: Turner Perry, Elmer Solomon and Albert Halley.

Distributors' division of the Local held a two-day holiday party, December 27-28, at their regular meeting hall, with James Stewart as chairman of the committee for the affair. About 350 members and friends attended.

Big New Year's for Cleveland Houses

CLEVELAND—New Year's business at downtown and neighborhood first runs was good.

Everett Steinbuck, manager of Loew's State, showing "Comrade X," reports that theatre played to 23,500 people on Tuesday and Wednesday. This was the biggest New Year's business at the State in four years.

RKO Palace was sold out for its midnight New Year's Eve show with all seats reserved. Allen, also with a special midnight show, had big crowds and the Hippodrome, showing "Santa Fe Trail," was packed.

Night clubs and restaurants also reported their best business since the depression.

Big Turnout Is Expected For Stoner Testimonial

CLEVELAND—A record attendance is expected to attend the testimonial dinner to be held in honor of Bryan D. Stoner on January 13 at the Hollenden Hotel on the occasion of his promotion as M-G-M branch manager in Pittsburgh.

Jack Sogg is chairman of the committee on arrangements which consists of Charles Raymond, Nat Holt, P. E. Essick, J. D. Kalafat, Joe Minsky and E. H. Brauer.

S&F Circuit Quarters To Pittsburgh Filmrow

PITTSBURGH—The Shapiro and Fineman circuit is opening headquarters on Filmrow at 1723 Blvd. of the Allies, for several years the offices of Don D'Carlo, theatrical booker. M. N. Shapiro and Archie Fineman state that they will book only their own theatres.

Sabu in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—Sabu, star of "Elephant Boy" and "Drums," who also plays the title role in Alexander Korda's "Thief of Bagdad," was here Monday for guest appearances around town and at a department store for a special tieup. The United Artists picture opened Friday at Loew's Penn.

Object to Theatre

YOUNGSTOWN — Vigorous objections to constructing a theatre at Belmont and Francisca Avenues, unless ample provisions are made for parking, were voiced at a public hearing in city council here. A group of local business men are planning to build a modern theatre on the site to cost $100,000.

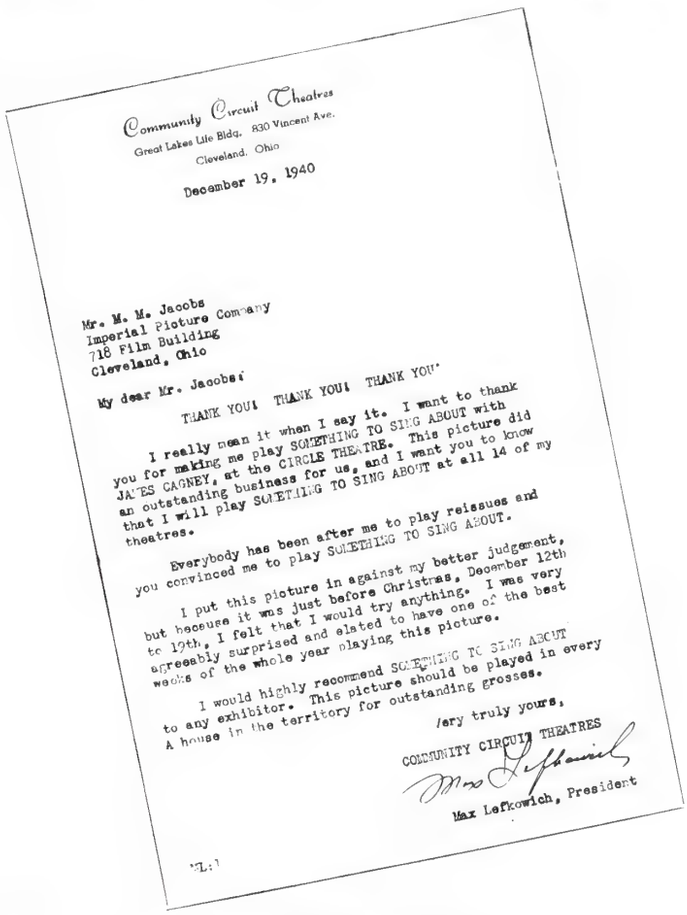
New Year's Dinner

CLEVELAND—Charles Raymond, Loew division manager, and his theatre staff celebrated the New Year with a dinner at the Statler Hotel. The guests consisted of 20 staff members and their wives.

Raymond Will Address Women's Federation

CLEVELAND—Charles Raymond, Loew division manager, will be guest speaker before the motion picture division of the Cleveland Federation of Women's Clubs on Friday, January 17. The meeting will be held in the Rainbow Room of the Statler.

This will be Raymond's first public appearance before any local group since coming to Cleveland from London where he was in charge of Loew theatres for seven years. His subject will be: "American Films in Europe and Africa." Mrs. W. J. MacLachlan, president, will introduce Raymond.



Cleveland Exhibitors' Association Elects

Mr. M. M. Jacobs
718 Film Building
Cleveland, Ohio

My dear Mr. Jacobs:

THANK YOU! THANK YOU! THANK YOU!

I really mean it when I say it. I want to thank you for making me play SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT with JAMES CAGNEY, at the CIRCLE THEATRE. This picture did an outstanding business for us, and I want you to know that I will play SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT at all 14 of my theatres.

Everybody has been after me to play reissues and you convinced me to play SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT.

I put this picture in against my better judgement, but because it was just before Christmas, December 12th to 19th, I felt that I would try anything. I was very agreeably surprised and elated to have one of the best weeks of the whole year playing this picture.

I would highly recommend SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT to any exhibitor. This picture should be played in every A house in the territory for outstanding grosses.

Very truly yours,

COMMUNITY CIRCUIT THEATRES

Don Carlos Dead

DETROIT—Charles Hall, 70, producer of "Hall's Monkey Hotel" for over 50 years, died at Wisper & Wetsman's Oakman Theatre Saturday while giving a special children's matinee. He collapsed while working through the house. His wife, Sophia Hall, carried on the routine from the stage. Hall was known professionally as Don Carlos.

Impasse Holds Over Opening of Royal

DETROIT—Negotiations over opening of the Royal here continued at an impasse this week. The new 2,500-seat theatre, built jointly by United Detroit and Wisper & Wetsman Theatres, failed to open in December when the operators were called out upon failure of the management and the IATSE to agree on employment of a stagehand.

Position of the management is that there is no work for a stagehand at the house. The union holds a contrary view.

The controversy is viewed as a test of the general principle of employing stagehands for maintenance work in film houses.

In the absence of direct negotiations, a hopeful sign of a path toward settlement appeared in the willingness of Roger M. Kennedy, international vice-president of the IA, who ordered the operators out, to discuss a compromise arrangement. Kennedy indicated a willingness to discuss an adjustment of wages and hours in an interview with BOXOFFICE.

An interesting "canard" of the week was a story published in local newspapers to the effect the management planned to dismantle the Royal under the circumstances. This was repudiated, however, in a statement to BOXOFFICE by Earl Hudson, president of UDT, who said that the only changes being made in the house involved removal of furnishings which might become soiled.

Louis Hanna Appointed Salesman for Republic

PITTSBURGH—Louis E. Hanna has been named as sales representative for Republic Pictures Corp. of Pittsburgh. Lou, previously a booker, succeeds the late George W. Collins. He will cover the northern area.

Hymie Wheeler has been assigned the main line territory. Both sales representatives will serve under Samuel A. Fineberg, associate of James H. Alexander, manager. Fineberg, Wheeler and Hanna also will cover an assigned city area, thus each will be "at home" every third week.

Joseph Daugherty, Republic's head shipper, has been promoted to booker. William Hollenbaugh, night shipper, succeeds to Daugherty's former post. Bud Thomas is the new night shipper.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drew of M-G-M held their annual New Year's open house party at their home last Wednesday . . . Leo Devaney, who hasn't been in town since he was manager of the local Universal exchange, will be here January 29 to tell the RKO boys all about the Depinet 13-week sales drive. Devaney is drive leader and is visiting each RKO office.

Exhibitor Ortt of the Ritz, Newcomerstown, has opened the commuting season between Florida and Ohio. From now until March he will be either in Sebring, Fla., or in Newcomerstown or en route either way . . . The I. J. Schmertz family (20th-Fox) pulled out of here last Thursday for a month of Florida sunshine (they hope) . . . Robert Lytle has been named manager of the State, Lima, to succeed Don Reilly, killed recently in an automobile accident. Lytle has been promoted to the post from the assistant managership of the Palace in Lorain.

Christmas season didn't interfere with Ray Wallace's coming to town from Alliance to take care of his bookings, but out-of-towners were pretty scarce . . . Lee Goldberg, PRC chief, states that on the strength of its record business during the holiday week at the Circle, "The Devil Bat" is being booked solid throughout the territory.

Spotted here and there: George Delis and George Ellis of the Constant-Delis circuit . . . Nate Gerson has acquired the Ohio-Kentucky distribution of "The Baker's Wife," acclaimed the best foreign picture of the year. It opens January 23 at the Circle, Cleveland, for a local premiere . . . Maple Heights Theatre, Cleveland, is temporarily closed while renovations are going on . . . The Milt Mooneys of Cooperative Theatres of Ohio arrived back home from a West Indies cruise last Friday, stopping off in New York for a day after reaching shore.

Bill King of Mills Novelty Co. of Chincago has been in town visiting with heads of Midwest Specialties Co., distributors of Panoram. King, who is connected with the engineering department of his company, is giving Urban Anderson, president of the local distributing company, some technical instruction as to the operation of the machine . . . Charles Raymond, Loew division manager, announces that "GWTW" will open its local popular-priced run at the State, starting January 17 . . . There will be no reserved seat policy and top price will be 55 cents.

They Present a Happy Picture—

These underprivileged children present a happy picture following the Christmas party given for them by the Warner Club of Cleveland, which is led by Charles Albert. There was a complete turkey dinner on the menu, and each of the 52 guests received a bag of candy, a bag of fruit, a funny book and a matching cap and glove set.

CINCINNATI

NAT KAPLAN, chairman of the Variety Club's annual New Year Eve frolic, is being credited with the huge success of the affair which was a sell-out. Limited to 250 persons, there was, nevertheless, an overflow crowd. Bill Onie, Monogram branch manager, and chief barker, was on the reception committee, and Col. Arthur Frudenfeld had charge of the excellent floor show . . . Friends of Mrs. Will Shakespeare of the National will regret to hear of the death of her brother and sister-in-law, both occurring during Christmas week following illness. Burial was at Portsmouth, Ohio. Mrs. Shakespeare is now on the sick list.

The press has been giving much space to Rudy Bressler's new house to be erected in Dayton. Bressler also operates the Liberty . . . M-G-M broke ground this week for their new exchange, under lease, and which is across the street from their present location on Filmrow. A modern air conditioned fire-proof building is expected to be ready for occupancy in May.

New Year's Eve and New Year's Day drew the best business over a similar period in four years, according to Everett Steinbuck, manager of Loew's State. Steinbuck reports the State, showing "Comrade X," played to 23,500 people in two days. The State has 3,500 seats . . . Meet the new assistant Universal booker. He is Harold Satz. And he hails from the Big U exchange in New York. John J. Scully jr., whom he succeeds, has been transferred to the Philadelphia exchange . . . Howard Roth, Paramount booker, was feeling pretty punk last Thursday. A bad cold . . . George Roberts, 20th-Fox district manager, is among the returned Christmas travelers. He spent the holidays with his wife and daughter, Jane, in Buffalo . . . The Bryan D. Stoners were in from Pittsburgh to check in at the Frank Drews' New Year party.

Jerry Marks, Universal's West Virginia representative, and Ross Williams are among the latest enthusiasts of the airways. They are interested in seaplanes and are using the Ohio River as a parking lot . . Universal announces "Back Street" may have its world premiere in Cincinnati where the locale of the story is laid. Hope is being expressed that the two stars, Margaret Sullavan and Charles Boyer, will be brought on for the event . . . Warner's "Santa Fe Trail," going into its second week in Cincy, is also doing big in Dayton at the Palace, according to report.

Dave Miller, Universal district manager, here for several days . . . George Myer, Frankfort and Winchester exhibitor, also here . . . Columbia's "This Thing Called Love" is set for the RKO Palace the week of the 16th . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nalley, Nitro, W. Va., spent several days in the Queen City, coming on for New Year's Eve and staying over to complete bookings . . . Cincinnati friends are glad to hear that Lee Goldberg, former head of PRC here and now in Cleveland, is recovering nicely from an operation for infected teeth.

PRC's "The Devil Bat" is doing fine in its first run in downtown Cincinnati. It is dualled with "Boss of Bullion City" at the RKO Family . . . Maury White announces the new Davue, Dayton, Ky., is expected to be ready for opening by April 1 . . . The Ridge, Pleasant Ridge, Cincinnati, will open in the near future. Both houses are the last word in modern theatres and are in line with the present-day policy of building new houses in suburban areas.

"First Beau" for Reed

HOLLYWOOD—"Her First Beau," co-starring Jane Withers and Jackie Cooper, will be directed for Columbia by J. Theodore Reed, who handles the assignment on a loanout from Paramount.

BOXOFFICE:

Relative to our recent ad in BOXOFFICE: To date, within the first week after publication, we have received 109 answers to this ad, the replies coming from Massachusetts to Washington, from Minnesota and Montana to Texas.

The response was almost unbelievable. Certainly I could think of no other medium that might return such a result.

Sees Settlement of Louisville Strike

LOUISVILLE—Settlement of the local ushers' and doormen's strike, in effect since December 23, was expected by the end of the week by J. T. Woodward, AFL representative in Kentucky.

A jurisdictional dispute between the Building Service Employes' Union and the Theatre and Stage Employes' Union, which has been hindering negotiations, was expected to be ironed out, thus paving the way for a settlement of the strike, according to Woodward.

At a meeting last Thursday, Woodward told representatives of both unions that William Green, president of the AFL, had advised him the ushers and doormen belong in the stagehands' union and not in the building employes' organization, of which they are members.

The striking workers are employed by the Rex, Strand, Rialto, Kentucky and Mary Anderson theatres. They seek recognition of their union, seniority rights, a closed shop and wage adjustments.

Advances Proposal for One-Reel Synopses

DETROIT—A proposal for one-reel synopses of all feature films for use in trade-screening under the consent decree is advanced by Walter R. Stebbins, manager of the Film Exchange Bldg.

"Exhibitors will be faced with the problem of reviewing far more pictures than they have done in years under the decree," Stebbins asserts. "But the number of screening hours is actually limited, and the problem appears nearly insoluble from a practical standpoint—certainly, if every exhibitor were to try to see every film, well, it just couldn't be done.

"Besides, exhibitors don't like to keep on looking at pictures—it is work, after all. Many will tend to neglect to see enough films trade-screened for that reason, and for the necessary pressure of time.

"But a solution could be found in one-reel synopses, showing the essential nature of the film—such synopses would probably have to be carefully edited, and perhaps subject to approval by a board of some type, whether all-industry or otherwise, before being released, to assure their essential accuracy in summation. These could very easily be shown—and exhibitors could readily judge a picture from bits of it. After all, a jeweler does not have to tear a gem apart to know its worth—he can tell from general inspection. So, as in other industries, the exhibitor can judge the film by sampling it.

"I believe that this is entirely permissible under the consent decree, and I think that sound industry opinion should be directed toward making it possible before the industry actually goes into operation under the decree in September."

Pneumonia Fatal

LOUISVILLE—Gerald Wendover Pilcher, 41, secretary-treasurer of Henry Pilcher's Sons, Inc., pipe organ company, died last week from pneumonia. He was stricken Christmas Day.

Another Postponement in Midwest Theatres Suit

DETROIT—Trial of the suit of Midwest Theatres against Cooperative Theatres of Michigan in federal court, which was inactive over the holidays, has again been postponed two weeks, until January 21, because of the illness of A. J. Levin, attorney for Co-Operative. Levin's illness caused one week's adjournment on December 31.

Date now set for the trial, is just one week before date set in Wayne county circuit court for the trial of a suit brought by Jacob Schreiber, former owner of the houses now in the Midwest group, against Raymond Schreiber, involving title to the theatres.

PITTSBURGH

M. Totman of the local Warner circuit office addressed the Hill Top Mothers' Club Tuesday afternoon in the South Hills YMCA, his subject being "Social Influence of the Motion Picture in America."

Bryan D. "Buck" Stoner, M-G-M's new branch manager, has passed inspection here. He has been received with open arms by exhibitors and other members of the trade. And although he succeeds Burt Bishop jr., one of the swellest guys in the business, Stoner is already "Buck" to the boys. We knew him years ago when he was a student salesman here for Leo the Lion, and we wish him every success now that he has returned in the more responsible post with the same outfit . . . Independent Theatres, Inc., established headquarters in the William Penn Hotel for the Bishop dinner, where all were welcome to share in the hospitality of this group. The event of Monday was celebrated as a double-header by Harry Walker, whose birthday anniversary fell on that day. He was presented with a large birthday cake.

Frank Roberts of Steubenville, Ohio, was in for the Bishop shindig, and the exhibitor who traveled the greater distance to be present was Paul O. Klingler of Lewistown. Heartily welcomed were George Sallows and George P. Comuntzis of Morgantown, W. Va. The banquet brought out a number of the boys we hadn't seen in many months, and we were glad to again greet Sabu and his brother, Shaik.

Robert E. Johnson, projectionist at the Grand, Carnegie, for many years, died Sunday. He was a motion picture machine operator before the World War, in which he served, and was a veteran member of the IATSE, Local No. 171. He is survived by his widow and his mother. Only a few weeks ago he had become the father of a child. Funeral was Wednesday afternoon with many friends and IATSE members in attendance . . . Isadore J. Mittelberger, 77, of this city, well known in the trade, died Monday at Erie, Pa. . . . Henry B. Vincent, 68, founder and a director of the Erie Playhouse, at Erie, Pa., died Tuesday of a heart attack.

John H. Harris has been named as a member of the executive committee of the industry defense group.

Urge Playdates for "Land of Liberty"

PITTSBURGH—AMPTO of W. Pa. is on record approving the motion picture industry's "Land of Liberty," to be distributed by M-G-M, net proceeds for which will be donated for war emergency welfare work. The action was taken at the recent meeting of the local Allied directors on the recommendation of Abram F. Myers, national Allied counsel. All exhibitors are urged to cooperate fully with M-G-M on booking arrangements for this subject.

Urban Anderson, president of Midwest Specialties Co., distributors of Panoram, believing in "atmosphere," has set up a cocktail bar in his offices in the Film Bldg.

M. M. Jacobs, head of Imperial Pictures Co., went to New York to buy new product for distribution in Ohio and Kentucky . . . Patrons of Lorain-Fulton Theatres last Wednesday were treated to a Hollywood-type "sneak" preview of "Misbehaving Husbands," PRC picture starring Harry Langdon.

F. Arthur Simon of Lake Shore Sales Co. was in Chicago last week attending a house wares convention held at the Palmer House.

Republic salesmen are all back on the road after two weeks Christmas vacation. Nat Lefton, franchise owner of Republic, was in Cincinnati holding a general sales meeting following a meeting in Cleveland.

Two-Reelers by Shirley Are Business-Getters

CLEVELAND—Nate Schultz, Monogram franchise owner, reports that theatres are doing business on the strength of the two-reel Shirley Temple pictures which he is selling not as reissues but as "novelty subjects." Exhibitors, Schultz reports, are exploiting these short reelers to excellent advantage.

On January 15, Monogram will start releasing another novelty. It is a double-horror program. The pictures to be sold in combination are "Chamber of Horrors" and "Dead Men's Shoes." Both are Edgar Wallace stories.

Samuel Neaman Rites

PITTSBURGH—Funeral services were held Wednesday for Samuel Neaman, exhibitor at Natrona, Pa., who died Tuesday evening in Passavant Hospital here.

New Hampshire Trade Has Its Worries

Concord, N. H.—New Hampshire exhibitors are having their worries. The state legislature, incidentally the largest in the country, opened this year with before it for legalization, state lotteries, admittance of pari-mutuel dog racing, and licensing of slot machines.

Kurson Answers in Middlebury Quiz

BOSTON—Samuel Kurson, Graphic circuit kingpin, declined to answer questions regarding the operations in Middlebury, Vt., but later reversed his field and responded to queries on this subject put to him during the four days of deposition taking by George S. Ryan, plaintiff's attorney in a number of anti-trust actions in which Kurson is one of the defendants.

The Graphic circuit executive testified, during his four days on the witness stand, that any of the records of his Millinocket, Bridgton, and Middlebury houses involved in the cases had been destroyed prior to the transfer of the Graphic headquarters from Bangor to Boston.

Kurson told Ryan that he "didn't have any subpoena from you to tell me what I need and what I didn't need."

"Did you tell your bookkeeper what stuff could be destroyed and what kept?" asked Ryan.

"I told her whatever stuff we had prior to 1938 she can destroy," Kurson said. "In some cases she did, and in some cases there were some in Boston which are right here now."

"At the time you gave her the instructions that she could destroy that stuff," Ryan continued, "did you have anything in mind that there were some anti-trust actions pending against you in some other companies?"

"No, sir," said Kurson.

Lydon May Call Meeting Of Allied Unit in Hub

BOSTON—Frank Lydon, Allied eastern regional vice-president and head of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., may call a "hurry-up" meeting of the local organization prior to the national confab scheduled for January 27-28, either at the Carlton or the Mayfair in Washington, D. C. The lateness of the national date will probably move to February the time of the regular annual meeting of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., previously scheduled for sometime this month.

46 Are Passed

BOSTON — "Kitty Foyle," "Invisible Woman," "Her First Romance," and 43 other motion pictures have been passed without eliminations by the Massachusetts Department of Public Safety for Sunday showings in the Bay State. Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney banned two vaudeville acts and modified eight others.

Paramount Setup Aired In Waldo Trust Suit

BOSTON — The Paramount corporative set-up was aired at length here during the anti-trust suit of the Waldo Theatre vs. the late Joseph Dondis, et al., now being heard at the local Federal Building before Francis Freeman, Master appointed by Judge Peters of the U. S. district court in Maine.

Asked by the court to state, for the purpose of record, the tieup between Publix Theatres Corp. and any of the defendants in the complaint, Ryan replied: "Publix Theatres Corp. was a 100 per cent owned subsidiary of Paramount Publix Corporation, which is the same corporation as Paramount Theatres, Inc. It was formed to manage and control the theatres in United States, including New England, in which Paramount had an interest or control. To a great extent, if not entirely, these theatres were companies in which Paramount either directly or indirectly had more than a 50 per cent interest.

Claims 100% Ownership

"It is our claim that the setup, so far as it affected New England, was that Paramount owned about 100 per cent of the stock in New England Theatres, Inc. Now New England Theatres, Inc., owned stock, to a great extent the controlling proportion of stock, of a number of theatres operating throughout New England.

"Paramount acquired 50 per cent and the right to control the theatres that had been operated by Netoco Theatres Corp. and as the result there was formed the defendant corporation Publix-Netoco Theatres Corp., which is 50 per cent owned, by this Paramount company in New York."

Defendant's counsel, Edward F. McClennen, added, "Publix-Netoco hadn't been organized at this time. Publix Theatres Corp. was to manage, but not to control, the theatres. I couldn't concede at the present time that the theatres in question were owned to the extent of 50 per cent of the stock, or more. I think those are the things. The statement with reference to Rockland Amusement Co., that he was about to start on, I think is not correct."

"I was wrong even before I said it," Ryan sallied. "'In fact, there seems to be an irrevocable presumption against me."

There was some controversy about how far back the motion picture field should be scrutinized insofar as evidence for the case is concerned. The Master finally told counsel that if either side would care to submit some authority on how far back "toward the dark ages" we should proceed, he would be glad to consider them.

Wit Breaks Out

Ryan submitted that, "The supreme court, in the Standard Oil case, held that it was proper to go back beyond the time of the enactment of the anti-trust laws to determine the conduct of Standard Oil Company."

Wit has been breaking out throughout the trial. At one time, a group of 20th-Fox documents were entered as exhibits and marked "K-3." McClennen explained that this designated that they had been made during the third year of Sidney Kent's connection with the company.

Quipped Ryan, "I suppose that during the year K-9 (canine) Fox will be putting out dog pictures."

At another point during the trial, when a large number of documents, stapled together, had been offered as exhibits, the Master objected, "I can't quite see how it would be possible to rule on the admissability of that batch of papers any more than it would be to rule on the admissability of the Encyclopedia Brittanica presented as a whole."

Ryan put in several papers on the interoffice communication of Paramount Publix Corp., explaining "that they tend to show that G. Ralph Branton and Al Bevan were employed in the Paramount Publix Corp. and were engaged in work relative to all theatres."

"If I write to my wife tonight," spoke up John Caskey, 20th-Fox counsel, "I don't think I had better use the Parker House stationery."

Objects to Exhibit

Caskey objected to Ryan's offering as an exhibit carbon copy comprising 40 sheets, the outside of which was entitled "Fox Film Corp. and Publix Theatres Corp., dated June 30, 1930.

"This document," said Caskey, "purports to have been executed in 1930, as it has already been stipulated before Your Honor that Publix Theatres Corp. was a subsidiary of Paramount Famous Players Lasky. That corporation went into bankruptcy the first day of February, 1933. Receivers in bankruptcy were appointed, and thereafter the same persons were elected trustees in bankruptcy.

"It is already in evidence before Your Honor that on or about the same date receivers were appointed in the State Court of Massachusetts for the theatres, or some

Lottery and Beano Bills Proposed

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—A batch of bills covering a wide range of subjects, some duplicates of those already offered, were filed last week in the state legislature.

A sweepstakes lottery, designed to raise $4,000,000 a year for old-age assistance, was proposed in a bill sponsored by the Massachusetts Society for Old Age Pensions. Senator-elect Charles V. Hogan of Lynn filed the measure along with another bill calling for payment of $10 a week to old-age assistance recipients.

In another measure, Rep. Adolph Johnson of Brockton proposed a 10 per cent excise tax on the gross taken nightly by Beano games. The tax would be turned into the treasury of the city or town where games are held.

'Thief' Leads Hub Parade; Plenty of Holiday Coin

BOSTON—Holiday coin was plentiful in Boston this last week of the year, particularly in the first runs.

"The Thief of Bagdad," doubled with "Blondie Plays Cupid," was the outstanding money-getter of Christmas week, drawing youngsters and adults to the tune of big business at the State and Orpheum. George Raft, doing a p. a. on the stage of the RKO Boston, was an outstanding attraction at the Hub's only first-run vaudeville house. The weather, everything but sunshine, was not much of a factor.

Detail for week ending December 31:

(Average is 100)

"Philadelphia Story" Top Grosser in Third Week

PROVIDENCE — Metro's "Philadelphia Story," in its third week at the Carlton, continued as the pace-setting film in Providence last week. Combined with the same company's "Gallant Sons," it rang up 50 per cent over average for the Carlton in its third seven-day stanza. Universal's "Give Us Wings," doubled with Republic's "West of Pinto Basin," also proved a strong combination here, attracting considerably over average patronage.

Heads Film Group In Boston Drive

BOSTON—Joseph Brennan, MPTOA executive secretary in Massachusetts, will head the theatrical group in the Greater Boston Community Fund's 1941 campaign to raise $4,883,000 between January 18 and February 15. Brennan's appointment was announced by Andrew S. Seiler, general chairman of the division embracing the entertainment industry.

Edward A. Cuddy, general manager of M&P Theatres, was designated as vice-chairman at the same time.

The goal of $4,883,000 has been described by Henry R. Guild, general chairman, as the minimum necessary to carry on the work of the 200 Great Boston Community Fund agencies that will assist more than 400,000 people this coming year in Boston and its 46 surrounding cities and towns. The theatre group committee, according to Community Fund headquarters, includes:

Harry McDonald, local RKO Theatres division manager; A. J. Munro, resident head of the local Shubert holdings; Howard Burkhardt, Loew's Orpheum manager; Max Finn, general manager of the E. M. Loew circuit; Al Somerby, operator of the Howard; Frank Lydon, president of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc.; George Ramsdell, suburban circuit operator; Sam Soule, operator of several Boston houses, and Francis W. McManus, Maurice Corkery, Harry Wassermann, Edward S. Canter, and Hy Fine of the M&P Theatres Corp.

Discuss Effect of Gov't Action in Music War

NEW HAVEN—Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut met at the Hofbrau Haus Tuesday for the first regular meeting of the new year, with A. M. Schuman presiding.

A discussion was held on the effects the government-Ascap situation would have on them. Opening of the state legislature and impending bills were also discussed. as well as the current Allied membership campaign.

The group will meet again at 12:30 p. m., Tuesday, January 21, at the Hofbrau.

New Theatre Will Go Up Shortly in Bridgeport

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Construction of the new theatre at Park Ave. and Pequnnock St. will be started in two weeks, according to Louis Seidman of New York. Inability to get the steel for the framework, has delayed the work for several months.

Seidman has decided to name his theatre the Wheeler in honor of the family of the late Nathaniel Wheeler which had owned the property for nearly 100 years.

Martin Mullin Heads Hub Variety Club

BOSTON—Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres Corp. partner, was elected chief barker at the local Variety Club at a meeting of the board of trustees last Friday. Al Kane, Paramount branch manager, was named first vice-president. Ted Fleisher, head booker for Interstate, was designated as second vice-president. E. Harold Stoneman, Interstate Theatres Corp. partner, was named treasurer for the coming year. William Erbb, Paramount district manager, became the new secretary.

Hand-Painted Scroll to Broidy From Variety

BOSTON—"In appreciation for efforts in organizing Tent 23," local Variety Club unit, and in recognition of his services as first chief barker, Steve Broidy has been presented with a hand-painted scroll bearing the signatures of all members of the former Boston Friars Club.

Broidy, who resigned as New England head of Monogram to become national sales chief for the distributor, was in town this week prior to leaving for the west coast. He planned to arrive in Hollywood in about three weeks, making business stopovers along the route. His wife and children expect to join him on the coast in June, after the close of the present school term.

Sanborn Conspicuous at Governor's Inaugural

CONCORD, N. H.—At the inauguration of New Hampshire's new governor, Dr. Robert O. Blood, one of the most conspicuous figures was Ansel N. Sanborn, Carroll county theatre circuit operator, who took his oath of office as a memer of the executive (governor's) council. The former speaker of the House was shown in newspaper photographs marching with other councillors behind the new governor under an archway of sabres formed by officers of the 172nd Field Artillery.

Rebook "GWTW"

BOSTON—Charles Kurtzman, Loew's divisional manager, announces "Gone With the Wind" rebookings at the first-run Loew's State and Orpheum here with "nothing cut but the price." The film, playing single-feature at the Orpheum and State, grossed over a half-million dollars in a total of some 95 playing days.

Tightening Control

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Local 186, IATSE, is making progress in its attempt to control the showing of both 16 and 35mm motion pictures in this area, Owen Holmes, member of the executive board, informs BOXOFFICE.

Annual Ball January 24

HARTFORD—Local 486, IATSE, will hold its annual ball January 24 in the ballroom of the Hotel Bond here.

"Family" Rating for All On Film Council List

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—For the first time in some months, the Springfield Motion Picture Council did not classify any of the 13 films reviewed last week on its "adults only" list.

Included on the "family" list were: "Second Chorus," "Comrade X," "Flight Command," "Love Thy Neighbor," "This Thing Called Love," "Gallant Sons," "Chad Hanna," "Boys of the City," "Arizona," "Thief of Bagdad," "Texas Rangers Ride Again," "Remedy for Riches" and "Michael Shayne, Private Detective."

Hire Architect to Plan New House in Fairfield

NEW HAVEN—Fishman Theatres, Inc., commissioned O. C. S. Ziroli, architect, to draw sketches for a large, modern business building to be erected on its recently-acquired 400x650 feet plot on the Post Road in Fairfield.

The building is to include a 700-seat theatre, bowling alleys, recreation hall, stores and offices. Fishman executives report building will probably begin late next spring. The firm already operates the Community in Fairfield, as well as five theatres in New Haven.

Record for "Arizona"

HARTFORD—Manager George E. Landers of the E. M. Loew's here reports that last week's receipts on Columbia's "Arizona" smashed all previous gross records at that house.

Would Exempt Chain As a Defendant

of the theatres, theretofore operated in New England by Publix Theatres Corp., and that those receivers, together with the trustees in bankruptcy, with the approval of both courts, caused the formation of the defendant M&P Theatres Corp., and that that corporation thereafter purchased and booked motion picture films with these theatres. So it appears already in the record that this document came to an end, as to its performance, early in February, 1933.

"So we say it is wholly irrelevant to any issue in this case. I will say, also, that on the face of the document there is no evidence that any of the theatres concerning which we have been inquiring were involved.

"The plaintiff merely mentions its claim which is referred to in the pleadings of a conspiracy prior to December 10, 1935, and one of the means and methods subsequently agreed upon and adopted was the use of franchise and contracts," said Ryan, "giving the privileges and preferences which were not granted to independent exhibitors including long and unreasonable periods of protection, and in that document is the statement that Fox agrees to give the same average protection as that given by other distributors. In the memorandum on the front page there is a list of some 483 theatres.

Claims M&P Took Over

"Now in a case like this you have to show the relationship of the parties and how they are working together and you are entitled to show something of the prior history. Mr. Caskey has given some dates here as to bankruptcy proceedings. I haven't checked on the dates, but at any rate New England Theatres never went into bankruptcy, and I don't think Rockland Amusement Co. ever went into bankruptcy. We claim that M&P took over just where Publix left off."

Caskey replied, "There is already in evidence a letter from Mr. Dermody to Branton, dated August 4, 1932, which shows precisely what clearance Fox granted for the 1932-33 season. So the contract which Mr. Ryan quotes wouldn't seem to have any significance whatever."

Objects to Document

The document, as presented, was objected to by McClennen.

"Now, if Your Honor, please," said Caskey, "the relevancy of this document must, I assume, depend upon the allegations of the complaint. This could be only admissible in the first cause of action, and there is no allegation in the first cause of action of conspiracy by any subsidiary or with any subsidiary of Paramount. Somewhat different terminology has been used in the second cause of action, but the terminology in the first cause of action is that the 'defendants entered into a combination and conspiracy,' and Publix Theatres isn't a defendant, and there is no allegation in the first count that the defendants had acted by divers agents and instrumentalities at all, a flat allegation 'the defendants.'

"And one of the purposes of the conspiracy was to give unusual privileges and preferences to producer-controlled theatres. Judge Peters has already decided in a motion filed that the fact that neither of the plaintiffs is damaged by a particular set does not mean that that cannot be alleged to show conspiracy," said Ryan.

McClennen then said, "The protection referred to by Mr. Ryan appears to be 'Both as to period of protection and as to area of protection the exhibitor is entitled to and shall receive from the producer the same protection (except as otherwise specified in the annexed schedule) which the exhibitor customarily receives as average protection from time to time, from the larger distributors of feature motion pictures, including Paramount Publix Corp. Such protection period and protection area shall be defined and identified from time to time by written agreement between the producer and the exhibitor, and any dispute as to either the period or the area embraced in such protection shall be determined and settled by arbitration, and pending such settlement the period and area of protection shall be that in use and effect between the producer and exhibitor prior to the time of said dispute.'

On Dating Period

" 'As to each photoplay, every such protection period shall include, and be deemed to include, without any reference thereto being required in the aforesaid written agreements and/or determination by arbitrators, the period ending 74 days after the date fixed in a notice by the producer to the exhibitor as the date of availability of such photoplay for exhibition, (which 74 day period is hereinafter called dating period) provided, however, that if by the end of the second week after the giving of the notice positive prints of the photoplay affected shall not then be in the producer's exchanges in New York City, Los Angeles, California and Dallas, Texas, the dating period shall be further extended by the number of days intervening between the end of the second week after the giving of the notice and the date on which positive prints of the photoplay affected shall actually be on hand in said exchanges.

The Protection Period

" 'The protection period to be defined and identified, as first hereinbefore provided for, shall in each instance begin to run from the expiration of the dating period provided however that if a photoplay be actually played prior to the expiration of such 74 day period, then the protection period shall begin to run from such actual play date. Wherever any runs of photoplays are subservient to "key city" first runs, producer agrees not to sell or serve any photoplay for any such subservient runs on more favorable protection terms than those which are accorded by other major distributors, who have similar key city distributions; provided however, said dating period shall not conflict with nor nullify any protection or run period heretofore contracted for by the producer to subservient runs in any city, town, or zone covered hereunder.'

Agreement to "Avoid Expense"

"That is the complete sub-paragraph. Now, without intruding on the position of any other defendants, and contending that this is wholly immaterial, we are willing to agree for the defendants that we represent that on June 30, 1930, Fox Film Corp. and Public Theatres Corp., now non-existent, entered into an agreement which contained the clause which I have read. I do this in the hope of avoiding the considerable expense of having photostated this extensive agreement, whether it be admitted or excluded."

The court ruled, "Without attempting to pass on the weight of this particular document at this time, it may be admitted for what it is worth as to Fox Film Corporation and as to Paramount, subject to the ability of the plaintiff to show a continuity of the corporate setup."

"In this particular case would something be done to save the expense of photostating that whole document?" asked McClennen.

"I was about to ask Mr. Ryan," replied Master Freeman, "if there was anything in this document he wanted, over and above the statement which Mr. McClennen read."

Summarized Contract

"There was, Your Honor, yes." Ryan continued, "When I said 'unusual privileges and preferences, etc.' I referred to the fact that an agreement of this kind would be made with the producer-controlled theatres as distinct from the ordinary exhibition contract of the distributor with which he deals with the independent exhibitor. At one time I did summarize that contract and I think I can find a copy of my summary and maybe we could agree to use that in addition to Mr. McClennen's reading of that particular provision, which I believe is in my summary."

"Of course the document doesn't go at all toward showing these special privileges and preferences. Until Mr. Ryan has shown that the same sort of thing wasn't done with independent theatres, and he will recall the many such agreements that went in before Mr. Hendricks—," said McClennen.

"Many such what agreements?" questioned Ryan.

"The kind that you now recall. They were not listed in your list. They weren't viewed with the same degree of favor by you as these," said McClennen.

"Well, I know,—" said Ryan.

"I refer to that as a bearing on the candor of your assertion that that sort of thing was done only with the producer-controlled theatres, when you are possessed of the knowledge which you are on the subject."

"Bagdad" Scenes Make Him Pray for Allah

Boston—One of the evening performances of "Thief of Bagdad" at Loew's Orpheum here was interrupted when a Hindu in the audience ascended to the stage, knelt, and began strenuously to hail Allah. He explained the scenes of Bagdad had carried him away.

Charles Kurtzman, Howard Burkhardt and Joseph A. DiPesa, local Loew's executives, swore it was no plant.

New England Feels Business Boom

BOSTON—The boom of New England business is already being felt by the industry. This territory is entering "the New Year on a rising tide of business activity," according to the New England Council, which points out that November showed a 10 per cent increase above normal for the past ten years of business activity.

Increases in employment and retail buying and decreases in relief lists, are already marked here with, according to the authoritative New England Council, "every reason to believe that these conditions will be even more evident in the months ahead. The New England farmer and New England worker will find their products and services in better demand in 1941 than for several years past.

Began Last June

"Continuing the forward movement initiated last June," read the Council's statistics, "New England business activity in November, 1940, increased 2.6 per cent over the rate prevailing in the preceding month, and was 3.6 per cent higher than in November, 1939." The Council's index of the general business activity for November was 109.9 per cent of the estimated normal, as compared with 107.1 per cent in October and 106.2 per cent in November 1939.

"With the level of business activity in New England closing the year more than 19 per cent above the estimated normal, it is apparent that in 1941 industrial production in this region will probably be larger than in any year in the past decade."

At the beginning of 1940, on the basis of the New England Council's index, manufacturing output in New England had risen to 103.0 per cent of the estimated normal. This was about the highest rate of activity that could be expected without a general country-wide expansion of business.

Machine Tools Responsible

"However, a general expansion in business in the United States did not occur and, as New England manufacturers worked off their backlogs of orders, production rates in New England began to decline.

"This condition prevailed until May when the Council's index dropped to 91.1 per cent. In June, production increased four per cent and continued to expand in each successive month, so that, for the beginning of 1941, the rate of industrial activity in this region is estimated at better than 110.0 per cent of normal. This expanding industrial activity has been the machine tools manufacture."

The Council, however, suggested caution and pointed that, "Large proportions of business profits will be recaptured by the taxing authorities about as rapidly as they are earned."

Hub Downtowns Prosper; Neighborhoods Falter

BOSTON—Concrete evidence of a rising new tendency here was noted New Year's Eve when downtown midnight was crashed through with heavy coin while the neighborhoods were laying eggs.

Film men pointed to the phenomenon as proof that returning prosperity in manufacture in New England is already causing many lower-bracket theatre patrons to put on the ritz to the extent of passing up quarter houses for de luxers.

As one suburban exhibitor puts it, "A lot of my patrons who are working for the first time in months, have already begun to wash their necks and now go to the 50 cent houses."

Reminds of Flight of Fame

Manchester, N. H.—Today's topnotch film actors and actresses shouldn't be forgetting the day when their fame will diminish, in the opinion of the Manchester "Union."

An editorial, captioned "Headliner Now," read:

"Mickey Rooney, et al., are now so busy receiving plaudits that this may seem a poor time to remind them that fame is a good deal like time. Both are fleet. At this time they are among the 10 biggest money makers in the business. They are 'up there,' as the saying goes, and good luck to them.

"But maybe they will take time off from the bowing and handshaking to listen to a bit of philosophy that deserves a place among the archives in the Halls of Immortality. The lesson in question came not from Confucius, or from none of the other recognized philosophers, past and present.

"It came from a movie player whose name once loomed large in the bright lights of movie palace foyers—from specifically, Agnes Ayres, who died recently in Hollywood. Speaking not long ago of her attempted comeback in filmdom, she said: "It cost me half a million dollars to learn the value of a nickle.'

"Yes, moralizing at such a time as this, when Mickey Rooney & Co. are cashing in so handsomely, may seem inappropriate. As a matter of fact, however, there couldn't be a better time for repeating Miss Ayres' little lesson in basic economics. Once again, both time and fame are fleet."

They Get Ready for the Increase in Business—

New England theatres that recently have ordered new equipment and otherwise improved their plants in anticipation of an upbeat this year. Supplied by courtesy of Maynard Sickles of the Capitol Theatre Supply Co. in Boston, which firm sold the equipment mentioned herein, the photos show:

Top row: Left, the Millinocket in Millinocket, Me., which received new seats, projectors and projection lamps. Mr. LePage, the operator, plaintiff in an extant $100,000 anti-trust suit, is one of the best fishermen and hunters among New England exhibitors. A number of film men, including George S. Ryan, the lawyer, and Leon Foster and Charles Fish of Capitol Theatre Supply, were his guests on deer-hunting trips this past fall. At the top right is the York in Athol, Mass., during a snowstorm. The house is operated by Abe Garbose, who also runs another theatre in the town. Sidelines include a clothing shop and a shoe store. Capitol recently installed drapes in the house.

Lower row: Left, the Premier in Littleton, N. H. It is operated by Jack Eames, who comes very near being New Hampshire's busiest exhibitor, what with his gasoline company and real estate businesses. He recently put in a new projector. Next is the Strand at Randolph, Vt., recently acquired by John Robe jr. from Merton Carr. The Strand has been completely re-equipped. Then the Tyler at Pittsfield, Mass., operated by William Shea, formerly of the Bijou in Holyoke. New equipment includes a re-seating job. And finally the Maine at Waterville, Me., where Ulysses Ponsant did a bit of equipment modernizing. Ponsant, whose hobby is fishing, also operates the City in Belfast, Me.

David Allen Smalley . . . Martin Harris, the fellow who handles the New York end of bookings for the State, Hartford, had a birthday recently . . . Joseph Faith of Terryville, Unionville, and Collinsville, is expected to open his new 700-seat theatre in Bristol sometime next month . . . Main stem Daly had an amateur contest on its stage last Thursday night . . . Ed Fitzgerald of the Loew's Poli, Waterbury, had a large blown up head of Harpo Marx mounted on a base to serve as a lobby display for "Go West" at that theatre . . . Robert Elliano, manager of the Palace in Torrington, was ill at home for several days.

Ted Whalen is a new part-time usher at the WB's Strand . . . Lester Winick has joined the ushers' corps at the State . . . Clock on top of the boxoffice at the Loew's Poli has been removed . . . Manager James F. McCarthy of the WB's Strand reported smash SRO business with "Santa Fe Trail" . . . Charlie Barnet and his orchestra and Elaine Barrie appeared on the boards at the State last week.

HARTFORD

New Year's Resolutions—Jack A. Simons, manager Loew's Poli: "To put into effect all the resolutions I made last year, and the year before that" . . . Walter B. Lloyd, manager M&P's Allyn: Non-committal. "Because it might reveal all my bad habits" . . . James F. McCarthy, WB's Strand manager: "Not to smoke during 1941" . . . Louis Cohen, Loew's Poli Palace manager: "To hold over more big Metro pictures from the Poli" . . . Maurice Schulman of the Schulman Theatres (Webster, Rivoli, and Plaza-Windsor): "To do all in my power to make my patrons comfortable while viewing the shows at our theatres in Hartford and Windsor."

Markoff's Moodus, Moodus, is now offering enamelware to its patrons . . . In Hartford last Thursday on business were: Harry F. Shaw, Louis A. Brown, and Elliott Kronish of Loew's Poli New Haven offices. Joel A. Levy, of Loew's, New York, was also a visitor . . . Gifts were presented to those in attendance . . . Hartford Friends of Boys held theatre parties at the M&P's Allyn last Friday afternoon and Saturday. "Love Thy Neighbor" and "Missing People" were shown . . . Charlie Bradshaw, assistant projectionist at the E. M. Loew's, is now a projectionist at Manager Joe Anger's Astor, East Hartford. George Goodroll is the E. M. Loew's new projectionist . . . Robert O'Donnell, doorman at the E. M. Loew's, resigned last week to join the navy.

NEW HAVEN

TOM DONALDSON'S testimonial dinner Tuesday, January 14, at the Taft, it is predicted, will have attendance record, including large representation from New York and Boston. Dinner will start off the 1941 film social calendar with a bang, and combine sendoff of Donaldson with official welcome of new Metro manager, Morey Goldstein . . . Only fair is the report of most nabes around the state re New Year's Eve late shows. Bridgeport had none at all, except for downtowns . . . Paramount was practically a sellout with its vaude.

Exhibitors seem to favor Warner idea of starting new show at 6 in the evening and running through the late hours. Late Loew-Poli shows all reported better than last year . . . "Comrade X" broke all records of the Poli, Hartford, on New Year's day and continued exceptional all through the week . . . "Love Thy Neighbor" did almost two and one-half times the usual business at the Paramount during Xmas week and was brought back after the intervening New Year's week . . . Globe, Bridgeport, and Poli, Waterbury, report tremendous New Year's Eve business with their vaude . . . Proven Pictures, Hartford, told 'em "They Must Be Told" in late shows all week beginning with the New Year, with admission at 44 cents . . . E. M. Loew's and Palace, Hartford, both had holdovers to start the year, "Arizona" and "Chad Hanna," respectively . . . "NWMP" played the Palace, Meriden, New Year's Eve at 55 cents and continued regular engagement at regular prices.

Students and faculty of Yale University back 5,000 strong January 7, and theatres glad of it . . . The Lincoln reopened its doors on the same date after a short holiday . . . Big usher turnover is problem to downtowns . . . "GWTW" back in town at 40-55 cent admission at the Poli, January 16 . . . Strand, Norwich, included novelties giveaway in its New Year's celebration . . . Bob Russell raised the sound of his airplane motors in "Flight Command" above the noise of over-boisterous celebrators.

Reply briefs were filed by attorneys in the S&S Theatre Corp. and Middlesex Theatre, Inc., "conspiracy" case against Sal Adorno et al., and it's anybody's guess when the matter will be decided . . . Harry Lavietes, sued by Ascap for non-payment of fees, is something of a local hero, now that Ascap is itself involved in a government suit . . . Colonial, Bridgeport, starts Adolph Johnson's Colonial Edgewood two-a-week deal first week in February after display which brought hearty approval . . . New Haven chamber of commerce reports retail business from five to ten per cent better than last year all though, with figures the best since 1928, and in some cases, since 1924. State employment here made 60 per cent more private placements in December, 1940, than the same month, 1939, and 30 per cent more for the year.

Bowling will be a regular film sport in 1941, says Chairman Al Parizer of Columbia, and he will attempt to arrange matches every Tuesday night, to include E. M. Loew's Hartford team, the Strand Amusement, Bridgeport; Stratford, Essex Square and other teams around the state. For this Tuesday, matches were scheduled between the Poli and Whalley, Columbia and Warner Theatres, and Paramount and Fox against an all-exhib team. All film people are urged to get in the swing.

State Theatre Corp. Is Formed by Harris Trio

HARTFORD—State Hartford Theatre, Inc., has filed certificate of incorporation, naming Theodore Harris of West Hartford, Martin D. Harris of Paterson, N. J., and Samuel E. Harris of Passaic, N. J., as incorporators. Authorized capital is $50,000. The corporation operates the 4,000-seat State.

Articles of Association

HARTFORD — The Community Theatre Building Corp. of Hartford, Inc., has filed articles of association, naming Cedric G. Thompson as agent.

On "Fantasia" Run

BOSTON—Milton Chamberlain is slated to manage the Majestic, local Shubert house, during the roadshow engagement of "Fantasia," beginning January 23. Jack Goldstein, former local RKO theatre publicist and later national United Artists exploitation manager, will handle advertising on the engagement.

Premiums by the Ton

BOSTON—Premiums by the ton are being handed out by Walter Stuart, manager of the Community in Attleboro for the M&P Theatres Corp. Stuart tied in with a local coal dealer for weekly free fuel giveaways.

Candy Company Expands

BOSTON—The Theatre Candy Co., headed by S. L. Lowe jr., has expanded into larger quarters in the same building, the Motor Mart on Stuart Street.

Q and A Routine on Federal Ticket Tax

DALLAS—At the request of members of Allied of Texas, H. A. Cole, president, queried the collector of internal revenue on questions often put by exhibitors concerning the federal tax on theatre tickets. Back came the following, in question and answer form:

QUESTION: Is anyone under the age of 12 considered a child admission as federal admission tax applies. Is anyone over the age of 12 considered an adult admission as federal admission tax applies.

ANSWER: Section 1700 of the code provides that in the case of persons (except bona fide employes, municipal officers on official business and children under 12 years of age) admitted free or at reduced rates to any place at a time when and under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons an equivalent tax shall be collected, based on the price so charged to such other persons for the same or similar accommodations. Section 101.5 of Regulations 43 provides that a bona fide employe, a municipal officer on official business or a child under 12 years of age is not liable for any tax if admitted free, and if admitted at a reduced rate is liable for tax on the reduced price, provided such price is 21 cents or more.

QUESTION: Where tickets are sold in books of 19 tickets at 20 cents and are used individually, does the tax apply if such admission tickets are used where the adult admission exceeds 20 cents.

ANSWER: It is held that where a book of 19 tickets is sold at a price of 20 cents for each ticket while the regular established price of a single admission is in excess of 20 cents, the tickets are sold at reduced rates and a tax must be collected equivalent to the tax on 19 single tickets of admission at the regular established price.

QUESTION: In the case where a theatre reserves a certain section for student admissions, ages ranging 12 to 16 and the admission price is 20 cents or less, is the tax applicable provided other sections of the same floor charge an adult price in excess of 20 cents. Would the admission tax apply provided this reserved student section were not available to any admissions in the taxable class.

ANSWER: Any person 12 years of age or over admitted free or at a reduced rate is liable for tax equivalent to the tax on the regular established price of admission to other persons, that is, to adults for the same or similar accommodations. For example, if students (or other persons) from 12 to 16 years of age are admitted at a price less than the admission charge to persons over 16 years of age, the persons between the ages of 12 and 16 years are admitted at reduced rates and must pay a tax equivalent to the tax on the admission charge to persons over 16 years of age for the same or similar accommodations. The setting aside of a certain section for student admissions does not relieve the students from payment of the tax on reduced rate admissions unless the price for which the students are admitted represents the established price to all persons alike for admission to that section.

QUESTION: Where service passes are issued permitting a patron to enter for 10 cents which is a reduced admission from a price of 21 cents or over, does the tax apply.

ANSWER: Persons admitted on passes for a service charge of 10 cents at a time when the established price of admission to other persons is 21 cents or more are liable for tax based on the regular established price of admission to the other persons for the same or similar accommodations.

Crescent Suit Dismissed Against Distributors

NASHVILLE — The government's complaint against seven major film distributors, included in the anti-trust suit against the local Crescent Amusement Co., was dismissed January 3 in two orders handed down by Federal Judge Elmer Davies.

"Upon the stipulation of counsel for the plaintiff and defendant," the main order read, "Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Distributing Corp., Loew's Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., and 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., it is hereby ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the complaint be dismissed as to said defendants."

Assistant U. S. District Attorney O. W. Hughes, who represented the government, said the distributing companies had made a satisfactory settlement with the government in the main anti-trust suit against them in New York. Therefore, counsel for plaintiff and defendant stipulated that the complaint against the distributing companies included in the Crescent suit be dismissed, he said.

The second order issued by Judge Davies directed that four paragraphs be stricken from the original bill of complaint filed in federal court here August 11, 1939. The paragraphs referred to the defendant distributors and alleged methods of distributing films. Hughes said, however, that the stricken section did not remove the "body" of the main suit.

Hearings for Trio Of Damage Suits

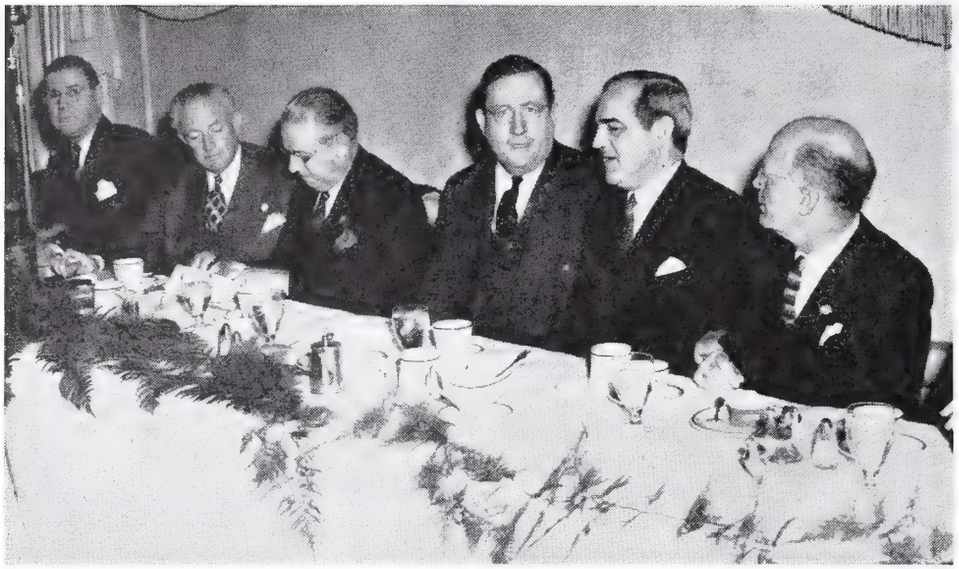
Dallas—Film men will again be witnesses and spectators in Judge W. H. Atwell's federal court when the Jorgensen, Glass and Kirchheimer damage suits against Interstate are set for hearing Monday, January 13. The Jorgensen case is believed to be first in line for a hearing.

Homer Mulkey Dead—

Death claimed Homer Mulkey, Clarendon, Tex., exhibitor, in Fort Worth Thursday morning several days following a major operation. He was one of the most widely known of the state's showmen.

Funeral Services Held For Ainslie G. Wood

DALLAS—Funeral services for Ainslie George Wood jr., manager of the Tower and Melba on Elm Street, who died suddenly of a heart attack, were held Monday with burial in Greenwood Cemetery.



He started in show business here several years ago, with his first training being under J. E. Luckett at the White Theatre. A graduate of Texas University and a former student at Cornell, he was a lieutenant in the cavalry during the First World War. Wood was also a member in a number of social and civic clubs, including Variety. He was 43 years old.

He is survived by two brothers, both of Dallas, one being Major E. A. Wood, city planning engineer.

Meeker to Manage Tower And Melba in Dallas

DALLAS—Charles R. Meeker, assistant to J. O. Cherry, Interstate's city manager, has been elevated to manager of both the Tower and Melba theatres on Elm Street, succeeding the late Ainslie G. Wood.

Meeker has been with Interstate for five years. He handled publicity for the Palace and the Majestic and was manager of the State in Amarillo for a year. He moved back to Dallas in 1939 as Cherry's assistant.

At the O'Donnell Testimonial—

600 Attend Luncheon Honoring O'Donnell

DALLAS—Six hundred members of the trade and their wives turned out for the Variety Club luncheon Monday at the Adolphus Hotel in honor of R. J. "Bob" O'Donnell, who recently retired as chief barker of the local Tent after five years in that post.

In the absence of Paul Short, the new chief barker, due to illness, his assistant, Burt King, presided.

The business of the gathering got under way with the reading of the creed of the Variety clubs by Wallace Walthall.

General William McCraw, the only speaker at the affair, was introduced by King following the luncheon. He paid a fine tribute to O'Donnell for his constructive efforts in behalf of Variety and the show business generally.

Shares Credit for Success

After taking from McCraw a gold card designating him honorary chief barker of the Tent for life, O'Donnell said that no one man in Tent No. 17 was responsible for its success. He pointed out that Ed Wilson, a Dallas exhibitor, was responsible for Variety choosing as its main charity objective the Freeman Memorial Clinic. Harry Sachs, he said, furnished the idea on how to raise the money for building a new wing onto the clinic. Ben Ferguson, another exhibitor, he said, was responsible for the Turtle Derby last year which provided funds to build the Sullivan Park swimming pool.

O'Donnell then introduced the 1940 officers and directors. He also introduced Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO, as the "local boy who made good in the big city," and James R. Grainger, president of Republic, both of whom were seated on the dais.

Following a custom instituted by "Dough Guy" J. B. Underwood, O'Donnell presented a gold key for the club door to the new chief barker, Paul Short. Mrs. Besa Short received the key in her husband's absence.

King then introduced the officers and directors for 1941 and read the many telegrams from over the country congratulating O'Donnell on the occasion.

The luncheon adjourned after two hours with the orchestra playing "Eyes of Texas." A long line passed in front of the dais congratulating and shaking hands with O'Donnell.

Ned Depinet Renews Dallas Friendships

DALLAS — Renewal of many life-long friendships were a part of the visit here this week of Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO, who was in town primarily to attend the Variety Club luncheon honoring R. J. O'Donnell, vice-president of Interstate.

Depinet, early in his career, traveled Texas as a film salesman for many years and later became branch manager for Consolidated Film & Supply Co. (Universal). When the big promotions did start, they came rapidly, stepping him up from district manager to general sales manager in short order. Then in short order he was made RKO vice-president.

Headquartering in his suite at the Adolphus Hotel, Depinet went over distribution matters for this territory with Robert Mochrie, RKO eastern division sales manager, and Sol Sachs, branch manager here. He also conferred and visited with the various circuit heads before returning to New York.

Tribute by McCraw To 'Bob' O'Donnell

DALLAS—Below, in abbreviated form, is the tribute paid to R. J. "Bob" O'Donnell by Gen. William McCraw at the Variety Club luncheon held Monday in O'Donnell's honor at the Adolphus Hotel:

"Bob O'Donnell began in an humble way. As a lad he knew the hardships of physical toil. He carried brick and mortar up the scaffolds of a great city, and so did his part to make it greater . . . His small wage was a contribution to the family funds to help in its fight to live. The boy was then the same unselfish, generous soul that the man is today.

"Bob O'Donnell loved laughter, he joyed in seeing people happy . . . Nothing was more natural than that 'show business' should take him and grow with him.

"Bob was a treasurer at 17. As the years mounted he moved on up the ladder. His has been the advancement of proven demonstrated ability. Bob O'Donnell has never crushed another or betrayed another that he might move on . . . Indeed it has been just the opposite. The boy hod-carrier learned how to build—the man has not forgotten the lesson of his youth.

Modest in Giving

"Charity is not an event with Bob O'Donnell—it's a religion. Yet there is a modesty, a lack of assumption, that makes his giving a double blessing . . . There's a story in the Holy Writ about a man like Bob O'Donnell. It is there recorded that on an occasion, a pretender, a man who carefully measured his charity and then gave only when the photographers were on hand. There were the type of men who pray in public places; there were the type of men whose piety is but a veneer to cover hypocrisy. This man stood in a public place near the Temple and, turning his eyes toward heaven, he thanked God that he was not like other men; he thanked God that he was better than his neighbors. Bob O'Donnell is not that type.

"Later a simple man came along. He had lived. He had won. He had lost. He knew the depths to which men might fall. He knew the heights to which men could rise but, above all, he recognized how vain is the accomplishment of man. In a quiet place, he looked not towards the heavens but cast his eyes toward the ground. His prayer was a plea of humility—'God, have mercy on me a sinner.'

"One of God's Noblemen"

"I don't know what Bob's religion is, but I know that only a good tree can bring forth good fruit. My town is a better town today than it was before he came this way. His leadership and generosity will be felt long after we are gone in the lives of now crippled children who will then be sound men and women. Texas will be a better state by reason of the added strength of the underprivileged who have been given new vision and a clear perspective.

"I am not given to too fulsome praise. I've seen too many men look good and then fail. But here today we have no fears. No king need knight Bob O'Donnell, for he is one of God's Noblemen."

DALLAS

FRED M. JACK, Warner southwest district manager, a pneumonia victim, is reported "better" at Medical Arts Hospital. He was able to sit up last Tuesday. He will be confined some days yet, however . . . Doak Roberts, Warner branch manager here, was down a few days with the flu but is now back on the job.

Burt King was complimented generally on his appearance as master of ceremonies at the O'Donnell luncheon Monday. He pinch-hitted for Chief Barker Paul Short, who was sick. It was all extemporaneous with Burt, but he did a swell job. He said it was his first experience at an affair of this calibre.

A. V. Wade, who owns the Gainesville theatres, including the new and modern State, in affiliation with Griffith, was here Monday for a brief visit.

An established fact is that L. B. Brown of the Regal and Ritz in Gatesville, is expert with the rod and reel, and most always brings in a string. A second fact now uncovered, is that he is equally good, looking down the barrel of a shot gun. He went quail hunting the other day, shot three times and only killed two birds. That made the headlines. The Coryell County News carried a three-line banner head screaming, "L. B. Brown sought by police, shot three times, killed only two quail." It was a prank by friends, of course, but evidently it's an offense when Brown misses.

The Nathan Browns, operators of the Sunset, had with them during Christmas week their father-in-law, F. W. Kaufman, who is a business man in St. Louis. The visitor was shown around the film exchanges and supply houses.

Mrs. Mary Straker, mother of Mrs. Joe Estes, whose husband is the trailer expert at National, was here from Chicago for the holidays. She attended the Variety New Year's Eve party.

Jimmie Scott, who arrived several weeks ago for special sales work on Alexander Prevues, has been made district manager of the company with headquarters in Dallas and with charge over the Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas territories. Tom Patterson, vice-president of the Alexander company, spent a week here from his office in Colorado Springs.

Bob Hooks of Mineola altered routine by spending two days on the Row this week instead of the usual one. The reason was the new theatre he is to open soon in the new oil town of Hawkins. Bob said he was booking pictures and completing his equipment buying and that he just couldn't get through in a day.

Claude Ezell of Republic turned in with the flu for a few days.

Mrs. Morris Schulman of the Bryan Amusement Co. was here during and after the holidays taking in a number of social festivities.

Mart Cole arrived Wednesday from Rosenburg to catch up on bookings after being interned with the flu. He said all of his south Texas towns were hard hit, not only from the cash standpoint, but that his operators and cashiers were also out.

Julius Gordon, chairman of the board of Jefferson Amusement Co., was here for an after-the-holidays visit. He attended the O'Donnell luncheon Monday . . . M. K. McDaniel, owner of the Lamar at La-Marque near Galveston, was here calling on exchanges with Forrest White of Ind-Ex Booking Service, who books the house.

L. C. Baxley, who operates the new Plaza in Houston, and Roy Howell, who has three theatres at Coleman, were on the Row booking.

Herschel Crawford, owner of the Palace at Slaton; K. N. Greer, R&R partner at Cisco; J. C. Chatmas, Palace, Marlin; and Martin Lamour, who is about ready to open the new National at Graham, were in town Wednesday.

J. S. Walker of the Texas at Grand Prairie, where many of Uncle Sam's warplanes are soon to be built, was using a cane to get around the Row because of a knee injury . . . George Wiley left here Thursday for Seminole where he takes a job with W. E. Cox as projectionist and lobby man at the Palace.

See "Know Your Money"

WICHITA FALLS, TEX.—"Know Your Money" was shown free of charge at Hardin Junior College to students and townspeople.

SANTONE

IT IS estimated 15,000 persons attended the New Year's Eve midnight performances held in ten Interstate theatres . . . The Roller Derby is drawing 4,000 sport fans nightly to the Municipal Auditorium . . . Back on duty after an illness: Beulah Greene, State cashier, and Miss J. B. Powell, Majestic concession vender.

Owl show at the National featured Arturo de Cardova, film star from Mexico; Senorita Luz Maria Nunez, Jorge Reyes, and Don Alverito at the piano . . . Richard Nussel was recently appointed assistant manager of the new Drive-In. Wayne McNeil is the new chief of service . . . Leo Kuentz has been promoted from doorman to assistant chief usher at the Empire . . . Jack Ford, formerly of the Empire, is now service staff chief at the State.

Buddy Morey, formerly employed at the Drive-In, has joined the Navy and is at present stationed in San Diego . . . Lionel Stiglets, lately on the Majestic floor staff, has been transferred to the Texas as assistant chief of service . . . Interstate has taken over the old Sam Houston which will be remodeled and reopened soon.

Jack Silverthorne has been shifted from the State to manage the Prince, which Interstate acquired from L. M. Oppenheimer recently. Richard Corneilson takes Silverthorne's place as assistant skipper at the State . . . When Bert Smith's musical comedy company moves into the Texas, January 17, there will be 24 gals in line, comedians, an orchestra, feature picture, and bills will be changed weekly.

From Corsicana comes news that the Palace, a 1,250 seater, was damaged by fire last Monday. Estimated loss was $8,000 . . . Once again we ask south Texas showmen, who have any news of interest to the trade, to jot it down on the back of a postcard and mail it to Lester Ketner, 531 North St., San Antonio, Tex. Then watch BOXOFFICE for same in print.

Dallas Grosses Climbing; "Comrade" Stands Out

DALLAS—Grosses on Elm Street continued up New Year's week. Tops was "Comrade X" at the Palace, which came in New Year's Day following "Love Thy Neighbor," which was shifted to the Tower. Unusual for the Street was the double bill at the Capitol which stood them up. The pictures were "Girls of the Road" and "Boys of the City."

Gene Autry, because of the extra quality in "Melody Ranch," moved into the Rialto as a "promotion" from the Capitol where he plays regularly.

Detail for the week ending January 5:

(Average is 100)

Tower—Go West (M-G-M), 2nd wk.....100

New Year's Grosses Are Not Up to Expectancy

NEW ORLEANS—New Year's week grosses were not up to expectancy in New Orleans due to bad weather and the fact that thousands of holiday merry-makers turned to night club and hotels in which to see the old year out. However, the Rio, featuring Republic's "Melody Ranch," reported above average attendance at a slight upward price tilt, as did the Orpheum, Saenger, Loew's and Liberty for special New Year's Eve night shows.

(Average is 100)

Center—East of the River (WB) 95
Globe—Down Argentine Way (20th-Fox)..... 90

Strand—Tropic Fury (Univ) 100
Tudor—Hit Parade of 1941 (Rep) 100

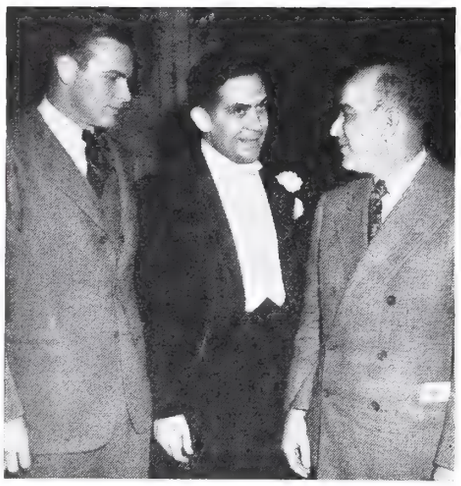
Tough Weather Retards Holiday Week Takes



OKLAHOMA CITY—Tough weather held grosses back a little during the holiday week. New Year's Eve previews generally did good business with "Kitty Foyle" at the State, "Love Thy Neighbor" at the Criterion, and "Boom Town" at the Circle (subsequent run) getting the most play.

Only competition was January 1 staging of "Philadelphia Story" at the Shrine with Katharine Hepburn in person.

Details for the week ended December 31:

(Average is 100)

Criterion—Comrade X (M-G-M) 110
Liberty—Give Us Wings (Univ); Courageous Dr. Christian (RKO) 105

Moved from first good week at Criterion.

Cotton Bowl Interlude—

On the eve of the fifth annual Cotton Bowl game between Texas A&M and Fordham, Tent No. 17 of the Variety Club of Texas staged its most successful New Year's Eve dance and celebration at the Adolphus in Dallas. Present were some 700 members and guests, including such names as Kate Smith, Grantland Rice and Clarence Budington Kelland, in addition to nearly a score of ace eastern sports writers who came in for the grid classic. Above, during an interlude in the festivities, the camera caught, left to right: "Jarrin' Jawn" Kimbrough, A&M's two-year all-American; Paul Short, newly-elected chief barker of Tent 17, and Kimbrough's mentor, Coach Homer Norton of A&M.

Sacks Behind New House Going Up in Beaumont

DALLAS—Lester and Alfred Sack are behind a new neighborhood theatre for colored now under construction in Beaumont, it is learned.

The building, all new, was designed by Raymond Smith, Dallas architect. To be fireproof and to seat 500, it will be operated by South Texas Theatres, Inc., the incorporators being Lambert Toplitz, a Beaumont business man; Harry Jacobson and Lester and Alfred Sack.

With a minimum of weather delays, the theatre should open the last of February.

Robert Hooks to Open New Select, Hawkins

MINEOLA, TEX.—Robert Hooks, operating the Select Theatre here, is about to open the new Select at Hawkins, 16 miles east, where oil play and some production, has created no small boom. The building is well under way, picture contracts have been put through and the opening is expected in about 45 days.

AUSTIN

SHORT short story: About six months or so ago, Paramount sent Director Jimmy Hogan and a camera outfit to our town to shoot pictures of Austin, the capitol building, and Texas Ranger headquarters for "Texas Rangers Ride Again." All the city folk were excited about the event, but now word comes from Hollywood that less than 30 seconds' running time is given over to the Austin shots in the completed production.

Recent "a. k." flickers at the Texas (Manager Gerald Raines) include "Scarface," "Sky Devils," "History Is Made at Night," and "San Francisco" . . . Paramount's pack-'em-in midnight show Saturday was "This Thing Called Love" (Col) . . . Bill Hellums of the Capitol paired "The Quarterback" (Para't) and a two-reeler, "Highlights of the 1940 Southwest Conference," for nice grosses . . . "Santa Fe Trail" (FN) played the State one week, which ordinarily books two shows weekly.

Ruel McDaniel, author of the book, "Vinegaroon," upon which parts of "The Westerner" (UA) were based, seen doing research work for another book in the Texana collection of the University of Texas library . . . Put a black wig on Elmo Hegman, skipper of the Ritz, and what do you have? A dead ringer for Orson Welles . . . "The Philadelphia Story" (stage version) a sellout at the Paramount . . . "Manana Is Another Day," original comedy that premiered on the U. of T. campus recently, set for a week's run in the Pasadena Playhouse.

Betty Waite, of the theatrical Waites of Texas, to Beaumont and back . . . Mary Murchison made a quickie trip to Fort Worth . . . Dorothy Warren in town again after visiting the folks in Washington, D. C. . . . That new usher at the Queen is Harper Green . . . LaVon Buck back at the Paramount candy counter after the two-week singing engagement with Barney Rapp at the Plantation, Houston . . . Byron Speckles dashed home to Yoakum for a day . . . And Wilbur Evans to Mexia and back.

Max Terhune, long featured as one of the buddies in the "Mesquiteer" series and now playing the role of "Alibi" in the Range Buster series for Monogram, made a two-day personal appearance at the Ritz. Other recent stage appearances at this live-wire independent theatre have been made by John "Dusty" King, one of Terhune's associates in the Range Buster pictures; and Tex Ritter.

New 1,300-Seater for Oak Cliff in Dallas

DALLAS—Robb & Rowley-United Theatres will build a new 1,300 seat de luxer in Oak Cliff, it is announced.

The location is at the corner of Hampton and Colorado and takes in the Stevens Park area. Robb & Rowley also operate the Texas, Rosewin, Midway, Bison and Astor in Oak Cliff.

MEMPHIS

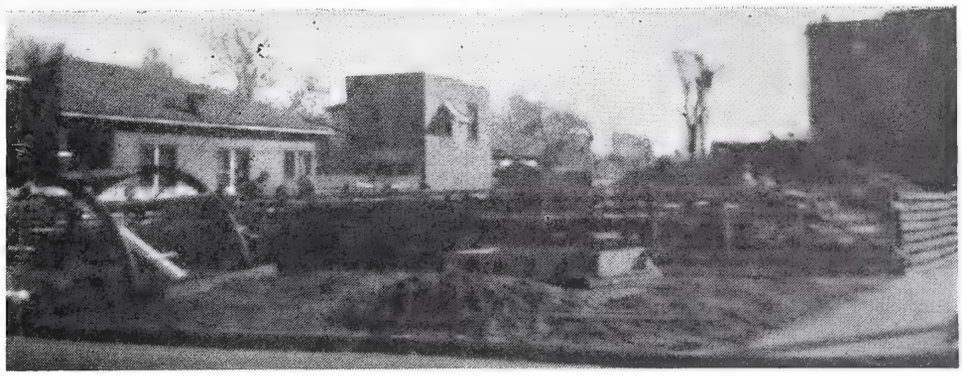
AMONG those who attended the Sugar Bowl Game in New Orleans were Gerene and Jimmy Rogers, who sit at the controls of the Columbia exchange; E. R. Gillette of the Bristol, who was fighting a siege of the flu, and Walter Parham of the Royal. Walter is rather unhappy these days, having picked the wrong team to win.

Ed Gibbons, manager of the Millington at Millington, Tenn., and right hand man to G. W. Haynes and the Strand Enterprises, left Monday for a year's training at Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga.

With the flu practically reaching the epidemic stage in Memphis all the exchanges are working short handed. Among those who have been absent are: Bob Bostick, NTS; Bill Lewis, Monogram; Berney Rappaport, Paramount; Mildred Neighbors, Republic; Irene Jones, RKO; Sally Scott, R&R office, and many others.

Harry Shaw, the manager of the Ritz at Aberdeen, Miss., made his initial booking trip to the Row since taking over his new duties . . . A most infrequent Filmrow visitor was Joe Dillard of the Dillard in Wardell, Mo. . . . Grover Lantrip has announced the opening of a new theatre in Parrish, Ala., during the early part of the year. He now operates theatres in Powhatan, Cool Valley, Phillips and Oakman, Ala. . . . R. H. Collins, with Mrs. Collins, who operate the Country Show at Maben, Miss., were recent visitors.

Lyle Richmond and John Mohrstadt, who operate a circuit of theatres in northeast Missouri, were forced to close their house in Campbell, Mo., for approximately ten days due to the flu. Incidentally, it was necessary for Lyle to leave John to finish the circuit bookings on their trip to Memphis this past week, as he had to return to his home in Senath due to a sudden attack of the flu.



Joe Applebaum and Mrs. Applebaum combined business with pleasure on their trip to Memphis. They came up New Year's Eve to see the old year out and greet 1941 in the Skyway at the Hotel Peabody. Joe started the new year off right by spending New Year's Day booking . . . W. F. Ruffin of the Ruffin Amusement Co., at Covington, Tenn., has been confined to his home for the past week, due to old man flu.

Exhibitors seen along the Row: W. B. Ford, New, Hamilton, Ala.; Ned Greene, Legion, Princess, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Noble (Mr. Noble doing the booking for the Harlem at Greenville, Miss., while Mrs. Noble booked for the Temple and Rex at Leland, Miss.); G. F. Goff, Rustic, Parsons, Tenn.; Orris Collins, Capitol, Paragould, Ark.; K. K. King, Commonwealth Amusement Co., Searcy, Ark.; G. E. Sibley, Dixy, Adamsville, Tenn.; Wilford Bonds, Dyer, Dyer, Tenn.; J. R. Adams, Bruce, Bruce, Miss.; R. J. Goodman, Rex and State, Starkville, Miss.; G. H. Brewer, Savoy, Clarksdale, Miss.

This week saw the return of the salesmen into the territory after two weeks vacation, which just about covered the entire United States . . . Ann Stevens of the RKO Exchange is recuperating at home from a major operation at the Baptist Hospital . . . Speaking of salesmen and vacations Milton Lindner, salesman for NSS, who spent his vacation in New York City, which is his home, arrived there in time to be rushed to the hospital for an emergency appendectomy. As yet "Lindy" has been unable to make the return trip . . . Dorothy Gardner, also of the local NSS office, is recuperating at home from an appendectomy.

The New Year's party given at the Variety Club was one of the best parties of the season. M. A. Lightman jr., who was in charge of all arrangements, planned and executed a very novel idea in entertainment . . . A. D. Fielder, and his booker, Gladys McCallum, of Steele and Lilbourne, Mo., were on the Row booking for the first time since the holidays . . . W. A. Rush, who owns the Houston at Houston, Miss., announces the temporary closing of his theatre until the flu epidemic subsides.

Tommy Haynes, Columbia salesman, went quail hunting the first few days of his vacation and walked so much that he spent the balance of his vacation at home, sans shoes, in an effort to ease the pain caused by his blistered feet . . . The Variety Club is boasting a new carpet in the reception rooms . . . An infrequent visitor was C. H. McCroskey, who spent a couple of days advancing his bookings for Dermott, Eudora and Lake Village . . . V. G. Williams sr., of Grenada, Miss., father of Homer J. Williams of the Grenada and Pix theatres in Grenada, Miss., died at his home in Grenada on January 5 after a short illness. Mr. Williams was 84 years old. Funeral services were held Monday, January 6.

A Health Center Will Rise Here—

In time, on this rather empty-looking site, will rise Tent No. 22's first major charity project, a community health center. Work began only recently on the project, to be situated at Hudson and Pottawatomie Avenues, near downtown Oklahoma City.

Touring Tennessee

By A. JULES BENEDIC

NASHVILLE—As we slip into Sudekumville—beg pardon!—Nashville, the impression grows that prosperity, so long 'round the corner, perhaps is here at last. At least, milling crowds riotously welcoming the New Year, and spending real money withal, give rise to that impression. Nineteen-forty-one got the noisiest welcome of any year thus far, the Nashville press reports, and the New Year, along with "Comrade X," proved an irresistible combination at Loew's here. Maybe no records were broken, but overflow crowds were the rule and, it is feared at this writing, that Manager Will Crull and Assistant B. Cranch have a hit on their hands.

BENEDIC

Linking the Laugh to Lyons

We tried to get into the midnight show, as a paid customer, (something highly unusual) but it was no go. So we joined the other 'villians at the Knickerbocker, where "No, No, Nanette" also was playing to crowded houses. Next day we confided to Hubert Lyons, RKO Atlanta manager, here on a business visit, that Anna Neagle is due for an Oscar soon. Tony Sudekum, who overheard the remark, said that if she did, she'd get it under some banner other than RKO's. Of course, Mr. Tony's sally must be accepted as just such, for he good-naturedly chaffed the Atlanta exchange manager during the latter's entire stay here.

We crowded Mr. Tony for news, and he conservatively allowed that the biggest news of the week is Hubert Lyons' visit, already chronicled, so it will have to go at that. Inadvertently, however, he let slip that the attractively-lighted map-of-the-world globe and stand near his desk was a Christmas gift from his Negro porters. Perhaps a little thing in itself, but it gives some idea of the high regard in which this stalwart Tennesseean, member of the Governor's staff for years, is held in all circles hereabouts. So it's this easy-to-get-along-with guy who's head of one of the largest theatrical empires in the country!

Needless Shifting of Shifts

Later the Crull-Cranch combination Oakleys us into "Comrade X," the M-G-M killer-diller that's slaying local 'villians. The picture's a knockout, and Hedy the same, even encased in that Soviet nightgown. Nobody except that blase Gable would complain, and request a shift to a more modern bed-garment. This shifting of shifts,* so to speak, is a needless waste of time, in our estimation, which might be better employed in that Kremlinesque hideaway. Rigidly we take the stand that Hedy as a honeymooner is high, low, Jack and the game as compared with these other Hollywood cuties. We've seen Hedy shifted, as in "Comrade X," and shiftless, as in "Ecstasy," and the gal takes not only the cake, but the whole bakery—and the proprietor's nephew.

We flit to the Fifth Avenue, where our old friend, Lee Castleberry, holds forth, or sometimes Fifth; Lee being also, in a manner of speaking, the Man Friday for the Crescent crowd. Lee pulls a hot showmanship stunt in our presence, the same being duly linotyped elsewhere near this paragraph. We're also his guest. Nashville's pretty far north, but that Tennessee hospitality is rampant.

Bijou's Banner Bristles

Over paving blocks that remind us of Poydras St. in the New Orleans of yesteryear, we bump to Bijou Amusement headquarters. We spiel with Sprott, whose first name is Evans, and also renew acquaintance with Milton Starr and meet Harry Sternheimer. These Starr boys, incidentally, have parlayed a couple of "jig joints" into a vast colored theatre empire that covers Dixie just like Bill Oldknow used to say Consolidated Film did in the old days. This slang must be pardoned, boys, for this hard-bitten reviewer sees here one pip of an operation.

Evans confides that Bijou has just taken over the Star at Meridian, Miss., from Charles R. Hatcher and closed it for repairs that will run into some $15,000. This acquisition, along with the Bailey holdings in Atlanta and the far south area, places approximately half a hundred houses under the Bijou banner.

Quick Wits— And $1,675!

Nashville—Lee Castleberry, Fifth Avenue Theatre prexy, pulled a nifty before an overflow audience on "Bank Account Night."

Out of 69,000 pellets, that of Mrs. D. E. Eddins, local matron, was drawn from Pandora's box.

The amount was $1,675, an elegant New Year's present in any language!

Mrs. Eddins, mother of a well-known local radio singer, was not present. She had signed an attendance card, however.

Lee thought he wasn't getting any run for that big dough. There were thousands present.

So he galloped to a phone. He squeezed into the booth. 'Twas a tight fit, as associates who know the Castleberry embonpoint will verify.

Mrs. Eddins waxed unintelligible at first. But she seized the thought she was wanted at the theatre immediately. Then she seized a taxi.

Mrs. Eddins stopped long enough to say thanks.

The audience stopped to stamp and cheer.

*EDITOR'S NOTE: Although this is probably the world's worst pun, our traveling emissary uses the word "shift" properly, at least in a grammatical sense. Our representative calls attention to the unabridged work of one N. Webster, top of column two, page 2,312. There are 30 definitions of the word. No. 5 he passes over lightly. This reads:

"A device for entertainment. Obs."

No. 7, divided into a number of sections, is more to the point:

(B) "A body garment for either sex; now, a woman's chemise. (C) Dial., A shirt."

Memphis Hopes Flu Will Flee

MEMPHIS—You've either got it, or you haven't. We refer to the flu. More than likely you have it. It's no news, therefore, to mention the filmites down on what the chiropractors work on. If we printed the names of those who have it, there'd be on room. Accordingly, next week we plan to run a much shorter list of those still trodding terra firma.

There's a silver lining in every cloud, of course, and this week there'll be another headache in the Kansas City counting room, for we've added a bottle of spiritus frumenti to the w. k. expense account, to be used, of course, purely for medicinal purposes.

This flu attack has reached epidemic proportions, but fortunately seems to be mild in form. The Commercial-Appeal cleverly headlines the situation on its front page:

IF YOU HAVE THE FLU
ONE OF SIX ARE YOU

That means that 50,000 persons here are more or less affected, and film exchanges are running only about 80 per cent of efficiency. M. A. Lightman, head of the Malco circuit, is down with a slight attack, as is W. G. Ruffin, of the Ruffin circuit at Covington, Tenn. Others are legion.

Weather at this writing is exceptionally cold, and getting colder, which may be a good sign, doctors opine.

Flu or no flu, it is refreshing to note, after an absence of some five years, that Filmrow greatly has changed for the better. Modern buildings have replaced the shackified structures that formerly housed the exchanges.

Mrs. Luck Seems in Luck

Speaking generally, the territory is in good shape. Double bills are mostly the rule in the neighborhood houses. Admissions are fair. New houses are springing up over the territory, due to commercial, governmental and other projects. A feeling of optimism is prevalent all over the area, although in no more pronounced degree than in other territories traversed recently. So it would seem, generally speaking, that better times are in prospect the country over.

Memphis area personal notes will follow next week, but as a finale to this diatribe we cannot help but comment on our visit to Phil Zerilla's Rialto in northern Memphis. During the late summer, Phil had a $300 cash drawing dangling. A lady won it. The lady's picture hangs in the lobby.

Her name is Mrs. I. M. Luck!

New Theatre for Gleason

GLEASON, TENN.—Duke Allen of Kenton is installing equipment for a theatre here in a building formerly occupied by a drug store. Plans are to open the house on January 10.

ATLANTA

FILMROW was quite a busy place this week. Visitors were D. R. Regan, Roxy, Selma, Ala.; John Cunningham, Edison, Miami, Fla.; A. J. Hook jr. and R. E. Hook, Aliceville, Ala.; Carl Floyd, Floyd Theatres, Haines City, Fla.; W. J. Collins, Toccoa, Ga.; J. Jarrell, Roxy, Commerce, Ga.; H. V. Manning, Gem, Etowah, Tenn.; Hugh and E. D. Martin, Martin Theatres, Columbus, Ga.; Mose Lebovitz, Grand, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. Violet Edwards, Royal, Monticello, Ga.; Mrs. Lucille Cobb, Roxy, Fayette, Ala.; James E. Waters, Fairburn, Fairburn, Ga.; "Mayor" T. K. Jones, Ritz, Dadeville, Ala.; Mary Brockett, Crescent Amusement Co., Nashville, Tenn., and R. D. "Bob" Word, Ritz, Scottsboro, Ala.

Mrs. Louis "Rosalie" Feldman, formerly secretary to R. L. McCoy at Warner's, has a red-headed baby boy that has been named Joel Martin. Rosalie and baby are both doing fine at Piedmont Hospital. Leon Clark, of the same office, is also the proud father of a boy born this past week . . . Still on the sick list is Fred Jack of Warner's; Mary Will Guest, 20th Century-Fox, and Peggy McGuire, Lucas & Jenkins.

Tom Gilliam, Warner's new branch manager, and his family have moved into their new home . . . Elsie Harvey has been added to the personnel of Georgia Theatre Service Corp. Elizabeth "Lib" Cowen of the same office, announces her marriage to "Bill" Pitts of South Carolina . . . Friends of Fred Levine, manager of Bash's Ponce de Leon Theatre, who is ill, will be glad to learn he is much improved.

Nat Williams of the Rose, Thomasville, Ga., has been made a lieutenant colonel on the staff of Governor Talmadge . . . Joe Abercrombie of the Emory, Atlanta, reports he will show the French film, "Harvest," in the near future . . . Marion Watkins, who has been connected with United Artists for a number of years, announces her engagement to Hal H. Macon, who operates the Georgia and State theatres in Statesboro, Ga. Marriage will take place at an early date.

Jack Price, formerly of New Orleans and Atlanta, has been made branch manager for Paramount. Jack Kirby has been upped to district manager . . . John Hackney, ad sales manager for 20th Century-Fox, has resigned to accept a commission with the CCC in North Georgia. Luther Rutland replaces him. Mary Carsgrove, who resigned from the same office, is replaced by Elizabeth Helmer . . . Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Savini of Savini Films celebrated their 25th anniversary this past week. They were entertained at a banquet and theatre party.

The Atlanta exchange of Producers Releasing Corp. is being remodeled . . . Ika Katz, district manager of Producers Releasing Corp., is elated over the response throughout the territory to his company's latest releases, "Devil Bat," a super-chiller with Bela Lugosi, and "Misbehaving Husbands," starring Harry Langdon . . . Don Prince of RKO whose hobby is writing books has his second "masterpiece" ready for the publishers. His first, in case you don't know, was "Tom."

Begin Charging for Entertainment

Dallas—The first instance of a local department store charging an admission for its entertainment, or "added attractions," is at Titche-Goettinger's where tickets are on sale at 20 cents for adults and 10 cents for children for the Victor Puppet Opera. Five different operas are to be presented

In the past, department store auditoriums have offered book reviews, lectures, and local talent gratis to customers.

NEW ORLEANS

A TESTIMONIAL was tendered E. B. Price, manager of the Paramount exchange, who has been promoted to a similar post in Atlanta . . . A. L. Runbach, formerly manager of the Claiborn, is now in charge of United Theatres' new house, the Algy, on the west side . . . Jimmie Briant, resident manager for M-G-M, has been confined to his home the past few days with the flu, which is now prevalent in New Orleans and has put many exchange employes in bed . . . The influx of militiamen from adjoining training camps has materially increased grosses at downtown houses.

Visitors to the Row: Louisiana—A. J. Broussard, Bruce, Crowley; Morris Meltz, Arcade, Ferriday; O. A. Ott, Kentwood; A. Marrelo, Rendevois, Grand Isle; Vic Maurin, Fox, Houma; Anthony Sumpia, Raceland, Raceland; Lou Langlois, Arcade, New Roads; Gordon G. Ogden, Chimes, Baton Rouge. Mississippi—Ed Delaney, Pike, Magnolia; Stanley Taylor, Crosby, Crosby, and Frank Bishop, Varsity, Ellisville.

June Preisser, Metro player, home for the holidays, headed a drive to raise funds for Greek war relief . . . "The Philadelphia Story," with Katharine Hepburn, comes to the Municipal Auditorium stage January 13, sponsored by the Theatre Guild at a $3.30 top.

The races will be back at the Fair Grounds in less than 30 days, is a prediction in local sporting circles. A syndicate of prominent business men has purchased the equipment of the defunct Jockey Club and the track. It is also said that night racing will be permitted.

OKLA. CITY

L C. GRIFFITH, head of Griffith Amusement Co., received another honor last week. This time he was named new imperial potentate of India Shrine Temple here. He also becomes imperial representative to the imperial council.

Mrs. Myrtle Guthrie, owner and manager of the Ritz at Clinton, Okla., and Hugh Hartley, salesman for the Standard Neon Co. of Weatherford, were married at the Methodist parsonage in El Reno, Okla.

Catch up note: The 120 employes of Standard Theatres, Inc., received Christmas bonuses totaling $1,500 . . . Sam Caporals' new Bison on Northeast 23rd Street is nearing completion and should be ready for opening soon.

A lot of Oklahoma City pass hounds are grieving as T. B. Noble cut the State's annual pass list down to 25; Standard had previously applied the scissors to theirs.

Set Off Tear Gas in Unit Showing Anti-Nazi Film

HAL JORDAN, Warner salesman, and his wife have returned from a holiday trip to Florida. Manager John Bachman and Salesmen Dean House and Hal Keeter, celebrated at home by helping their wives . . . H. H. Everett, chief barker of the Variety Club, announces that architects have finished plans for club headquarters in the Hotel Charlotte. A special called luncheon meeting will be held at the hotel January 11, and between January 6 and January 11, there will be a meeting of the Crew to consider contractors' bids and award the contract in order that the membership may be given a full report at the luncheon meeting . . . Jack London, Republic salesman, his wife and daughter, have returned from a trip to New York where they visited relatives.

George Mobley, ad sales manager for Universal, has resigned to accept a position with the J. A. Jones Construction Co. at Fort Jackson, S. C., on a defense works project. He is replaced by Charles Morris of the shipping department. Carl Ingle of National Screen Service becomes the new shipper . . . Charles Freeman, booking manager for Paramount, has resigned, effective January 15. He goes to Knoxville, Tenn., to manage one of the Wilby houses.

Manager John Bachman and all Warner employes are highly elated over returns from "Santa Fe Trail" and "Four Mothers" . . . William "Bill" Pickert, genial Warner booker, has resigned, effective January 11, to become associated with the United States Army Motion Picture Service with headquarters in St. Louis . . . J. C. Thompson has sold his Loris, Loris, S. C., to H. J. Nelson of Chadbourn, N. C. . . . O. I. Sheeley of the Casino and Broadway theatres in Clinton, S. C., has contracted with Ben Ralston for SESCo. service, and A. I. Mason has signed renewal agreements for the Capitol and Echo theatres in Laurens, S. C. "Rosy" Rosenblatt has secured contracts from Bill Webb for SESCo. service for the Rogers and Carolina theatres in Shelby, N. C.

A. B. McCoy of the Carolina, Conway, S. C., is seriously ill . . . The mother of P. J., W. F. and C. H. Caudell is very ill in a hospital in Lumberton, N. C. The Caudells operate theatres in Fairmont, N. C., Wallace, N. C. and Marshville, N. C. . . . R. L. Simpson of Alexander Film Co. is recuperating from an attack of flu . . . C. M. Harrell, formerly of Gibsonville, N. C., has just opened his New Theatre in Haw River, N. C.

Al Burks, exploiteer for Metro, has returned from Greenville, S. C., where he inaugurated a second run campaign for "Boom Town" to be shown by Fred Curdts at his Ritz . . . Nat Fisher, office manager for National Screen Service, has resigned as of January 18, to assist J. E. Massie in the operation of his theatres in Waynesville, N. C., Sylva, N. C., Bryson City, N. C., and Gatlinburg, Tenn. Jim Massie recently purchased a cub aeroplane and plans to take instructions at an early date. His son, Frank, who manages the Sylva house, has already secured a student pilot license with more than 70 hours in the air to his credit.

Barney Ross, Metro South Carolina sales representative, has returned from a two-week vacation . . . The new home of Leo the Lion on Church Street is rapidly nearing completion and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer people expect to move in within the very near future . . . Plans are now under way for the return showing of "Gone With the Wind," which should be very good news to those who are anxious to see this picture again and others who were unable to see it on the first engagement.

Carolinians were very happy to learn that John F. Kirby was made southern district manager for Paramount. Headquarters will be in Atlanta with jurisdiction over Memphis, New Orleans, Atlanta and Charlotte. Hosts of friends will welcome his trips to Charlotte . . . Sol Frifield, Paramount salesman, has been transferred to New Orleans as branch manager . . . Visitors: E. L. Hearne of the Alameda in Albemarle, N. C.; J. C. Holland, Lyman, Lyman, S. C.; R. C. Whitehurst of the Jackson in Jackson, N. C., and the Pastime in Murfreesboro, N. C.; Pete Webb, Webb, Shelby, N. C., and H. P. Howell and R. Glenn Davis (Howell-Davis circuit) of Smithfield, N. C., and Louisburg, N. C. . . . Harry Hardy and Roy Smart, accompanied by Warren Irvin of Columbia, S. C., all connected with North Carolina Theatres, Inc. (Wilby-Kincey), have returned from Miami where they attended the Orange Bowl game.

Discover Fraud in A Cash Giveaway

SPRINGFIELD, TENN. — County officials have broken up what they believed was the nucleus of a ring to defraud theatres at Bank Night drawings.

After $600 had been paid on a ticket at a drawing in the Capitol, Manager A. L. Hancock discovered there were several thousand tickets identically numbered in the container. By some unknown means they had been substituted for the authentic numbers.

The drawings at the Capitol have been discontinued until the matter is cleared up.

"A Christmas Carol" to Over 3,000 Children

YAZOO, MISS.—More than 3,000 school children of this city and the surrounding area were guests of Manager Frank Mutz of the Dixie at special showings of "A Christmas Carol."

A special canned goods matinee also was sponsored by the theatre. Over one ton of canned goods was taken in for distribution to local needy during the Christmas holiday.

Signs With Altec

THOMASVILLE, GA.—Nat M. Williams has signed a contract with Altec covering sound and repair-replacement service for the Interstate Enterprises circuit of eight theatres in Florida and Georgia.

Jefferson and East Texas Theatres Sign With AA

DALLAS—Another circuit deal made by Advertising Accessories, Inc., at about the time the Robb & Rowley deal was announced, is that of Jefferson Amusement Co. and East Texas Theatres, which have turned over the handling of their paper to the National Screen subsidiary. Joe Thompson, who was in charge of the Jefferson poster and accessory department here, is now working in the AA office.

MIAMI

UNIVERSAL'S promotional coup, being staged in connection with the world premiere at Miami Beach's Lincoln of "Back Street" February 4, is making Manager Sonny Shepherd host to a host. It's this way—Universal is bringing down for the premiere, and for a week's vacation, 150 newspaper critics from representative papers east of the Mississippi. Sonny's assignment is arranging their entertainment schedule. First of his premieres, however, is UA's "So Ends Our Night," which is scheduled for January 24.

Speaking of exploitation, the Mars Candy Co. is sure pushing Universal as they bring their broadcast of "Dr. I. Q." into this area. Wednesday night they engaged the entire Olympia Theatre from 7 p. m. on for two demonstration programs, giving complete shows without, of course, the customary broadcasting. Beginning Monday night, and for five consecutive weeks, the regular airing of Lew Valentine's high-priced questions will be incorporated in the Olympia's program from 9 to 9:30 p. m. This will merely mean, Manager A. Weiss explains, that their entire show schedule will run one-half hour longer on these Monday evenings.

Out at the Colonnade studios in Coral Gables, work is starting on George A. Hirliman's second full-length feature to be made there. It is to be an English war picture, titled "Bomb Shelter" . . . Preparations are already being made by Edgar Pierce and his staff for the big annual benefit "Cavalcade of Stars" which the YMHA stages annually at the Plaza where the recently-opened new luncheonette is reported to be doing a neat bit of business. The big benefit show is to be an event of early February.

Recent changes in personnel at local houses have seen Tom Manning go in as manager of Paramount's Coral in Coral Gables. Manning has been manager of the Roxy and the Community since being advanced from assistant at the Olympia. With him as his assistant is William Merrill . . . When T. W. Skipper went up to work with Howard Pettingill at the Paramount, Ralph McEntyre, formerly associated with RKO at Cincinnati, was named assistant manager at the Gables . . . Also promoted from the Olympia was Billy Mount, who went from the assistant's post at Al Weiss' big Flagler Street spot, to manager of the Regent.

Still Urges Lifting Of Juvenile Bars

MONTREAL—If the Quebec government ever fully restores to the children of the province the privilege of attending motion picture shows, which has been withheld from them for a number of years, much of the credit will go to S. Morgan-Powell, editor-in-chief of Montreal Daily Star, and world-famed dramatic and film critic. In a holiday article, Mr. Morgan-Powell said: "At the risk of appearing to be over-insistent I want to draw attention to the fact that the children of Montreal are still the only children in any of the world's great cities who are deprived of the privilege of seeing good film entertainment. While Canadians in other parts of the Dominion are allowed to see pictures that are approved as fit for young people, our boys and girls have to wait until they are 16 before they can enter a motion picture theatre. Even on the few occasions when a point has been stretched, such, for instance, as the visit of Walt Disney's 'Snow White,' there has been a misunderstanding between the civic and provincial authorities, with the result that some theatre managers who had been under the impression that they were doing the youngsters a favor, were prosecuted for their pains."

Hope that the ban on admission of children will be removed in 1941 was expressed by many theatre managers, and Mr. Morgan-Powell stresses that this would be a good way to start the New Year "by showing that we can be as modern as other big cities, and at the same time afford our children every bit as much protection against risks of accident as any other city in the world does." He notes that the ban was imposed to protect children from the danger of fire in crowded theatres, and that the law was passed at a time "when a terrible disaster had created a widespread mood of hysteria." However justifiable then, he contends that modern theatres are, from the viewpoint of danger to children, much safer than many school basements and other buildings in which special film exhibitions for children are allowed.

John Lodge Makes P. A. At Avenue in Toronto

TORONTO—John Lodge, screen and stage actor who was in Toronto for the engagement of "Night of Love" on the stage of the Royal Alexandra, made a personal appearance at the Avenue for the Canadian premiere of "One Night in Paris" on the invitation of Manager J. L. Smith. Lodge returned to New York City for the Broadway premiere of the stage play January 7.

Receipts for the one performance at the Avenue were turned over to the British War Victims' Fund. Incidentally, Lodge saw himself in "One Night in Paris" for the first time at this show.

OSHAWA, ONT.—Carriers of the Daily Times saw "North West Mounted Police" at the Regent as guests of Manager Osier.

25 Years Long Time, Or Is It?

Toronto—Twenty-five years is a long time in the film business when regard is given to the type and tastes of screen fare. Or is it? A quarter of a century ago, the main attractions at Canadian theatres included Olga Petrova in "The Heart of a Painted Woman," Clara Kimball Young in "Camille," Theda Bara and Jean Sothern in "The Two Orphans," Edna Goodrich in "Armstrong's Wife," and also "The Laurel of Tears," which apparently had no "name" players. These were among the feature offerings for the holiday.

Current holiday attractions at Toronto theatres include "The Thief of Bagdad," "Comrade X," "Tin Pan Alley," "Second Chorus," "No, No, Nanette," "Charley's Aunt," "You'll Find Out," "Moon Over Burma," "One Night in Paris" and "The Bank Dick."

Twenty-five years from now, BOXOFFICE may be reporting that "Charley's Aunt" is still living!

Toronto New Year's Shows Lure Record

TORONTO—The largest New Year's celebration in history was reported by Toronto's downtown theatres. It was estimated that 78 Toronto theatres accommodated more than 65,000 patrons at the stroke of midnight, with all of the big houses more than filled to capacity.

The largest crowd of all was found at the Imperial, where Manager Tom Daly played host to 3,500 guests. Manager Fred Trebilcock had a super-capacity crowd of approximately 3,000 at the Uptown. Loew's was filled and Assistant Manager S. E. Gosnell declared he saw more people on the streets at 3:30 a. m. than he had ever seen before. Walter Graydon reported 2,730 at Shea's which meant more than capacity because the theatre seats 2,663 persons, Manager Leon Bishop had all he could handle at the Tivoli, remarking that more people were downtown than at any previous New Year's observance.

Neighborhood houses had their quota of patronage, however, many being filled to capacity, depending upon the screen attraction offered. Some theatres did not open at all because of the belief that midnight show competition was too extensive to make it profitable. It was reported by Manager Al Sedgwick of the Belsize, for example, that his house was filled, that the audience was appreciably larger than one year before and that patronage on the day after New Year's continued heavy, the usual after-holiday reaction being missing.

At the one vaudeville house, the Casino, patrons paid $1 admission and the theatre was choked with people. Regular admission prices were charged by the majority of theatres with a flat rate of 40 cents or 50 cents for any seat in the house being asked at the principal theatres. A considerable percentage of revellers was made up of men in uniform, many sailors, war pilots and soldiers being home on leave for the holiday, with a sprinkling of nursing sisters and women of the auxiliary forces. Film theatres dropped stage shows entirely this year and the flesh presentations were not missed. Audiences were given the opportunity of giving vent to their feelings in community singing and with the usual "favors."

"Holidays as Usual" Over the Dominion

TORONTO—Canadians will continue to have their usual array of holidays in 1941 whether the war is in progress throughout the year or not, and these can be marked down by exhibitors as occasions for special bookings. Two of the holidays have already been observed, these being New Year's Day and the Feast of Epiphany, on January 6. On the latter occasion, many educational institutions and business houses in various localities were closed for religious reasons but there was nothing to discourage attendance at shows, either afternoon or evening.

Next on the 1941 calendar is Ash Wednesday, which falls on February 26, when many schools and offices are again closed for religious reasons, while Good Friday will occur April 11 and Easter Monday on April 14. These two dates are statutory holidays when banks, schools and offices will be closed but most retail establishments will remain open. Thursday, May 22, is Ascension Day which is observed in various localities, to be followed by the national holiday of May 24 in observance of the anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria. There are two holidays in June, one being the formal birthday celebration for King George VI on a date to be set, and the other St. Jean Baptiste Day which is June 24.

Remember Ending First War

The Dominion as a whole will take the day off on Tuesday, July 1, for Dominion Day to mark the anniversary of the union of all Provinces, while Monday, August 4, is widely observed as Civic Holiday which is legally proclaimed by municipalities throughout the country. Labor Day falls on Monday, September 1, and the next after that will be Thanksgiving Day which is tentatively set for Monday, October 13. Tuesday, November 11, will be observed as Remembrance Day as usual in honor of the signing of the armistice to terminate the First Great War. Another November date which will be a partial holiday is Saturday, November 1, this being All Saints' Day when a number of firms will close. In December there will be two holidays, with Monday, December 8, being observed as the Feast of Conception. Christmas Day will fall on a Thursday and, as usual, December 26, will be Boxing Day when practically all wholesale and retail establishments will remain closed.

Because of the war, there is a probability that industrial plants engaged in the production of war munitions will not close down as extensively as in previous years but the off-shifts will undoubtedly have the holiday spirit nevertheless, with advantage to the theatres.

TORONTO

A NUMBER of screen stars have offered their acting services to the Canadian government, without charge, for a series of presentations to be sponsored by the "Theatre of Freedom" beginning the first week in February for which they will make special trips to the Dominion. They include Paul Muni, Douglas Fairbanks jr., Anna Neagle, George Sanders, Walter Huston, Raymond Massey, Orson Welles, Cedric Hardwicke and Charles Laughton. Stage stars who have also donated their services are Katharine Cornell and Eva La Gallienne. "Victoria the Great" is to be presented in one performance by Anna Neagle and George Sanders under the personal direction of Herbert Wilcox. The performances are to be given in Toronto and will be broadcast over the national network.

Manager Bob Eves of the swanky Eglinton, Toronto, had a surprise party the other evening when Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parfitt of Port Elgin patronized the theatre for the night's show. It was the first time, according to Eves, that either of his paying guests had ever seen a moving picture or even been inside a theatre. (There is a theatre in Port Elgin).

R. Berezin, assistant manager of the Ottawa Elgin since it opened three years ago, has been transfered to Toronto by 20th Century Theatres where he is to be appointed manager of a new house. Prior to his departure from Ottawa, where he was born, he was given a party and a gift by the Elgin employes . . . A. P. Drohan, manager of the Capitol at Chatham, is now opening his evening performances at 6:30 p. m., a half hour earlier, so that the soldiers in training in that city can see a complete show and get back to barracks before "Lights Out."

G. W. Martin of the Trent and Ted Fraser of the Century, both at Trenton, Ont., are cooperating in a Find-the-Name contest of the Sun newspaper in which passes are provided for winning readers who find the letters scattered through advertisements which spell the name of the feature at either theatre. The Trent is a chain house while the Century is independent.

Sam Major, proprietor of Major's St. Clair, Toronto, had an exciting few minutes when patrons started to mob a man in the audience who is said to have shouted encouragement during a scene of "Four Sons" showing German soldiers shooting Czech civilians. The disturber was rescued by the police who hustled him to the station where he was placed in custody when it was ascertained that he was a German officer in the last war by the name of Charles Baltes.

Manager Jules Bernstein and Assistant Manager S. Gosnell of Toronto Loew's are preparing for the second run of "Gone With the Wind" at popular prices, the picture having had its Canadian premiere at this theatre one year ago after which it played one week at the Bloor. It is scheduled to open January 23 . . . Four young men of the staff of the Uptown, Toronto, have joined the colors for overseas' service and more are expected to enlist to give Manager Fred Trebilcock a personnel problem.

With 1,200 out of the 2,000 population of Meaford, Ont., down with influenza, Nick Trebish, proprietor of the Capitol in that town, is finding business rather slim but is carrying on. No request has been made by the medical authorities to close the theatre . . . Three Musketeers of Hollywood have joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, following in the footsteps of Basil Rathbone jr. and Patric Knowles. The newcomers are William Deming, Michael McCoy and Monty Montgomery. Deming made India's first talking picture, "Alan Ara," back in 1930.

Mike Mahoney, colorful resident of Ottawa, Ont., and a former sourdough of the Klondike, made a trip to Hollywood for pleasure a few months ago. When "Tugboat Annie Sails Again" played the Ottawa Capitol during the holiday period, it was discovered that the principal male character bore the name of "Capt. Mike Mahoney" and the boys had Ottawa's Mike all steamed up over the idea that he appeared in the picture—and didn't know it. Mike decided to see for himself and then issued a statement to the effect that the similarity of names was merely coincidental. "Sure, I never took a drink in my life," he added, quite soberly.

Al Sedgwick, manager of the Toronto Belsize, was passing out cigars at civic election time but denied vigorously that he was running for office, declaring that he was only distributing a bit of New Year's cheer . . . Leopold Friedman, a director, presided at the annual meeting of Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., Toronto, in the absence of other officers and told shareholders that business at Toronto Loew's continued excellent. Satisfaction was the keynote of the gathering, with all reports being adopted and directors re-elected without opposition.

Sprague Brothers Open New St. George House

ST. GEORGE, N. B.—L. A. and A. C. Sprague recently opened their new 400-seat Capitol here which is considered one of the finest theatres in the Maritime Provinces.

The Sprague brothers are also interested in the Gaiety, Fairville, and the Mayfair, Deer Island, and they operate the Maritime Theatre Equipment Co. in St. John.

New Year's Bonus

OTTAWA—Harry O'Regan, in charge of the Francais, provided a special "bonus" to employes of the theatre when the proceeds of the New Year's Eve show were distributed among the members of the staff.

Consider Theatre Proposal

ZEBALLOS, B. C.—Local businessmen have under consideration a proposal to provide a theatre for Zeballos. The town has been theatreless since last July when its only showhouse was destroyed by fire.

See Cooper as Successor To John Grierson

TORONTO — The resignation of John Grierson of London, England, as Canadian film commissioner of the National Film Board under the jurisdiction of the department of trade and commerce, has started gossip in Canadian film trade circles with respect to the choice of successor. The consensus is that Col. John A. Cooper, chairman of the board of the Motion Pictures Distributors of Canada, is the most qualified executive official for the post and would be the logical choice in view of the declaration by Grierson that the National Film Board should be conducted by Canadians.

WINNIPEG

HELMER NELS JERNBERG, one of the best known and best liked showmen of this city, died last week. He had been an exhibitor in Winnipeg for more than 25 years. In the course of his career, he operated the Palace, then managed for the Allens the present Rio and Metropolitan houses. In later years he had run the Rio, retiring from this position about a year ago. Deepest sympathy is expressed by film circles here to Jernberg's survivors, his wife and two daughters.

J. Miles, president of Western Theatres, Ltd., entertained his many friends and associates at a New Year's party staged in the grand manner. Gifts, tokens and refreshments were the order of the day at an event thoroughly enjoyed by all . . . E. A. Zorn, popular district manager for F-P, was too busy over the holidays to participate in the festivities of the season. Zorn was kept busy running between one packed house and another. But this type of activity seemed to be just the kind he needed to make him completely contented.

Grand National announces that arrangements have been completed in all key cities of the west for the opening of "Mein Kampf," described as Hitler's book of doom . . . Packed houses in all city theatres ushered in the New Year's. The weather broke just right and holiday business topped all records . . . With lavish newspaper ads pepping up the dailies, old timers are commenting that the film business is beginning to look again the way it did in "the good old days."

Don Gauld, in addition to running his popular "sneak" previews at the Uptown, has been arranging some very fine campaigns for his houses. And they are paying off well at the boxoffice . . . "Thief of Bagdad" has been doing very well at Henry Morton's Garrick where it is being held over for a second week . . . "Laugh It Off," the British comedy hit which did well at the Tivoli recently, is being rebooked in the city.

Clair Fallis, recently of Rainy River, has taken over the Paris in St. Boniface . . . D. B. Roberts of Brandon remembered his many friends during the holiday season . . . Mrs. S. Rosenblatt, wife of Western Theatres' supervisor, is leaving for the south on a holiday and health trip.

Operators' School Opened in Ontario

TORONTO—The projectionists school was formally opened January 6 by the Ontario government under the direction of O. J. Silverthorne, director of the theatres and cinematographs branch of the treasury department, who also is chairman of the Ontario board of moving picture censors. Announcement was made that the one school would be operated in Toronto for the whole Province, no arrangement having been made for the establishment of branches in other Ontario centers. Two instructors have been appointed, these being M. Elliott and H. Gray, these having been officials of the branch for some years.

Under the new regulations, a candidate for an operator's license will be granted an apprentice card immediately upon acceptance of his registration and he will be able to work as an assistant in a booth during the 12 months of the course, upon the conclusion of which he will be given final tests which will qualify him for a license. An installment plan has been adopted for the payment of the $100 fee which is required for the course. This can be paid in quarterly amounts of $25 in advance. After the first group of candidates has been accepted, future applications must be filed with the registrar 15 days in advance of the opening of further courses, this requirement having been waived for the first school.

Opposed by Labor

The school has been opened despite the protests of organized labor on the ground that there are a sufficient number of experienced operators holding government qualifications for the theatres in operation in Ontario and that a majority of the projectionists are beyond the age of 40 years, hence are not likely to be required for army service. It has been stated that approximately 65 per cent of the operators are veterans of the First Great War.

According to W. P. Covert of the Toronto Operators' Local, a vice-president of the IATSE, the school move is classed as an attack upon the union and organized labor would continue to fight the operation of the government class. Covert argued that 26 qualified projectionists were unemployed in Toronto alone, and 15 apprentices now were ready for union cards. The government had moved to increase the number of qualified men, he contended, intensifying competition for positions, thus forcing wages down.

Of importance in the new situation is that the union's contract with Toronto theatres is scheduled to expire next August, and labor leaders say there is possibility of an excess of qualified projectionists in the coming months.

Foils Safe Crackers

TORONTO—The York was the scene of a safe-cracking attempt which was foiled when the theatre's burglar alarm was set off, the signal being sent into a nearby station. Two policemen reached the theatre just as two men raced from the rear of the building and escaped in the darkness. The thieves gained entrance to the theatre through a door in the roof.

MONTREAL

UNLIKE other Canadian provinces, Quebec, owing to its predominantly French-Canadian and Roman Catholic population, keeps up its New Year celebrations until Twelfth Night, January 6, with the result that Montreal and other centers are more or less on holiday for a fortnight from Christmas Eve. The effect on film grosses varies. So many parties are held in private French-Canadian homes that in suburban areas, at least, the theatres suffer in attendance. On St. Catherine St., where the patrons are more cosmopolitan, the size of the audience is, as at other times, a gauge of the popularity of the pictures shown.

On Filmrow there is a fixed determination to put the holiday feeling away and get back to work seriously, and there is a current of optimism around that bodes well for the coming season.

New Year's Eve performances were more numerous this year than ever before and managers report attendance records in both first run and neighborhood houses. That there is more money around than has been the case for a few years was evident by the patronage at the more expensive shows. It was observed, however, that merriment was slightly restrained, owing to the shadow of war and impending high taxation.

One of the most ambitious programs arranged by Canadian Broadcasting Corp. for release from Montreal was a highlight of the Christmas radio season. Employing a 60-piece orchestra and an equal number of choral voices, the CBC arranged for the use of Associated Screen Studio facilities in order to accommodate the large group of artists. "The Children's Crusade" was broadcast under the baton of J. J. Gagnier from the Montreal studios.

The much-traveled staff of Associated Screen News enjoyed the holiday recess, but some were not allowed even that repose. Ross Beesley, cameraman, left his family fireside Christmas Day to film the arrival of Jimmy Mattern and the Lockheed-Vega employes' Yuletide gift to the British people—a Hudson bomber which Mattern flew to St. Hubert from the California factory . . . Jack Chisholm returned to Montreal immediately after Christmas which he spent in Toronto and resumed work on a commercial production.

His Excellency, the Governor-General (The Earl of Athlone) appeared on theatre screens from the Atlantic to the Pacific to express New Year greetings to the people of the Dominion. As recorded by Associated Screen News in an exclusive interview, His Excellency said: "We live in times of great stress and anxiety. The dark tunnel of war stretches far ahead, and the end is not yet in sight. But by sacrifice freely given, and by the exercise of unshakeable determination we shall win through to the light of peace and security. Whatever the New Year may hold in store for us, I feel sure that the people of Canada will face it with unflinching courage, and I am confident that, strong in the faith of our fathers, we shall rid the world of this foul fiend that menaces us, and bequeath to our children that freedom of thought and action on which our great Empire has been built."

VANCOUVER

DUE TO extremely mild weather, all local theatres enjoyed capacity business over the New Year holidays, particularly on their special New Year's Eve shows . . . Alex Gough of Hedley was in Vancouver for the holidays as well as for some dental work.

Stan Kennedy of Esquimalt was in town arranging bookings for his Cadet Theatre . . . C. A. Towriss of the Capitol, Princeton, is closing his theatre for a month while he enjoys a much needed rest . . . Herb Jorgenson of Rock Bay was around the Film Building visiting his many friends.

Smiling Ruth Wynn busily arranging for a short holiday in Victoria . . . Charlie Mitchell, formerly secretary of the Community Club at Bralorne Mines, was involved in a minor automobile accident while vacationing in the Bridge River Valley.

Myron C. McLeod of Powell River makone of his flying visits to the city . . . While Len Plottel of Columbia is away on his one month's training period, Jack Droy will take over his duties.

Ottawa Regent Observes Its 25th Anniversary

OTTAWA—The Regent, located on the main intersection of Ottawa, is celebrating the 25th anniversary of its opening, having been opened by Ken Finlay as manager. Later managers included James Moxley, Oral Cloakey who delighted to play the xylophone and finally went west to sell oil stock; Ray Tubman and, recently, Angelo Stevens.

The Regent was built as a local independent house, then became a unit of the Allen chain and eventually passed to the control of Famous Players Canadian Corp. For years it featured a talented orchestra for the silent films but the orchestra never fitted its music to the screen theme and played piece after piece in their entirety regardless of the type of picture. Way back in the past, this writer once asked the manager why he did not have the orchestra follow the cue sheet for the atmospheric music but the manager did not know what a cue sheet was.

Star to Frank Shepherd

ARMSTRONG, B. C.—The local Star has been purchased by Frank Shepherd, who also operates the Majestic at Biggar, Sask. His son, Joseph Shepherd, will be in charge of the Biggar house.

Welfare Council Finds Current Film Worthy

OTTAWA—The Canadian Welfare Council has issued its official list of recommendations, with comment, on current features and shorts for December for the guidance of educational, women's, patriotic and community organizations throughout the Dominion, as follows:

"A Little Bit of Heaven"—Excellent! This is a continuation of the story of "The Underpup" with Gloria Jean as "Midge." Lovely songs, hilarious comedy and a pleasant romance. The family.

"Nobody's Children"—This story is based on a regular broadcast series conducted on behalf of the Children's Home Finding Society of Los Angeles. For juveniles.

"Down Argentine Way"—A good musical romance, filmed in Technicolor. The story really serves as a framework for the musical numbers. The music and dancing are of the rhumba and conga type, now so popular. The family.

"Arise, My Love"—A really charming picture from every point of view. The acting is excellent and there is a touch of originality in the foreign correspondent theme and the love story. The family.

"Third Finger, Left Hand"—A gay, sparkling comedy, lavishly produced. Although the outcome is obvious, it does not detract from one's enjoyment of the picture. The family.

"The Great Dictator"—With Charlie Chaplin in the stellar role, this picture will meet with varying opinions because, although in part a comedy, it is rather more dramatic in tone. It is a propaganda picture, depicting the cruel treatment that the Jews are receiving in Germany. Adolescents and adults.

"A Dispatch From Reuter's"—This story depicts the establishment of the Reuters News Service System. There is a romance and some slight comedy but the picture will not probably appeal to all classes. The family.

"Escape"—Very good entertainment, adapted from the best seller by Ethel Vance. Although sombre in tone, it is gripping and is definitely anti-Nazi. Mature.

"Thief of Bagdad"—The highest pitch yet attained as a combination of the gorgeous imagination of Arabian Nights and magnificence of color. "The Thief" belongs in that unforgetable class. A picture everyone should see.

"Blackout"—A very good espionage meledrama, with the British naval blockade as part of the action and with a port where foreign ships are examined as part of the background. Most of the action unfolds in London during a blackout. The family.

"The Long Voyage Home"—A powerful picture, directed with skill and artistry. There is no romance and no women in the cast but it should appeal to class audiences. The photography is exceptional. The plot was adapted from one-act plays by Eugene O'Neill. Adolescents and adults.

"Little Nellie Kelly"—A very good romantic comedy, with considerable human interest and fist action. Judy Garland sings several Irish sons and the fine baritone voice of Douglas McPhail, who sang in "Babes in Arms," is also heard. The family.

"The World in Flames"—An excellent film reviewing world events for the past 10 years—depression, the invasion of Manchuria and of Ethiopia, rise of the Nazi war machine, the fall of Norway and the Low Countries, the thrilling withdrawal from Dunkirk and the present Battle of Britain. Photographed and narrated by correspondents who saw it happen, ending in a powerful plea for American preparedness. Recommended for schools and libraries.

"Britain's R. A. F."—No story of legend can outmatch the daily messages that come to us of the heroism, the swift-working intelligence and indomitable courage that flies over England day and night to equal and finally overwhelm the forces that would enslave her greatest treasure—freedom. The family.

"The Eyes of the Navy"—A thrilling picturization of the kind of men and the huge industry going into the making of American aviators. The U. S. Navy lent its aid at Pensacola and San Diego, so the picture is not only dramatic but true to fact. The family.

"Landing of the Pilgrims"—An amusing color cartoon treating the voyage of the Mayflower and the landing of its passengers in burlesque fashion. The family.

They're Worse Than The Peanut Eaters

Regina—Latest headache for theatre managers and patrons are college girls who wear bells on their shoes. At the Capitol they are asked to either remove the bells or tuck them down into their ankle sox before entering the theatre. Noise of the bells during shows is reported to be worse than that made by peanut eaters.

Upholds Ban on Pinball Machines in Ontario

OTTAWA—The Ontario appeal court has handed down a judgment of far-reaching effect in confirming the by-law of the City of Ottawa which bans the operation of pinball machines or other gambling devices in business premises for which civic licenses are issued for routine business purposes. One penalty for the presence of a gambling machine in a store or restaurant will be the cancellation of the business license while the machine itself will be confiscated.

Ottawa police have issued a warning that a drive will be launched immediately to rid the city of all machines and the suggestion has been thrown out that the players can seek other forms of amusement. The decision can be made applicable to all other municipalities in Ontario, provided a similar by-law is enacted by the local council.

Now for the Nazis

TORONTO—Ken Tyler, the "crash" pilot of the films, has enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force with the object of taking a crack at the Nazis to round out a busy career during which he has cracked up 142 planes for pictures in production in Hollywood, fought with the Loyalist air force in Spain and later flew for the Chinese against the Jap invaders.

Gets Projection Equipment

OTTAWA—The Rialto of Ottawa, neighborhood house of 550 seats, has been provided with new projection lighting equipment, according to A. Levinson, proprietor.

SASK'WAN

OUTSTANDING development in 1940 insofar as Saskatoon theatremen are concerned, was the opening there of the No. 4 Service Flying Training School in September. It has a personnel of 800 and is slowly expanding. The contracts for the buildings totaled approximately $1,000,000. Payroll of the school, plus that of approximately 300 troops quartered at the Fair Grounds, is largely spent in the city, with theatres getting a good share of the coin. Saskatoon also draws a large volume of business from Dundurn Camp, with its establishment of approximately 2,000 troops.

Regina payrolls, all services included, showed an average increase of five per cent in 1940 as compared to 1939, according to a statistical survey on increased buying power in Regina. Total industrial volume here is up eight per cent. Compared to an 18 and a half million dollar payroll in 1939, Regina workers pocketed approximately $20,000,000 in 1940, the survey shows. This excludes the incomes derived from military activity, figured at $125,000 a month at the present time. There were approximately 200 more people employed in the city in 1940 than in 1939, a total of 2,300 in industrial production.

William Popham donated his Roxy at Saskatoon and his staff its services, for a midnight showing of "You Can't Fool Your Wife" on a recent Sunday evening, proceeds going to the Lord Mayor of London's fund for distressed air raid victims. Receipts totaled $128 . . . Capitol in Saskatoon is boasting a newly painted front . . . Families on relief work were guests of the management of the Strand, Prince Albert, at two special shows.

A Sunday concert at the Roxy, Yorkton, aided the Enterprise Empty Stocking Fund to the tune of $27.25 . . . Courtesy of the management of the Capitol, Saskatoon, enabled children of army and air force men overseas to attend theatre parties on two days recently as guests of the Officers' Wives Auxiliary and the Rotary Club . . . Bill Ellison, former usher at the Met, Regina, was guest of honor at the staff's Christmas party prior to leaving Regina with the navy. He was presented with a traveling set.

H. A. Bercovich, manager of the Rex, Regina, played host to his staff at its annual Christmas party and, in turn, was presented with a humidor and two pipes . . . Children of Quill Lake and district were guests of businessmen of the town at a free picture show . . . George Fraser, New York, who was in Regina to publicize the world premiere of "North West Mounted Police," is back in Canada again, this time at Winnipeg where he's working with Jack Fitzgibbons jr. on publicity for 20th-Fox's "Hudson's Bay" . . . Frank Sheppard, manager of the Majestic, Biggar, has moved to Armstrong, B. C., where he is managing the Star.

Many Schools Using Films

SASKATOON—Motion pictures are now being used extensively for instructional work in local public schools. All have projectors and the school board owns several thousand dollars worth of film.

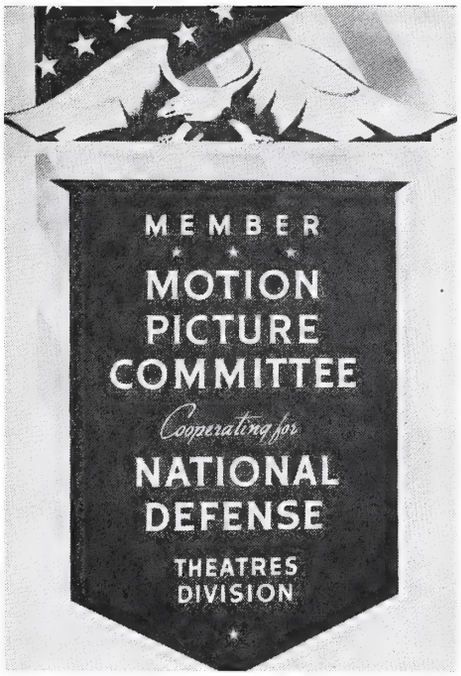
'Band' Campaign Wins Gallagher an Award

NEW YORK—M-G-M has awarded an Honor Roll Button to E. French Gallagher, manager of the Fox Illinois Theatre, Centralia, Ill., for his outstanding campaign for "Strike Up the Band."

Highlights of the campaign follow:

Street parade two days prior to opening, using local high school band, with two large banners selling the picture prominently displayed. The same band paraded between halves of a football game day before opening. Dog awarded to holder of lucky number among several thousand cards which were distributed. Every merchant in downtown section carried special window display on the film. There was also a display on the City Hall lawn, floodlighted at night. Ten days in advance a 24-sheet panel was posted on all main highways leading to the city. Also, 100 block 2-sheets and 100 jumbo cards. Thirty-five hundred exchange heralds were distributed.

Careful Drivers' Award Profitable Repeater



ALBANY, N. Y.—In a tieup with the local daily, Jules Curley, Strand manager, awarded passes to see "Four Mothers" to motorists picked as safe drivers by a reporter stationed by the paper downtown. The passes were awarded in the name of the Lane Sisters, and the drivers who earned them were listed in the paper.

Mail to the Irish

COLUMBUS, OHIO—John Hardgrove, assistant manager of the Ohio, persuaded the K. of C. Council to recommend "Little Nellie Kelly" on their regular mailing cards. A green ink mimeographed sheet, with a drawing of Judy Garland centered in a shamrock and carrying picture copy, was sent to 750 members of Irish organizations.

Hoge Goes "Verboten" On Anti-Nazi Film

"Notice to all Nazi sympathizers. I hereby strictly forbid all my followers to see the film 'Pastor Hall' to be shown at the Dickinson, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, December 26, 27, 28. Signed, Adolf Hitler." The foregoing notice, inserted as a 2x2 inch boxed ad in the Olathe, Kansas newspaper, "caused more comment and brought more cash in than anything in a long time," reports Charles Hoge, manager of the Dickinson Theatre.

For the Boxoffice—

From headquarters at 321 W. 44th St., New York, the Theatre Division of the Motion Picture Committee cooperating for national defense is mailing out these plaques for theatre display. Joseph Bernhard, Warner Theatres general manager, is chairman of the division. A plaque will be sent to each theatre that joins in the industry's defense effort.

"Road Show" Humor Test Stunt Detailed by UA

NEW YORK—The success achieved in selling "Road Show" to Pittsburgh via the "Get Measured for Pleasure" angle, involving the taking of tests by the public to determine the type of humor their personality was keyed to, has led UA to issue a supplementary to their press sheet on "Road Show."

This supplement details the campaign as put on in Pittsburgh, the ads used, the truck ballyhoo and the store tieup. The UA exploitation department rents the Psychometer, the instrument which gauges one's sense of humor, and reports that in Pittsburgh over 18,000 prospective patrons were analyzed.

Tieups for "Kitty Foyle"

NEW YORK—The use of the "Kitty Foyle" serialization by the Daily Mirror netted further exploitation for the Rivoli when the paper bannered its trucks calling attention to the serial. A lobby poster in the theatre referred to the paper's use of the story, and a front page box reciprocated.

Your Candy Counter; How to Make It Pay

BOSTON—A few ideas for the lobby or foyer candy counter, as outlined by S. L. Loew jr., head of the Theatre Candy Company locally:

"Have your candy display in a location close to the line of traffic, clearly visible and accessible.

"Try to carry a full variety of candy and avoid duplications of the same type of candy where possible.

"Because of space limitations, the items selected for sale should, in addition to being of varying types, be fast sellers. Determine what items your patrons request.

"The items should be full-weight, nationally or locally known.

"The stand should be as attractively arranged as possible with particular attention to cleanliness. Remove bars from box where possible and arrange them symmetrically with names clearly readable.

Lauds Open Displays

"Open displays encourage added sales. Personal selection of items by your patrons saves attendant time as against getting out the bars from a closed case.

"An attendant at the stand increases sales. If an usher makes the candy sales, be sure he is near the stand. Patrons do not buy so readily when they have to look for someone to pay for their purchase.

"Full displays increase sales. A partly full case has a bad appearance and conveys the impression of old, left-over candy.

"Advertise your candy display. The judicious and continual use of trailers will stimulate candy sales. Such trailers should feature the idea of 'delicious, nationally famous candy as an added convenience and source of enjoyment while watching the show'."

Candy to Patrons

LINCOLN, NEB.—Leading restaurants and hotels distributed bitter sweet chocolate tabs to all patrons as part of the "Bitter Sweet" campaign put over by R. R. Huffman, Lincoln Theatre.

NUGGETS

ON Postal Telegraph blanks, Earl Podolnick imprinted in style of type resembling that on telegrams, a message addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. Theatre Patrons, State Theatre, Austin, Texas." The message: "We wish to advise a 'Dispatch From Reuter's' playing at the State Theatre, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Starring Edward G. Robinson—The story behind the man of a million headlines—Warner Brothers Studio, Hollywood, Calif." This was passed out as a handbill.

Manager Dave Edwards of the Rialto, Salt Lake City, promoted the use of 20 portable radios, which 20 pretty girls carried to choice locations downtown and tuned in on the pre-arranged 15*-minute broadcast for "No, No, Nanette." The stunt was done the afternoon before Christmas Eve. The girls wore banners.*

It may amount to nothing more than two-for-one admissions, but the novelty of advertising a free admission to anyone who would sit through "The House of Seven Gables" made the Palace Theatre's ad in a Lubbock, Texas, newspaper, at the least, unusual. The ad offered a Certificate of Bravery entitling to a free admission any one who would sit through the entire performance. The program was made part of a "Jinx Prevue" with the show starting at 11:13 p. m.

The Lindsey Theatre, Lubbock, Texas, put a new twist into a "Go West" newspaper advertisement with this copy: "We're Just Guessing . . . but we believe that the average American family—Papa, Mama, Brother and Sister—are wanting to see a movie with some real old-fashioned (pardon the expression) Belly-Laughs!"

Eddie Moore of the Strand at York, Pa., put his cashiers on the telephone to call various male clubs with the startling message that "there are 'Too Many Girls' at 48 N. George Street." (The theatre's address). The cashiers also called drug stores, hotel clerks, offices, and whenever a man answered the phone, they said, "If you have a gentleman friend, there are 'Too Many Girls' at 48 N. George Street."

Bally in Character For a Horror Duo

ALBANY, N. Y.—A lobby and front crammed with displays and accessories, and a thorough advance campaign, made a special horror duo booking of "The Mummy's Hand" and "Before I Hang," a success for Edward Selette, manager of the Albany Theatre.

Preceding the booking, stage announcements were made three weeks in advance, and two 22x28s were spotted at the entrance, by the doorman, two weeks in advance.

One week before the duo opened two 40x60s were put up in the lobby; a combination trailer was used on the screen; a slide on the wall; an operating table with a wrapped dummy inside the entrance; and a first aid case with false teeth, hair dye and special copy adorned the lobby. Two one sheets on an A-board were put on the sidewalk three days in advance.

During the run of the pictures the entire front under the marquee was all in green lights. A special front was lighted by bunch light and green spots. Light paper skeletons hung under the marquee, illuminated skeleton masks were strung along the entrance with flashers, and a similar mask grinned from the boxoffice window. The dummy on the operating table was moved from the lobby to the sidewalk and two headless dummies stood at each side of the boxoffice. Green flares lit the curb at night and all the staff was dressed in nurses and internes' uniforms.

Store Treasure Hunt Put On for "Hullabaloo"

READING, PA.—One segment of a highly comprehensive campaign put on for "Hullabaloo" at Loew's Colonial here by Manager George Peters and Paul Kamey, Metro exploiteer, consisted of a "Store Treasure Hunt" conducted at the W. T. Grant store.

Twenty stills from previous Frank Morgan films were mounted on heavy cardboard and placed in prominent spots above 20 different counters in the store. Each still carried copy plugging the picture, theatre and playdate, and bore a number at the top and bottom.

Salesgirls distributed entry blanks to customers. The idea was for customers to identify the pictures from which the stills were taken and write the names in the spaces provided on the entry blanks. Guest tickets went for the nearest correct solutions. A large receptacle carrying theatre copy was placed at the front of the store for customers to file their entries.

Wall paper heralds, which had not been used for a long time in Reading, were imprinted: "They're tearing the wall paper off the walls laughing at Frank Morgan's imitations at the Colonial."

Wedding for "Nanette"

PHILADELPHIA—A wedding on board a plane was arranged by Maurice Gable for "No, No, Nanette." The wedding, held on the 13th, similar to a scene in the picture, was broadcast by a Philadelphia station.

Screening in Street Car

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Metro Publicist Dan Terrell screened "Comrade X" for the Washington critics in a street car, preceding its run at the Loew's Theatre.

A Unique Coop Herald For "Four Mothers"

UTICA, N. Y.—A unique cooperative herald was distributed by Arnold Stoltz of the Avon Theatre for his New Year's Eve booking of "Four Mothers."

A flat, rectangular piece of cotton was wrapped in red tissue paper and attached to the back of an ordinary envelope. On the front of the envelope was tied a diminutive baby's milk bottle, made of celluloid.

Two holes punched in the envelope permitted the string through that tied the bottle. The envelope itself was imprinted: "For mothers . . . don't give baby a late bottle Tuesday! See reasons inside."

Inside the envelope was the herald, a 4½x10 inch strip folded to fit. Above a scene cut from the picture, it read: "Baby will be too excited after its Christmas week . . . so put the little darling to bed and take dad down to the Avon to see, etc."

The lower part of the herald carried a message from the cooperating merchant, a dealer in infants' wear—which may account for the strip of cotton.

Crying Rooms, Please Note

Richland, Iowa—This works in a big way for the Glen Nordykes who operate the Strand Theatre: The Nordykes keep on hand a fresh stock of Graham crackers at the theatre, and at the first outburst made by a squalling infant the nourishment is rushed to the offender's quarters. The mother is grateful, and the baby, "nine out of ten times," is effectively silenced.

A Special Spook Show Makes Record Matinee

PHILADELPHIA—Record Sunday matinee business was garnered by Manager Roland Haynes of the Keystone with a special "Spooks-a-Poppin' Show." Haynes, in addition to "Ghost Breakers," booked an older thriller and two spook cartoons and labeled it the spook show.

Publicizing the event was a special trailer with chiller effects from the stage; teaser cards throughout the theatre, lobby display a week in advance; 3,000 heralds distributed the day before opening; and announcements from the stage on the Saturday Kiddies matinee.

Wisconsin Financial Firm Ties In on 'Boom Town' Ad

SHEBOYGAN, WIS.—A financial house here, handling the stock of a refining company, recently advertised the run of "Boom Town" at the local Majestic Theatre, tying in its own copy in the three-column, seven-inch ad. Copy in part, read:

"Don't miss 'Boom Town' a superb human interest story of the oil industry." Then followed theatre and playdate, and the name of the refinery and the brokerage firm. A footnote declared the ad not an offer to sell or a solicitation, and referred interested readers to the company's prospectus.

Columbia

Blondie Has Servant Trouble

Poorest draw of any Blondie picture. Up to the high average of past Blondies, but too many other attractions in town when I played this. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 333.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, So. Berwick, Me.

Lone Wolf Meets a Lady

About as good a program picture as you'll ever get. Excellent work by Warren William and Eric Blore. Plenty of mystery and comedy that sparkles. Lobby remarks of patrons indicated 100 per cent approval. Very good at the B. O. Sat., Sun. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allen Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Nobody's Children

A lukewarm tear-jerker with Edith Fellows. Just fairish. One of those south ends of double bills. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Too Many Husbands

Good show, played a little old. Jean Arthur plenty good. I can't understand why Columbia doesn't make more shows with her. Everyone enjoyed the comedy in this one. It seemed to me there was too much about one thing. Otherwise, plenty good. Business good, play it. Sun., Mon. Weather: O. K. Admission: 22-10. Rural-town patronage. Population: 650. Capacity: 408.—Jack Story, Mary Agnes, Jamestown, Ky.

Paramount

Typhoon

Above average Sunday-Monday business and pleased all. Story weak, but action in final scenes of tropical typhoon and drawing power of Dorothy Lamour, puts picture over to good business. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 333.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, So. Berwick, Me.

Untamed

Good picture, good draw with several favorable comments. Play on your best dates. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 333.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, So. Berwick, Me.

World in Flames

Interesting review of the war to date and events leading up to it. Action shots taken from newsreels. Very interesting to the thinking class of people. Played to better than average business. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Republic

Colorado

Roy Rogers and Gabby Hayes do their bit in this mildly interesting western. Audience reaction not so good. One tot said, "It's just like the others." That hits it. Just another western. Business good due to other feature on the program. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Hit Parade of 1941

A good enough show but for some reason Republic pictures do not hold up on Sunday runs. Quite a little below average. Nevertheless, a picture of the good-to-excellent class for general trade. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Melody and Moonlight

Extremely light. Played to slightly below average business. Pleased the majority. Billy Gilbert and Vera Vague are in a class by themselves. Not good enough for your best dates. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Ride, Tenderfoot, Ride

Autry, Burnette and that cute little trick, Mary Lee, do a real job in this picture. Audience reaction dandy, boxoffice simply lovely. What a divine feeling! I'd like to have it oftener. Played on a double bill, but I'm afraid nobody noticed the other picture. Fri., Sat. Weather: Snow. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

RKO Radio

Villain Still Pursued Her, The

A good share of my crowd didn't catch on. They just thought it was poor acting. A few of them got a tremendous kick out of the picture. Played on a double bill. Boxoffice average. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

20th Century-Fox

Maryland

Average Sunday-Monday draw. Seemed to please patrons. Personally thought it a bit draggy in places. It has plenty of action in last reel which sends them out satisfied. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 333.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, So. Berwick, Me.

Return of Frank James

No extra draw here on Friday-Saturday date. Picture is fine and pleases all. A bit too heavy for the smaller children. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 333.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, So. Berwick, Me.

Universal

Bad Man From Red Butte

Another good western from Universal. It seems all my western fans enjoy Fuzzy Knight. In one respect it is "just another western," but they always gross out big at the boxoffice and that's what counts. If you use westerns, don't pass it up. Fri., Sat. Weather: Warm, dry. Admission: 22-10. Rural-town patronage. Population: 650. Capacity: 408.—Jack Story, Mary Agnes, Jamestown, Ky.

Big Guy

Played this late. Poor business and no comments from patrons. Just another prison picture. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 333.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, So. Berwick, Me.

Give Us Wings

The fastest, funniest and entertaining-est picture the "Dead End Kids" have ever made. It's rather light for the class trade, but the family trade will go for it hook, line and sinker. Played Sunday run to good business in bad weather. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Spring Parade

Well, the critics said wonderful. I don't, definitely. A young girl falls in a hay rack on the ground, that becomes a load of hay. When she awakens, she has ridden 58 miles. The European horses must really travel or else she was awfully tired and slept a couple of days. I can't imagine a girl disappearing without a search being made for her either. The prize boner was the composition of a waltz with words, written on a scrap of paper by Robt. Cummings. It took him just a few minutes, after which the orchestra played it beautifully, Deanna sang it and the orchestra obligingly changed key for her. And why the European setting? I say nuts to this stuff. Lousy at the B. O. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 300.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Warner Bros.

All This, and Heaven Too

This one surprised me very much. I was expecting to lose money. Everyone enjoyed it. I heard some say it was too long and didn't end just right. It ran Thursday night in competition to the Hallowe'en parties which didn't hurt me. It is not exactly a small town show; however, it made me money. Weather: Cool, rainy. Admission: 22-10. Rural-town patronage. Population: 650. Capacity: 408. —Jack Story, Mary Agnes, Jamestown, Ky.

SINCE the introduction of the first PICTURE GUIDE, seven years ago, we have effected a number of changes, each making for greater simplicity in filing BOXOFFICE reviews in this handy, pocket-fitting, loose-leaf binder.

Now, we have perfected another change—this time eliminating:

1. The need to cut out each review separately.
2. The requirement of moistening gummed strips.
3. The time-loss in doing those things.

Simply fold page on the middle line—and you have four pages of reviews, already punched, ready to put into your PICTURE GUIDE.

These reviews will regularly be indexed in BOXOFFICE'S Booking Chart — by date of review and by PG page number. Then, four times a year, we will publish quarterly index, also designed to fit your PICTURE GUIDE.

That's SERVICE That SERVES!

3 WAYS TO GET OUT OF HOCK!

With chuckles and shekels M-G-M has started its 1941 career in a blaze of box-office glory. Laughing their way into record business are "COMRADE X" and "PHILADELPHIA STORY" whose sustaining power in its day-and-date Los Angeles engagement and whose sensational Music Hall business gives you an idea of what to expect. (3d week at the Music Hall and going bigger than ever after setting a five-year record!) "COMRADE X" is in its 3d big week at the Capitol, N. Y., and a hold-over joy everywhere. "FLIGHT COMMAND" is just what America and your box-office crave right now. Three in a row and it's only the start of a happy and FRIENDLY New Year.

BOXOFFICE The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

Those Untapped Millions

THAT old friend, the fellow who stays away from the picture show or goes only sparingly, is still around, we see by the papers. They've been talking about him in longing, but vague, terms again. They want to throw their arms around him by way of getting permanently clubby, but it's all in terms of hope, not action.

The case of Ed Kuykendall, for instance. Via the MPTOA bulletin route, he is determining that "the one thing that is really wrong with our business is that too many people stay away from the movie theatres." There are those who can think up some other things, too, which are wrong, but that would be putting another face on the same horse. An any time procedure.

"It presents a definite, standing challenge to theatre owners and the industry to find out why these people have no interest . . . and what keeps them away from the theatres. Every exhibitor and theatre manager can study his own community and neighborhood to find the answer to the problem," he observes. He is right about the challenge. He may be on the answer.

At any rate, this is an exhibitor approach. Now a producer-distributor, as well as a theatre, viewpoint as Barney Balaban put it before the AMPA the other day. "We do know there is a potential audience of from twenty to thirty millions in the United States who are not now attending the movies. It is this group we must reach. And it is more important today than ever that we do so because of our increasing dependence upon domestic revenues. I doubt whether these people can be brought to the theatre merely by using bigger adjectives or by sensationalism, but you [advertising] men and women must apply yourselves to finding means of arousing their interest."

Where to Begin

VERY good. Indeed, very good. But it has to start elsewhere. It seems rather obvious that a first step in the direction of tapping an untapped market is to get out the sounding line, throw it overboard, see how much of it gets wet and what barnacles it may attract. Then you draw conclusions, some wrong and some correct, but, at least, you have something on which to base calculations. There's a fancier name for this sort of goings on in other industries where they call it market research.

It can be undertaken by one company as RKO did with George Gallup recently. Or it can be taken on for an entire industry on behalf of that industry for all participants to benefit proportionately. So far, films have been notoriously shy.

But while this business is shy on scientific business application, it has ever been generous in other directions. On a throw of mental dice, fortunes are poured into someone's pet production idea, Hollywood sets out to spend the money, and does, and the sales department, setting up the formulas in New York, catches the hell and the brimstone as any sales manager will testify, if only he would.

It ought to be made clear along about here that you will find nothing now or ever, if this department can remember that long, to suggest the gamble or the dice can be fully liquidated out of this business. The structure has been functioning too long on a set foundation to believe the underpinning can be changed without collapse.

Some Pages Turn Back

BUT about eighteen months ago and again a year ago, it was suggested here that probably the guesswork can be reduced, not eliminated, by employing available industry machinery or engaging outside machinery equipped for such purposes in a widespread and wholly serious endeavor to get at the facts.

What facts? For example, what is the untapped audience in approximate numbers, and where located? What deductions for the extreme young, the extreme old, the defectives, the shut-ins, the criminals? Of the possibilities, what sort of earning power do they enjoy or do not enjoy; in other words, can they go in the event they want to go and at what price? What kind of attractions do they want and, if those attractions are not being made, would it be commercially expedient to make them?

In short, a genuine effort to find out what the gap represents and, how, if at all, it can be closed?

It will cost money, of course, but the mint is still active and nobody in the business is exactly on the breadline. Besides, if the industry survived the dubious investment of a million, cool or hot, to float the quiz contest of another day, the far less required for a bang-up research job certainly ought to be in the cards.

"BIG 5" WON'T START SELLING BEFORE JULY; MIGHT BE LATER

Will Await Completion Of First Block by All Companies

NEW YORK—Selling for 1941-42 by the "Big Five" will not get under way until July, or later, when the first block of five pictures of each of the theatre-owning distributors will be ready for trade showing, according to present indications.

The pictures to be trade shown in the summer will not be ready for release until the first week in September when current contracts expire. The second blocks will be available for screenings in local key areas in August and scheduled for release in October under plans now being discussed.

Whether sales meetings of the "Big Five" will be held early this year is a moot question at present with sales managers now studying the possibility of holding regional conventions about May. At these meetings plans for the forthcoming season will be divulged, in addition to a thorough going over of the decree by company home office lawyers.

Watch by "Little Three"

One of the main features of each convention inevitably will be the stressing of the decree and the obligation of every booker, salesman and branch manager to observe to the letter its provisions.

Meanwhile, the "Little Three" are taking a watchful waiting attitude before making known their plans for next season. The general attitude among the non-consenting companies is first to see what the "Big Five" are planning before making commitments.

A. Montague, general sales manager for Columbia, informs BOXOFFICE his plans are not set. "We are just sitting on the sidelines watching how we may be affected by the decree," he says.

Columbia May Shift Policy

Columbia may have to shift its sales policy to meet the new condition, Montague intimates, but in what way this change may take place is too early to forecast, he adds. Production conferences between home office and studio executives may get under way next month. Studio executives may come east for the sessions, but this is not yet set. Above all, however, caution is the watchword for this company.

At RKO, sales executives are now working on a plan to simplify selling under the decree. Some ideas have been discussed, but will not be revealed until the convention, it is stated. Meanwhile, William Zimmerman, home office attorney, is making a tour of exchanges explaining the decree in the simplest terms possible.

Louis Phillips, Paramount home office attorney, is now making a tour of branches and will be joined by Austin C. Keough, general counsel. Theatre affiliates are being called in where possible.

Felix Jenkins and two of his aides at 20th-Fox have delayed their tour of exchanges until a manual, now in final preparation, is completed for the sales force.

Warner and M-G-M attorneys may not visit the field, the present intention being to inform salesmen, bookers and branch managers of decree operations at convention. Warner has already gotten out a 13-page analysis of the decree. Tyree Dillard jr. of M-G-M's home office legal staff has already spoken to branch and district managers at a recent Chicago session. At that time William F. Rodgers, general

Warner Pow-wow on Next Season Near

NEW YORK—Gradwell L. Sears will head a group of Warner executives on a trek to the coast in about three weeks where production plans and decree operations will be further developed for the 1941-42 season. Sam Schneider will precede the group by approximately one week.

The contingent will embrace Ben Kalmenson, western sales manager; Roy Haines, eastern sales manager; Norman H. Moray, short subject sales manager; Mort Blumenstock, eastern advertising manager, and I. Howard Levinson, assistant to Robert W. Perkins, head of the legal staff:

Robert Riskin, Frank Capra's partner, is due in New York with a print of "Meet John Doe." Warner thus far has not divulged its selling plans or the season in which the film is to be released. This explains Riskin's trip east.

No "U" Revamping Because of Decree

NEW YORK—Universal will not alter its 1941-42 production or distribution system in light of the decree among the competitive "Big Five," is the informal opinion of William A. Scully, general sales manager, upon his return from a coast production conference. Similarly, for instance, he does not envision next season selling getting under way earlier than is customary.

Asked if he discussed plans for next season, Scully replied some ground work has been gone over but that it is too early to go into the program until further ideas are realized. His concern this trip was the balance of the current schedule, all of which the company will deliver, he declared. This takes in 42 features, plus three from Frank Lloyd and seven Richard Arlen-Andy Devine action films.

In answer to a direct question, and one that has been prominent in "Little Three" circles since the consent decree was signed, Scully put thumbs down on suggestions Universal is either soliciting or accepting long term franchises.

All told, the company has 22 features to deliver on the current schedule. Of these, Scully singles out the following, in addition to "Back Street" and "Buck Privates," as worthy of special attention: Deanna Durbin's "Nice Girl," "Model Wife," with Joan Blondell and Dick Powell; the Frank Lloyd production of "Lady From Cheyenne," with Loretta Young and Robert Preston; "Man-Made Monster," with Lon Chaney jr.; Rene Clair's production of "Flame of New Orleans," starring Marlene Dietrich; "The Man Who Lost Himself," with Brian Aherne; "Old Charlie," with Abbott and Costello; "I, James Lewis," a Frank Lloyd film; "Butch Minds the Baby" and "Tight Shoes," both by Damon Runyon, and "Unfinished Business," starring Irene Dunne.

Sees Decree as Making It Tough on "Little Fellow"

LAMPASAS, TEX.—The decree will affect the "little fellow" in at least three ways, declares Roy L. Walker, president of the Theatre Owners Protective Ass'n in a bulletin placing responsibility for the document at the doorstep of "Allied and others, who, during the past 10 years, have hammered at the doors of congress and the department of justice asking that they take over the distribution and exhibition of pictures and lay down rules and regulations for our operation."

Walker enumerates his three points as follows: The decree will (1) increase the cost of buying at least double; (2) cause the small operator to run product six to 12 months behind key cities and (3) force the small theatre to join some kind of buying organization.

LEADERS PREDICT IT'LL BOOM; CREDIT DEFENSE FOR UPSURGE

Optimism, However, Is Limited to Domestic Industry Market

Industry leaders, with some cautions and some reservations, are confident the new year will be a significant one at the boxoffice. Their statements on this page give the reasons for their conclusions.

Predicts Upswing in 1941

By GEORGE J. SCHAEFER
President, RKO Corporation

New York—In my opinion, the motion picture industry will only begin to realize the benefits in 1941 of the government expenditures and business improvements and expansion.

There has been a considerable lag in boxoffice response since the period when business took an upturn, but we will shortly begin to feel the benefits in our industry. The lag has been due to many variables.

With business on the upswing, 1941 should be a good year for our industry.

Sees Bright Frame To Gloomy Picture

By NATE J. BLUMBERG
President, Universal Pictures Co., Inc.

HOLLYWOOD—This new year, in terms of the international picture, may be, and probably will be, a dark and foreboding one. But for the film industry, I can see it only in terms of prosperity. More so than has prevailed in a number of years, in my opinion.

Newspaper headlines are re-directing your average person in this country to the fountain heads of entertainment. All kinds of entertainment. Your average person will want more and more relief from the realities of the age. That does not mean he wants his intelligence slighted and it does

Cohn Is Encouraged Over 1941 Prospects

By JACK COHN
Executive Vice-President
Columbia Pictures

NEW YORK—There are several factors which make the outlook for 1941 loom up as decidedly encouraging. The constant decrease in unemployment due to the pressing need of manpower in industries directly or indirectly connected with the war, is one of them. The increased spending power of the masses to whom motion pictures have always represented the favorite form of entertainment, is another; and the third is the fact that, pressure groups to the contrary, motion pictures have steadily improved in quality and will continue to

Another Encouraging Sign

By BARNEY BALABAN
President, Paramount Pictures, Inc.

New York—It appears to me that, barring always the uncertainty of what may happen to the foreign market, particularly England, we have every reason to be hopeful and encouraged over the outlook for 1941. The general improvement in industrial recovery has not, as yet, been felt to any extent by the motion picture business. If this improvement continues, and I think it will, it should go a long way towards offsetting any losses the companies have suffered because of loss of foreign revenue, or which may result from adjustments which will be necessary due to the consent decree.

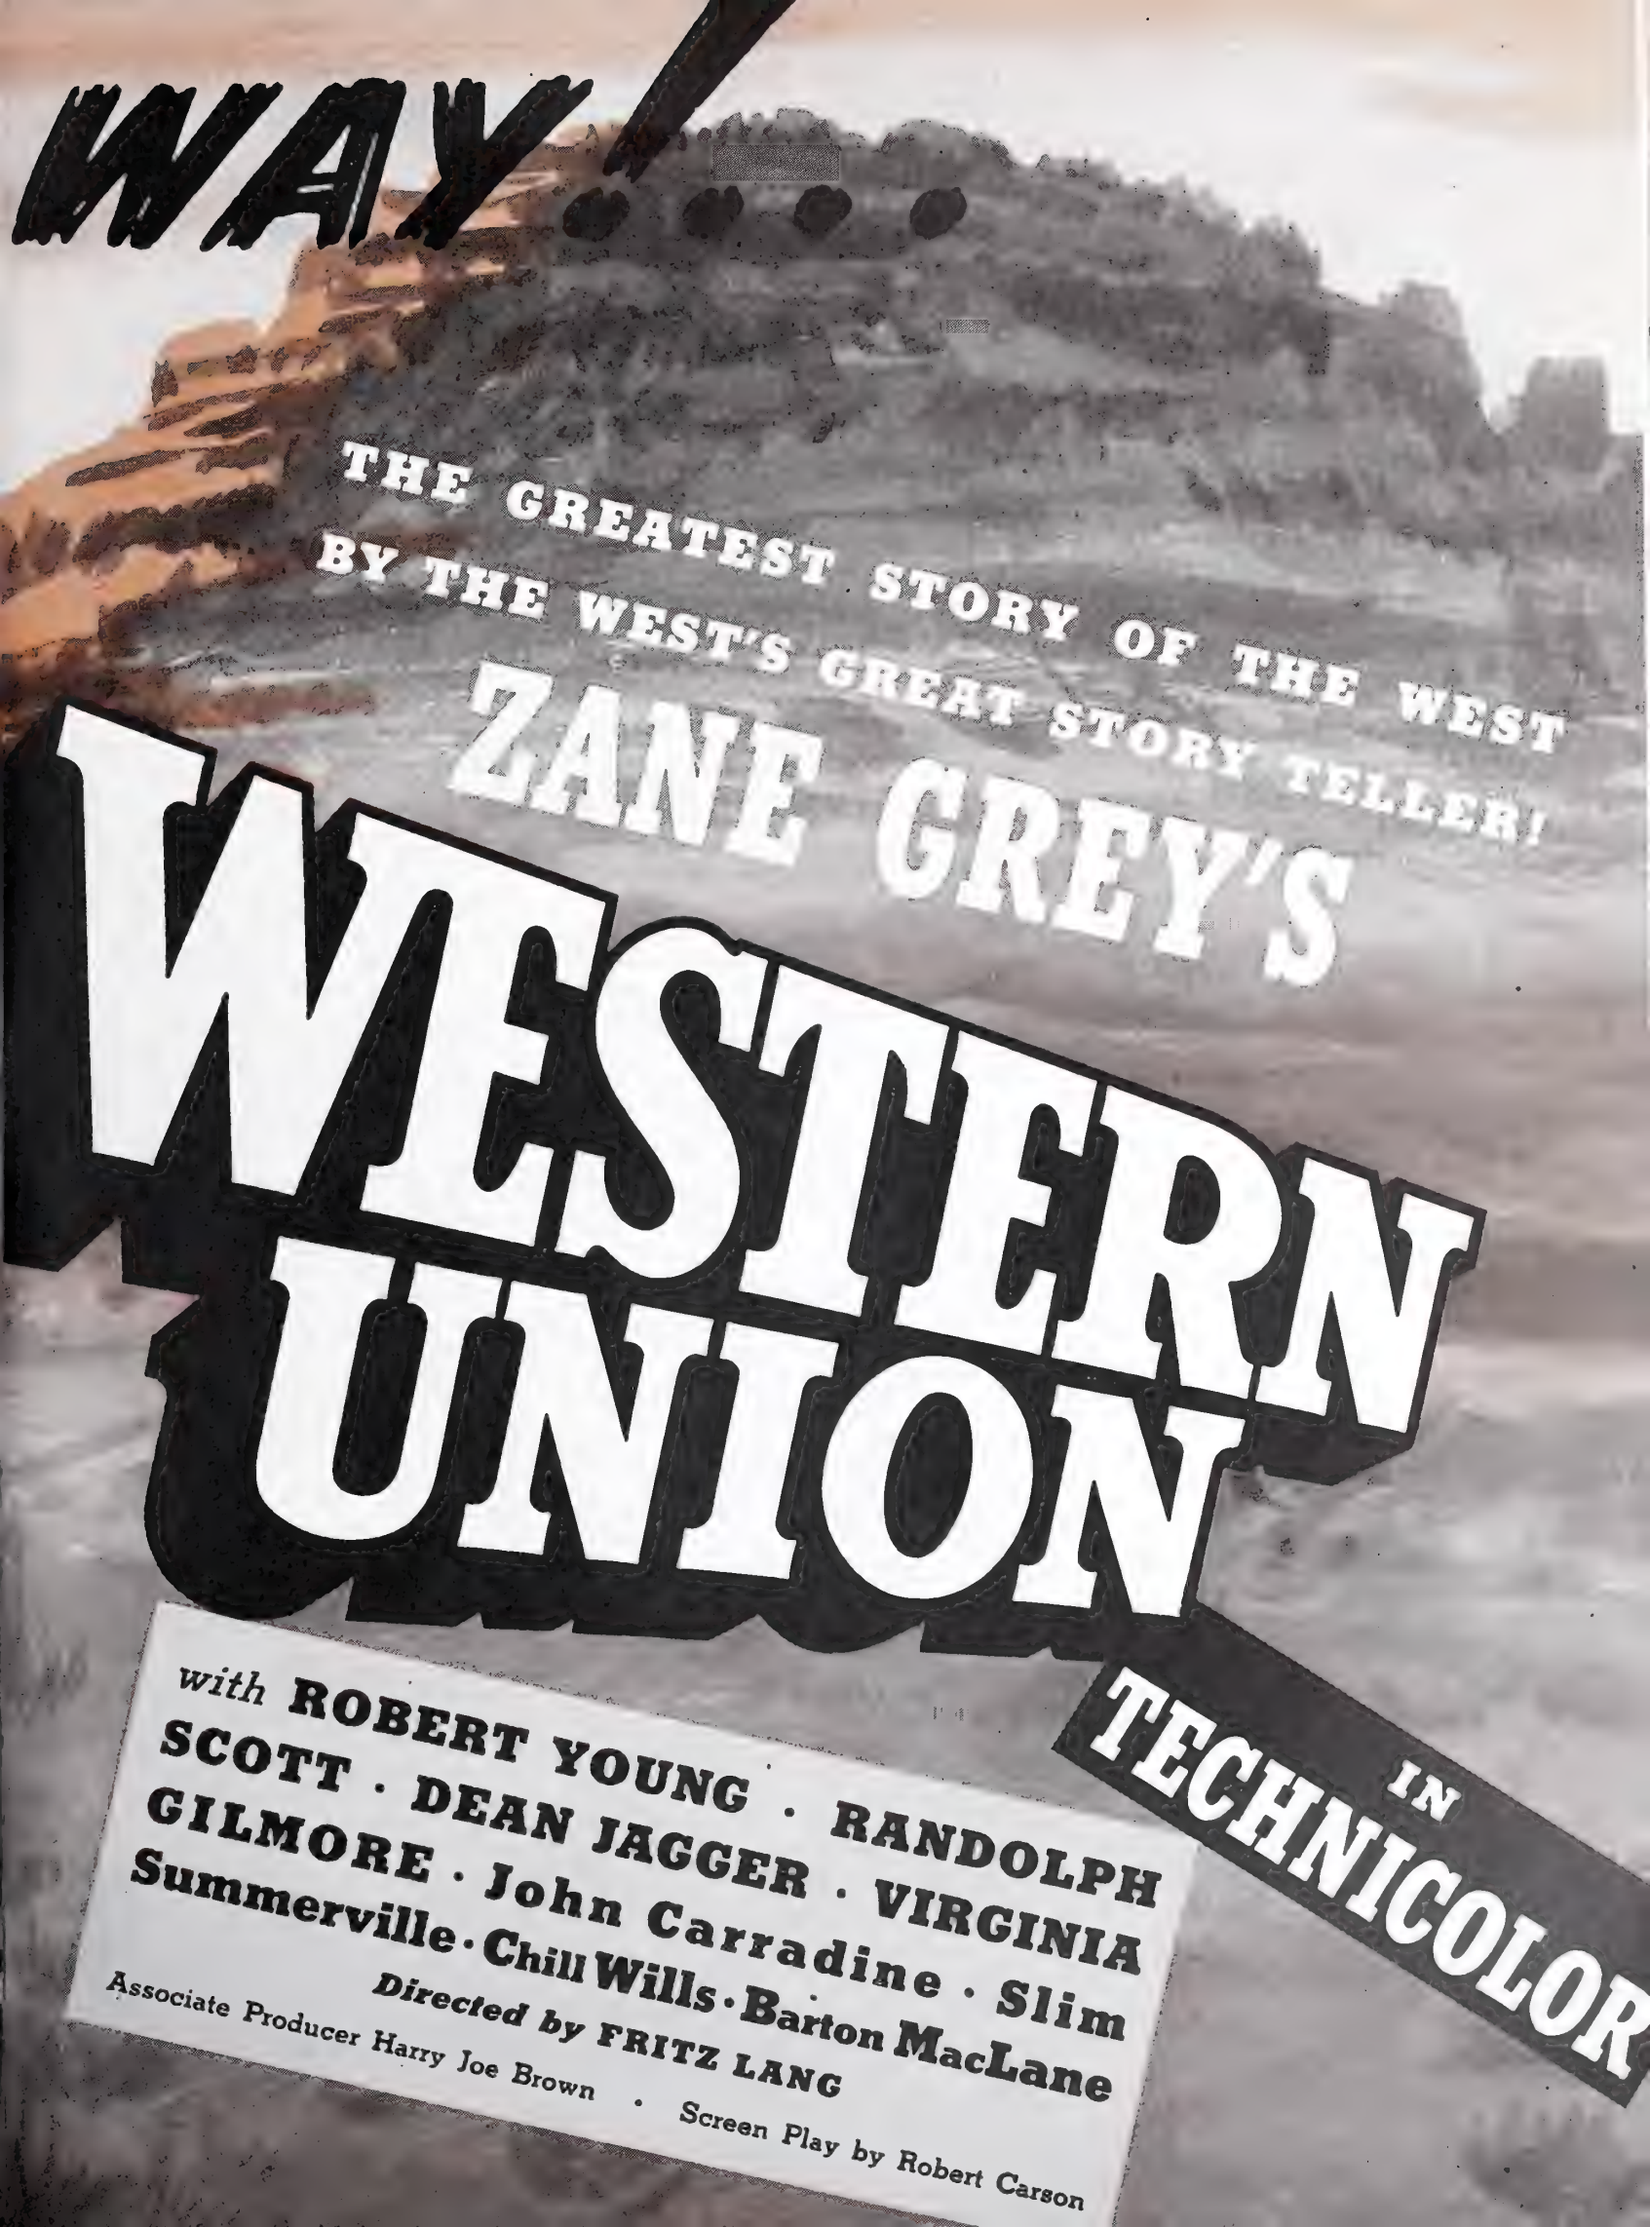
One of Greatest Booms Predicted by Warner

By HARRY M. WARNER
President, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD—Unless all signs fail, this year will see one of the greatest business and industrial booms in American history. Millions of unemployed will be back at work. The tremendous sums being spent not only for our own national defense, but also by Great Britain, will bring back prosperity in every town, hamlet and city in the United States.

The farmer and the laborer, the manufacturer and the industrialist, the mines, the mills will all be going full blast. With more people working, with more spending money available, it is only natural that more people than ever will turn toward motion pictures for entertainment.

It is up to our industry to make certain that the best possible pictures are made available for the millions of new potential theatre customers who are going to be hungry for entertainment to take their minds off the troubles now besetting the world.



Decade-High Industrial Activity Cheers Providence

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—With payrolls in industrial plants throughout Rhode Island at the highest point in a decade, and the government's defense program just getting under way; with Uncle Sam spending millions here in enlargement of existing military establishments and creating new army and navy bases at Quonset Point, Pt. Judith and elsewhere; with theatre business generally up and New Year's Eve spending best in years; with two new neighborhood theatres opened within the past six months and at least one more new one at present in the planning stage, 1941 looks to be a profitable period for exhibitors throughout this state.

The new legislature, which convenes Tuesday, is not expected to introduce any

Defense Money Seen Certain Phila. Hypo

PHILADELPHIA—Defense spending, heavily concentrated in this area, is looked to by exhibitors as a sure stimulant in 1941 to a previously anemic boxoffice.

As to the effect of the decree on business, exhibitors are inclined to be more cautious and to wait and see how the sections, titles and paragraphs work out in practice.

More than $2,000,000,000 in defense contracts have been distributed to shipbuilding and ordnance plants in Philadelphia and neighboring industrial cities, including Camden, N. J. and Wilmington, Del. And $1,500,000,000 more in contracts is expected during the next two or three years, according to members of the National Defense Advisory Commission. Number of employes in the metal trades alone is expected to go from the present 70,000 to double that number.

The re-employment boom isn't expected to begin until about Easter, when the plants will be re-tooled for armament production. But already one curious sign of increasing employment has been noted, reports David Milgram, head of the Affiliated Circuit, which has 16 subsequent run houses.

Afternoons Decline

"Our matinees are falling off, and our evening houses are picking up," he says. "That means people no longer have free afternoons—they're going back to work."

As to the outlook for '41, he says: "I hate to predict, but I'm kind of looking forward to a pretty good year. The government spending should have a noticeable effect. The consent decree? Well, we'll know better when we see how it works."

Harry Fried, operator of a chain in the "blue-blood" suburban section, says, "Business ought to be much better in 1941. I'm enthusiastic about the outlook. I think the consent decree will have a good effect, provided it is properly put into operation. The effect will be beneficial for both the independents and the big chains, because any industry that maintains peace is bound to profit by it."

Sees a Bright Frame To a Gloomy Picture

not mean that he necessarily wants only the fluff.

I believe he will be seeking interesting entertainment, expertly turnd out and on a variety of subject material. Therefore, a pitfall for the industry to avoid more diligently than ever is its product rolling out of a standardized mould. This will not be easy, but it will be essential.

In the search for diversion, there is nothing fixed about our own business. The public will gravitate toward that form of entertainment which offers it the most, but the degree to which any upsurge may take place in the picture industry depends very largely on the industry itself—the kind of attractions it turns out, the personalities appearing in them, the ingenuity evidenced in their making.

Back to Work in Empire State

Albany—More than 140,000 workers are estimated to have gone back into New York state industry since April 1, Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller reports.

"Many more will follow them to produce the goods for which over a billion dollars' worth of defense contracts have already been let in the Empire State," she adds.

Miss Miller said that "in November, for the first time, New York factory employment topped 1929 levels."

improve with resultant beneficial effects at the boxoffice.

There is no denying, however, the seriousness of the problems which confront the industry. So much space has been given them in both the trade papers and newspapers during recent months as to make it a sheer waste of time to dwell upon them here. Nevertheless, the manner in which this industry has always survived the crises which have confronted it over the years offers definite encouragement for the present and the future. Clear-headed thinking, plus the determination to produce pictures as fine as human ingenuity can devise, are all that are needed.

Of one thing I am sure, the days of wishful thinking as regards grosses are a thing of the past. In planning for the future, this industry will have to cut its garment according to the cloth. "Prestige pictures," so-called because they certainly yielded nothing else, will no longer reach the screen if producers have the welfare of their respective companies in mind. The dwindling of the foreign market almost to the vanishing point makes it imperative for every picture to bring back its cost, plus, in this country alone. No organization can henceforth afford the dubious luxury of gambling huge sums on product which serves no other purpose than that of gratifying some individual's ego. On the contrary, each picture will have to be aimed straight at the boxoffices of the United States so that whatever sums its production and marketing entail will come home accompanied by the profit encountered within our own borders.

High Cost No Guarantee

While it is my belief that the contraction of the foreign market will necessitate lowered production budgets, this will not mean a decrease in the quality of films. High production costs have never yet insured a picture against being a flop at the boxoffice. On the other hand, the industry has repeatedly witnessed the emergence of "sleepers" produced at comparatively modest cost which, nevertheless, achieved phenomenal popularity, thus proving that the mere squandering of money has never yet been a successful substitute for showmanship.

One thing is certain, the inevitable taxation necessitated by our national defense efforts will raise the cost of theatre admissions. It is not too soon for the industry to institute a campaign to educate the public to the idea that even with raised admission prices the picture theatre offers more for the money than any other medium of entertainment. As I see it, such a campaign would tend to eliminate any thought that the industry is attempting to profiteer.

No Division Here on New-Season Outlook

LOS ANGELES—Showmen in this sector whose opinions on any subject have heretofore been as varied as the colors in the rainbow have set a precedent by agreeing —with virtual unanimity—that 1941 will be a banner year from the standpoint of showmanship, boxoffice returns and general prosperity in the Southern California sector.

The opinions come from diverse sources, including Fox West Coast, largest circuit in the area, and ranging downward to the most modest of subsequent run houses. And the reasoning is based on two factors:

1. The national defense program, which is putting the jobless back to work and putting money in many pockets—a percentage of which will find its way to the boxoffice.

2. The decree, which most exhibitors think will result in better product.

FWC spokesmen, in the absence of Charles P. Skouras, have little other comment to make beyond pointing to the circuit's recently announced $250,000 rehabilitation and modernization program as an outstanding example of its optimism anent 1941.

Predicts Better Product

"A very good year" is the prediction voiced by Robert H. Poole, executive director of the Independent Theatre Owners of So. Calif. and Ariz., which represents some 400 non-circuit theatre owners in this sector. Poole maintains the boom in aircraft manufacturing hereabouts will reflect favorably at the theatres and thinks, also, that because of the consent decree the studios are going to spend more time and money on their product.

The preparedness campaign and a better lineup of attractions are going to turn the trick, asserts Millroy Anderson, manager of RKO's de luxe first run in the downtown area, the Hillstreet. Anderson declares he expects an outstanding array of features to carry through the spring and summer months.

Here are some other cross-sectional opinions:

Jack Goldberg, booker for the Ben Bronstein circuit: "A very good year in prospect because of the national trend toward prosperity."

Morris Barsky of the Capitol, a 20-cent house: "The best year ever. More people will be working."

Cobe Wartman, operator of the 15-cent Deluxe: "A good year. There will be a certain amount of prosperity, and prosperity never hurt any business."

Ben Peskay, owner of the Banner, a local house, and the Palms in Palms: "Much better than last year. Theatre owners realize this and are, therefore, devoting more time to their houses instead of running off to the racetracks."

"Gold Mine Waiting If We Can Get It"

ST. LOUIS—"There's a gold mine awaiting the industry in 1941, if we can only reach out and get it," thinks Harry C. Arthur jr. of F&M and operators of more than 30 theatres here. The unprecedented daily gain in employment figures, the shortage of skilled labor, and the distinct industrial upsurge in activity and product, have placed money in the pockets of working men and their families, many of whom have not had that money in more than 10 years, he states.

"Net results," he says, "will depend entirely upon the efficiency of Hollywood during the coming year, and upon whether or not it can recapture the knack of turning out boxoffice attractions. If the film capital continues to remain dazed at the loss of the foreign market and fails to make the most of its improved domestic market, business will be no better, despite all this activity.

"The decree should result in a definitely better grade of film product, which, in turn, can only result in higher grosses. Whether or not the decree is to be the solution of our industry's ailing receipts, is questionable, but if quality films should ensue, increased boxoffice 'take' should follow, as a natural course.

Must Meet Competition

"Film entertainment in 1941 must be made comparable to those many other entertainments which have lured away those who formerly constituted the picture theatres' most ardent patrons. Bowling, baseball, basketball, radio and Bingo are only a few of the numerous diversions which have made tremendous inroads.

"Until Hollywood awakens to the fact this competition does exist and strong enough to wipe us out entirely if steps aren't taken to match it, there isn't a ghost of a chance to better ourselves this year, regardless of how much pocket money is available for entertainment purposes.

"Hollywood producers have proven time and again their ability to turn out boxoffice films.

"Let Hollywood take a hitch in its breeches and dig in for some hard work and we'll have more of surefire boxoffice hits which, with or without high-powered exploitation, publicity or advertising, will lure them back to our fold."

Decade-High Industrial Activity Is Cheering

regulatory acts or added amusement taxes.

Higher prices, introduced for several "super" productions in Providence theatres through fall and winter brought no squawks at the boxoffice and swelled grosses, to the advantage of both producers and exhibitors. Dual features continue as a regular diet in Providence and the smaller towns and no likelihood of this policy being changed during this year exists, even key house managements being resigned to dual showings.

What the Studios Are Doing

Hollywood Avoiding Hearst "Kane" Involvement

HOLLYWOOD—Film colony is studiously refraining from exhibiting any reaction to the battle launched by William Randolph Hearst against RKO, precipitated when the publisher demanded that "Citizen Kane," made by Orson Welles for RKO release, be shelved because, Hearst contends, it parallels his own career. He has ordered all RKO news and publicity banned from his newspapers and may resort to legal action in an attempt to secure an injunction restraining RKO from releasing the film. Spokesmen here contend "Citizen Kane" is not a Hearst biography, but a composite picture of a newspaper publisher, fictional throughout; assert the ban against RKO is unfair because the company did not even make the picture, and indicate, nevertheless, that the studio is not greatly concerned over being barred from the Hearst press. As to shelving the picture, attaches say comment on that must come from President George Schaefer in New York.

20th-Fox First With Studio Decree Huddles

First company to plunge into serious executive huddles anent the consent decree's probable effect on production and distribution is 20th Century-Fox, where President Sidney R. Kent, Sales Chief Herman Wobber and Charles McCarthy, advertising-publicity head, are huddling with Darryl Zanuck, Joseph M. Schenck and William Goetz. Wobber predicts a boxoffice upsurge will offset operational restrictions as a result of the decree and declares a determined drive will be made through increased sales efforts to raise cash for financing 1941-42 product in packages of five. At least two films, "The Outlaw" and "Tobacco Road," may be roadshowed, he said. Executives are also setting budgets for English production and McCarthy is outlining plans to organize a field exploitation staff, in addition to more closely coordinating the east-west publicity organizations.

Indications Are Production Tempo Will Be Continued

All signposts point to a continuation of the rapid film-making tempo to which the studios have been geared in recent weeks. With 19 to roll during the balance of January, another 16 pictures are already scheduled to hit the cameras during February and March. Of them, at least 22 will be in the top-budget brackets.

Jules Levey, president of Mayfair, has checked in from New York to launch preparations on three films he will produce this season for Universal, including "Hellzapoppin" . . . 20th Century-Fox paid a reported $50,000 for "Benjamin Blake," new novel by Edison Marshall . . . Metro has picked up its option on Jan Struther's best-seller, "Mrs. Miniver," to be produced by Sidney Franklin . . . Alexander Korda's "Lady Hamilton" goes into release as "That Hamilton Woman!" . . . Ass'n of American Colleges, in its 27th annual convention, was welcomed here jointly by the producers association and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, in ceremonies at M-G-M.

Non-Profit Training Reels For Government Recognized

Industry plans to produce non-profit military training reels for the government were officially recognized when Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war, sent a letter of appreciation to Y. Frank Freeman, producers ass'n president.

Mixed Detroit Outlook; Key Deemed Quality of Product

DETROIT—A mixed outlook on business is typical of the attitude of both circuits and independents here. Typically, Earl Hudson, president of United Detroit Theatres which operates most of Detroit's first runs, comments:

"Business is going to depend entirely on the boxoffice draw of the product we receive and upon the general economic situation. People are not going to spend for pictures, even if the town becomes flooded with money from national defense work unless product is good enough to demand it."

A checkup on upstate conditions with typical Michigan exhibitors met along Filmrow, most of whom preferred not to be quoted, reveals this, in cross-section:

"Defense spending is going to affect the smaller cities in the near future, but, from present evidence, theatres are not going to have too large a share. Watch the people line up at the bank on pay day—they are putting their earnings in the bank, once more saving up for the years ahead and are not spending recklessly as was done in the last war. A marked increase in payrolls may make a difference when the money is distributed more widely to people who are less used to it and when it has been coming in for long enough to seem reasonably secure for a while. But that will be months away."

The viewpoint of the average independent exhibitor is expressed by Edgar E. Kirchner of the Family, Detroit, and secretary-treasurer of Allied Theatres of Michigan:

"Business in 1941 has started off well and I think it should continue. Increase has been moderate, of course, and is largely dependent in this territory upon the money which we expect to have spent upon production of munitions and national defense spending in various forms. One dubious sign has appeared already, however. There are more men lined up before unemployment agencies than there have been in a long time."

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

DONALD HAYES is the editor of a house organ published by the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company. The K. Lee Williams Theatres, Oklahoma City, noticing an approach of newsreels, sent it along and now you, and the newsreels, are about to get it. The Public Feels Its Own Pulse, this might be called:

"The readers of this paper, who have undoubtedly been preoccupied these past few months with the Russian ballet, Information Please and Dorothy Thompson, may not have noticed the last line of letters on the electric signs of local theatres: 'and all the newsreels.' The sign is supposed to indicate an added attraction inside. Having read his newspaper, listened to his radio bulletins, the customer escapes to the theatre and is asked to sit through 20 minutes of misery, interspersed with views of football games, girls in bathing suits and sweepstakes winners, before Myrna Loy comes on.

"There is really little news in newsreels. For instance, those girls. They and their suits doggedly follow the seasons the year round, from Miami to Sun Valley, from Mt. Rainier to Atlantic City. Year after year the reels follow an unchanging pattern. You can count on seeing at least one congressman on the Capitol steps; one mayor unveiling something; an oil well fire; an airplane over Boulder Dam; graduation at Annapolis, featuring hats tossed in the air; a parade at West Point; a baby contest; monkeys; election night in Times Square; the Mummers Parade in Philadelphia; a rodeo; Coney Island beach in August; somebody's wife breaking a bottle of champagne over a new ship; a flood; cherry blossoms; ski jumps; a long distance swimmer covered with grease; the Kentucky Derby.

"One of the conventions of the reel is used whenever the army is shown. As an introduction, the mouth of a huge coast defense gun looms larger and larger until it fills the screen. It seems to some moviegoers whose memories go back to the days of John Bunny and Flora Finch, or even the 'The Great Train Robbery,' that they have never been without that scene.

"And that's why we escapists cry, 'uncle,' and ask the theatre managers to leave the newsreels in the newsreel theatres where their own audiences can find them. How about a good rousing installment of the 'Perils of Pauline,' boys?"

Well, how about it, boys? The truth is in Hayes' and his amusing, but also biting, comment. Everyone knows, but everyone may not go around bothering to talk about it, that the average newsreel is dull stuff and, insofar as journalism on celluloid is concerned, about as exciting and actually newsworthy as the woman's page in the daily newspaper.

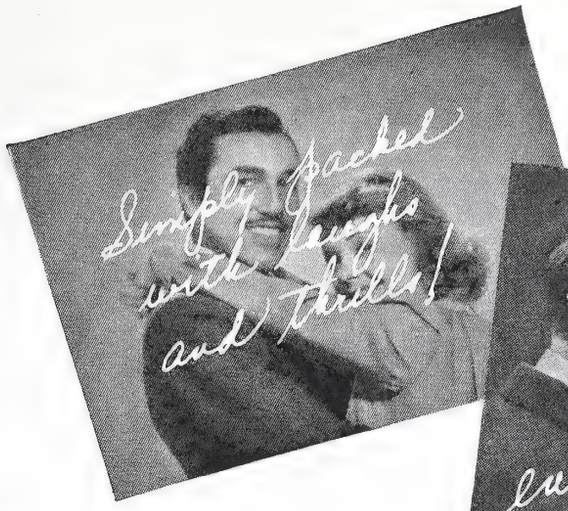
Further. The opposition can have its chance. If it lines up at all, it lines up on the right.

"Land of Liberty"

DOWN to ninety-eight minutes after its run at the New York World's Fair, "Land of Liberty" is now in general distribution, its profits accruing to whatever war emergency relief the industry may take on.

The film is unique. It is an edited job, extremely well handled by Cecil B. DeMille, of straight entertainment films made in Hollywood over the last twenty-five years. In combination, it tells a running, highlight story of the rise of America and ends on a note of optimism for the future without unduly gilding the lily and making it clear there remains much to be done.

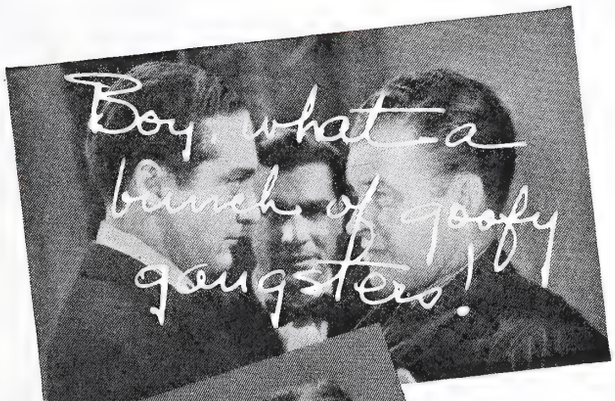
Everyone had a hand in this. All companies are represented and the cast is enough to knock anyone's both eyes out. A partial list starts with Don Ameche and George Arliss and goes through the alphabet to Henry B. Walthall and Loretta Young. Main stops include Claudette Colbert, Bette Davis, Irene Dunne, Jack Holt, Fredric March, George Raft, Spencer Tracy; the way stations, practically everybody any time in sight.



Certainly far more interesting than most second features, "Land of Liberty" is easily as good as many firsts. And why not? It took Hollywood a quarter of a century to turn it out.

He Follows Up

QUENTIN REYNOLDS, war correspondent for "Collier's," was responsible for "London Can Take It." It may be recalled this column had something to say about it as gripping drama, on the epic side, of a metropolis under attack from the air. Now Reynolds has returned to America with a sequel which he calls "They Spent Christmas Under Fire." Again on London, the title, of course, tells the content.



Like its predecessor, here is a ten-minute subject of power made vibrant and genuine because it deals with common people facing conditions unprecedented in world history. Once more, the narration is simple and emotionally underplayed. And again Warner is releasing, the profits above costs, which are geared low deliberately, going to British war relief.

$10 Daily Maximum Fee for Arbitrators

NEW YORK—As exclusively reported in BOXOFFICE on December 21, the American Arbitration Ass'n has pegged the fees of arbitrators. A flat $10 per day is the rate.

The decision to offset varied criticisms leveled at the $50 daily maximum fee set up in the arbitration rules under the decree came from the AAA's administrative committee, of which Paul Felix Warburg is chairman. Additionally, the committee has formally declared that the $10 fee may be waived or reduced, if, in its discretion, it appears the fee would work a hardship on a particular exhibitor.

The $10 fee is for one full day's services of an arbitrator, or any part of a day. The fee may be split between disputing parties to an arbitration or assessed on the losing party, the discretion being with the arbitrator. Thus, no matter how large, small, trivial or important a dispute arises before a film tribunal anywhere in the country, the fee for an arbitrator cannot exceed $10 per day. This officially supersedes the maximum $50 daily stipulation in the decree.

Warburg has this to say: "The association has followed its own principle that arbitration should be simple and inexpensive. From its own experience it has discovered that the best men in the country are obtainable as arbitrators upon a basis of an honorarium.

"We feel that the $10 fee and the provision for waiver or reduction will work to the good of the exhibitor. We do not want any exhibitor to lose his right to arbitrate because of the prohibitive cost of arbitrators' fees."

Mr. Maurice Kann, Editor
Boxoffice
Rockefeller Center
New York, N.Y.

Dear Mr. Kann:

May I congratulate you and your staff on the excellent educational feature in the form of Questions and Answers on arbitration which appeared in your January 4th issue.

It is a concise, clear and complete story and I am sure that all the exhibitors in the country will want to read it and study it as a helpful preliminary towards using the motion picture arbitration facilities when they begin to function after February 1st.

It is most heartening to the officers and staff of the American Arbitration Association that BOXOFFICE considers arbitration important enough to warrant the space that you have given it.

Most sincerely yours

Lucius R. Eastman

Suit Cost Gov't $200,000 Thus Far

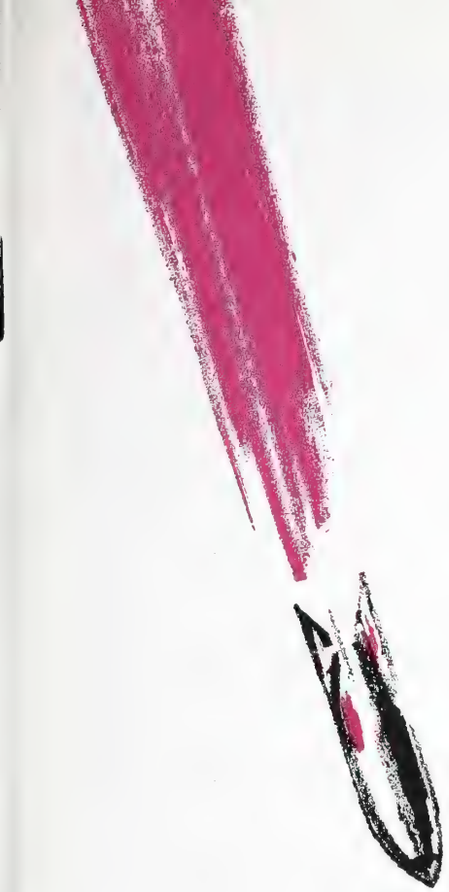
New York—Film sources estimate the government has spent approximately $200,000 on the all-industry suit which, to date, has resulted in a consent decree with Loew's, Paramount, Warner, 20th-Fox and RKO.

Will Seek Dismissal From Griffith Suit

OKLAHOMA CITY—On the theory "no triable issue is involved," counsel for the "Little Three" on January 31 will seek dismissal of the government's anti-trust action against the Griffith circuit and major distributors before U. S. District Court Judge Vaught. The "Big Five" have been eliminated as defendants as a result of the decree in the New York equity action. Arguments before Judge Vaught for UA, Columbia and Universal will be conducted by Edward C. Raftery of New York and Malcolm McKenzie of this city.

New York Hearing Is Off Until February

NEW YORK—Arguments in the motion of counsel for the "Little Three" to dismiss the government's supplemental complaint against them, growing out of the decree, have been set back to early February from January 30, originally agreed to by Judge Henry W. Goddard. The switch in dates is occasioned by the fact that Edward C. Raftery, UA attorney, is due in Oklahoma City, January 31, to argue dismissal for his client in the Crescent anti-trust case.



Depositions Next Step In Cassil-Dubinsky Case

NEW YORK—The next step in the Cassil Amusement Co.'s anti-trust action against the Dubinsky circuit and major distributors will be the taking of depositions of the latter's branch managers in Kansas City by plaintiff's counsel on January 27. Depositions of Eugenia D. and Frank H. Cassil were completed last week in St. Joseph, Mo., by Edward C. Raftery, majors' attorney.

Paramount Conferences On Decree Continue

NEW YORK—Conferences between the home office legal staff and Paramount exchange forces are being continued at a rapid pace. Austin C. Keough, general counsel, and J. J. Unger, eastern sales manager, spent Monday in Boston and Friday in Philadelphia explaining the legal interpretations of the decree. The Quaker City session marks the third for Keough and Unger.

Louis Phillips during the week held similar sessions in Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Louis. Both he and Keough attended the meeting held two weeks ago at the New York exchange which marked the opening gun.

ANOTHER WARNER WAR SCOOP!

Forecasts Theatre Jolt Due From Television

The following reaction of a staff reporter to Columbia Broadcasting System's latest experiment in television in color is reprinted from last week's eastern edition of BOXOFFICE:

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—If there's a man in the house who doesn't think he, his heirs or successors aren't in for a stiff competitive jolt from television, let him step up and be converted.

A quick reader reaction to the above, if there be any reaction at all, might be: "It won't be in my day; why worry?"

Well, it's like this. Let's say that Hollywood bosomed silent films so long the films let out such a yelp that became wired for sound. Let's also say it was anywhere from five years upwards that color, and limited color at that, was added to sound.

Then consider this: It's probably no more than two years since the television industry has been attempting to get its baby into homes with a diversified program. And it hasn't even scratched the surface. But the other afternoon this reporter saw the first public showing of direct pickup television in color. And it was amazing.

True, color television is still in the laboratory. But if its fundamental problems have been surmounted, and CBS engineers claim they have been, it would seem to be no more than straightforward engineering effort before its commercial application might be anticipated. Moreover, the impression gained from the color demonstration, per se, coupled with the technical ease said to accompany it presages an earlier and faster development of television in color than in black and white.

Accomplish Color "Pickup"

Responsibility for this presaging rests entirely with CBS engineers, who told this reporter color pickup, as distinguished from color films which up to now have been the chief source for experimentation, is accomplished with a lower level of illumination than is necessary for black and white pictures. This, technically for the moment, is the result of an orthicon tube which even now is being further developed to the stage where it will require even less light than the one used in the demonstration.

About 100 persons were present at the showing held in the new CBS studio. The color pictures were picked up by a television camera in the company's laboratories about one long block distant and transmitted by coaxial cable. The pictures were reproduced on two receivers, one a regular black and white, and next to it and considerably smaller, a table model color receiver which also includes a standard broadcast radio receiver. The latter, especially designed for the occasion, is designed to illustrate that color need not add bulkiness to the television receiver. The screens on both receivers measured five and one quarter by seven and three quarter inches. As pictures were received it was possible to make easy comparison between the colored and black and white images, since both were shown simultaneously.

And the magic of color never got a better sendoff. The flat statement is made for whatever it's worth, that the black and white images were like ash remains as contrasted to the flaming red fire that left them. Now, that's not a remark to covet admittance to the Smithsonian Institute, but it is this observer's studied opinion that perhaps nothing the film industry has in use today can match the potentialities, competitive-wise or entertainment-wise, color television offers once it is harnessed for mass consumption.

Cautious on Distance

The CBS system, as demonstrated, is unequivocally declared to be capable of transmitting every natural color the naked eye can see. Whether this means New Yorkers could see the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena on their television sets—meaning is distance a factor in transmission?—is something CBS is cautious on. But they do state there that weakness of light signals as applied to transmitting images over distances is of much less concern in color television than in black and white because of the "definition" color affords. Also, it is said that, despite differences in current of power supply lines between the point of pickup and the point of reproduction, a method of synchronizing the color disk in the receiver with the color disk at the point of origin overcomes this.

Home Experiments Soon

Among the objects shown in the demonstration, especially to illustrate that colors do not "break up" if they are moving, were a map which was rapidly spun around in both directions, colored liquids poured from tumbler to bowl, loose confetti and other items.

This reporter asked a CBS engineer what he expected the next step in the development might be. He was also asked if it is possible to blow the images up to something approaching theatre screen size. This is his answer:

"We expect to put it on for home use, purely in experiment form, in a few months. From then on it's the television industry's baby; those who make the sets, and so forth. It is easier to blow up to screen size than for reproduction on home-type sets."

Flashes From the News Front

Grateful, But Alert

MADISON, WIS. — The promise of Gov. Julius P. Heil that no new taxes will be needed to finance the state for the biennium is greeted by exhibitors with gratitude, but with alert interest. A fight is expected in a proposal to divert highway funds to the general purse and, if diversion opponents win, pressure is expected for new forms of taxation.

Foresee Illinois Ascap Rein

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Legislation to seek theatre relief from Ascap license fees may be introduced in the Illinois legislature this session, it is learned. Several legislators have been approached by theatre men with suggestions that anti-Ascap bills be introduced.

To Eighth Term

CLEVELAND—Ernest Schwartz has been re-elected to his eighth term as president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Theatre Owners. Others re-named: A. E. Ptak, vice-president; L. G. Baldwin, treasurer, and G. W. Erdmann, secretary.

Flu Takes Ohio Toll

COLUMBUS—Substantial drop in grosses is reported by exhibitors in the wave of influenza attacks. The state health department, however, believes the disease has reached its peak.

La Crosse Hearing Delay

MADISON, WIS.—Hearing in the $1,472,000 damage suit by the La Crosse Theatre Co. against major interests has been postponed to February 17.

Cashes In on Music Row

LINCOLN — Bob Livingston, who once guaranteed patrons he would match the amount offered by the "Pot O' Gold" radio program if they were in his theatre when their name was called, has developed another idea aimed at radio as a result of the Ascap-BMI scrap. Whenever the picture permits, his newspaper advertisements will be slanted along the line: "You must be tired of listening for a good tune on your radio, so come down to the Capitol, see ....., and listen to music that is music." First film to get this treatment will be "Tin Pan Alley." He's seeking Ascap financial support for his idea.

"Decree Protests Futile"

CHICAGO—Arguing that "further protests against or denunciations of the consent decree are futile" and that no changes or modifications are likely by court action or otherwise until after the decree is in actual operation, Edward G. Zorn, president of the UTO of Illinois, advises his membership that compliance with the document is up to the distributors. He asserts that impending state legislation is more immediately important to the association.

Await "Chat" Switch Reply

MINNEAPOLIS—Northwest Allied is awaiting a reply to its request of President Roosevelt that he schedule future "fireside chats" for Monday night. Fred Strom, secretary, wrote the President that his talks cut into grosses on the heaviest day of the week.

Hanson Wins Metro Top Prize Money

NEW YORK—M-G-M's most successful exploitation campaign is over, and thereby hangs $10,000 worth of prize money. First prize of $2,500 goes to Roy E. Hanson of the Jefferson, Goshen, Ind., for his campaign on "Joe and Ethel Turp Call on the President." Hanson is in the first run classification. First prize of another $2,500 in the subsequent run group was won by Percy Friedman of the Yeadon, Yeadon, Pa., who submitted a campaign on "The Women."

Approximately 2,000 campaign books from this country and Canada were received in the contest among independent exhibitors. The $10,000 is the most generous prize awards ever given by the company. Checks have gone to M-G-M branch managers, who will contact the winning exhibitors in their territories, and together with exploiteers will make arrangements for appropriate presentation.

In the first run theatre classification, besides Hanson, the other winners are as follows:

Second prize, $750—Rex Williams, Elco, Elkhart, Ind., with a campaign on "Judge Hardy and Son."

Third prize, $500—George Limerick, Aztec, Enid, Okla., with a campaign on "Another Thin Man."

Five others were chosen for special $100 awards. They are: Tom E. Roberts, Colonial, Elmira, N. Y., "Wizard of Oz;" Emery M. Austin, Orpheum, Tulsa, Okla., "Boom Town;" Leo T. Jones, Star, Upper Sandusky, Ohio, "Wizard of Oz;" Jerome Engel, Family, Glen Lyon, Pa., "The Secret of Dr. Kildare," and Matt H. Whitham, Tift, Tifton, Ga., "Young Tom Edison."

Although $100 awards were not announced at the start, the judges regarded the campaigns sent in by the five special winners to be of such high calibre it was decided to add these supplementary awards.

The final winners in the subsequent run division are, besides Friedman:

Second prize, $750—Morrie Parfrey, Voge, East Chicago, Ind., with a campaign on "Northwest Passage."

Third prize, $500—Jack Albertson, Indiana, Indiana Harbor, Ind., with a campaign on "Young Tom Edison."

Winners of the five special $100 awards among the subsequent runs are: L. A. Wallis, New Isis, Fort Worth, Tex., "Babes in Arms;" Sid Holland, Sheepshead, Brooklyn, N. Y., "Boom Town;" Robert P. Beamer, Pulaski, Pulaski, Va., "The Women;" Jack Harris, Mayfair, Philadelphia, "Fast and Furious," and Chick Tompkins, Hoosier, Whiting, Ind., "Waterloo Bridge."

The following exhibitors, not listed on the basis of merit or in alphabetical order, will each receive $25. Their entries also represented outstanding exploitation campaigns. They are:

Awards Induce New Dates for "Grapes"

New York—Repeat bookings on "The Grapes of Wrath" are rolling up on the trail of nation-wide publicity accorded the picture via various critical awards, according to 20th Century-Fox.

Starting with a repeat run at the Filmarte, Los Angeles, approximately 37 additional dates, chiefly in key cities, will be played off by mid-March.

"Big Five" to Delay Selling Until July

sales manager, then told the men the decree was their problem and that it was up to them and their forces to live up to every provision in the fullest degree.

He will again appear before the local sales groups at regional meetings when they are called. Both he and Dillard will repeat the importance of observing the new mandate under which the company is to operate.

With the arbitration tribunals scheduled to start functioning the first week in February, sales managers readily admit the big problem is to educate the outside arbitrators to the workings of the industry. The sales heads are reminded of the NRA when impartial arbitrators appointed by the government sat in and how long it took them to realize, in only some degree, what made the industry tick.

It is estimated in some quarters it will take arbitrators at least a year to know what the business is all about. Another factor which does not appeal to the sales heads is the possibility some arbitrators, after sitting on one case, may never handle another. Hence, the workings of the industry and an explanation of its different terms and expressions would have to be gone over every time a new man is delegated to a case.

Inquiries have already started by exhibitors as to when the arbitration tribunals will get going. In the local area, a number of complaints are understood ready for filing and hearing. New York, Chicago and the west coast are expected to be flooded with arbitration requests the first few months the tribunals are in operation. These territories, it is stated, cover those where clearance disputes have been a constant bone of contention and dissatisfaction among theatre interests.

Monogram Plans 42 For 1941-42 Season

ST. LOUIS—First indication of Monogram's 1941-42 production plans was revealed here at the two-day franchise holders' palavers by W. Ray Johnston, president, when he announced a program of 42 features. In the schedule will be six top pictures, "to cost far in excess of any previous production budgets," 20 features to be made at an increase of 25 per cent in outlay and 16 westerns.

In addition, plans were gone over the $1,000,000 collection drive under the title of "March for Monogram." The drive begins February 22 and will wind up April 11. A weekly quota of $150,000 a week has been set up.

Talks on Sales Under Decree

Steve Broidy, newly appointed sales manager succeeding Edward A. Golden, addressed the meeting on sales operation under the decree. While Monogram is not affected by the block of five selling plan, various points of interest were brought to light by Broidy.

Trem Carr, a member of the board, talked on production plans. John Mangham, board member and Atlanta franchise holder, talked about sales prizes and competition during the drive.

Illness prevented B. L. Nathanson of Minneapolis and Lon T. Fidler of Denver from being present.

George W. Weeks, who is producing the "Range Busters" series is reported increasing the group from 12 to 16. Golden, who is a partner of Weeks in the new series, was in New York on personal business at the time the local sessions were held.

7,871 Houses Participated In Red Cross Campaign

NEW YORK—A record number of theatres participated in the annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross, which reports the drive, terminated last November 30, netted 8,265,418 paid members at $1 to $25 each, as compared with 7,139,263 memberships the previous year.

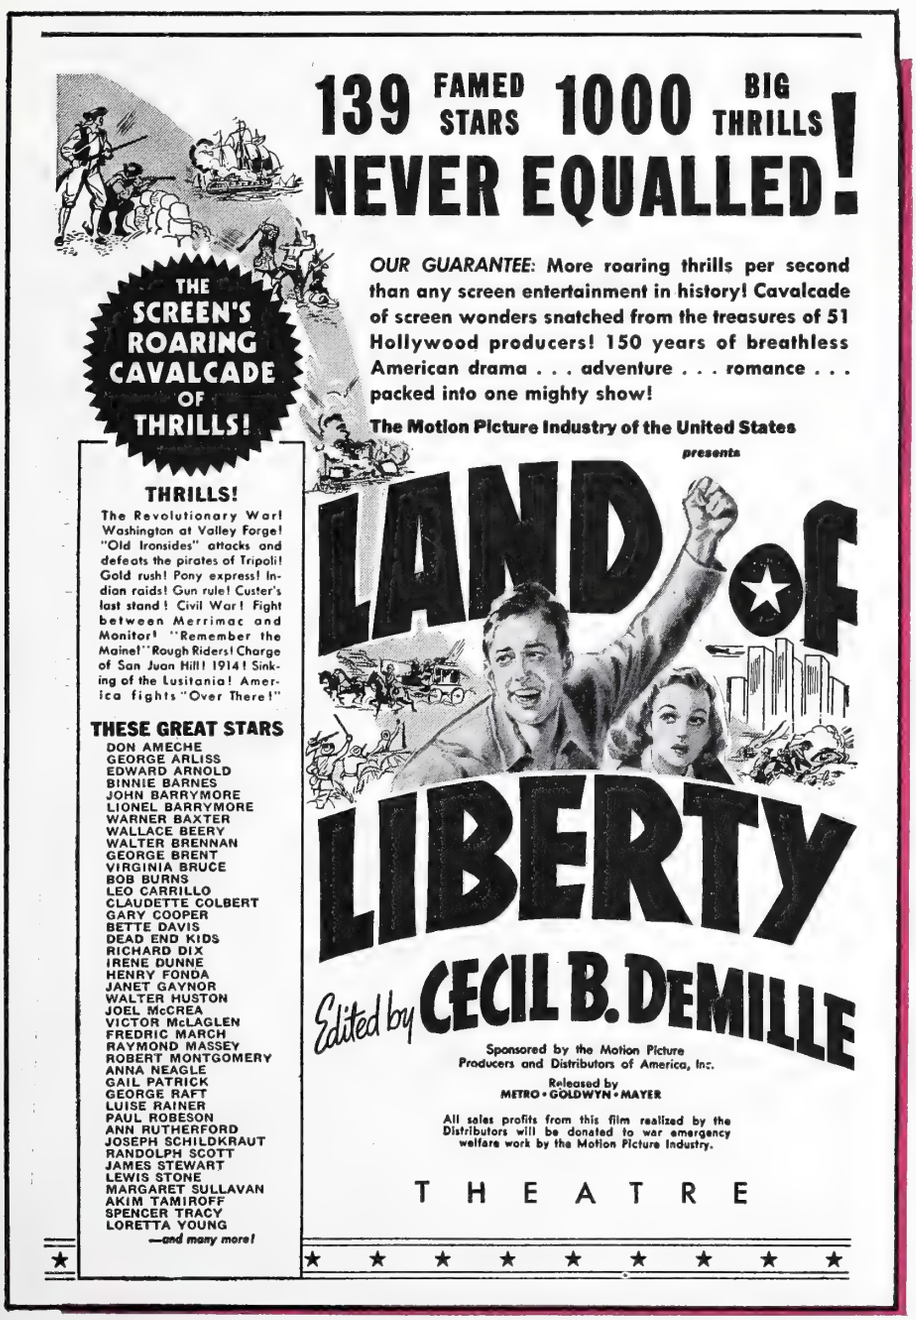
It is revealed 7,871 theatres cooperated in the campaign, but final reports will not be available until 66 other cities, where membership drives are not yet completed, have tabulated results.

"Rebecca" Heads Trade Paper "Best 10" List

NEW YORK—"Rebecca" heads the Film Daily's 10 best poll for 1940 in which 546 critics and reviewers voted on 440 eligible features. It captured 391 votes.

Others in the first ten are these: "The Grapes of Wrath," 367 votes; "Ninotchka," 269; "Foreign Correspondent," 247; "All This, and Heaven Too," 230; "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," 221; "Boom Town," 215; "Northwest Passage," 198; "Our Town," 198, and "The Mortal Storm," 172.

YOUR PATRONS LISTENED!



"Things worth fighting for" said President Roosevelt! Read every word of it!

"As men do not live by bread alone, they do not fight by armaments alone. Those who man our defenses and those behind them who build our defenses must have the stamina and the courage which come from unshakeable belief in the manner of life which they are defending. The mighty action that we are calling for cannot be based on a disregard of all the things worth fighting for. The nation takes great satisfaction and much strength from the things which have been done to make its people conscious of their individual stake in the preservation of democratic life in America . . ."

Here's how you as part of the motion picture industry may help in the united effort to make all our people "conscious of their individual stake in the preservation of democratic life in America." (continued above)

THE SCREEN REPLIES!

While the President's words still echo throughout the land, how fortunate that our industry stands ready to fill the public's demand for a thrilling American motion picture entertainment! Here it is for you to see its wonders for yourself! It has been successfully pre-tested and complete showmanship campaigns are available to make it easy for you to score at the box-office and in the esteem of your community!

REMEMBER!

The entire cost of making "Land of Liberty" was donated by the organized industry!

(1) Every producer joined in making it.

(2) All sales profits realized are being donated to war emergency work.

(3) All the services of distribution are given free.

(4) Exhibitors are asked for rental only. Exceptional opportunities are yours through live-wire showmanship!

(5) M-G-M is handling distribution on behalf of the industry. Communicate with your M-G-M Branch.

Tall, Dark and Handsome F

Comedy-Melodrama

20th Century-Fox (128) 78 Minutes Rel. Jan. 24, '41

A story of Chicago gangdom in its heyday, this vacillates between comedy and melodrama, with an occasional musical moment thrown in to further confuse its accurate designation. It is unadulterated hokum, but those who are not too critical of plot consistencies will vote it a first-rate job of picture-making and everyone should find it highly acceptable entertainment. The cast is particularly good. Cesar Romero, as a soft-hearted lord of the underworld, and Virginia Gilmore, the object of his affections, are the romantic interest, while Charlotte Greenwood, Milton Berle, complete with his new nose, and a number of lesser lights supply the comedy. Romero has established a reputation of being the toughest killer in the Windy City, but he has never spilled a drop of blood. Instead, he has made prisoners in his basement of all of the rival mobsters with whose death he has been credited. The boss of the rival gang discovers the hoax and, no longer fearing Romero, takes him for the well-known ride, from which he miraculously escapes with his life to see that justice is done, after which he marries the gal and departs for South America to make a fresh start in life. H. Bruce Humberstone directed.

Cesar Romero, Virginia Gilmore, Charlotte Greenwood, Milton Berle, Sheldon Leonard, Stanley Clements, Frank Jenks.

EXPLOITIPS: Title suggests you conduct a "talk, dark and handsome" photo contest for both men and women, the winning entrants' pictures being placed in the lobby. Plug the four songs in the film via local radio stations and dance bands. Put a "machine gun" in the lobby with a card reading: "Loaded With Laughs." Give Cesar Romero and Virginia Gilmore the marquee and advertising credits.

CATCHLINES: Gayest, Goofiest of all Chicago Gangland Comedies . . . It's a Merry Mixup of Murders That Never Came Off.

The Laugh of Your Life . . . Is This Surprise Comedy Sensation of 1941.

Arkansas Judge F

Rural Melodrama

Republic (——) 72 Minutes Rel. Jan. 28, '41

Among the products that come from 'way down in Arkansas are hillbilly music and corn. This has a little of the former but bushels of the latter—possibly as large a load as has ever been dumped onto celluloid. But it is probably the kind of corn which small-city audiences like and will buy, although urban and sophisticated patrons will continue to prefer theirs on the cob. The Weaver Brothers and Elviry are starred, Leon Weaver being cast in a Will Rogers type of role which he handles satisfactorily. Rural melodrama is based on a novel, "False Witness." Everything is peace, tranquillity and brotherly love in Peaceful Valley until somebody lifts the Widow Smithers' fifty dollars, which precipitates dissension, lawsuits, slander, romance and sundry other situations. In fact, the story develops more twists than there are hogs in the Ozarks, with peace ultimately being restored when the guilty party confesses. Frank McDonald's direction is commendable.

Leon Weaver, Frank Weaver, June Weaver, Roy Rogers, Spring Byington, Pauline Moore, Frank M. Thomas.

EXPLOITIPS: In street ballyhoo and general exploitation give attention to the rural atmosphere. Arrange a hillbilly band contest for amateurs. Costume your attendants in mountaineer fashion. Have a few "hillbillies" walking around the streets smoking corn-cob pipes and carrying earthenware jugs of "corn likker." Stage a "country store" night at which patrons are admitted upon presentation of various kinds of tinned and dried foods and donate the proceeds to a local charity. Such a stunt should net favorable publicity mention. A "Barn Dance" night might also be worked out, patrons to come in costume, with prizes awarded the best dancers, etc., and refreshments including cider, pumpkin pie and other rural repasts.

CATCHLINES: You'll Have the Gayest Time of Your Life. Your Favorite Kind of Rural Rhythm and Wholesome Fun.

Land of Liberty F

Historical

M-G-M (120) 98 Minutes Rel. Jan. 28, '41

This feature is described as a "cavalcade of American history composed of sequences from entertainment films produced for the theatre during the past quarter century." The capsule fits precisely. Through the astute and highly competent editing of Cecil B. DeMille, aided by historical consultation furnished by Professor James T. Shotwell, the result is a completely engrossing, always interest-holding panorama of the rise of the nation from pre-revolutionary times through the industrial and machine age and ending with the present day. The effect, therefore, is like the unfolding of the pages of American history adding up to a sum total of thrills, drama and excitement which no single feature could have encompassed. Exactly as it took Hollywood 25 years to make "Land of Liberty" possible, so could it have been only a consolidated enterprise like this one to assemble the cast which figures in it. They're all there—the great figures of the early days and the great ones who predominantly stalk the screen today, interspersed with the outstanding figures of contemporary history as recorded in the newsreels. This is a thoroughly worthwhile job. It is far better than the vast majority of double features and easily out front and ahead of many of the so-called "A's." Any exhibitor ought to be glad to run it and his audiences more so to get it.

EXPLOITIPS: The most practical and successful campaign to date on "Land of Liberty" was staged at Williamsport, Pa. where the Rialto had a profitable run. The detail, in all of its various phases, appears in the Selling Seats department of this edition of BOXOFFICE and to it, exhibitors are unreservedly recommended. Star power is enormous and without precedent. There is also much to be done by interesting the audience in picking out players as various sequences hit the screen. The angles are varied and well nigh without limit.

CATCHLINES: See America in the Making . . . Never a More Thrilling Saga.

"Land of Liberty," the Screen's Roaring Cavalcade of Thrills . . . It Took Hollywood 25 Years to Make This One Film. Don't Miss It.

Pride of the Bowery F

Comedy Drama

Monogram (——) 63 Minutes Rel. ——

By filming this in a government CCC camp which furnished authentic backgrounds, atmosphere and extra personnel, Producer Sam Katzman endowed the feature with production values which greatly transcend its budget classification. The film is easily the best of the series—of which, incidentally, it is the third—in which are featured the "East Side Kids," with Leo Gorcey and Bobby Jordan toplined. The story deals with the mental redemption of a tough youngster who wants to be a prizefighter and is inducted into the CCC service through subterfuge when his friends tell him he is entering his own private training camp. The picture will serve admirably in the subsequent market. Joseph Lewis directed.

Leo Gorcey, Bobby Jordan, Donald Haines, Sunshine Sammy, David Gorcey, Eugene Francis, Carlton Young.

EXPLOITIPS: The "East Side Kids" are the most saleable fodder here for the marquee, advertising and exploitation efforts. It might be worthy of pointing out that two of them—Bobby Jordan and Leo Gorcey—are members of the original "Dead End" gang. The CCC atmosphere suggests you stage a special showing for the boys in nearby CCC camps, and possibly that you secure the cooperation and sponsorship of CCC officials in the selling campaign. Conduct an essay contest among local youths on "Why the CCC is an Outstanding Factor in Building Morale Among American Youth." Print up mailing pieces containing definitions of New York slang as practiced by the "East Side Kids." Damon Runyon or some other authority can supply the required information. Decorate the lobby and foyer in keeping with the picture's title.

The plus and minus signs indicate the degree of favor or distavor of the review. Where our compiler is unable to form any opinion from the review the sign "o" is used. Blank spaces indicate no review. This department serves also as an Alphabetical Index to feature releases. Listings cover reviews appearing by the Saturday preceding date of this issue. It will be brought up to date from week to week. The meaning of the various signs and their combinations is as follows:

‡ Very Good; + Good; ± Fair; ∓ Mediocre; − Poor; = Very Poor

In the summary ‡ is rated as 2 pluses; = as 2 minuses.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE READIES NEW UNIT TO ENFORCE DECREES

Government Is Wary of Theatre Acquisitions Concluded Recently

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Enforcement of the consent decrees entered in the federal courts at Los Angeles on November 27 and Chicago on December 10, as well as the New York decree of November 20, last, will be handled by the new unit set up by the anti-trust division of the department of justice, under Robert L. Wright.

This is disclosed by the department in a statement explaining the scope of the new unit's activities.

The announcement reveals that since the entry of the New York decree, theatre acquisitions have been undertaken "which are apparently intended to eliminate the possibility of the independent theatres' securing relief that the decree was intended to provide," together with a warning that while action on acquisitions is limited by the decree the department is prepared to proceed under the Sherman act to enjoin or divest acquisitions which are undertaken with the purpose and effect of suppressing or eliminating competition.

Into Claims as They Arise

It is also made clear that the department prefers to investigate complaints as they arise and will not favor having them "cleared" through exhibitor organizations, coming to Washington in bunches.

But it gives to exhibitors assurance that they will be protected against reprisals in cases where they filed arbitration complaints rather than accept settlements negotiated without resort to the decree machinery. Contempt actions face any person who attempts to prevent an exhibitor from exercising any of his rights under the decree, it is made clear.

Exhibitors Must Cooperate

To effectuate the purposes of the government's suit and the decree, it is stressed, exhibitors must give their "wholehearted support." Otherwise, when the three-year trial period expires in November, 1943, the department will be without adequate data as to the working of the decree on which to base its policy for the future.

Explaining that enforcement of the decree, in the first instance, rests largely in the hands of independent exhibitors, the department points out that Wright's unit will be available to them for advice with respect to the remedies available to them under the decree.

"It cannot, of course, undertake to initiate or prosecute an arbitration proceeding but after a final arbitration award is made, the unit will undertake to see that compliance occurs," it is stated. "Where an appeal is taken from an award which involves an important question of construction of the decree, counsel in the unit may ask the appeals board for leave to participate in the appeal as a friend of the court."

The unit also will undertake to ascertain the competitive effect of each theatre acquisition reported by the consenting defendants pursuant to Section XI of the decree and recommend such action with respect thereto as may be warranted under the decree and the Sherman Act.

"Since the entry of the decree, certain acquisitions of competing independent theatres have been completed or contemplated which are apparently intended to eliminate the possibility of the independent theatres' securing relief that the decree was intended to provide," the department says. "While action under Section XI (5) of the decree is limited to acquisitions which are a part of a general program of expansion, the department is free to proceed under the act itself to enjoin or divest acquisitions which are attempted or made with the purpose and effect of suppressing or eliminating competition, whether made by the consenting defendants or others."

Some Plaints Not Arbitrable

Certain types of exhibitor complaints against the consenting defendants are not subject to arbitration under the decree but nevertheless may involve a violation of the Sherman act, it is pointed out. The decree unit will investigate such complaints and recommended such appropriate action as is not inconsistent with the decree, and also will investigate complaints which involve Sherman act violations by distributors and exhibitors who are not parties to the decree.

At the same time, the department will continue its practice of referring meritorious complaints which do not involve sufficient public interest to warrant federal litigation to the parties complained against for voluntary adjustment.

"No exhibitor's complaint will be referred or disclosed to any distributor or other person complained against, except in the course of legal proceedings, without the express authorization of the complaining exhibitor," it is emphasized.

The department requests that all complaints be forwarded to the anti-trust division as they arise. "It has no objection to the simultaneous clearing of exhibitor complaints through any exhibitor organization," it is explained, "but it prefers to make its own prompt and independent investigation of each complaint as it arises, instead of attempting to investigate them at a later date in larger groups."

Must Give Full Picture

Exhibitors are instructed that, in forwarding complaints, a complete picture of their theatre situation must be given; that is, a description of the seating capacity, age, condition and operating policy, including admission prices, run and clearance of the theatre and the houses competing against it, together with a description of the manner in which major product has been divided among them during the current and immediately preceding seasons.

To Study Effect of Decree

"The unit will attempt to observe and evaluate the effect of the decree on the industry as a whole by a study of the following factors, among others," it is explained:

> "The extent to which arbitration under the decree succeeds in fairly adjusting the specific exhibitor complaints of which the department has knowledge;
> "The general effect of the decree, and particularly the new method of selling, on competition between independent theatres, unaffiliated circuits and affiliated circuits;
> "The effect of the decree, and particularly the new method of selling, on competition in producing and distributing films."

The data on which the unit principally will rely in making such studies will come from its own files, supplied by complaining exhibitors, the consenting defendants and other members of the industry; the records of the consenting defendants which are accessible to it under the terms of the decree; and the records of the arbitration proceedings and their disposition under the decree kept by the American Arbitration Ass'n and the appeals board.

"At the end of the three-year trial

Into Ramifications Of Consent Decree

PHILADELPHIA—Abram F. Myers, chairman of the board and counsel of Allied States Ass'n, surveyed the ramifications of the consent decree at the third annual meeting of Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania. Fifty-four members were present, representing more than 100 theatres.

His address followed an analysis of past year's developments and a discussion of the organization's future plans by Sidney Samuelson, business manager. Secretary E. B. Gregory and Treasurer Ben Fertel made their annual reports.

Elected to the board of governors for three years were David E. Milgram, Thomas Lazarick and Columbus Stamper, Philadelphia; George J. Riester, Shamokin, and Henry Sork, Schuylkill Haven. Elected as alternate governors for one year were David Brodstein, Reading; Melvin Koff, Darby; William Spiegel, Philadelphia, and Harry Fried, Ardmore.

The new board was scheduled to meet Friday afternoon to elect secretary, treasurer and business manager.

Lower Profit on Greater Volume by Seven in '39

WASHINGTON — Seven film companies whose securities are registered with the securities and exchange commission did a slightly greater volume of business in their 1939 fiscal year than in 1938 ($411,000,000 against $410,000,000) but had a lower operating profit ($25,000,000, or 6.2 per cent of sales, against $28,000,000, or 6.7 per cent).

The net profit of the seven companies, according to a survey made by the SEC, after all charges (including non-operating gains and losses, prior claims, interest and income taxes) was $20,000,000, or 4.8 per cent of sales in the 1939 year against $21,000,000, or 5.1 per cent in 1938.

Companies covered by the survey were Columbia, Loew's, Inc., Monogram, Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Universal and Warner Bros.

Drop in Dividends

Dividends paid out by these companies dropped nearly 25 per cent between 1938 and 1939, it was shown. The 1939 dividends, totaling $9,900,000, included $3,700,000 on preferred and $6,200,000 on common stock, all in cash; in 1938, the total of $12,900,000, included $3,700,000 on preferred and $9,100,000 on common, in cash, and $100,000 on common in stock dividends.

Balance sheet assets of the companies dropped $2,000,000 during the year, from $531,000,000 to $529,000,000, due to a decline of land, buildings and equipment, at their book value, from $288,000,000 to $276,000,000, and a decline in related reserves from $119,000,000 to $118,000,000, partially offset by an increase in current assets from $174,000,000 to $184,000,000.

The commission reported that Columbia, for the year ended June 29, 1940, had sales of $22,174,000 at a cost of $14,074,000, the gross profit of $8,100,000 being reduced to $512,000 after all charges, and paid $206,000 in dividends. The highest paid officials received $206,250, $199,000 and $170,000, respectively, and all officers and directors received $524,048.

Loew's, Inc., Sales

Loew's, Inc., had sales of $112,490,000 at a cost of $77,802,000, giving a gross profit of $34,688,000 which turned into a net of $9,538,000 for the year ended Aug. 31, 1939, and paid $4,986,000 in dividends. The highest salaries were $688,369, $355,000 and $328,817, and all officers and directors received $2,106,856.

Monogram, for the year ended June 29, 1940, had sales of $1,946,000 at a cost of $1,578,000, giving a gross profit of $368,000, but after all charges, had a deficit of $180,000, and paid no dividends. Highest salaries were $25,000, $20,400 and $20,000, and total remuneration of officers and directors was $77,694.

Paramount had sales for the year ended December 30, 1939, of $96,183,000 at a cost of $47,498,000, leaving a gross profit of $48,685,000, but a net profit of only $2,758,000 on which dividends of $1,578,000 were paid. Top officials received $250,000, $240,333 and $236,635, respectively, and officers and directors divided $849,998.

Twentieth Century-Fox reported sales of $53,752,000 for the year ended December 30, 1939, at a cost of $36,127,000, which left a gross of $17,625,000. The net profit was $4,240,000, and dividends paid were $3,138,000. The highest salaries reported were $255,000, $249,166 and $235,000, and officers and directors split $853,943.

Universal Corp. reported sales of $22,148,000 for its fiscal year ended October 28, 1939, at a cost of $12,998,000, leaving a gross profit of $9,151,000 which dwindled to a net of $999,000 and no dividends were paid. Top salaries were $68,355, $53,000 and $41,373, and the remuneration of all officers and directors was $214,645.

Universal Pictures, for the same period, had sales of $22,187,000 at a cost of $12,995,000, leaving a gross profit of $9,192,000; the net profit was $1,153,000, but no dividends were paid. Top salaries were $196,000, $174,916 and $150,000, and total to officers and directors was $450,957, including $91,000 paid to Standard Capital Company for the services of the chairman of the board.

Warner Bros., with sales of $102,083,000 at a cost of $29,204,000, had a gross profit for the year ended August 26, 1939, of $72,879,000, but a net of only $1,741,000, and paid no dividends. The highest salaries reported were $260,000, $243,000 and $181,333, and the total to all officers and directors was $1,016,073.

F. W. Pershing Succeeds Haight on AAA Group

NEW YORK—F. W. Pershing, the general's son, has been named to succeed P. M. Haight on the AAA administrative committee for film tribunals.

Undetermined on "U" Preferred

NEW YORK—The total amount of preferred stock Universal will purchase, for which it recently obtained a $1,000,000 loan from the First National Bank of Boston, will not be known until the management verifies the tenders that have been accepted, according to a spokesman. In the interim he would not hazard an estimate on the amount the company intends to retire.

However, the company is not committed to use the entire $1,000,000 for this purpose, he adds. If a smaller amount is consumed, discretion as to what the balance will be used for rests with the board. The company's total indebtedness to the Boston bank is now said to be $2,354,000, as of Dec. 24, 1940. This includes an original loan, as of last August 1, of $1,500,000, which has been reduced to $1,354,000. The sum was split up to pay $1,000,000 to refund the studio mortgage, while $500,000 went toward working capital.

Jersey Allied Units to Meet on January 21

TRENTON—First joint meeting of southern and northern New Jersey Allied units will be held here January 21 at the Stacey Trent to coordinate ideas of importance affecting independent exhibitors.

On the agenda will be a hearing on appeals by members for a revision of dues schedule. Election of new Allied of New Jersey officers also will be held in addition to the naming of regional officers.

Other discussions will take up 16mm films, legislation and possibly the consent decree. Several invited guests are also scheduled to talk.

Buys First Premiere Ticket—

Dr. Allan Roy Defoe (center) buys the first ticket to the premiere at the Paramount Theatre January 28 of Paramount's "Virginia" from Dr. M. Goggin of the Maple Leaf Fund chapter in New York. Margaret Bannerman watches the deal with interest. The entire proceeds will be devoted to the relief of evacuees of bombed districts and to members of the new Canadian navy.

BROADWAY

A LOT of those small round tables at Dinty Moore's were thrown together Monday for an informal luncheon thrown by UA by way of greeting David E. "Skip" Weshner to his new post as director of exploitation. Monroe Greenthal acted as host with the guests including a representative trade paper contingent and from UA itself these: Murray Silverstone, Arthur W. Kelly, Harry D. Buckley and Al Margolies . . . Dave Snaper, New Jersey operator, expects to be confined to St. Peters Hospital in New Brunswick for about three more weeks. It's arthritis, and it has kept him there a month now . . . John Lewis, former press contact of the Motion Picture Producers Ass'n, is now at 20th Century-Fox, working on syndicates and press associations . . . Bert Stearn, UA district manager, was in town for home office conferences . . . Leon Netter, Paramount circuit executive, is due to return Tuesday from a trip to Atlanta and Miami, wherein there are conferences scheduled with Messrs. Lucas and Jenkins and F. A. Lynch.

The Eugene Pickers and the Herman Gluckmans sail for California on the America, January 29 for a few weeks of that vacation stuff . . . Another of the Picker tribe—Arnold Melville, assistant to Joseph A. McConville, Columbia foreign head—has established a $100 a year scholarship at CCNY as a memorial to his father, the late David V. Picker. Incidentally, Leonard, still another Picker and attorney for Schwartz and Frohlich, has also established a similar memorial at Syracuse University . . . Charles Stern, UA district manager, was in Boston and New Haven the past week. He recently returned from a Miami vacation and got the thrill of his life, he says, when the local UA exchange staff tendered him and his wife a homecoming dinner at the Hotel Lincoln . . . John Manheimer has gone to Florida to join Rudy Sanders. He's not due back until March 15 . . . Lou and "Bingo" Brandt, plus Lionel Toll, are due in Miami on the 19th for a couple of weeks . . . Thomas and William Rodgers jr., are back at school after a holiday with their dad at Palm Springs . . . Sammy Cohen of the UA foreign publicity department Cohens has completed his first Florida vacation . . . Al Margolies was in Washington to arrange for the appearance of Charles Chaplin at the President's birthday ball there Monday evening.

Bernie Kranze, Albany RKO manager; Moe Grassgreen, 20th-Fox Albany manager, and Neil Hellman of the Hellman circuit in Albany and Troy left the early part of the week for Miami for a couple of weeks. Kranze is spending his vacation at McFadden's Deauville spot while Grassgreen is stopping at Maurice Fleischman's Essex House . . . I. Schmertz, 20th-Fox Cleveland head, is Miami-ing as is Jack Sichelman of the same company's home office . . . A. Montague says he can be quoted on the fact "This Thing Called Love" is definitely "the greatest picture ever" . . . B. S. Moss plans a second theatre in Long Island. It is to be built in Forest Hills. He recently announced a new house for Jackson Heights, both to be part of new developments . . . Louis Goidel, Brooklyn exhibitor, is all het up over the new Allied unit being formed in the local area. The organization will have no truck with Max A. Cohen's Allied of New York, he says, and about 500 theatres, mostly upstate, have already signified their intention of joining.

Harold Rinzler is now basking in the Miami sun. He went south with Louis and Mrs. Frisch, his father staying on until the Frisches get back in about a month or so . . . Eddie Schnitzer has recuperated from a bad cold which kept him abed several days . . . Joseph Bernhard returned from the coast over the weekend after two weeks at the Warner studios for conferences . . . Phil Hodes, daughter, Naomi (Nicky), not yet 19 is reputed to be one of the leading dress designers . . . Bernard Lewis Weinberg, son of John of the local 20th-Fox exchange, has been called to Camp Dix for training . . . Ludvig (Laudy) Lawrence of M-G-M is due soon from Europe where he has been cleaning up his personal and M-G-M affairs. He's been away about 10 weeks on the mission.

Producer Hits Town—

Albert Lewin, partner with David Loew, comes east on business and pleasure. Here, he is shown arriving, accompanied by his wife.

Mike Kallett, who operates about 20 upstate houses independently, was in town early in the week on product buys . . . William A. Finney, southern Loew division manager, was in from Atlanta for conferences with Joseph R. Vogel during the week . . . Sidney Schwartz, foreign department traveling auditor for M-G-M, is making reservations for his return to the Far East . . . David Loew plans to remain in the east about a month, he says . . . E. M. Saunders, western M-G-M division manager, is due to return from a swing of his exchanges in the next few days . . . Max A. Cohen has called off his planned vacation at Palm Springs indefinitely. He says he can't get away from his business cares now and will have to let it go for the nonce . . . Rube Jackter intends to spend his Miami vacation the latter part of next month or early March.

Moss Hart's new play, "Lady in the Dark" which bows in soon, has a lot of partners behind it. Paramount is understood to hold a 30 per cent interest. Sam H. Harris, the producer, is believed in control but participants reportedly include Max Gordon and Harry M. Goetz, Howard Cullman and Jules E. Brulatour . . . Lynn Farnol and Mrs. F. are due back from Charleston and New Orleans, Monday . . . Sam Dembow is getting along, but reports it is anything but easy to get accustomed to those crutches . . . Leonard Goldenson is working actively with George Skouras on Greek war relief . . . Lucinda Reichenbach, widow of Harry, returns to active publicity as an idea woman and account executive with the publicity firm of Leo Guild and Ezra Goodman.

Arthur Israel jr., president of the Cinema Lodge, has set up his committees for 1941, following a meeting of the executive council when plans were advanced for installation of new officers. These ceremonies, with proper fanfare, will be held in the Sun Room of the Hotel Edison, January 21, when Dr. Abraham Sacher of the University of Illinois and national director of the Hillel Foundation will make the featured address. About 500 are expected, including Barney Balaban and Jack Cohn and groups representing various distributors. Bob Weitman, chairman of the membership committee, and David Weinstock, chairman of the arrangements committee for the second annual ball, made reports. Attendance included A. Mike Vogel, Ralph Steinberg, Jack Meyers, J. M. Collins, Al Schwalberg, Abel Vigard, Moe Streimer, Leon Goldberg and Irving Greenfield.

E. C. Grainger is due back the latter part of the week from a two-week tour of Ohio, Pennsylvania and upstate New York towns where Feiber & Shea operate . . . Clarence Eiseman, local UA branch manager, was the guest of Freddie Schwartz over the weekend at Lake Placid . . . Laurence Bolognino has recovered from a slight cold. Despite his recent denial, reports persist a deal is on with Julius Joelson to take over the Consolidated Circuit . . . Jack Goetz was in Chicago for one day the middle of the week . . . Arthur Hirsch, Canadian exhibitor, was in town on one of his regular visits . . . Jack Shea was in Boston for a few days and returned Friday . . . Ed Robinson got in from the coast Sunday. Ona Munson, Leith Stevens and Crane Wilbur, who are associated with the star in his radio broadcasts, also are due.

The boys working up the Press Photographers' Ball, slated for the Astor, February 14, already have lined up four masters - of - ceremonies. They are Henny Youngman, Ole Olsen, Chic Johnson and Ed Sullivan, who also writes a newspaper column. Lucille Manners will sing the national anthem as the festivities open and, while other arrangements apparently are yet to be made, the word is they will be.

"Story" Seems Assured Of 5 Weeks on B'way

NEW YORK—It's still "The Philadelphia Story" at the Music Hall that has the Broadway managers on edge. The rest of the deluxers, tenanting three newcomers, two roadshows and two last stage holdovers, aren't exactly gleeful over receipts, but the grosses aren't below what is normally to be expected after the flush of the new year has disappeared.

"Story" wound up its third week with slightly under $95,000, which took it to a fourth stanza and virtually assures a fifth. "Kitty Foyle," well received by the critics largely on the basis of Ginger Rogers' personal efforts, is doing above average at the Rivoli. "Four Mothers" at the Strand, plus Sammy Kaye's orchestra, is a letdown compared with the previous "Santa Fe Trail," but it isn't too disappointing. "Hudson's Bay" is getting a full share of business at the Roxy. Everyone at the Capitol is pleased with the run of "Comrade X," which wound up its third week Wednesday with about $23,000.

Astor—The Great Dictator (UA), 14th wk. roadshow 100
Broadway—Fantasia (Disney), 9th wk. roadshow 150

Roxy—Hudson's Bay (20th-Fox), plus stage show 120
Strand—Four Mothers (WB), plus stage show.110

"Neighbor" Tops Show Menu in Washington

WASHINGTON—"Love Thy Neighbor" at the Earle, with Ray Kinney's orchestra heading the stage show, topped last week's local show menu. "Go West," with dancing Johnnie Downs on the stage at the Capitol, did better than average. "Kitty Foyle" at RKO Keith's came through for a nice second week, entitled to a third no doubt. "Comrade X" at the Palace did a comfortable second week. "Santa Fe" at the Metropolitan, on a moveover from the Earle, held its ground.

Detail for week ending January 16:

(Average is 100)

Capitol—Go West (M-G-M), Johnnie Downs stage show 110
Columbia—Land of Liberty (M-G-M)..... 90
Earle—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't), plus Ray Kinney band 140
Metropolitan—"Santa Fe Trail (FN), Moveover from Earle 150

RKO Keith's—Kitty Foyle (RKO), 2nd wk.....125

Philly Holds Own Despite Cold Weather and Flu

PHILADELPHIA—Downtown business generally held its own last week in spite of cold weather and a spreading flu epidemic that is making people leery of crowded places. A lineup of good first-runs was the explanation.

(Average is 100)

Aldine—Son of Monte Cristo (UA) 100
Boyd—Kitty Foyle (RKO) 100
Swell third week, but exiting to make way for "Philadelphia Story."

Launch Polio Drive On "Dimes Square"

NEW YORK—Charles C. Moskowitz and Harry Brandt, co-chairmen in the "March of Dimes" drive for the film industry, each contributed $50 to the total of $200 collected at the inaugural ceremonies held in Times Square Wednesday noon.

With Ed Sullivan as master of ceremonies, the name of the square was changed to "Dimes Square." Stars of radio, stage and screen who participated in the festivities included Benny Fields, who sang "Brother Can You Spare a Dime;" Bill Robinson, who did one of his famous cake walk dances; Don Albert and his WHN orchestra, Victor Moore and William Gaxton, Alan Dinehart, Lyle Talbot, Horace McMann, Johnny "Scat" Davis, and Dolly Dawn. Many of them contributed $10 each. Eugene Picker, Marvin Schenck and Bingo Brandt also gave sizeable sums.

Begins With a Parade

Preceded by a parade in which all important circuits were represented by ushers and bands, the ceremonies were slightly delayed due to Mayor LaGuardia's failure to appear. Milton Berle had also been scheduled to m. c. the affair and he likewise did not show up. However, in all sense of fairness the opening gun went off with a bang and the results were declared very favorable.

In appreciation of the work done, Nicholas M. Schenck, national chairman of the Motion Picture Committee, expressed his thanks thusly:

"On the eve of launching the infantile paralysis fund drive in the New York-New Jersey area, may I extend my sincere thanks and congratulations to the exhibitors who have so heartily joined with the Motion Picture Theatres' Committee in this fine enterprise.

Majority Pledge Support

"The response has been exceptional. The great majority of the 1,187 theatres in the area have pledged their whole-hearted support.

"Those who have neglected to do so up to now, still have time to join the 'March of Dimes.' A phone call to committee headquarters will bring all the necessary material.

"The success of this drive for so worthy a cause will again show the world what an important part in community life the motion picture theatre can play."

Joseph M. Schenck, as in the past, again heads the west coast division of the drive.

It is hoped to raise close to 3,000,000 dimes for the infantile paralysis fight.

Seeking Harmony in Moscato Situation

NEW YORK—Efforts are being made by both sides to work out a harmonious arrangement for the booking of pictures in Frank Moscato's Ditmars, Astoria. As a result of recent conferences, the Ditmars is now getting some pictures clear of Skouras' Grand, in the same town.

Although Emil K. Ellis, local attorney, was recently retained by Moscato to institute legal action in the event nothing could be done, it appears now the possibility of a suit is remote and the working agreement will be continued indefinitely.

Both sides apparently seem satisfied with the granting waivers to the Ditmars. Talk of the matter going to arbitration also is said to have been abandoned.

"Back Street" Premiere Will Be a 5-Day Affair

NEW YORK—Universal's most pretentious out-of-town soiree appears, from the blue prints, to be ready to make up for a lot of junkets the company could have arranged, but didn't.

It's going to be a five-day affair in Miami and it's for "Back Street." It is designed to climax with the world premiere at the Lincoln at Miami Beach the evening of February 4. It will affect about 150 film critics, trade paper representatives, home office and studio officials.

Parades, parties and banquets will be the order of the occasion. The party will live at the Miami Biltmore Hotel and will have a choice of, or all of the following: A gala banquet on the night of the premiere, a trip to Hialeah, an evening at the dog races in Hollywood (Fla.), a dinner party at the Beachcomber and another at Ben Marden's club, a deep sea fishing trip and a few more surprise divertissments.

Sidney Meyers and Sonny Shepherd, Wometco officials, have completed all details with Louis Pollock, Universal's eastern advertising head. It includes the appearance at the premiere of Deanna Durbin, Producer Bruce Manning and other studio personalities.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Boris W. Silver

NEW YORK—Boris W. Silver of Colonial Pictures, Canadian distributors for Alliance Films, succumbed to a heart attack. At the time, he was with Budd Rogers, American representative for Alliance Films, and Harry J. Allen of the Allen circuit in Canada in the Radio City garage. Silver was 49 and is survived by a sister in Canada.

Open With Benefit for British War Relief

NEW YORK—Shaftel & Berger on Tuesday night opened the new Squire, Great Neck, with a special benefit performance for British relief. The former is interested in the Pacific Newsreel Theatres which has newsreel units in various sections of the country.

A Film Program to Weld Republics

WASHINGTON—A wide scale program for the use of films as a medium for promotion of closer relations and better understanding among the American Republics, is announced here by Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the American Republics.

The first step is the formation of Hollywood committees representative of producers, stars, writers and directors to cooperate in carrying out the program of features, shorts and newsreels. As a result of conferences with John Hay Whitney, director of the motion picture division of the coordinator's office, several features involving Central and South American themes are now in production or preparation.

Remake "Blood and Sand"

Among these are M-G-M's "The Life of Simon Bolivar," two from 20th Century-Fox—"The Road to Rio" and "Blood and Sand;" RKO's "They Met in Argentina," and "Rurales," from Paramount. A special committee is said to be investigating production facilities in Central and South America for the purpose of possibly photographing subsequent films there.

Whitney is said to have been assured by the MPPDA that it will appoint an expert on the "ways of life in the other American Republics" to serve in the office of the code administrator in Hollywood. He will cooperate with all producers to insure authenticity in films involving Latin American languages and historical problems.

Intensification of the "closer relations" idea will be through the personal appearances of Hollywood stars at premieres in those countries. Alice Faye and Dorothy Lamour may be among the first.

Norman Alley of News of the Day is en route to South America to arrange for increased newsreel coverage as part of the program, while other crews are expected to leave shortly. In this respect Pathe is now editing a series of shorts on South America, first of which will be "Eyes on Brazil."

Several Committees Formed

The Hollywood committee that will cooperate with Whitney is headed by Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount production head. Others on the committee are Edward Arnold, Sam Briskin, Frank Capra, Sheridan Gibney, Samuel Goldwyn, Louis B. Mayer, George J. Schaefer, David O. Selznick, Walter Wanger, Cliff Work and Harry M. Warner.

Personnel of cooperating committees are as follows:

Committee on visits to South America—Joseph Schenck, chairman; Arnold, Kenneth Thomson and Benjamin Thau.

Committee on South American film facilities—Briskin, chairman; E. J. Mannix, Sol Wurtzel, Major Nathan Levinson, Keith Glennan, Sol Lesser, J. D. McDonough and William Koenig.

Committee of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences—Wanger, chairman; Capra, Levinson, James Stewart and Robert Riskin.

Short subjects committee—Gunther Lessing, chairman; Jack Chertok, Gordon Hollingshead and Hugh McCollum.

Art direction committee—Cedric Gibbons, chairman; Richard Day, William Cameron Menzies and Jack Otterson.

Committee on story material—Gibney, chairman; Kenneth Mackenna, Milton Krims and Kenneth McGowan.

Justice Department Unit Will Enforce Decrees

period," the statement continues, "the unit will attempt to answer the following questions and make specific recommendations based upon the answers to these questions:

"1. Has the three-year trial of the consent decree demonstrated that the competition required by the Sherman act can be achieved in the motion picture industry without securing the divorcement of production and distribution from exhibition?

"2. If it has, must the decree be modified in other respects in order to achieve such competition in the industry?

"3. If it must be so modified, what are the specific modifications which will achieve that end?

"The above outline of the proposed activities of the decree unit is necessarily tentative and subject to modification in the light of experience," the department declares in a plea for cooperation. "Suggestions for any modifications of this policy which will increase the effectiveness of the decree and the work of the unit are hereby invited and will receive careful consideration.

Must Cooperate to Work Well

"All exhibitors and their organizations must know that without their wholehearted support, neither the decree nor the decree unit can function properly. While the department is heartily in favor of the settlement of individual differences without resort to arbitration by voluntary agreement between the parties involved wherever the agreement is a fair one, it should be borne in mind that the decree was intended to relieve small exhibitors from the pressure which large circuits and distributors have been able to exert in the past with respect to the terms of such informal settlements. Unless free use of the arbitration machinery established by the decree is made by all exhibitors, this purpose will not have been fulfilled.

"It has been suggested that small exhibitors who insist on filing arbitration complaints rather than accepting settlements negotiated without resort to the decree machinery, may be subjected to reprisals in connection with future negotiations with the consenting defendants. The department believes that these fears are unfounded, but is prepared to prosecute for contempt any person who attempts to prevent an exhibitor from exercising any of his rights under the decree, by economic coercion or otherwise.

Would Punish for Reprisals

"The suggestion also has been made that exhibitors fear that complaints which are made to the department and referred to distributors will bring reprisals from them. The department believes that these fears are not well founded, but is also prepared to take whatever steps are necessary to punish such conduct. It can obviously do nothing about the cases of those exhibitors who may let such fears prevent them from making complaints to it.

"The questions which will be up for decision on November 20, 1943, must inevitably be largely determined by the data collected by the department during the preceding three-year period. Unless exhibitors make full use of the arbitration procedure set up by the decree and supply full information with respect to the effect of the decree on their business to the decree unit, that data will be woefully incomplete. Without such exhibitor cooperation on a substantial scale, these questions are certain to be erroneously decided, to the detriment of exhibitors and the industry as a whole."

Paramount Abandons Southern Division

NEW YORK—Paramount is abandoning its southern division. Oscar Morgan, manager of that area, is to be named short subject manager at the forthcoming Chicago meeting. Earle Sweigert, current Philadelphia manager, gets a new district embracing Philadelphia, Washington, and Pittsburgh. Neil F. Agnew, sales manager, is planning a separate division covering newsreels and shorts under Morgan's supervision.

Home Office Executives To MPA Induction

NEW YORK—Leading sales managers and home office executives will be invited to attend the induction of new officers of M. P. Associates at the Astor Tuesday. The event will be in the form of a luncheon with Jack Ellis retiring as president after three years. Joe Lee, who has held that post before him, now succeeds Ellis. Lee won over Nat Beier of UA by a tally of 64 and 48, after both men put on a spirited campaign.

Ellis declined to run again after three consecutive terms. James Frank of National Theatre Supply was unopposed for the first vice-presidency; Matty Cahan was elected second vice-president; Saul Trauner of Columbia was unopposed for treasurer; Charles Penser was continued as financial secretary. Moe Fraum of Columbia was named recording secretary and the two trustees who won out were Ben Abner of M-G-M and Seymour Schussel of Columbia. Louis Kutinsky of RKO bested Anthony Ricci for sergeant-at-arms.

Busy Court Week; Korda Heard in Goldwyn Suit

NEW YORK—An extremely busy week for the industry in the courts was headed by an examination before trial of Alexander Korda who arrived here from the coast just in time to be served with a subpoena in Samuel Goldwyn's suit against UA. The producer's examination could have been held in either New York or California but, since he elected to come here, it was held in the federal court pursuant to Judge Edward A. Conger's order. Goldwyn, at the same time, was ordered to reframe his second cause of action against the company, this cause asking $1,000,000 damages for alleged interference with the distribution of "The Westerner." The court ruled the producer's attorneys had included much redundant material in this cause of action. UA intends to file affirmative defenses to Goldwyn's charges, according to Edward C. Raftery, attorney for the film company.

Drop Part of Columbia Suit

Five consolidated stockholders who are suing Columbia, Jack and Harry Cohn, and 12 officers and directors for approximately $2,000,000 for alleged waste and mismanagement in a supreme court stockholder action, have dropped that part of their suit which sought damages prior to 1933. The statute of limitations applies to that material.

Stephen A. Lynch, former Paramount director, has petitioned the supreme court to bar David Stoneman, Boston attorney, from giving evidence at the trial of Stoneman's $250,000 suit against him for alleged failure to serve a bill of particulars. Stoneman seeks the money for services to Lynch during the Paramount reorganization from February, 1933 to July, 1936.

Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin has amended his decision allowing the examination before trial of numerous Universal executives in Samuel I. Posen's stockholder suit against the company, and now is allowing questions which in his previous examination he had deemed unnecessary. Posen, a director of the company, claims waste and mismanagement and seeks an accounting.

Sidney Kent Examined

Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, was examined before trial in supreme court in connection with Izola Forrester's and Mann Page's suit against 20th-Fox. Suit charged the plagiarism of plaintiffs' play "Joyous" in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." An injunction, accounting of profits and damages is sought.

Suit of Louis Klotz against Jack Robins, known as Jacob Rabinowitz, William Lorenz, Willor Mfg. Corp., and Mechanical Mfg. Corp., was dismissed by Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente. Action sought 10 per cent of the sales and rentals of a "continuous motion picture sound projector," which plaintiff claimed to have helped develop.

Suit of Mabel Wayne and Neville Fleeson against M-G-M has been settled and discontinued out of the supreme court. Action sought $50,000 damages for alleged plagiarism of plaintiffs' song "Betwixt and Between" in an unnamed Judy Garland picture for the M-G-M song, "In Between."

Suit of Katherine Moog against Warner Bros. for $75,000 damages for alleged libel in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," will be tried in the federal court January 31. Suit claims the part played by Lya Lys in the picture is meant to represent the plaintiff.

Mitchel Parish and Hoagy Carmichael have filed a supreme court action against 20th Century-Fox seeking $50,000 damages for alleged failure to give them screen credit for writing the song "Star Dust" in the 20th-Fox film of the same name. Plaintiffs claim Mack Gordon, 20th-Fox songwriter, received the only screen credit for two subordinate songs. The film company, as a defense, claims that when the song was purchased from the plaintiffs' publishers, Mills Music, Inc., nothing was said about screen credit.

Drop "Midnight" Case

Suit of Robert L. Buckner against Paramount and Charles Beahan has been discontinued in the federal court. Action sought an injunction, accounting of profits and damages for the alleged plagiarism of plaintiff's play written in conjunction with Beahan called "Dearly Beloved" in the Paramount picture "Midnight." Beahan was named as a defendant because he refused to join the action as a plaintiff.

Joseph B. Basson, as president of Local 306 of the IATSE, has appealed to the supreme court to confirm an award of $7,500, plus $1,146 arbitration costs, against the Adenos Amusement Corp., Emmons Theatre Corp., Maurice Brown and the Sheldon Theatre, Brooklyn, made by the board of arbitration, Dec. 28, 1940. The board found the defendants, all connected with the operation of the Sheldon, had failed to live up to their ITOA contract of which they are members and to hire only 306 projectionists. They must do so in the future, besides paying the fine.

Suit of Frederick E. Weidhaas against Loew's, Inc., has started trial in the federal court before Judge Robert Nevins. Action seeks an injunction, accounting of profits and damages for allegedly plagiarizing a patent device for a theatre curtain.

The Polish-American Film Corp. has filed a federal court suit against Aurelio Battistoni and John Milo doing business as the Roma Film Co., charging the defendants with having stuck together newsreel clips, titled the feature thus produced "Poland Is Not Yet Lost," and notified the trade it was produced by the Pol. Film Corp. Plaintiffs claim to have completed a picture with the exact title at a cost of $20,000 and with the cooperation of the Polish government, and were planning release of it in the near future. Damages of $10,000 plus an injunction are asked.

Pickford-Rogers Action

Arthur T. Michaud and James V. Peepe, band managers, filed a $300,000 suit in the supreme court against Charles Buddy Rogers and Mary Pickford, charging the band leader with breach of a 10-year managerial agreement, and the former actress with forcing the breach. Plaintiffs claim that Rogers' wife threatened him with divorce and also promised that should he return to California, she would secure him producing and acting jobs. Contract made in May, 1939, was allegedly breached in August, 1940.

Selwyn and Co. won an award of $2,700 and the American Play Co., $604, in the supreme court in connection with their suits against Hollywood Plays. Justice Isidor Wasservogel also dismissed the defendants counter-claim for $2,500. Plaintiff claimed to own 50 per cent of the film rights to the play, "Fair and Warmer," rights to which were sold by the defendant to a German film company in 1936 for $6,500. Defense denied the charges and made the same 50 per cent claim on the play, "Our Little Wife," which had been sold to Goldwyn Pictures Corp. between 1919-1922 for $2,500.

Belgium and France Are Returning to Normalcy

NEW YORK—Theatre business in Belgium and France is rapidly returning to normalcy, states Fred Hotchkiss, manager of Societe de Materel Acoustique, distributors of Western Electric equipment in those countries and now in town on a leave of absence.

Of the 330 houses equipped with Erpi sound, 275 are doing business in those countries, he states. Approximately 50 are closed temporarily, most of these being in the occupied zone. About 10 were destroyed or suffered damage to varying degrees during the blitzkrieg, three in Mezieres-Charleville, two in Valenciennes and one each in Le Havre, Maubeuge, Dunquerque, Ostend and Sedan.

Three Arbitrators on British Remittances

NEW YORK—The three arbitrators who will decide how the $12,900,000 British remittances for the current year are to be allocated among the eight major distributors have not yet been set. Under the plan, M-G-M, which is seeking to have the allocations distributed according to the formula set up by the British government, will appoint a man, the other seven majors will name a second and these two will elect a third.

No date has been set for the arguments. M-G-M is understood to have considerable correspondence from abroad to bear out its contention that the percentage of distribution should be based on the net earnings of each company rather than the total gross of the eight distributors.

The allocations agreement was the sole topic of discussion at an "informal meeting of a few members" of the MPPDA board, according to a spokesman. In any event, another meeting was called Friday before Will Hays departs for the coast, in a few days.

Wheeler Strikes at Film 'Propaganda'

WASHINGTON—Sharply assailing the motion picture industry for its participation in what he called an administration-instigated "propaganda for war," Sen. Burton H. Wheeler of Montana, chairman of the Senate interstate commerce committee, this week threatened that unless the industry took what he considered a "more impartial" position, legislation would be sought regulating its activities.

The senator's dissatisfaction with the industry's preparedness propaganda was voiced in a letter to Will H. Hays, MPPDA president.

Strongly opposed to anything which might get the United States into the war, he charged that the industry is propagandizing for war with the encouragement of the administration, and told Hays that it has reached a point where he believes legislation may have to be enacted regulating conduct in this respect unless voluntary reforms are adopted.

Blame on Administration

Senator Wheeler referred to the many preparedness pictures which are being shown throughout the country in news reels and shorts and said it was his understanding the administration had urged the industry to produce propaganda pictures.

Wheeler actually wrote Paramount News at Washington and sent Hays a copy of that letter. In it, he said:

"Will you kindly inform me when, if at all, you intend to carry my answer to the President's most recent fireside chat. And what, if anything, are you going to do about carrying both sides of the controversy on pending legislation which directly involves the question of war or peace?

"This question is so important that I believe the people should insist not only on equal radio coverage for both sides of this highly controversial question, but that newspapers and the motion pictures should do the same.

Would Enact Legislation

"The propaganda for war that is being waged by the motion picture companies of this country is reaching a point at which I believe legislation will have to be enacted regulating the industry in this respect unless the industry itself displays a more impartial nature.

"Many complaints are coming to me and to other members of congress to the effect that the motion picture industry is carrying on a violent propaganda campaign intending to incite the American people to the point where they will become involved in this war. As you well know, the motion picture and the newsreel is one of the great agencies for molding public opinion of this country and, if we are going to preserve this nation as a democratic republic, it is highly essential that both sides of each question be presented.

"I sincerely hope that you will call this to the attention of your people as I am fast coming to the conclusion that legislation should be enacted to remedy the present situation."

In a letter to Wheeler, A. J. Richard, editor of Paramount News, denies the accusation, declaring he is "unaware of the existence of any such propaganda on the part of the motion picture industry and am confident that no such purpose exists."

"Facts Utterly Deny Accusations"

New York—"The facts utterly deny the accusations of deliberate propaganda to incite war," Will H. Hays has advised Sen. Burton K. Wheeler in response to the Montana solon's letter. Hays has supplied Wheeler with a breakdown of last year's product to prove his contention.

RKO Will Proceed as Planned With "Kane"

NEW YORK—Officially, RKO has nothing to say. Authoritatively, however, it is the company's intention to proceed as planned with the release of "Citizen Kane," the widely discussed Orson Welles film which representatives of William Randolph Hearst are endeavoring to suppress. The newspaper publisher claims the film essentially is his biography. Welles, on the other hand, maintains it is a composite picture of an era of the American scene and is based on no one individual's life.

Meanwhile, it is understood Hearst editors have been instructed to bar all mention of RKO and its product.

"GWTW" Is Slated for Capitol on January 30

NEW YORK—"Gone With the Wind" is slated to open at the Capitol for its repeat first run engagement on January 30, following "Flight Command." The date is conditioned on the latter, which opened Thursday, running two weeks.

SPG Board Hearings Starting January 23

NEW YORK—The national labor relations board will start hearings January 23 in the SPG-producers' case in which the publicists are seeking recognition of their union.

"Fantasia" Dates Set

NEW YORK—"Fantasia" opens on January 29 at the Carthay Circle, Los Angeles. The preceding day it bows in at the Majestic, Boston, while on February 12 it opens at the Aldine, Philadelphia.

Korda, Pallos Westward

NEW YORK—Alexander Korda and Stephen Pallos left here Saturday for the coast. Korda was examined in Sam Goldwyn's suit against UA on this trip here.

Roxy Reports Loss

NEW YORK—Roxy Theatre, Inc., reports a loss of $42,289 for the year ended August 29 against a profit of $40,686 for the preceding year.

Film Board to Install

NEW YORK—The local Film Board will install new officers January 22.

Scophony Television Contains a Threat

NEW YORK—If one discards a few important ifs, ands and buts, the first American demonstration of Scophony's theatre-size television stacks up as something exhibitors will have to reckon with if they don't have a competing television system in their theatres.

A number of factors, none particularly encouraging, prevent Scophony executives from committing themselves on how strenuously they expect to wage a campaign on theatre installations. Firstly, the National Television Systems Committee will not make a report on its activities to the FCC until the end of the month. Rumors have it the report will recommend that all commercial and experimental television be curtailed for the duration of the present emergency.

Secondly, and assuming for the moment the FCC gives the television industry the go ahead signal, Scophony spokesmen are not clear on whether they have the finances to build their receivers in sufficient quantities to assure the purchaser a price that would justify an installation with the limited television programs, or even spot news, that would be available.

Next, and by no means least, the quality of reproduction as gleaned from the demonstration is wanting in more than a few respects. By comparison with intensity of light on present-day theatre screen, the Scophony presentation was well below standard. There was quite a bit of halation around the sides of the screen, as well as the center, except when extreme close-ups were shown. The screen was nine feet by 12 feet. Yet no more than two persons could get into the camera range comfortably.

There were explanations for all of these criticisms by Scophony spokesmen. In fact, not only did they apologize for utilizing equipment that did not show to the best advantage, but they declared newer equipment of their own design which is not now in this country, would insure even better results than have been achieved by other systems. Scophony, for the uninitiated, is an English concern, headed by Solomon Sagall, founder and managing director.

For Scophony, however, it must be said its receiving equipment is so condensed that it occupies but a few square feet of space. It projects from the rear of the screen. Receivers that were installed in London theatres, when manufactured at 100-unit orders, were available for about $5,000 for the 9x12 foot screen, and about $1,600 for the 4x3 foot receiver.

Exclusive patents are claimed for the system that permits ease of operation, a minimum of overhead and unusual reception qualities. The receivers are designed to pick up any standard line television broadcast emanating from either NBC or CBS. Definition is claimed not to be impaired in the reproduction of pickup up to 50 miles.

Columbia Quarterly Dividend

NEW YORK—Columbia has declared a quarterly dividend of 68¾ cents on convertible preferred payable February 15.

REVIEW FLASHES

ALDRICH FAMILY IN LIFE WITH HENRY, THE (Para)—There is no readily-discernible reason why this, the second chapter in Henry Aldrich's screen career, shouldn't prove comparably acceptable to everyone who enjoys clean, human and down-to-earth entertainment. Jackie Cooper, Leila Ernst, Eddie Bracken, Jay Theodore Reed ably produced and directed.

HONEYMOON FOR THREE (WB)—Farce comedy about a novel-writing casanova, it strains rather hard in some of its sequences for laughs but pans out sufficient humorous lines and situations to satisfy generally, although audiences cannot be expected to consider it uproariously. Ann Sheridan and George Brent are co-featured. Henry Blanke produced; Lloyd Bacon directed.

MR. AND MRS. SMITH (RKO)—Britain's Alfred Hitchcock, who demonstrated to Hollywood and audiences everywhere his ability as a dramatic director in "Rebecca" and as a pilot of suspense and action in "Foreign Correspondent," displays an equal flair for humor in this, his first American comedy. As entertainment in the lighter vein, it is virtually flawless and, with Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery to grace the marquee, it should quickly attain the hit class.

TALL, DARK AND HANDSOME (20th-Fox)—A story of Chicago gangdom in its heyday, this vacillates between comedy and melodrama, with an occasional musical moment thrown in to further confuse its accurate designation. It is unadulterated hokum, but those who are not too critical of plot inconsistencies, will vote it a first-rate job of picture-making and everyone should find it highly acceptable entertainment. Produced by Fred Kohlmar; directed by H. Bruce Humberstone.

MPPDA Works With Metro In Behalf of "Liberty"

NEW YORK—The Hays organization, which sponsors "Land of Liberty," is cooperating with M-G-M field men in an effort to further arouse community interest in the film. For that purpose, four men have been assigned different sections of the country. Mark Larkin is now active in New England, Joe Shea in the south, Gabe S. Yorke in the west, and I. E. Deer in the middle west, out of Chicago.

See $2.85 on Common

NEW YORK—Financial circles estimate that Paramount's earnings for last year will total $2.85 for each common share.

Rowland In for Two Months

NEW YORK—Richard A. Rowland, UA producer, is in town for a couple of months.

Will Ponder Feasibility Of Roadshowing "Wings"

CHICAGO—Paramount executives will ponder the feasibility of roadshowing "I Wanted Wings" at a three-day meeting at the Edgewater Beach Hotel starting Tuesday, when Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager, will announce a number of sales shifts. Adolph Zukor and Barney Balaban will attend as will Charles Reagan, J. J. Unger, Oscar Morgan, Robert M. Gillham, C. J. Scollard and George Brown.

The Astor Will Roadshow "Wings" After "Dictator"

NEW YORK—Paramount's "I Wanted Wings" is slated for a two-a-day roadshow engagement at the Astor following the "Great Dictator" run. The deal, however, is contingent upon the renewal of Loew's lease on the theatre which, insiders believe, will be an automatic procedure.

Robert Wolff President New York Film Board

NEW YORK—Robert Wolff of RKO has been elected president of the New York Film Board succeeding Jack Bowen, eastern district manager for M-G-M. Joseph Lee of 20th-Fox has been named first vice-president replacing Nat Beier of UA. Both Ben Abner of M-G-M and Dave Levy of Universal were re-elected second vice-president and treasurer, respectively. Robert Fannon of Republic is the new secretary in place of Myron Sattler of Paramount. Ed Bell of Paramount is sergeant-at-arms succeeding Joe Felder of Universal. Inductions are slated for January 22 with a theatre party to follow the same night.

Reynolds at Strand With "Christmas Under Fire"

NEW YORK—Quentin Reynolds, war correspondent for Collier's and just returned from London, opens at the Strand, January 24, for two weeks in connection with "They Spent Christmas Under Fire," follow-up of his "London Can Take It" short on wartime London.

The feature will be "High Sierra" and the stage band, Henry Busse and his orchestra.

20th-Fox Signs Renoir

NEW YORK—Jean Renoir, French producer who is probably best known for "Grand Illusion," has been signed to a long-term contract by 20th Century-Fox. His first American film has not been announced.

Joseph Due East

NEW YORK—John Joseph, Universal's director of advertising and publicity, is expected from the coast momentarily.

Depinet Back

NEW YORK—Ned E. Depinet, RKO vice-president, is back from a trip to Dallas.

Garnett in New York

NEW YORK—Tay Garnett, the director, is here from Hollywood. Mrs. Garnett accompanies.

"Business as Usual," London Sign Reads

NEW YORK—"Business as usual," reads the sign over London.

Record business, in fact, for 20th Century-Fox, whose billings for the calendar year just ended is the highest in the company's history since it established offices in Great Britain in 1916.

Francis L. Harley, managing director there, is authority for the statement. He is here for a combination business and pleasure visit until the end of February, dividing his time between New York and Hollywood.

He gives two reasons for the record billings, which, on the face of five months of blitzkrieg, would seem not to be on talking terms with legitimacy. The first is that the shifting of populations from the east coast, London and some of the midlands to the provinces has caused theatre business to swell to "colossal" proportions; the second is that the English people are seeking more entertainment during the war than they would under normal circumstances.

Furthermore, as the days get longer so will theatre receipts, he declares. This is accounted for by the particularly large daytime attendance, Harley observes. The only factor that might disturb this optimistic outlook is an overabundance of grim, melancholy films, which, he believes, is not likely. He estimates that about 400 theatres throughout England have been put out of operation by raids, with approximately 3,800 others still going. However, the public is so film-minded that closings and openings are difficult to keep track of. He cited Coventry, where there were 21 theatres in operation before the Nazis virtually levelled the city. The raid left but four houses in operation. Within a very short period, he added, six theatres that were hit were reopened.

Production-wise, 20th-Fox "has never been busier," he declared. The year just closed saw the completion of eight features, which he asserts is "absolute maximum" on the basis of six weeks for each film. Despite "indiscribable difficulties," the company has finished "Kips," by H. G. Wells and featuring Diana Wynward and Michael Redgrave, while "Once a Crook," "Spitfire," "Pitt, the Younger," and "Paddy the Next Best Thing," in that order, are next on the schedule.

Deanna to Ball

HOLLYWOOD—Deanna Durbin leaves here next Friday for visits in Chicago and Washington. Her capital visit will coincide with the President's Birthday Ball. From there, she will go to Miami for the premiere of Universal's "Back Street" on February 4.

West on New Season

HOLLYWOOD — Maurice Silverstone, in charge of world-wide operations for UA, and Arthur W. Kelly, general sales manager, are due here Monday from New York for conferences on plans for the new season.

Spurt by Monogram Independent Units

Independents producing for Monogram release have launched a picture-making spurt.

Ed Finney has rolled "Ridin' the Cherokee Trail," a Tex Ritter western. Sam Katzman's "Air Devils," an East Side Kids feature, is also in work. Paul Malvern has pegged a January 20 start on "Sign of the Wolf," to roll on location at Mount Shasta. George Weeks' next Range Busters western will be "Guns-A-Roarin'," from an Earle Snell original.

Producers Corp. of America has re-elected Sid Schlager president and Henry Herzbrun secretary, with Charles E. Ford, originally signed on a one-picture commitment, given a three-year contract as general manager. First picture is to be "Kingdom Come," starring John Charles Thomas.

Jules Levey, president of Mayfair Productions, is in from New York to prepare "Butch Minds the Baby," "Tight Shoes" and "Hellzapoppin" as his next three independent ventures for release through Universal.

Ben Cohn, head of a recently-formed independent unit, has appointed Margaret McKay story editor to seek three properties for production this season. Cohn has checked out for New York to negotiate a release.

Now pegged by Al Rosen for a late February start is "Gangsters in Uniform," formerly "The Mad Dog of Europe," an anti-Nazi feature which he will make for Columbia release.

Here to survey the local field with a view to setting up an Anglo-French production unit is Joseph Luca, French producer, president of Imperial Films. His last French-made film, starring Annabella, opened recently in New York.

Capra and Riskin Will Tour S. A. With "Doe"

Immediately after the Academy Awards dinner in February, Frank Capra and Robert Riskin will check out on a tour of South America, carrying with them a print of their first production for Warner, "Meet Joe Doe." Plan is to visit the principal Warner exchanges on the continent, their first stop to be Rio de Janeiro. Selling policy on the picture will be discussed with the various exchange managers.

Fox May Map Program To Fit Block Plan

Indications that the studio's 1941-42 program may be mapped out in blocks of five to conform to changes in sales policy because of the consent decree, plus the possibility that further independent production-distribution deals may be set up to augment its own picture-making program, were reported by 20th Century-Fox attaches as the company's annual production huddles got under way at the studio.

Charles E. McCarthy, advertising-publicity director, came out from New York to join President Sidney R. Kent and Herman Wobber, sales head, in the conferences with Darryl Zanuck, William Goetz and Joseph M. Schenck. Sessions will probably continue for another week, during which story properties and budgets will be tentatively set for the coming season.

Other Huddles

President Nate Blumberg of Universal and J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, will spend several days more at the studio, although production conferences started last week have been concluded. Joseph H. Seidelman, foreign sales head, and William Scully, general sales manager, have returned to New York. Blumberg and Cowdin are discussing other studio matters with Cliff Work and Matty Fox.

Gradwell Sears, Warner general sales head, has arrived from New York to view the Frank Capra-Robert Riskin production, "Meet John Doe," and to discuss the sales campaign for the film.

A Republic visitor is Herbert J. Yates, board chairman, in one of his periodic look-ins at the studio, during which he will check over production schedules in conferences with M. J. Siegel, studio head, and map plans for the second quarter.

Alexander Korda, United Artists producer, was expected in before the end of the week after a quick trip to New York to confer with UA homeoffice executives on sales and distribution plans for his newest production, "That Hamilton Woman." Korda also huddled with his attorneys concerning his forthcoming appearance in U. S. District Court in connection with the Samuel Goldwyn suit against UA.

O. Henry Briggs, new president of Producers Releasing Corp., is due here January 27 on his first visit since he became company head. George Batcheller, new PRC production supervisor, and Eddy Graneman, publicity director, head a committee planning a formal welcome for their new chief, which will take the form of a "red apple" reception—in which every PRC employe will present Briggs with hand-polished apples, to be distributed to the Hollywood Orphans Home.

The franchise meeting in Kansas City concluded, President W. Ray Johnston of Monogram has returned to Hollywood, accompanied by Trem Carr and Howard Stubbins, Pacific coast franchise holder.

See No Letdown in Production Pace

All signposts point to a continuation during the next two months of the rapid picture-making pace to which Hollywood's studios have been geared during recent weeks.

To roll during the balance of January are:

Columbia—"A Girl's Best Friend Is Wall Street" and "Senate Page Boys." M-G-M—"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Love Crazy" and "A Woman's Face." Paramount—"Skylark" and "Kiss the Boys Goodbye." Republic—"Mr. District Attorney," "The Great Train Robbery" and "Sis Hopkins." Monogram—"Sign of the Wolf." Universal—"Oh, Charlie." 20th Century-Fox—"Blood and Sand" and "The Great American Broadcast." RKO Radio—"Robbers of the Range," "Hang Out the Moon" and "Tom, Dick and Harry." Warner—"Sergeant York" and "Bad Men of Missouri."

In February Columbia will gun "Her First Beau." Paramount lists "Hold Back the Dawn," "Pioneer Woman" and "Aloma of the South Seas." Republic will launch "County Fair." "Private Nurse" and "Miami" are on schedule at 20th Century-Fox. Universal has "Mutiny in the Arctic." For United Artists, Argosy will launch "The Eagle Squadron." RKO Radio's entry is "Before the Fact."

March cameras will grind on M-G-M's "Bombay Nights," Paramount's "Dildo Cay," Universal's "Almost an Angel," Warner's "Highway 99" and RKO Radio's "True to Form" and "Water Gypsies."

Cement Relationship of Films and Education

A solid step toward cementing the relationship between motion pictures and education was taken when, under the joint auspices of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and the producers' association, the Association of American Colleges' 27th annual convention was welcomed to Hollywood in ceremonies at M-G-M.

Keynote of the affair was struck by Dr. Robert Clarkson Clothier, president of Rutgers, who described the educational importance of films in guiding the sentiments of the younger generation. "Education," he asserted, "is indeed grateful that the makers of motion pictures realize their great opportunities and are carrying on the work of educating the young of America."

Welcome by Wanger

Address of welcome was delivered by Walter Wanger, Academy president, who stressed the ever-increasing community of interests between education and the screen. He explained the Academy's work in developing an all-industry cultural forum and hailed the screen as one of the three great communication media. "With its visual force," he said, "it is the front line for protection of the American way of living." He declared universities can greatly aid in directing films toward the fullest measure of utility. He branded the so-called "fifth column" in America as "largely apathy" and the popular idea of "getting way from it" instead of facing realities. To awaken Americans, he asserted, it is a great duty which the screen is well equipped to accomplish.

In behalf of the industry in general, Louis B. Mayer pledged it to greater activity and usefulness in the struggle to preserve democracy, tracing filmdom's growth and importance as an educational factor. "The torch of democratic enlightenment," he declared, "shall remain flaming" as long as schools, churches, newspapers, motion pictures and radio continue to function in America.

Entertain Visitors

Visitors were greeted by stars and other industry notables and were entertained by Nelson Eddy, Judy Garland, Allan Jones, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. Attending, in addition to 165 college presidents, Wanger and Mayer, were Y. Frank Freeman, Sheridan Gibney, James Roosevelt, Merle Oberon, Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin, Joan Bennett, Jack Warner, Spencer Tracy, Greer Garson, Mary Pickford, Samuel Goldwyn and Darryl Zanuck.

Official recognition of the industry's non-profit participation in the national defense program through the production of visual education shorts for the various branches of military service has been received by Y. Frank Freeman, chairman of the motion picture production defense committee, in the form of a letter from Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war. Stimson expressed the war department's appreciation for the industry's cooperation, since 1930, in training signal corps officers in motion picture methods through the Academy's research council, and termed the council "the ideal group through which the resources of the industry may best be utilized."

Production of the training films on a non-profit basis, he added, "is very much appreciated."

Meantime the army has announced formation of the U. S. Chief Signal Officers Photographic Advisory Council, to comprise Col. Nathan Levinson, Lieut.-Col. Darryl Zanuck, and Major John Aalberg. It will meet periodically with Major General Mauborgne, chief signal corps officer, to advise him on progress being made in defense film activities.

Meantime Joseph I. Breen, production code administrator for the MPPDA, has returned from a quick trip to New York to confer with Will Hays, MPPDA president, and other organization officials. Next producers association meeting, to be held February 3, will be devoted to the annual election of officers.

Engages Schlesinger

Paramount has engaged Leon Schlesinger, cartoon producer, to prepare the animated main titles for "The Lady Eve." Schlesinger concocted animated titles for the same studio's "Love Thy Neighbor."

Avoid Involvement In Hearst Setto

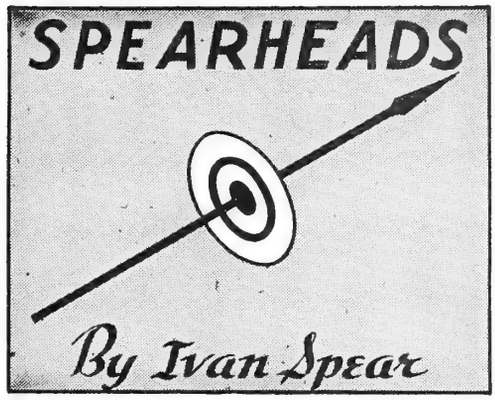
Hollywood is studiously, and probably diplomatically, assuming a hands-off policy in its reaction—or lack of it—to the embroglio launched late last week and involving William Randolph Hearst, his chain of newspapers, and RKO Radio over the Orson Welles production, "Citizen Kane," made for release through that company.

On the contention the feature and its leading character closely parallel many phases of his own career, the publisher has demanded that it be permanently shelved—and has issued orders to the editors of the various newspapers in his chain to ban all publicity and news emanating from RKO Radio and concerning that studio's sundry activities.

Threatens Legal Action

The double-barreled blast at RKO Radio—which may be followed by legal action in an attempt to secure an injunction restraining the studio from releasing the film—came after Hearst's Hollywood representative, Louella O. Parsons, requested and was given a screening of "Citizen Kane" in rough-cut form at the studio, attended not only by herself but by two of Hearst's legal representatives. Following the showing Miss Parsons communicated via long-distance telephone with George Schaefer, RKO Radio president, in New York, at which time it is believed she relayed her employer's demand that the Welles feature be scrapped.

Shortly thereafter Miss Parsons informed studio executives that legal action might be impending, although it was not learned what reaction she gained in her conversation with Schaefer.



Look to Schaefer

Studio attaches pointed out any official answer must come directly from Schaefer, in the east. However, one authoritative local company spokesman told BOXOFFICE that "Citizen Kane" definitely is not, and was not intended to be, a biography of Hearst; but that it constitutes a composite picture of a newspaper publisher, drawn from the careers of several of the nation's leading press tycoons and planned throughout to be fictional.

This spokesman, while shrugging off the Hearst edict banning RKO Radio from mention in the chain's newspapers, contended, however, that the ban is unfair in that "Citizen Kane" technically is not even RKO Radio's picture, pointing out it was made by a completely independent unit, and that the bulk of the publicity and exploitation arranged for it was not handled by the RKO Radio studio department, but by Welles' own staff. The sole connection between Welles and RKO Radio, he asserted, is through the releasing arrangement.

He indicated the studio is not greatly concerned about being banned from the Hearst press with a succinct:

"It's nothing new to be barred—other companies have been before and no doubt will be again."

AN ALL-TIME high in the he-can-dish-it-out-but-he-can't-take-it attitude is reflected in the heavy guns of suppression which Publisher William Randolph Hearst is levelling at George Schaefer and his RKO Radio organization.

It seems that Mr. Hearst has been entertaining a hunch that "Citizen Kane," the long-delayed feature which four-way Orson Welles has produced, directed, written and enacted for RKO, is based on his own life. Consequently, the Septuagenariam Sultan of San Simeon assigned his cinematic girl Friday, Louella O. Parsons, to do a bit of checking. At her regal command, RKO publicists showed a rought cut of the film to LOP and a member of the Hearstian legal battery. Whereupon the blitzing started. The picture would be shelved—or else. Just like that. Junk a negative costing well over a million dollars because its subject matter might step on the royal toes—which, parenthetically, should be well calloused by now. The "or else," for the time being, at least, is apparently limited to an edict from the "chief" that no publicity, or even news, concerning any RKO product shall appear in the columns of his journals. And there have been dire hints of other and more serious action—lawsuits, injunctions, et al.

Spokesmen for RKO and Welles refuse to admit that the screenplay for "Citizen Kane" parallels the colorful story of W. R. True, they admit, it has to do with a newspaper publisher, but is a composite story of several brass hats of the fourth estate and "the characters and incidents portrayed, and the names used herein, are fictitious, and any similarity to the name, character or history of any person is entirely accidental and unintentional."

And what if the film proves to be reminiscent of Hearst's career—either through design or coincidence? Certainly, he is the last man in the world who is entitled to a squawk. For approximately 50 years, the Pharaoh of Printers' Ink and his once powerful string of publications have been riding roughshod over the private, professional and political lives of any and all whom he might decide subject to his baleful editorial consideration. And that's fair enough. The Bill of Rights has a clause—one very close to Hearst's heart—about the freedom of the press.

By any logic or reasoning, the screen is deserving of the same protection and independence. Had it been established in its present honorable estate as a medium of expression at the time when the press was assured its freedom, the motion picture would probably have been given comparable consideration by those farseeing Americans who formulated our constitution.

Thus, the issue so arbitrarily projected by Hearst, alleged champion of a free press, involves more than the one company at which it is aimed—it concerns the entire industry and every person connected therewith. It is not sufficient that other producing and distributing organizations extend their sympathies and moral support to RKO in the uninvited and unavoidable controversy in which it has been plunged; assuming, of course, that they do.

It's high time that the industry as a whole—and that obviously indicates action by the Hays organization—does something to fight back against the constant pushing-around of which the current Hearst demand is typical.

Interesting it would be to note what might happen to the publisher's anticipatory ire if all producing companies and all exhibitors withheld all of their advertising from all of the Hearst newspapers until such a time as the Jehovah of Journalism decides that freedom of the press was not created for his special and exclusive benefits.

On the "ill wind, etc." theory, Little Orson Annie will be the beneficiary in the situation, inasmuch as Hearst's allegations that the picture maligns him will certainly whet the public's appetite to see it. Maybe the favorite nickname for the boy genius should now be changed to "Lucky Orson Annie."

BALLYHOODLUMS: As his first gesture extraordinary since becoming head of Paramount's studio publicity corps, George Brown "conceived a clever idea" (he admits it) and decided to ignore the new mutual agreement about press previews, for which ill-advised and badly-managed venture he is still taking bows in Paramount copy. With many a printed and verbal "Sh-h-h!" the press was invited to what was heralded as "Hollywood's first sneak press preview." The reviewers were invited to dinner in the Paramount commissary, after which they were transported in buses to the mysterious destination—the Alexander Theatre in Glendale, festooned, as in days of yore, with "Major Studio Feature Preview Tonight" banners. Mr. Brown may be interested in learning that his was not the "first" stunt of its kind. Twentieth Century-Fox's Harry Brand did exactly the same thing approximately two years ago when "Hollywood Cavalcade" was shown to the critical fraternity. The Brand undertaking was much more successful and enjoyable inasmuch as the newsmen were not stampeded into the theatre more than an hour before the preview showing, to sit through the last half of a regular and previously-seen feature, assorted shorts and, above all, 20 minutes of harrowing Bank Night. Mr. Brown Goes to Glendale . . . Freelancer Russell Birdwell is to be the next preview impresario to ignore the new system. But he, at least, is not attempting to camouflage his aims and purposes in showing the United Artists-Loew-Lewin feature, "So Ends Our Night," in a theatre and before a regular audience instead of in a projection room. In effect his announcement of rebellion says "Nuts to it" . . . And why, with nearly a dozen UA publicists working in Hollywood, was it necessary to entrust the debut of Richard Rowland's "Cheers for Miss Bishop," undoubtedly the company's best picture in months, to the mismanagement of two freelance blurbers—Fred Stanley and Dick Hunt?

Delightful, Dixie, Desultory

Little hesitancy was necessary on the part of Hollywood's picture reviewers to agree the Richard A. Rowland-United Artists production, "Cheers for Miss Bishop," was the outstanding best of the preview week. Only one other offering came close to giving it some competition for top honor consideration, Paramount's Technicolor feature, "Virginia."

As regards the first-named, showmen can be sure of one thing—the cheers do not end with the title. Rousing hosannahs are the just dues of Rowland for delivering to UA, in his comeback venture, that company's most potentially promising revenue feature since "Rebecca." Martha Scott, too, richly deserves three of the most rousing variety for a performance that boosts her several steps up the ladder toward rating as one of the screen's finest dramatic actresses. The remaining praise—and there is enough to go around—must be allotted to Director Tay Garnett; to Stephen Vincent Benet, who adapted the Bess Streeter Aldrich novel, and Adelaide Heilbron and Sheridan Gibney, who wrote the script; to the supporting cast and the sundry other individual elements which were marshalled to make a magnificent ensemble. Story similarities will inevitably lead to comparisons with "Goodbye, Mr. Chips"—and Rowland's effort will not suffer one whit thereby.

Down yonder in the land of cotton they'll tear the doors down to see "Virginia"—and its popularity won't stop at the Mason-Dixon line, for customers everywhere should love it for its myriad sterling qualities. Producer-Director Edward H. Griffith endowed the film with a rare combination of idyllic ingredients, working with a cast whose performances generally are beyond criticism. Much of the feature's charm is attributable to Technicolor photography, through which medium many beautiful backgrounds of the state after which the film was named are captured on the screen. Virginia Van Upp contributed a well-written screenplay, from a story by herself and Griffith.

First Broadcast in Behalf of Greece

First broadcast to be staged under the sanction of the recently formed radio-film charities committees will be an international affair, to be undertaken early in February for the benefit of the Greek War Relief Fund, and emanating from Hollywood, London and Athens.

Samuel Goldwyn, chairman of the motion picture permanent charities committee, has announced that volunteers for the program already include Jack Benny and Bob Hope, to be co-masters of ceremonies; Fanny Brice, Hanley Stafford, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Ronald Colman, Alice Faye, Clark Gable, the "Hardy Family," Carole Lombard, Tony Martin and Eddie (Rochester) Anderson. Louis K. Sidney, M-G-M producer, is in charge of preparations for the broadcast and Rufus LeMaire is chairman of the committee seeking talent.

Forward on Defense

Meantime Hollywood's participation in the national defense program has taken another step forward with the incorporation of a signal corps photographic laboratory under the auspices of the Academy Research Council. Ten officers have been commissioned in the signal corps reserve, including S. J. Briskin, major, in charge of the motion picture department; Gordon S. Mitchell, Robert Lord and W. W. Lindsay, captains; Lloyd Goldsmith, D. B. Graybill, Ray Fernstrom, Arthur Ramsay, J. E. Grainger and Winton C. Hoch, first lieutenants; and Milton Sperling and Jules Buck, second lieutenants.

Paramount has announced that employes who are drafted or who enlist under the selective training and service act are to be guaranteed a continuation of their group insurance policies at studio expense, re-employment upon their return with their term of service figured as continuous time at the studio, and six weeks' added pay—not in excess of $600—when inducted into military service. The statement, issued by Y. Frank Freeman, emphasized that men who enlist will be given the same privileges and consideration as those who are drafted.

To Active Duty

Lieut.-Comm. A. J. Bolton, U. S. Navy retired, aide to Col. Jason Joy at 20th Century-Fox, has been ordered to active service as navy liaison officer for defense projects embracing the motion picture industry.

Warner has donated 22 prints of "Teddy, the Rough Rider," short starring Sidney Blackmer, to the U. S. War Department. The film will be used for recruiting, cantonment entertainment and as a morale builder by the army.

In recognition of his efforts on behalf of Americanism via his "Big Town" radio broadcasts, Edward G. Robinson was given a citation of honor by the American Legion at the January 15 broadcast. Nearly 200 Legionnaires attended the ceremonies.

The Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies sponsored a cocktail party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bruce Pine January 11, all proceeds going to the Aid-the-Allies fund. Patrons and patronesses from the film colony included Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks jr., Constance Bennett, Melvyn Douglas, the Ralph Blocks, the Mervyn LeRoys and Hal Wallis.

Role in "Lady Be Good" For Lionel Barrymore

Technicolor Treatment For 4 by Paramount

Four of Paramount's big pictures during the next six months will be filmed in Technicolor—greatest number of color films to be released by the studio in any one season. They include "Virginia," "Shepherd of the Hills," "Reap the Wild Wind" and "Aloma of the South Seas."

Officially Inducted—

Rene Clair can now consider himself officially a part of Hollywood. The famed director, piloting Universal's "Flame of New Orleans" as his first assignment in America, was formally introduced to the press by the studio at a cocktail party on the set of the Marlene Dietrich picture. At the top the cameraman catches Clair (left) with President Nate Blumberg and Joe Pasternak. Below are Cliff Work, studio chief (left) with Miss Dietrich and President Blumberg.

Terms Films as America's "Ambassadors Abroad"

U. S. Motion pictures are "America's ambassadors abroad" and a vital force in molding national and world relationships.

This is the assertion of Dr. J. Eugene Harley, University of Southern California professor, in a new book, "World Wide Influence of the Cinema," a study of official censorship and the international cultural aspects of motion pictures. Harley is chairman of the Committee on International Relations of the American Institute of Cinematography.

His new book outlines films' influence upon the rest of the world and contains a detailed account of various censorship activities.

Film Editors Consider Benefit Fund Formation

Under consideration by the board of the Society of Motion Picture Film Editors is the establishment of a benefit fund.

The Society has added four new directors. Harold McGhan represents the Walt Disney studio; B. Weldon Hancock, Columbia; James Graham, RKO, and Eda Warren, Paramount.

400 Engaged in Making James Roosevelt Film

Employment index at James Roosevelt's Globe Productions has hit an all-time high, with 400 persons currently on the payroll engaged in the making of "Pot O' Gold" for United Artists. Among them are 100 musicians, comprising two orchestras doing the scoring and recording, as well as some 300 extras, bit players and specialty entertainers.

Rumors of Changes at UA Precede Silverstone

Probably no impending visit of a home-office executive has had more advance billing and has been subject to more conjecturing on the part of Hollywood's ever-present railbirds than the forthcoming arrival in the film capital of Murray Silverstone, chief of United Artists' world-wide operations, due here next week.

In fact, 24-sheets would be necessary if an attempt were made to list all of the rumors and surmises as to what is going to happen to the UA setup, its future production plans and the outlook for the corporation generally in 1941, when the number one man arrives.

Discontent on Distribution

Thorough investigation of these myriad reports and separation of the wheat from the chaff leads inevitably to the conclusion that virtually every one of the conjectures can be catalogued as pure gossip and that nothing can be taken as a certainty until Silverstone's arrival. Traces of smoke arising from various quarters, however, indicate the validity of at least one item—that there is a certain amount of discontent, stemming from insistence on a better distribution deal, brewing among those UA producers who are not partners in the corporation.

Other reports circulated during the past few months hold that:

1. To encourage worthwhile independents to enter the UA fold, Silverstone may offer, through his corporation, to finance their product up to 50 per cent of its negative cost.
2. UA may abandon its present individualized, picture-by-picture production method and go in for quantity production of cheaper films as a means of coping with lost foreign markets, whence, in ordinary times, a large share of the company's revenue came.
3. On the other hand, UA may, through its various production units, concentrate on fewer and more expensive pictures of higher quality and reshape its distribution setup to extract the utmost in revenue therefrom.
4. Silverstone may negotiate unit production deals with such individuals as Rowland V. Lee, Douglas Fairbanks jr. and Ben Hecht, and Gene Towne and Graham Baker.
5. He may endeavor to persuade Mary Pickford to return to active production. She, a member-owner of UA, has not been active for four years or more.
6. Despite several recent shifts and realignment in UA's sales and distribution organizations, Silverstone may, after conferences here, again order a re-vamp.

Chief purpose of his pending visit, say authoritative students of the situation, will be an attempt to overcome the present discouraging status insofar as UA production is concerned. As matters hold now, with only one picture in production, the company is faced with a serious shortage of releases during April, May and June, the last months of the peak selling season. At present the situation is something like this, unit by unit:

Walter Wanger—Will not get into action until April, possibly later.

Samuel Goldwyn—A member-owner, he is involved in a lawsuit against the company and has repeatedly insisted he will produce no pictures until the litigation has been disposed of—which may be a year or more.

David O. Selznick—Has two to make under terms of an old contract and is marshalling his forces to launch production shortly. No definite date has been set, however.

Edward Small—Has completed his 1940-41 quota and is shut down completely, not to reopen until September.

Hal Roach—Is now completing his final picture for the year with a summer shutdown then impending.

Loew-Lewin—Have completed their first, with no announcements as to what their second, if any, will be.

Alexander Korda—Has completed his year's quota and will shut down for several months.

Lubitsch-Lesser—Have one ready for release, the next not to start until August or September.

Additionally, UA has a one-picture deal with Dr. William Szekeley for "New Wine," now in work.

Bitter Over "Disorganization"

Reasons for the so-called "production blockade" point chiefly toward the fact that UA producers all are demanding a better break as regards distribution costs and handling. They are bitter, railbirds say, over the allegation that the UA sales department has been largely disorganized during the peak of the season. Additionally, they feel that to meet world conditions today, they must put everything they have into their pictures, making important and high-quality product.

A Warner farce, "Honeymoon for Three," is retarded by writing and directional weaknesses and strains overly-hard for laughs in many sequences, but manages to pan out enough humorous lines and situations to please generally, though not uproariously. Henry Blanke gave it unstinting production trappings. Earl Baldwin did the script, with additional dialogue from Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein, from a play by Alan Scott and George Haight. Lloyd Bacon was the director.

Again using a popular song as its title and story nucleus, Universal has contributed a fast-moving, diverting and tuneful entry in "Six Lessons From Madame LaZonga." Under Joseph G. Sanford's production guidance John Rawlins turned in a well-paced directorial effort, utilizing a script by Stanley Rubin, Marion Orth, Larry Rhine and Ben Chapman. Rhine and Chapman also authored the original. The result should be a welcome half on any program.

There is no readily-discernible reason why Paramount's "The Aldrich Family in Life With Henry" should not prove as acceptable to those seeking clean, down-to-earth entertainment as does the radio program from which it was adapted. Second in the Aldrich Family series, it reflects considerable of an improvement over the initialer. The original and screenplay by Clifford Goldsmith and Don Hartman comes closer to ensnaring the atmosphere of the airshow in characterizations, dialogue and situations and Jay Theodore Reed ably handled his twin chores as producer and director.

Monogram's "Pride of the Bowery," third in the "East Side Kids" series, is easily the best yet to be made in the group by Producer Sam Katzman. He endowed it with production values greatly transcending its budget through the simple expedient of filming it in a government C. C. C. camp which furnished authentic backgrounds, atmosphere and extra personnel. Joseph Lewis turned in a standard directorial job.

Cinémarks

Anna Neagle, RKO Radio star, has been made an honorary colonel in the Canadian Legion at installation ceremonies at the Hollywood American Legion Hall. The award is in recognition of her work in Canadian war relief activities

Edmund Grainger, Warner producer, has been elected president of the local Fordham University Club . . . Producer Lou Brock of RKO Radio is planning a trip to Havana when his current picture is completed.

Producer David Hempstead has returned to RKO Radio after a three-week vacation in the east, during which he attended the Philadelphia and New York premieres of his production, "Kitty Foyle" . . . Sol C. Siegel, Paramount producer, is back at his desk after a brief Arizona holiday.

Joseph Engel, associate producer with Harry Sherman, will check out next week for a month's holiday in New York.

Prints of Jack Benny's feet and violin have been encased in concrete and installed in the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese Theatre.

"Thing Called Love" Sets a Fast Pace

New York—Columbia's "This Thing Called Love," co-starring Melvyn Douglas and Rosalind Russell, got off to a sensational start when it broke the opening day records at both the Orpheum in San Francisco and the Denver, Denver, company officials report.

Despite the fact that it had a special New Year's Eve performance at the Denver, where it reached a new high in holiday grosses, the Alexander Hall comedy opened for its regular run a week later to set another record by topping the high-water mark reached by "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," they add.

PCCITO Trustees Wind Up in Seattle, S. F.

LOS ANGELES—First 1941 meeting of the trustees of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, held in Portland, Ore., January 13, developed into a series of sessions. Following that conclave R. H. Poole, executive secretary, and Albert J. Law, new PCCITO general counsel, trekked to Seattle for a meeting there, and conducted still a third get-together in San Francisco January 15.

Attending the Portland session, in addition to Poole and Law, were Hugh Bruen and Jack Y. Berman of Los Angeles, and Bob White and A. West Johnston of Oregon. Poole, Law, Bruen and Berman met with William Ripley and L. O. Lukan in Seattle, and with Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin in San Francisco.

Topics covered at the meetings included discussions of the consent decree and means of strengthening the PCCITO's platform to solidify a united front of independent showmen along the Pacific Coast.

Poole, Law, Bruen and Berman will return here about January 20.

Remodeling Completed On Grauman's Chinese

LOS ANGELES—Remodeling and modernization of Grauman's Chinese, Fox West Coast de luxe first-run house in Hollywood, has been completed. Job included installation of air-foam seats, first to be placed in any theatre in the nation; a new screen; sound-proofing of the floor and other alterations.

Spyros Cardos, house manager, has initiated a new system whereby floral decorations in the lobby and forecourt are changed with every screen attraction. For "Chad Hanna" flowers were shaped into a circus atmosphere while for "Hudson's Bay," current attraction, floral decorations are in the snow-and-ice motif.

As advance ballyhoo for "Hudson's Bay," George Watters' exploitation staff arranged a fashion show in which 30 models participated.

Gibraltar Board Meets

DENVER—The consent decree and the effect its operation will have upon established policies of the Gibraltar Enterprises chain will be the chief topic of a board meeting here Sunday.

"Story" and "Neighbor" Shine in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES—Top hits in an otherwise average week were "The Philadelphia Story," playing Grauman's Chinese, Loew's State and the Carthay Circle simultaneously, and "Love Thy Neighbor," booked at the Paramount in conjunction with a Fanchon & Marco stage show.

"Flight From Destiny" held for a second week at the Four Star, although drawing under average, and will stay for a third stanza. "Santa Fe Trail" drew normal business in its second week at Warner's Hollywood and Downtown.

Detail for the week ending January 7:

(Average is 100)

Carthay Circle—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M)..150
Chinese—Same as Carthay Circle.....150

Seattle Feels Effects Of Defense Program

SEATTLE—Show-shops here are beginning to feel the effects of extra spending due to defense activities. Folks are beginning to loosen their purse strings and are getting the entertainment habit once more. The radio feud between Fred Allen and Jack Benny helped the Paramount to garner top grosses this week with the showing of "Love Thy Neighbor." All other houses fared reasonably good.

Detail for week ending January 11:

(Average is 100)

Blue Mouse—Comrade X (M-G-M); Dr. Kildare's Crisis (M-G-M), 4th wk. 90

$10,500 for Greeks By FWCoasters

LOS ANGELES—Fox West Coasters Club, comprising more than 3,000 FWC circuit employes in California and Arizona, has contributed $10,500 in cash and signed commitments to the Greek War Relief Fund, of which Charles P. Skouras, FWC president, is Southern California president.

That amount was awaiting Skouras when he returned January 12 from a tour of the east.

Dick Powell Proves Big Draw in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO—Dick Powell proved a terrific draw at the Golden Gate, nearly doubling the theatre's average take in spite of a poor screen attraction. The Benny-Allen feud is making the Paramount a popular place these days where "Love Thy Neighbor" is the current product. The Paul Muni fans kept the Warfield boxoffice above average, while "Bagdad" and "Arizona," both in their third week, held their own.

Detail for week ending January 8:

(Average is 100)

Fox—Santa Fe Trail (FN); Come On, Marines (Rep), 10 days.....100

SALT LAKE

SALT LAKE CITY'S 1940 real estate sales were highest in the city's history, it is announced by the Real Estate Board. Department store sales rose to their highest level since the middle of 1930 last November, it is also disclosed. The motion picture industry in this region is sitting tight with no guesses ventured as to what the new year will bring forth. Forty sales people of the Utah Power and Light Co.'s Salt Lake division were told that 1941 will mean bigger sales in the electrical industry because of the bigger payrolls incident to the national defense program. Increased volume of sales of Utah-manufactured products during the past year is mirrored in sales tax collection figures reported by the state tax commission.

John P. Byrne was a visitor at the Salt Lake M-G-M offices. Accompanying Bryne, was E. M. Saunders, western division manager. Bryne recently was made district supervisor for the company with offices in Denver . . . Manager Bill Seib of Columbia reports "Arizona" moved over to the local Studio after a successful run at the Centre, and that it is doing a big business throughout the territory also . . . Manager G. S. Pinnell spent the holidays on the coast and is now back busy in his Utah territory for Sheffield-Republic . . . H. B. Jorgensen, Rigby, Ida., exhibitor, was in town signing with Republic for some product.

Intermountain Theatres, Inc., held a drive during December and several cash prizes were awarded as well as trips to the Chicago meeting January 22 honoring the fifth anniversary of Barney Balaban as president of Paramount. The drive, which was held from Thanksgiving until Christmas, allotted two trips to local contestants. The trips were won by "Chet" Price of the Victory and Bill Glasmann of the Paramount, Ogden. Jack Braunagle of the Capitol, Logan, won a cash prize, as did Breck Fagin, Orpheum, Idaho Falls, Ida.; next in line were Nevin McCord of the Granada, Boise, and Harold Chesler of the Marlo, Salt Lake. Price and Glasmann will accompany General Manager Harry David to the Chicago banquet.

RKO held a meeting here in connection with their Depinet drive, according to Manager H. C. Fuller. Attending were Herb MacIntyre, district manager, and Drive Captain Leo Devaney, from Canada . . . One of the oldest of the oldtimers in the show business, Bert Orr, of Grace, Ida., paid a visit to Salt Lake on a booking trip. Orr recently celebrated his 25th anniversary as operator of the Opera House at Grace, and February 2, he celebrates his 60th birthday . . . Manager Tony Hartford is traveling the territory currently for UA.

The Motion Picture Club of Salt Lake elected new officers as follows: "Buck" Wade, Universal manager, president, replacing Harold Chesler of Intermountain Theatres; vice-president, Terry Smoot of 20th Century-Fox, replacing Clyde Blasius of the same company; secretary, Ralph Pizza of Vitagraph, replacing Dan Driscoll of Fox West Coast; treasurer, E. S. Winward of RKO, replacing Joe Madsen of United Artists . . . Manager F. H. Smith of Paramount is back from a trip into Idaho . . . Branch Manager W. W. McKendrick has gone into southern Utah with his Monogram product . . . G. L. Cloward of Ross Federal is back from a vacation in Los Angeles and San Francisco. He heads for Butte, Mont., this week.

Lola Lane stopped over briefly while en route to Minneapolis to begin a 10-week personal appearance tour . . . "Dear Brutus" was presented by a local group . . . "Go West" was screened last week for the trade . . . The Joseph I. Lawrence Theatre Co. reports that the new theatre at Provo, Utah, to be called the Academy, is nearing completion and should open by February 10. The 800-seat house is ultra-modern in both exterior and interior design. The structure is of brick and concrete, completely fireproof, and called for an outlay of over $50,000.

A Party and Dance by Montana Screen Club

BUTTE, MONT. — The Montana Screen Club held their first annual party and dance in the Masonic ballroom recently. Refreshments and a buffet lunch were served. One hundred and twenty members and guests were present. The club president, Ed Loy, was in charge.

Immediately following the party, Loy and his wife left for Denver to spend a week on business and carry greetings to the Rocky Mountain Screen Club at their New Year's Eve party.

DENVER

FRED KNILL, booker for Gibraltar Enterprises, has taken a six-month leave of absence because of ill health. Ted Thompson, manager of the Rialto at Loveland, Colo., has taken over the booking job in addition to his present post . . . J. S. Church has sold his interest in the Palace, Denver, to his partner, H. J. Gottschalk, who will improve the house, with his first move being to install new seats . . . Joe Lucas has closed the State in Idaho Springs, Colo.

Henry LeClair, formerly with Gibraltar Enterprises, has accepted a post in Cheyenne, Wyo., where he will be assistant to Fred Glass, city manager for Fox . . . Alva Lawter has been named manager of the Alpine, succeeding Joe Gundy. Dave Cockrill owns the house. Lawter began his theatre work as assistant manager under Cockrill at the Princess, Newcastle, Ind.

One of the really busy men in Denver is the artist at the Denver, Larry Blair. Besides originating the lobby displays, posters, etc., he takes piano lessons, is an expert photographer, builds furniture for three small Blairs, and is now assembling a scrapbook of his artistic ventures.

Various legislators are threatening to introduce an amusement tax bill in the Colorado legislature. They claim this would be necessary to replace the revenue that would be lost in case the service tax is repealed, or if the income tax exemptions are raised. Plans also call for rescinding of sales tax on milk and foods carried from store.

PORTLAND

JOHNNY COLLINS, long a member of the Filmrow family, severed his connections with the Star Theatre recently for a job in the shipyards . . . Universal employes are all back on the job after sessions with the flu bug. The salesmen, Cecil Farnes and Jim Hommel, and "Slats" Wilson, branch manager, are back from New Year's vacations and ready to do or die in their big sales drive. They announce a new member of the office force, Miss Louise Luick, late of Paramount. Congratulations to Universal and Miss Luick.

Republic had visitors in the persons of J. T. Sheffield and Eddie Walton from Seattle. Mabel Walsh, stenographer, left for a two week vacation to California . . . Verna and Edgar Mercy are being congratulated on the birth of a new Mercy jr. His name was not divulged, but cigars were passed out via Tom Shearer . . . Metro advises that Mrs. Theo Hasbrook has been on the flu list since the first of the year . . . Ruth Hawkins drove to Seattle for a visit with friends recently . . . Lou Amacher played host to the Roy Browns at his beach hotel.

RKO held a screening for the trade of "Kitty Foyle," and later held open house so everyone could inspect the extensive remodeling of their office, including the newly installed telephone switchboard. Leo Devaney, RKO district manager in Canada and newly-appointed drive leader in their current sales drive; Harry Gittelson, editor of their house organ, Flash, and Herb MacIntyre, western district sales manager, held a pep meeting with the local office force January 11 . . . Stanley Gustafson is improving rapidly after spending several weeks in bed with a broken back. He expects to be back at work soon.

Visitors were numerous on the Row this week. Johnny Harvey is back in circulation, much improved, after his car smash-up. Al Adolph, Salem; Harry Gamble, North Bonneville; Ray Henderson, Albany, Don Watrous, Forest Grove; and Bob Veness, Mill City, were among those in town . . . Harry Kline had a bad siege with the flu and then a setback which almost developed into pneumonia. He is able to sit up now and take nourishment.

V. G. Faulkner is the new manager of the Rivoli Theatre in Portland. George Berliner will be the new assistant manager at the Paramount . . . Much interest is centered on the independent theatre owners' meeting and there has been a great deal of discussion—pro and con—on the subjects taken up at the meeting.

Jimmy Sheffield has been down with an attack of appendicitis but is much improved now . . . Edythe Schuhmann's fellow Columbia workers are getting discouraged in their efforts to make a westerner out of her. The gal hails from New Yoik and her pals are coaching her on pronounciation . . . she leaves out her R's. They don't get very far with her because when the going gets tough, little Edythe gives 'em the boid.

"U" Termer for Carrillo

HOLLYWOOD—Leo Carrillo has signed a termer at Universal.

SEATTLE

THE defense program is certainly helping financially in various parts of this territory. Seattle is feeling the joy of spending from the increase of employment at the Boeing plant. Bremerton, with its enlarged navy yards, has caused the building of two new theatres. Tacoma and Olympia are feeling the spending from the large army base at Fort Lewis and Camp McCord . . . Maybe the radio is a help at times. The Benny-Allen feud can be classed as one big exploitation gag for "Love Thy Neighbor." The result here is a grand business at the Paramount . . . The world loves a fellow who always remembers that his Mom and Dad brought him up, and that he can repay by devoting some time to their happiness after he is on the road of fame. Joe Penner was just such a boy, and we have lost one grand guy with his passing . . . The theatre owners situated in Washington apple growing area have been suffering from a glutted market. Here is good news boys. The Washington state apple commission has already started plans for spending $1,000 per day for advertising in an effort to move the Winesap apples. Here's hoping the ads bear fruit.

Planned to raise money to help entertain delegates and visitors to the national convention of the American Federation of Musicians in Seattle this summer, the Musicians' Ass'n has announced a series of dances. O. R. McLain, president of the society, said that a different well-known orchestra will conduct each dance and a prize will be awarded the band attracting the most attendance. The national convention will be held here June 9 and will attract some 1,200 delegates from the important centers of the United States and Canada . . . Negotiations have opened between Theatre Employes union, Local B-22, and theatre owners in Seattle. About 300 workers will be affected by the agreement. The contract asks improved working conditions and seeks a clause protecting the union members if called for draft service. Both Hamrick-Evergreen and Sterling Theatres have already gone on record for employes called under the Selective Service Act, having made announcements at the time the act went in force.

The Ascap-BMI music war has brought out many of the local song writers. O. B. Clow, owner of waffle shops all through the northwest, has been a song writer for years and his hobby has been to make recordings of all his numbers. Clow flew to New York and visited with BMI and is now back with a contract. Alice Nadine Morrison is still receiving royalties from her song "Love's Ship" written some years ago. Now she is busy batting out tunes for BMI. More than a dozen local writers have received contracts . . . John Hamrick has donated the use of his Music Hall, seating 2,200, for a benefit performance being sponsored by the Friends of Britain, Inc. Feature of the show will be the personal appearance of Gracie Fields, the highest paid actress in England . . . Cecilia Schultz, Seattle's only female theatre operator, is back from New York where she was successful in signing up Lawrence Tibbett, Yehudi Menuhin, Jose Iturbi, Helen Traubel, and many other noted concert artists. All will appear at various intervals at the Moore Theatre.

The local office of RKO is fixed up with a series of electrical flasher gags calling attention to the Ned Depinet drive. Under the supervision of Eddie Lamb, branch manager; Floyd Henninger and Bill Engel devoted their Saturday afternoon to fixing up the office and it is one grand job and should be worthy of mention among the RKO notes. The drive opened in Seattle with the appearance of Leo Devaney, drive captain; Harry Gittelson, editor of Flash, and Herb MacIntyre, western division sales manager . . . Cigars were passed around in various branches of the Mercy family this past week. Edgar and Verne Mercy of Yakima celebrated the arrival of a son. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sweet of Seattle were the proud parents of a daughter. Mrs. Sweet is the sister of Mrs. Fred Mercy jr. . . . Harriett Atkinson has been transferred from the Music Box to the Coliseum and will take charge of all usherettes in that house.

Jack Rosenberg in Providence Hospital recovering from a head injury sustained in a skiing accident . . . L. A. McCracken, advance agent, in from Los Angeles ahead of "White Zombie" . . . Hal and Ethel Daigler out for California and a three-month vacation in Palm Springs . . . Ralph Ravenscroft back to the Paramount studios after campaigning "Love Thy Neighbor"

He Finished With "Old Black Joe"

Seattle—The Ascap-BMI war is becoming a gag in this neck-of-the-woods.

The police radio station, KGPA, was working on test calls. Radio Operator Hadley Clarke whistled a few bars of "Down Argentine Way." Another officer ran into the room and shouted, "You can't do that. We haven't got any contract with Ascap."

Hadley finished his testing with "Old Black Joe."

. . . L. J. McGinley addressing the convention of Electrical Products at the Rainier Club. Mac gave them the old one-two about "Showmanship in Selling" . . . J. T. Sheffield and Eddie Walton of the Republic office out for Portland for a few days . . . Arch and Mrs. Bartholet and son, Bob, here from Yakima for a few days. Arch is city manager for the Mercy houses there . . . Bill and Mrs. Evans of the Post Street, Spokane, spending some time here . . . Eddie Miller of RCA being held back from his Portland trip by fog. He finally made it . . . Hugh Bruen in from Whittier, Cal., for a meeting with his theatre partners, Ben Shearer and Art St. John.

Charley and Mrs. Gilkey and son, Dick, at the "Hudson's Bay" preview along with Mr. and Mrs. Williams and Keith McCormack . . . Bill Forman, general manager of Sterling Theatres, back at his desk after the appendectomy . . . Charley Laidlaw in from Dayton . . . Ollie Wog, branch manager for Producers Releasing Corp. of Portland, will also be in charge of the Seattle branch with the resignation of Joe Merrick . . . Bill McCurdy, manager of the J. J. Parkers Broadway in Portland, and Bill Parker, the Northwest exploiteer for Metro, both wearing honor pins presented by Metro for outstanding campaign on "Land of Liberty" . . . Frank Newman sr. back from Los Angeles . . . Frank Graham, who recently leased his theatre in Auburn, has left for New York to attend the motor boat show in Madison Square Garden. His boat will be ready and launched in March . . . Eldon Pollock sr. is in the hospital recovering from a severe flu attack . . . Zella Lamb getting a thrill out of attending a preview. Zella has been abed since October with her leg in a cast, broken in two places. She made the preview on crutches and a nurse in attendance.

Betty Condon here from San Francisco visiting with her Pa and Ma, Maury and Lucille Saffle, and being greeted by her many friends not only on the Row but in town . . . Word from Chicago tells that Izzy Schlank, formerly of Seattle, has been appointed district manager for United Artists in the Chicago, Milwaukee and Minneapolis field . . . Bob Poole, executive secretary for the Independent Theatre Owners of the Pacific Coast, and Albert Law, general counsel for ITO, here to attend a special meeting of the conference . . . Dick Hays, drama editor of the Times, getting a special invite to attend Universal's "Back Street" premiere in Miami. Dick and his wife, Bess, have just returned from a three-week vacation in the middle west . . . Wayne Christy, northwest manager for W. C. Automatic Candy Co., to Portland for a five-day stay . . . B. F. Shearer announces that Ted Lay, former manager for National Theatre Supply in Los Angeles, has joined the local Shearer staff. He replaces Gordon Morris, who resigned to handle theatres.

Vic Gauntlett back at his desk after the flu attack . . . Bill and Fredi Shartin back from the California vacation . . . Bill Kostenbader recovered from his week in bed with the same old thing—flu . . . Mrs. Les Theuerkauf and her son Les jr. to San Francisco for a visit. They were accompanied by Mrs. Theuerkauf's sister, Mrs. Bert Pollard, who was returning to her home after visiting the Theuerkaufs here . . . M. G. Whitman of the Universal sales staff cutting short his vacation and hurrying back from California to keep an appointment with an exhibitor . . . Bud Benson on the Row from Anacortes after two weeks in bed battling flu . . . Roy Irvine of the Ritz in Ritzville in town on a booking tour . . . Ward Pennington here from San Francisco to take up his new spot with Paramount as salesman in eastern Washington. He succeeds Glen Haviland, who has taken over the sales for the Seattle territory, replacing Dwight Spracher who moved to Paramount's San Francisco office.

Archie Holt, salesman for Fox east of the mountains, in town for a few days . . . Fred Girtanner of the Procter Street in Tacoma busy with his booking book and saying hello to friends . . . Jim Root, assistant to Joe Cooper at the Northwest Film Club, announces that the doctor has informed him that he will be a "pop" sometime in April . . . Fred Girtanner of the Procter Street in Tacoma in booking.

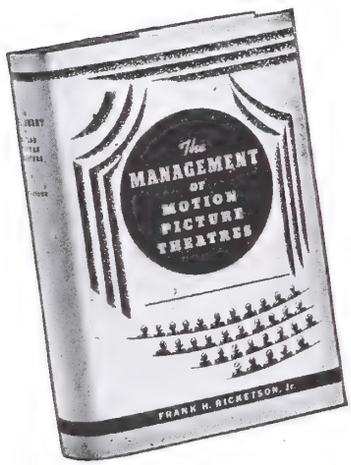
Utilizes Local Angle in Tieup With Bowes

GLENDALE, CAL. — Learning in advance that Major Bowes was going to present a Glendale winner over his "Salute to Cities" program, Manager Ed Harris of the Glendale successfully beat the "stay-at-home" competition by arranging to rebroadcast the show to his theatre audience by a hookup over the sound system.

As a prelude to the broadcast, Harris presented the parents of the winning Bowes contestant along with the mayor and president of the chamber of commerce. Prior to the re-broadcast he presented the six best contestants in a local amateur show in a stage revue.



GN Will Release PRC Lineup in Canada

La Crosse Hearing Again Delayed

Madison, Wis.—Hearing in the $1,472,000 damage suit of the La Crosse Theatre Co., La Crosse, against Paramount, United Artists, 20th Century-Fox, Welworth Theatre Co. and the Minnesota Amusement Co., scheduled to be held in federal court here January 6, was postponed to February 17 by Judge Patrick T. Stone.

The action was opened in October, but postponed due to the sudden illness of Atty. Robert A. Hess, Milwaukee, counsel for the La Crosse company. The postponements have been vigorously contested by counsel for the defendant companies.

Committees Form to Aid Greek Cause

INDIANAPOLIS—Spyros Skouras, National Theatres' head and national chairman of the Greek War Relief Ass'n, has appointed the following regional committees to represent the industry in the drive for Greek war relief funds:

Don R. Rossiter, executive secretary of Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, chairman; Alex Manta, president of Indiana-Illinois Theatres, Chicago; Marc J. Wolf, general manager of Theatrical Managers, Inc., Indianapolis; Sam Switow, Switow Theatrical Enterprises, Louisville, Ky.; S. J. Gregory, general manager of Alliance Theatre Corp., Chicago; Fred Greenberg, manager of Warner Bros. Film Exchange, Indianapolis; Joe Cantor of Co-operative Theatres, Indianapolis; Pete Mallers, general manager of Mallers Bros., Fort Wayne, Ind.; Trueman Rembusch, president of Syndicate Theatres, Franklin, Ind.; P. H. Dickson, president of Affiliated Theatres, Inc., Indianapolis.

George Landis, branch manager of 20th Century-Fox Film Exchange, Indianapolis; Abe Kaufman, operator of the Fountain Theatre, Terre Haute, Ind.; A. H. Borkenstein, operator of Wells Theatre, Fort Wayne, Ind.; H. L. Krieghbaum, operator of Char Belle Theatre, Rochester, Ind.; J. M. Dixon, operator of Flora Theatre, Flora, Ind.; Dick Vlastos, operator of Fowler Theatre, Fowler, Ind.; Dick Frank, branch manager of United Artists, Indianapolis; John Servaas, Exhibitors Exchange, Indianapolis; George Settos, Settos Theatres, Indianapolis; H. P. Vonderschmitt, Vonderschmitt Amusement Enterprises, Bloomington, Ind.; James Bikos, Bikos Bros., Gary, Ind.; Guy Craig, branch manager of Columbia Pictures Corp., Indianapolis; Fred Dolle, president of Fourth Avenue Amusement Corp., Louisville, Ky.; and Charles M. Olson, Olson Theatre Enterprises, Indianapolis.

At the first meeting of the committee, $735 was pledged by the committee members. This will form the nucleus for the drive which is expected to get under way immediately. S. J. Gregory addressed the meeting.

Declares Denunciations Of Decree Are Futile

CHICAGO—"The consent decree is now final. Further protests or denunciations are futile and no changes or modifications are likely by court action or otherwise until after the decree is put into actual operation."

Edward G. Zorn, president of the United Theatre Owners of Illinois, speaking to his membership in a special bulletin. Pointing out that his organization, "together with virtually all other exhibitor organizations, has protested against the imposition of many of the provisions," Zorn declares that compliance with the decree is up to the distributor, and adds:

"There is no provision anywhere in the decree calling for exhibitor participation or cooperation in its administrations or operations. Compliance is imposed upon the five distributors and their affiliated exhibitors, and not upon the exhibitor; consequently, its operation is not predicated upon what you, as an exhibitor, do but rather upon what the distributors do.

Prepare for Starting Date

"The decree goes into effect Sept. 1, 1941. Thus the exhibitor has six to eight months in which to prepare himself by studying its provisions. We may as well reconcile ourselves to the fact that we have no choice but compliance. The two most important provisions of the decree are the block-of-five restriction and the arbitration system.

"The block-of-five restrictions apply only to pictures released after September, 1941. The five distributors who are parties to the consent decree, are restrained by law from offering for rental to exhibitors pictures in blocks of over five. The distributor cannot sell more than five pictures in a block at one time, and these five pictures must be made and have had a trade showing.

"The arbitration system is placed entirely in the hands of the American Arbitration Ass'n. Any cooperation or participation by the exhibitor other than submitting complaints is strictly forbidden. Its provisions are set forth in strange and tricky clauses. Lawyers will be arguing about their meaning and interpretation for years to come. The lack of clarity in the maze of legal verbiage means that ultimately the arbitrators, themselves, will decide just how most of the decree will be interpreted and applied."

Warns of Discriminatory Legislation in Illinois

CHICAGO—Urging members of the United Theatre Owners of Illinois against concerning themselves entirely with the consent decree, Edward G. Zorn, president, warns in his current bulletin of impending state legislation and calls for "effective resistance" against unfair and discriminatory taxation and regulation.

"We are quite willing and fully expect to pay our share of the taxes needed, but we must be prepared to fight against having the movies singled out for special taxes that will impose a burden in excess of that carried by other industries," he says, and continues:

"Taxes are not the only legislation that cost the theatres money. You will be faced with all sorts of proposed requirements, restrictions and regulations especially designed for your business—two operators in a booth laws, censorship bills, licensing requirements, etc., etc. You need only to look back to the last session of the legislature to find an avalanche of bills detrimental to your business.

"Exhibitors who want their business interests fairly and effectively protected should lend their support and join forces with their fellow exhibitors at once for their own good. You can't organize effectively at the last minute to deal with emergencies."

"Too Many Fights," Says UTOI Chief

Chicago—"Too much time and money is being spent on legal theories and controversies," President Edward G. Zorn declares in his special bulletin to UTOI members. He argues that "It's a disease that grows worse every year and keeps our business in an unhealthy state.

"We spend too much time telling the world about what is wrong with the movies, the abuses and injustices and incompetence in the business, and neglect to advance a good, clear understanding of how it operates and why it operates that way even within the industry.

"The movie theatres are doing a good job of giving fine entertainment and relaxation at an average cost, to the patron, of seven or eight cents an hour, but you would never know it from the people in the business. Let's get together to protect ourselves and, incidentally, blow our own horns."

Dispute in Chicago Over the Oriental

CHICAGO—The Oriental, 3,217-seat house located in the heart of Chicago's "White Way," is currently the center of a dispute between Jones, Linick & Schaefer, present operators, and the Metropolis Corporation, New York City, lessor of the 32 W. Randolph Street Corp. The latter corporation at present is leasing the Oriental to Jones, Linick & Schaefer.

The Metropolis Corp., apparently dissatisfied with the operation of the Oriental by JL&S, has asked Balaban & Katz to take the lease on the theatre.

A Second Big Week for "Kitty" in the Loop

CHICAGO—With a terrific picture as a solid foundation and a smash exploitation campaign handled by Tom Gorman and Bob Haley, the RKO Palace, with "Kitty Foyle," continues the business pace-maker in the loop. Doubled with another RKO film, "Saint in Palm Springs," "Kitty" finished as big a second week as the 200 per cent initial stanza.

M-G-M is in No. 2 spot in town with "Bitter Sweet" placing at the Garrick with 150 per cent and "Comrade X" taking show money at 130 per cent at the United Artists.

: SPRINGFIELD :

SAM BONANSINGA, stage manager at the Orpheum, reported to police the theft of two stage spot lights valued at $100. M. E. Berman, manager of the Orpheum, has invited state and city officials and other dignitaries to a preview of "Land of Liberty."

Edmond Metzger, manager of the Strand, popularized "The Green Archer" serial by placing a target in the center of the outside display and allowing boys to shoot at it with bow and arrows having rubber cup points. Those scoring bullseyes were admitted free.

Sam Bonansinga, business agent of the local stage employes' union, is expecting no opposition when he runs for re-election as president of the Springfield Federation of Labor in the January 28 election. When the March of Time's "Labor and Defense" shows at the Orpheum, he will give several labor speeches in its behalf.

Max Tschauder, manager of the Roxy, was all smiles when "Santa Fe Trail" did big business during a two-week run at his theatre . . . The Ballet Russe De Monte Carlo played an engagement at the Orpheum.

Max Tschauder, manager of the Roxy, and M. E. Berman, manager of the Orpheum, attended the inauguration of Governor Dwight Green. Berman was one of the chosen few who sat on the stage . . . Many of the boys from the Kerasotes office kicked up their heels at the governor's inaugural ball.

M. E. Berman, of the Orpheum, went to the airport to welcome Lieut.-Com. K. C. Huffman, with the U. S. Navy at St. Louis, who spoke at the Mid-Day Luncheon Club and put in several good "plugs" for "Flight Command" which opened at the Orpheum a few days later.

Edward G. Zorn, president of the United Theatre Owners of Illinois, and Mrs. Zorn left for Hollywood Tuesday via the Santa Fe Chief. Zorn will visit the film studios while in Hollywood and look over some of the new pictures in the making. He will be gone three weeks.

Dozens of Illinois exhibitors have been answering a questionnaire sent out by UTOI Executive Secretary Bill Crouch which outlines the many services offered by this new statewide association. Questionnaires were sent to all downstate exhibitors.

Gene Rich, M-G-M representative, has been promoting assistance from the naval air force with the result that flying exhibitions are daily occurrences in southern Illinois. "Flight Command" is the picture getting the plugs.

Mort Berman of the Orpheum is looking forward to the Barney Balaban Drive dinner in Chicago this month. Mort's record for the drive period was very good and he hopes to be among the top money winners.

One of the cleverest advertisements seen locally for some time was the one Dave Jones, Senate manager, cooked up for "This Thing Called Love." Jones had an expert statistician "clock" the laughs in the picture, and the 504 laughs recorded show the way the film is going over here. The advertisement extolled the results of the checking.

Dominic Giachetto received a bowling ball for Christmas. Bowling records now list Dominic as one of the best keglers in the city . . . Bill Crouch, UTOI official, has practically recovered from an auto crash two weeks ago. He suffered a broken nose and a cracked knuckle. He was on a business trip in the northern part of the state.

Russell Armentrout is the latest Illinois exhibitor to join the ranks of the UTOI. Armentrout and his father operate theatres in Barry, Pittsfield and several Missouri towns . . . C. D. Redford of Auburn has installed new sound in his American there.

Springfield theatremen turned out en masse for the inauguration of Gov. Dwight Green, who took over the reins on January 13. Green was strongly supported by Illinois exhibitors during the campaign and is said to have a good understanding of theatre problems . . . Fred Bartow, new Paramount exploiteer, is due here in a few days to offer plans for exploiting some of the new Paramount product.

Police Hold Suspect In Stench Bombing

KIRKWOOD, MO.—Local police are holding a man seized by Theodore Lending, proprietor of the Kirkwood Theatre, after a bottle containing a stench fluid had been broken on the floor of the theatre. The Kirkwood has been the scene of four stench bombings since last September 1, when the theatre hired a non-union projectionist after refusing to renew its old contract with Local 143, operators' affiliate of the IATSE, which requires the employment of two projectionists on each shift.

Lending told police he was ushering when the man, accompanied by a woman, asked to be seated down front. Since ordinarily these seats are the most undesirable from which to view the pictures, Lending became suspicious. So he gave a youth free admission to sit directly behind the man and keep a careful watch on him.

When the youth reported to Lending that the man had thrown something into the aisle, Lending rushed down front and, with the aid of several patrons, he seized and held him. In the commotion the woman fled.

The suspect denied he had thrown the bottle of stench fluid to the floor. He said he was 37 years old and employed by the city of St. Louis in a street paving gang. Later, the police arrested a young woman who refused to make a statement.

RACINE

BOOKED for stage appearances at Warner's Venetian Wednesday, Jan. 29, are Lawrence Welk and his Orchestra . . . Mrs. E. J. Berdinner has been named motion picture chairman of the Racine chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and is offering members rating information as contained in the DAR national magazine.

The Better Films League, now in the most active year in its history, is issuing weekly rating sheets to PTA groups, schools, the libraries, and has available rating information for the public.

Conducted by Stan Lambert, manager of Warner's Rialto, twice-weekly radio programs on motion picture subjects are broadcast by WRJN whose organist, Ray Gruis, plays for weekly community sing programs each Saturday night at the Venetian.

Bobby Jordan, one of the "Dead End Kids," added nothing to his popularity in Racine when he failed to make a scheduled appearance at the Fox-Midwesco Uptown.

In Racine recently for just an hour between trains was Sabu, whose latest film assignment was the title role in "The Thief of Bagdad."

Ken Mayer, who has been serving as assistant manager at the Venetian, has returned to his former post as treasurer at the Warner in Milwaukee. He is succeeded in Racine by Edward Friedwald, who has been associated with Warner theatres for nine years and who came to Racine from an assistant managership at the Jeffrey in Chicago.

"Wind" Returns

ST. LOUIS—"Gone With the Wind" has been booked for a popular engagement at Loew's commencing January 24. The schedule of prices has been announced as follows: Adults, 40 cents for matinees and 50 cents at night, and 25 cents for children at matinees. The doors will open daily at 9 a. m.

Awards Contract

WAYNESVILLE, MO.—J. F. Ghosen of the Uptown, Sedalia, Mo., has awarded the general contract for his new theatre here to John Ethland of Versailles, Mo. The new house was designed by Robert O. Boller, architect, Kansas City, Mo. Construction starts at once.

Preston to Open

SALEM, MO.—The Preston, new 500-seat house of May and Kenneth Preston, was to open this week.

Remodeling Helps

MEXICO MO.—The Liberty, recently remodeled, has been doing nice business since it was reopened by the Frisina circuit.

Vote on Daylight Saving

URBANA, ILL.—Citizens of this university town next April will vote on the question of whether daylight saving time shall prevail here next summer.

May Build in Decatur

DECATUR, ILL.—It is reported that Gus Constant plans to erect a new theatre on the lot he is said to have purchased here some weeks ago.

Building at Rolla, Mo.

ROLLA, MO.—Mildred R. Karsch and associates are building a 900-seat second-run theatre here.

MADISON, WIS.—While exhibitor leaders received with considerable satisfaction the opening statement of Gov. Julius P. Heil before the state legislature here last week that no new taxes would be required to meet the budget for the biennium, they construe the fact that the state is expected to collect in revenues during the next two years only $65,536,064 to meet this $74,469,148 budget, to indicate some kind of additional tax legislation.

Heil told the legislature that "due to improved business conditions, it might reasonably be expected that increased income taxes and surtaxes, together with strict economy in administration, will make it possible to operate the state government without any new taxes."

Those familiar with the situation here say that by diverting highway funds in the coming biennium, the administration will be able to pick up the $8,933,084 needed to balance the budget. With this procedure, exhibitor leaders have in the past had no objection.

The governor warned the legislature that he would personally oppose any attempts to add to his budget and stated that in view of national defense and the necessity for increased taxation by the federal government, legislators should be careful of making appropriations.

It is believed a fight is certain to develop in the legislature against highway diversion, and opponents of diversion probably will introduce tax bills to make up the deficit.

Governor Heil told the legislature that in his budget he has made allowance for a session of only 120 days and for each day the legislature stayed in session beyond that time, it would have to come to the emergency board for funds.

Meet in Tribute to Barney Balaban

CHICAGO—Paramount executives meet at the Drake Hotel, Thursday to pay tribute to Barney Balaban on his fifth anniversary as president of the company.

At the same time, winning theatre managers of the Barney Balaban drive, held between Thanksgiving and Christmas (in some cases the drive concluded New Year's Day) will attend the dinner to participate in the testimonial and receive awards. The contest was held for theatre managers of houses either owned by Paramount or affiliated with the company. All told, nearly 400 persons, including all Chicago B&K theatre managers, will attend the party.

The agenda for the party includes a dinner, speeches by several Paramount executives and heads of circuits affiliated with the parent company, the awarding of prizes to the theatre managers, and an entertainment program.

List of Speakers

A. H. Blank, head of the Tri-States circuit, Des Moines, who is national chairman of the Barney Balaban drive and chairman of the committee on arrangements, is expected to be one of the principal speakers. Others expected to address the group include Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board of Paramount; John Balaban, president of Balaban & Katz, Chicago; N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., Toronto, who will discuss the international situation; E. V. Richards of Paramount-Richards Theatres, Inc., New Orleans; Neil Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution for Paramount and Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of production for Paramount. Scheduled for the toastmaster's role, in addition to a speaking part, is A. M. Bottsford, associate producer for Paramount.

In From New York

In addition to those mentioned above, others from the homeoffice expected to attend include: Stanton Griffis, chairman of the Paramount executive committee; Austin C. Keough, vice-president and Paramount counsel, and Edwin L. Weisl, vice-president.

Largest delegation to the Barney Balaban testimonial will, of course, come from Chicago and the midwest. Dave Balaban of B&K, Chicago, will round out the Barney, John & Dave Balaban trio at the meeting. Others expected to attend are: J. J. Rubens, together with all executives of the Publix-Great States circuit, plus all city managers; Dave Wallerstein, B&K district manager, together with all his city managers.

Included among the others expected to be present at the affair are: John Nolan, Publix-Comerford Theatres, Inc., Scranton, Pa.; Harry David, president of Intermountain Theatres; R. J. O'Donnell, Interstate circuit; Julius M. Gordon, Jefferson Amusement Theatres, Texas; Karl Hoblitzelle, owner of the Interstate circuit of Texas; Bob O'Donnell, general manager of Interstate circuit; Tracy Barham, North Iowa Theatres; Martin Mullin and Sam Pinanski, M&P Theatres, Boston; M. A. Lightman, Malco Theatres, Tennessee; John J. Friedl, president Minnesota Amusement Co.; George C. Hoover, Paramount Enterprises, Inc., Miami; C. R. Banford, Publix-Banford Theatres, Asheville, North Carolina; Harry L. Nace, Publix-Rickards-Nace, Phoenix, Arizona, and Ralph G. Branton, general manager, Tri-States Theatres.

Influenza Epidemic Sweeps Columbia

Columbia, Mo.—The influenza epidemic that is sweeping the country has hit this university and college town. As a result, attendance at local theatres has been somewhat curtailed. At the University of Missouri officials have converted a section of the students' activities building into a temporary hospital because influenza sufferers have crowded the regular university hospital beyond capacity.

CHICAGO

PARAMOUNT will hold a one-day meeting at the Edgewater Beach Hotel Thursday. Neil Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, is scheduled to preside. The distributors will participate in the Barney Balaban testimonial affair following their meeting . . . Essaness Woods had the Chicago premiere of "Let George Do It" over the weekend. Henri Elman distributing picture . . . Latest report has "Fantasia" opening at the Shubert's "Grand Opera House," February 10 . . . Ethel Goldberg will marry Seymour L. Gale, Chicago boy, on Thursday. Miss G., who has been working with her father, head of Joe Goldberg, Inc., the past three years, is well known among local exhibitors.

Everybody sorry to see Duke Hickey, one of the most popular men on Filmrow, leave for New York. Duke has been transferred to the New York office of National Screen. Successor here is Phil Rouda, theatrical manager for Filmack Trailer Co. here for the past two and one-half years. Phil's handling special trailers at National Screen . . . Though Jack Hess did do special exploitation for Oriental during the holiday season, we erred when we said he succeeded Fritz Blocki as the theatre's publicity director. Harry Miller, of the Louis G. Cowan firm, has the job. Harry's first job is working on Rosemary Lane publicity, Ironically, Rosemary and her sister are currently competing with one another. While Rosemary's at the Oriental, sister Lola is at the State-Lake.

Allan Waldman has been upped to assistant managership at the Chicago . . . "This Thing Called Love," previewed at the B&K flagship January 9, had the audience rolling in the aisles . . . Johnny Jones in Florida . . . Dorothy Deere says Stirling Hayden, new Paramount find, is a star-in-the-making . . . Nate Platt, stage production manager for B&K and in charge of entertainment for the big Barney Balaban party this Thursday, is lining up an "all-star" show.

Against Changing Censorship Setup

CHICAGO — Exhibitors and producers joined forces here when they protested against any changes in the present censorship setup in Chicago at the fourth and final public hearing held at the city council chambers.

C. C. Pettijohn, general counsel for the Motion Picture Distributors of America, told the council he was against censorship in any form, but that if Chicago must have censorship it would be best to leave the system as it exists now. Jack Kirsch, president of the Allied Theatre Owners of Illinois, and Morris G. Leonard of Balaban & Katz agreed whole-heartedly with Pettijohn's views.

The proposed change in the censorship setup would involve setting up a new board to be appointed at periodic intervals by the mayor. The present board is composed of civil service employes who have held their posts from 12 to 20 years.

Another change in the proposed amendment would call for the automatic approval of all films that would be shown to adults. The proposed board would function only as a "clearing house" in deciding which films would be suited for all theatre patrons and which films should not be shown to youngsters under 21.

The proposed changes will be taken up at the executive session of the committee on judiciary and state legislation of which Alderman H. L. Brody is chairman. A decision by the committee is expected within the next few weeks.

Included among film men present at the hearing, in addition to those already mentioned, were: C. W. Eckhardt, branch manager, 20th Century-Fox; Phil R. Dunas, branch manager, Columbia Pictures, and Abe Teitel, foreign film distributor.

MILWAUKEE

TO COUNTERACT Fox's policy of weekend stage shows at various of its neighborhood units here, the Hollywood and Colonial, independent houses, last Sunday presented the "Revels of 1941" with Al Buettner's orchestra on their stages.

For the second time in the last six months, Fox's Wisconsin is currently offering a stage attraction, "Streets of Paris."

Wyman Calkins, producer of the Dr. Silkini shows which have played a number of local and state houses, was married recently to Miss Irene Brannum.

Add to unusual giveaways—a pair of skiis presented at a Saturday kid matinee by the Badger in Merrill.

The Wisconsin in La Crosse conducted a radio jamboree for the benefit of the Greek relief fund. All talent and facilities were donated for the affair.

The Barron city council has passed an ordinance providing for an annual $35 license for theatres.

"Downtown Night" Continues in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—Theatres here view with lukewarm interest the return to the Thursday night "open store" policy that proved fairly successful before the holidays.

The policy, launched as part of a general business movement to revivify the downtown area, is generally regarded a slight boon to downtown houses and as a moderate competitive threat to neighborhood grosses.

Most of the mercantile establishments that usually close earlier remain open on that night until 9:00 o'clock.

Construction Started On New 700-Seater

DES MOINES—Construction work on a new $25,000 theatre was started here Monday. The new house is being built by the East Des Moines Theatre Corp., a partnership composed of the Tri-States Theatre Corp. and Roy and Lewis L. Lepovitz.

The Lepovitzes have operated the Iowa here for 10 years. Last April they entered into the partnership agreement with Tri-States, at which time they first announced plans for the new house now being built.

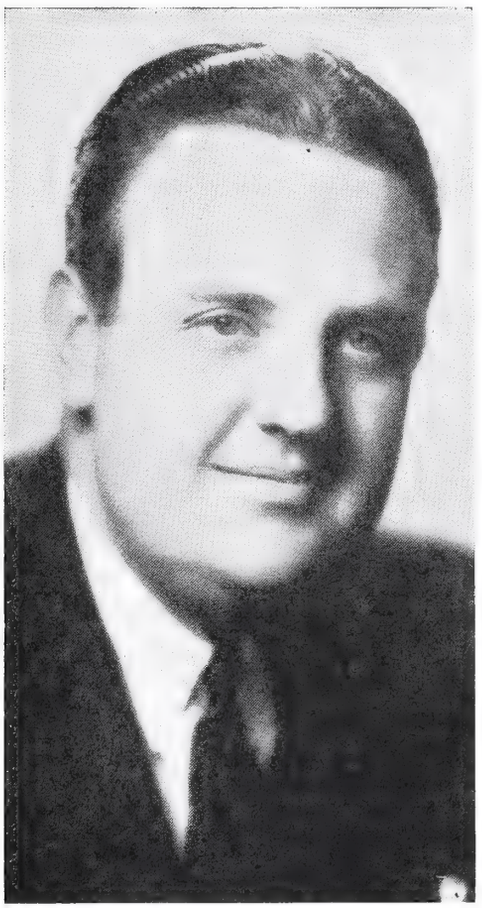
The new theatre will be 107 by 52 feet and will seat 700 persons. A. H. Blank, president of Tri-States, said the house will be air conditioned with acoustical walls, and in the same class as the Uptown, Ingersoll and Hiland—all newer suburban houses. It is expected to be opened in May. A name has not yet been chosen.

A Big Press-Preview for "Philadelphia Story"

OMAHA—Tri-States' Omaha Theatre has been selected as the site of a press-preview of "Philadelphia Story" the night of January 21. All seats will be reserved with a limited number available to the public. Admission will be 75 cents.

Three hundred newspaper publishers and members of the press from Nebraska and western Iowa are being invited, as well as state and city officials. The affair is an innovation in the middle west, says District Manager Evert R. Cummings.

Charles Coryell Takes Kozy at Bassett, Neb.



OMAHA—Charles Coryell has taken over the Kozy at Bassett, Neb., from Mrs. Zula Carlson. The house will be operated mostly by Coryell's daughter.

Coryell formerly owned the telephone exchange at Bassett. He still owns and operates the exchange at Johnstown, Neb.

Behan Joins RKO

MINNEAPOLIS — Joe Behan, long head booker at Warner Bros. here, has resigned to become head booker for RKO in Des Moines. Appointment was announced by L. E. Goldhammer, RKO district manager.

Will Draw Battle Lines Against the Decree

KANSAS CITY—Burtus Bishop jr., new district manager for Metro, took over here January 13. Formerly branch manager for three years at Pittsburgh, Pa., Bishop succeeds H. P. Wolfberg, who goes to St. Louis as district manager.

Bishop joined Metro in 1925 at Charlotte, N. C., as a salesman; he later became branch manager there, and remained in that post until he went to Pittsburgh as branch manager.

Bishop, who is young enough for draft registration, is married and has a four-year-old son. He'll have charge of Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Memphis from his headquarters here.

Bishop Pittsburgh Dinner Proceeds to Charity Fund

PITTSBURGH—Before he left for Kansas City headquarters of his new Metro district, Burtus Bishop jr. was the honor guest at a testimonial banquet attended by more than 200 trade members. Proceeds of the party, approximately $500, were turned over to the charity fund of the Pittsburgh Variety Club at Bishop's request.

Cummings in "Miami"

HOLLYWOOD—Universal has loaned out Robert Cummings to 20th-Fox for a leading role in "Miami," Betty Grable starrer to be made in Technicolor.

MINNEAPOLIS—Battle lines against the consent decree will be drawn here next Tuesday and Wednesday when Northwest Allied will hold what its leaders have proclaimed "the most important convention ever held in the motion picture industry."

Initial steps will be taken to nullify the five-block purchase plan and to provide for 20 per cent cancellation along with the elimination of forced buying of shorts and pictures deemed offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds.

Provisions designed to accomplish these purposes have been incorporated into a fair trade practices law. The groundwork will be laid at the convention to obtain passage of such a measure by the various state legislatures in this territory.

The independents also will map out campaigns to obtain enactment of state laws to curb 16mm film competition, additional theatre construction and the Ascap theatre fees and to defeat proposed measures to levy a state admission tax and to outlaw theatre gift nights.

Other matters scheduled for discussion include the reduced student admission price on which the government is insisting a tax be paid, the expected government action to tax lower admissions and arbitration under the decree.

Abe Kaplan, prominent Twin City independent exhibitor, is chairman of the convention committee. Advance indications point to an exceptionally large attendance.

United in Effort to Win Back Patrons

MINNEAPOLIS—In line with a drive to bring the public "back" to the theatre, independent neighborhood exhibitors here have launched an institutional newspaper advertising campaign of their own. All contribute jointly to defray the cost of a double column two-inch box over the individual theatres' ads.

Part of the copy in the box is changed frequently, but the main head, "Visit Your Friendly Neighborhood Theatre," always is retained.

One of the ads read: "Always a big entertainment value! Your share of happiness awaits you here. Perfect relaxation with every modern convenience. An entire evening's pleasure at very low prices. Free lighted parking. Save time and money — attend your neighborhood theatre!"

Another of the ads reads: "A well balanced program for your enjoyment, every day. The big Hollywood features plus outstanding short subjects on every program. No cheap B to Z double feature shows."

Richey a Speaker

DES MOINES—H. M. Richey of Metro was here Wednesday to address the better films committee of the Parent-Teachers Ass'n, the Federated Women's Clubs and the Junior Federation at the 20th Century-Fox screening room.

"Kitty" Smash in Kaycee; Almost Triples Average

KANSAS CITY—The surprise package of the New Year came early.

"Kitty Foyle" proved a winner from the opening hour at the Orpheum, and in its first week a good deal more than doubled grosses. It was far and away the best among a lot of good bills in Kansas City, and looked like a three-timer at least as it went into its second week. It was expected to set a new Orpheum record.

"Chad Hanna," playing the two Fox first runs—Esquire and Uptown—made a good showing. Weather was bad.

Detail for week ended January 9:

(Average is 100)

Esquire—Chad Hanna (20th-Fox).....130
Played 10 days to get to Friday opening.
Midland—Comrade X (M-G-M); Ellery Queen, Master Detective (Col) 125
Played 10 days.
Newman—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't), hold-over 140
Good for a five-day third week.
Orpheum—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Saint in Palm Springs (RKO) 290
Going about as strong in its second as in its first week.
Tower—Cherokee Strip (Para't), plus stage show 100
Uptown—Chad Hanna (20th-Fox) 130
Played 10 days.

"Alley" and Lou Holtz Draw in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—Two houses, the Minnesota and State, cornered most of the business this week. Lou Holtz, Wendy Barrie, Lola Lane and Arlene Judge on the stage, brought them into the former, while "Tin Pan Alley" proved an ace attraction for the State and will continue a second week. "Comrade X" and "Thief of Bagdad" are holdovers.

(Average is 100)

Aster—Blondie Plays Cupid (Col); Ellery Queen, Master Detective (Col) 100
Century—Comrade X (M-G-M), 2nd wk. 90

State—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox) 140
World—Thief of Bagdad (UA), 3rd wk..... 90

"Kitty" and "Neighbor" Are Magnets in Omaha

OMAHA—Brandeis and Omaha theatres started 1941 with a bang, both getting boxoffice winners for the New Year's first week. The pace was too strong for the Orpheum.

"Kitty Foyle" and "Saint in Palm Springs" were held a second stanza at the Brandeis after hold-out business. "Love Thy Neighbor" and "Youth Will Be Served" were very good at the Omaha, a larger house. "Chad Hanna" and "Charter Pilot," at the Orpheum, suffered badly from the competition.

Business is being helped by clear, mild weather, exceptional in these parts in January.

Detail for the week ending January 11:

Again Variety Chief—

Jerry Zigmond, manager of the Newman, who last week was elected chief barker of the Kansas City Variety Club by directors of the organization, following the resignation of Jay Means, Oak Park and Bagdad, who withdrew due to the press of personal business. Means was chief barker last year, and recently was re-elected to the post. Robert F. Withers, branch manager for Republic-Midwest, was elected second assistant chief barker to succeed Ward Scott, district manager of 20th-Fox, who moves up to the post of first assistant, vacated by Zigmond.

Names New Committees For Kaycee Variety

KANSAS CITY — Committees have been named by Jerry Zigmond, who assumed the presidency of the Variety Club upon the withdrawal of Jay Means because of the pressure of personal business.

Rube Melcher is chairman of the house committee, comprised additionally of Ward Scott, R. R. Biechele, O. K. Mason, Reube Finkelstein, Beverly Miller and J. H. States. Chairmen of the other committees are as follows:

Ways and means, H. J. Griffith; membership, O. K. Mason; entertainment, Leland Allen; "Kings for a Day," R. F. Withers; publicity, Bill Lansburg; bowling and bowling tournament, Frank Hensler; welfare, Arthur Cole; "Days of '49," Charles Gregory; charity ball, Earl Jameson; special charities, Jay Means; special events, Finton Jones; golf, T. R. Thompson.

Bowers Adds One

BEATRICE, NEB.—Harold G. Bowers, who just formed a new corporation, the Rialto Building Co. here, bought the Rialto Theatre from Dean Randall of Eugene, Ore.

Gateway Situation Creates Problem

MINNEAPOLIS—Neighborhood exhibitors here are worried over the situation in the Gateway, or lower loop, where a bitter war is in the process of making, and the matter has been a topic of discussion at several meetings.

It's all the result of the licensing of the Gayety, former home of burlesque, for operation by Irving Gillman as a dime subsequent-run double-feature house.

Claiming the district is overseated, other exhibitors in the district had fought the license. Now Harry Dryer is readying still another house, the 600-seat Lyra, next to his Bijou, for reopening. He bought the house more than three years ago, closed it immediately and has kept it dark to relieve the overseating condition.

Moreover, Dryer and the others propose to use cash giveaways and other "rackets" along with the double features for a dime. Another proposal is to "blast" away with large newspaper ads, calling the public's attention to the dime shows and asking "Why pay more?"

Hitherto, there has been an unwritten agreement among the Gateway exhibitors not to advertise the double features and dime admission scale in the newspapers. However, Gillman has been advertising his dual bills and 10-cent admission.

McIntyre and Jackson Again Head Local 343

OMAHA—All officers of Local 343, IATSE, were re-elected for 1941 at the annual election. R. L. McIntyre, Orpheum, starts his second term as president and Howard Jackson, Omaha, business agent, is retained in that post.

Other officers are: Alvin "Boots" Kostlan, Brandeis, first vice-president; Shep Owens, Benson, second vice-president; Glenn Jordan, Muller, financial secretary; Baird Loomis, Brandeis, treasurer. Clyde Cooley, operator at the Fox screen room, was retained as recording and corresponding secretary.

Trustees are Bob Murray, Orpheum; Vic Morterson, Muse; William Werner, Omaha. Delegates to the Omaha Central Labor Union are Kostlan and Jackson; to the Council Bluffs labor group, Jackson and J. Gordon Beck, State.

Reissue Combination Runs for 15 Days

Kansas City—That "Scarface"-"Sky Devils" combination, reissues released by Astor Pictures, at the Apollo, looks like a good one. The pair ran 15 days at the Fox suburban house here and did a nice job. It has done well in the St. Louis area also. It is reminiscent of another reissue combination that was quite successful for a time last year—"Awful Truth" and "Lost Horizon."

KAYCEE

BEVERLY MILLER has just returned from a three-week business-pleasure trip that included St. Louis, Memphis, New Orleans, Beaumont, Houston, and Dallas. He saw the old year out in New Orleans and took in the Sugar Bowl game. He also sold his encyclopedia deal to the United circuit there. In Dallas, he renewed friendships with a number of ex-Kansas Citians, namely, Doug Desch, John Wangsberg, John Franconi and "Dutch" Olsmith. In the same town, Miller also ran into J. Erwin Dodson, who expects to connect soon with a coin-operated music machine company through Earl Reynolds, who is also an ex-Kansas City film man.

R. T. "Bob" Mann, who used to be at the Mainstreet, at the Ashland and then at the Roanoke here, now is managing the Missouri at Carrollton, Mo. . . . The Ritz, Topeka, Kas., is being remodeled by the owner, B. Kross, at a cost of $1,000. The job will include a new front and a refurbished interior.

Fire recently damaged the old Sedalia, Sedalia, Mo. . . . Jimmy Muir, assistant manager at the Waldo, has gone to the Brookside here in the same position. Charles Weinstein goes from the Rockhill to the Granada. Muir replaces Wayne Sisson.

That intra-mural feud at Universal has gotten so bad they're calling each other Citizen Kane and Comrade Daynosky now . . . Eddie Green says he's looking for a hospital, a painless one in which to cut off his left leg. He doesn't need it any more. The Metro salesman just bought a new hydromatic Olds. Yipeee! . . . Harold LaMarr is now managing the Giles, Kansas City, replacing Jerry Rush.

On the Row: C. C. Rhodes, Warsaw and Buffalo, Mo.; Louis Griefe, Windsor, Windsor, Mo.; Sam Meyers, Roxy, Rockville, Mo.; Frank Weary, Farris and Vogue, Richmond, Mo. . . . G. C. Diamond Enterprises held its board of directors and managers meeting here January 13. Attending were Gus Diamond, Ben Adams of the Roxy, Eldorado, Kas.; T. W. Dickson, Roxy, Crystal City, Mo.; Elmer Dillon, Howard, Arkansas City, Kas.; Paul Dixon, Vogue, Salina, Kas.

When F. L. "Doc" Lowe opens the Star at Lebanon, Mo., Ted Irwin, manager of the Star at Lyons, Kas., will take over part of "Doc's" duties with the houses at Hays and Hoisington, Kas. . . . Max Van Buren, formerly manager of the Fox Brookside, Kansas City, has returned to Newton, Kas., as manager of the Fox Regent. W. R. Rowell has taken a leave of absence.

The Kansas-Missouri Theatres Ass'n, R. R. Biechele, Baker Enterprises and George Blackwell, posters, faced the tough job of moving out of 221 West 18th Street this week on short notice. A brake concern has leased the offices for immediate occupancy.

The Dreamland, Commonwealth house at Herington, Kas., has upped its admission on Tuesday bargain nights to 15 cents, according to Glen Deeter, manager . . . The Fox Brookside, Kansas City, has gone to 30 cents from 25. The higher price includes all taxes.

One of the finest vacations about which we've heard is that just completed by Ruth Turgeon, secretary to the branch manager at Paramount. This was the itinerary: To Brownsville, Tex., by train; to Mexico City by plane, with a stopoff at Tampico; to the capital of Yucatan, Merida, by way of Vera Cruz; a visit to the ruins at Chichen Itza; back home over the same route.

Ed Bellew, UA exploiteer out of Detroit, was here last week . . . Carl Shalit, district manager for Columbia, also out of Detroit, was in for a meeting with salesmen at the Ben Marcus exchange.

Betty Caruso is the new biller at Republic-Midwest, replacing Frances Bradford.

Bill Bradfield, Columbia salesman, is beginning to save fishskins. He caught a 7½*-pound big mouth bass on Lake Harris, Fla., recently, and as proof, is having it mounted for his office wall. You can see it after February* 15. John Graham, UA salesman, was in the boat at the time, so maybe it's true.

The Cinema Club, that organization of Filmrow young blood, held a sneak preview party January 15. After the preview at Paramount the members adjourned to Variety Club with their dates. Charley Siebenthaler of Missouri Film Lab is chairman of the social committee which was in

Lease Offices for Arbitration Board

Kansas City—Indications are that an arbitration board for the industry will be set up here by February 1. While membership of the panel of 30 or 40 non-industry arbitrators has not been named and the secretary of the board still has to be appointed, the American Arbitration Ass'n this week leased a suite of offices in the Waltower Building, Ninth and Walnut Streets, for occupancy February 1.

Reaction to the non-industry character of the arbitration setup is fairly favorable. Observers here feel that while laymen may require longer to grasp factors fundamental in the industry, at the same time divorcement of personnel and location from the industry itself, should make for impartiality.

MINNEAPOLIS

THE glamor salesman, Mannie Goodman, in Minneapolis hot from a Miami vacation and draping Northwest theatres again with flags and banners . . . Dorothy (Sarong) Crane, the attractive Welworth gal, back on the job after a siege at the hospital, battling the flu . . . We're eager to see that new car which Billy Evidon, Columbia office manager, has had "on order" all winter . . . Ray Barber, the "ol" paymaster of the Pantages' "Lucky Star" game, insists that his swollen jawbone is not the result of fisticuffs, but purely a three-point landing on a skating rink.

Joe Floyd, the P. T. Barnum of Sioux Falls, S. D., and manager of the Hollywood Theatre there, "Chicagoing" for a few days . . . The Pantages ushering staff, locally regarded as the best-looking crew along Hennepin Avenue, lost one of its top Casanovas when Rudy Iverson transferred his allegiance to the Minnesota Theatre. That leaves John "Texas" Foley, the lad from Abilene, as top man, his pretty drawl putting him one up on Bob "Nelson Eddy" Holcomb.

That was a nifty front Reno Wilk created for his double horror show at the Esquire. Newton Green, the sign artist, collaborated on it . . . Ted Bolnick, the La-Crosse, Wis., showman, in town the other day, accompanied by Johnny Sullivan, the WKBH radio man . . . Stanley Neal, National Screen homeoffice representative, here long enough to reveal the newest "baby" of that enterprising firm—a department which will release national film ads . . . Abe Gill reports exhibitors are taking to his line of low-cost window cards like hot cakes.

Warner exchange visited by Lola Lane, making personal appearance at Minnesota Theatre. A trio of other Hollywood luminaries in the same show, Lou Holtz, Wendy Barrie and Arlene Judge, had screen fans excited. Holtz put in several appearances at the Twin City Variety Club. All four received telegrams from Ben Blotcky, chief barker, inviting them to use the clubrooms during their Minneapolis stay . . . The mystery surrounding the presence of so many dogs around the Warner building has been solved. Herb Blass, office manager, keeps his cocker spaniel in the basement. The spaniel was a recent gift.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included: George Westerman, Milaca, Minn.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; R. Pettingill, Superior, Wis.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis.; Carl Sather, Annandale, Minn., and Ed Malone, Alma, Wis. . . . Florence Grafft resigning from Warner Bros. to devote herself to domestic duties . . . M-G-M doing fine job getting distribution on "Land of Liberty," the war emergency relief film.

Back from a visit with Tommy Charack, former Warner salesman here and now Los Angeles city salesman, Harold Lyons, 20th-Fox salesman, reports that, even in the film capital with its numerous handsome men, Tommy has the fair sex fighting for his attentions. Lyons ran into Bill Shartin in Hollywood. The former local Warner salesman, now branch manager in Seattle, was visiting California with the frau . . . Lou Adler, United Artists homeoffice representative, a visitor.

Even though he missed the Rose Bowl game because he wouldn't fall for speculators' prices, Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn. exhibitor, in town this week, said he had the time of his life during his California vacation . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, back from his California trip, says he visited his company's studio and looked at some of the forthcoming releases. You don't have to be told his opinion of them—terrific . . . Bill Evidon, Columbia office manager, went to Des Moines to help his brother, Mel, Columbia branch manager there, celebrate the latter's wedding anniversary.

What with Moe Levy, district manager, and Jack and Lou Cohan, salesmen, back from their vacations in the southland, 20th-Fox looks normal again . . . Ben Blotcky, Paramount branch manager and Twin City Variety Club chief barker, is another vacationist who has returned to his desk. He visited Florida . . . Nat Roehlin, M-G-M homeoffice auditor, in town . . . Le Roy J. Miller, Universal branch manager, visited northern Minnesota accounts . . . Bill Lansberg, Paramount district publicity and exploitation man, here, working on "Second Chorus" which goes into the Orpheum.

Universal here seventh nationally and moving upward in the Bill Scully sales drive . . . John J. Friedl and C. B. Stiff, Minnesota Amusement Co. executives, in Chicago on business trip . . . Harry Greenstein, Universal assistant booker, wedded to Rosabel Frestman . . . Joe Paster, Chicago independent exhibitor, in town . . . Morgan Ames, general manager for Mort H. Singer, dropped in on the Orpheum.

He Has an Extra Word for Hope

Minneapolis—While playing a personal appearance engagement at the Minnesota here, Lou Holtz rated Bob Hope, Fred Allen and Jack Benny as the nation's three best comics on screen and radio. He asserted that, of all the comedians, Hope is the only good looking one and the only one that can make love in the films without seeming ludicrous.

Closer Checking Is in Prospect

MINNEAPOLIS—More checking on percentage pictures and more efficient checking generally are in prospect for this territory in consequence of some recent happenings.

One of the major exchanges was considerably irked when an out-of-town exhibitor, playing one of its releases on percentage and unchecked, reported $400 gross on Sunday, $260 on Monday and only $8 on Tuesday, the last day of the run.

In another instance, an exhibitor, in still another fair-sized out-of-town situation, also playing a percentage picture and unchecked, reported a gross of but $25 for all of New Year's day and evening.

All exchanges, too, are eliminating checking by their own employes who, in a number of instances, have been assigned to the task as an additional duty. In too many cases, it is reported, such checking has been unsatisfactory.

Quints' Suit Set

LIBERTY, Mo.—March 10 has been set for trial of a $3,673 suit by E. E. Beach, Maple Park, Mo., against the Dionne quintuplets, their guardians and business manager and several business firms. Beach alleges he secured advertising contracts using the quintuplets for them with the firms, and that the $3,673 is owed him as commission.

Paul S. Bliss

MINNEAPOLIS—Paul Southworth Bliss, a one-time dramatic and film editor of the old Minneapolis Journal, passed away at the age of 52 in Kansas City. He left newspapering for social service work and his most recent job was regional social security director in Kansas City. His mother here survives.

Featured Role for Lukas

HOLLYWOOD—Paul Lukas has been signed for a featured role in Columbia's "They Dare Not Love," Martha Scott-George Brent starrer.

Waiting on F. D. R.

Minneapolis—Northwest Allied is awaiting a reply from President Roosevelt to the letter sent to him by Fred Strom, its executive secretary, asking the nation's chief executive to schedule his future fireside "chats" on Mondays, instead of Sundays, in order to lessen boxoffice damage and cause less loss to the government in admission tax revenue.

"Sunday is usually a day which brings the motion picture industry, and particularly the exhibitor, the greatest amount of revenue," Strom said in his letter. "The theatre owner, in fact, usually regards his Sunday as three-sevenths of a week.

"Last Sunday (January 4) Northwest theatres were practically empty in the evening, and lest this request be interpreted as purely a selfish one for business reasons, may I also point out that the government lost millions of dollars in taxes which ordinarily would have been collected on Sunday evening admissions."

Choose Comic, Mystery And Adventure Shows

Omaha—Comic, adventure and mystery shows rate highest with Omaha high school girls, according to a survey just completed by a University of Omaha graduate student. Romantic pictures were rated below the other three classifications.

A total of 2,587 girls were polled in three major high schools.

Sees Gross Booster In Radio Tune Row

LINCOLN—Radio's Ascap-BMI scrap has given Bob Livingston, owner of the Capitol, an idea which he hopes to translate into a profit. His first move has been to back up the playing of "Tin Pan Alley" until a little later, before bringing it to town for its subsequent run.

When it does come in, the newspaper ads will run something like this:

"You must be tired of listening for a good tune on your radio, so come down to the Capitol, see 'Tin Pan Alley,' and listen to music that is music."

This isn't the first time Livingston attempted a wrestle with radio. A little more than a year ago, he was betting even money with the "Pot O' Gold" show, guaranteeing to pay just as much as the pot if the listener, who won, was in his theatre, and not at home to answer the phone call. It helped business at first, but wound up without having much effect over the long haul.

Livingston said this week he intended to go into a huddle with Gene Blazer, the Nebraska Ascap representative, and various film men, on a proposal to gain cooperative financial aid from Ascap, the combined bankroll of film and music money to go for an extensive drive to take people into the theatres, away from the radio.

"Radio," Livingston contends, "has been busy for years taking from the exhibitor. First, unable to develop enough personalities for its own consumption, it went after picture names for its programs. Second, it went after film scripts, took the meat out of them and threw it to the dialers free. Third, most of the national publicity fostered by networks in the guise of film commentary was detrimental to the film industry. And now, having done about everything possible to the film exhibitor and the industry, it's trying to promote some other phase of the entertainment business for nothing. Showmen have been paying Ascap for many years, have gotten money by marketing music, and, all things considered, should be given a leg up in a drive for theatre attendance by Ascap now."

Basketball on Celluloid

IOWA CITY, IA.—Lee Cochran of the visual education department at the University of Iowa will make the first attempt to record Iowa basketball on motion picture film at the Northwestern-Iowa game here January 20.

OMAHA

FLOYD WOLFE, Lynch, Neb., celebrates his 40th wedding anniversary this week . . . Sol Francis is back from the Monogram meeting in St. Louis. Several of the company's officers and franchise holders were there, Sol said, including Benny Benjamin of Kansas City, well-known to exhibitors in the Omaha area . . . It's a birthday for Rosalie Boughn, Sun, Walthill, Neb.

Herman Fields, Clarinda, Ia., went to the Rose Bowl game. While in California he sent a box of dates to exchanges on Omaha Filmrow. Herman explained that exchanges "are always asking for dates. So I send them plenty of dates!" . . . Murrel Simpson, Palace, Clearwater, Neb., and Estel Tompkins, Winfield, Ia., have birthdays this week . . . Frank Good, Iowana, Red Oak, Ia., a Monday visitor as usual.

A. Burrus, Crete, Neb., and Sam Stern of Capitol Pictures are among those who will leave soon for a vacation in Florida . . . Max Rosenblatt of National Screen reports the new exhibitor at Pender, Neb., hopes for more fair weather so that he can get a lot of work accomplished on his new theatre . . . Lew Kozal, Tri-States, celebrated his ninth wedding anniversary.

It's birthday time at Warner's. Now celebrating are Alice Neal, Frank Hannon and Leon Mendelson . . . C. A. Craig, Pierce, Neb., and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Blackburn, Fremont, Neb., among visitors this week . . . Louis Patz, National Screen manager at Des Moines, was here to see Iz Sokolof . . . Sid McArdle, United Artists booker, has a wedding anniversary just past and Leo Doty, UA office manager, a birthday.

Joe Rosenberg, former film peddler on Davenport Street, is back in Omaha to set up his headquarters covering five states for a cosmetic firm. He has been in California with the same organization . . . Mr. and Mrs. Jack Logan, Osceola, Neb., and Herman Thomas, Kingsley, Ia., were on Davenport Street . . . Carl Weeks, Paramount peddler, is celebrating his sixth wedding anniversary.

Mons Thompson, St. Paul, Neb., is back from the big football game on the west coast, a sadder but wiser man. Ike Rubin has played the game over not less than 100 times since he returned . . . J. Morgan Reynolds, exhibitor at Elwood and Bertrand, Neb., was in town on business . . . Paul Connet, RCA service man, broke his rib while playing ping-pong. He slipped on the floor and fell against the table.

Will Singer, Brandeis manager, plans to go to Chicago any day now to see his mother . . . Lola Andersen of Warner's celebrates her 20th wedding anniversary this week, while Ruth Cogley of the same layout is celebrating her 15th w. a. . . . Haskell Masters, new western division manager for United Artists, was here and in Lincoln in connection with the "Miss Bishop" premiere . . . It's a birthday for Ruth Meyers of United Artists . . . By the time this column hits your desk all officers of Omaha Variety Club for 1941 will have been inaugurated.

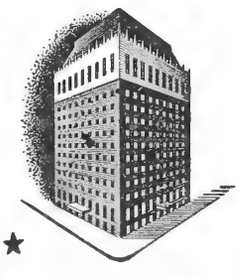
Fran Williams, secretary to Joe Scott, Fox branch manager, has resigned and will go to California to live. She leaves January 24. Dorothy Nelson, who has been the hello girl and bookers' steno, will take Fran's job. A newcomer to Filmrow, Golda Handley of Kansas, has been employed to take Dorothy's desk. Fran plans to "be a housewife," she says . . . The Fox exchange is the only one on Davenport Street that has a private office for the manager's secretary.

Gabe Yorke a Traveling Emissary for "Liberty"

LINCOLN—Gabe Yorke, who came here a month ago to handle the premiere drive for Richard A. Rowland's "Cheers for Miss Bishop," has been signed up by the Hays office to become a traveling emissary with the Metro-booked film, "Land of Liberty."

He went from the premiere here Tuesday to Chicago.

Three-Year Columbia Deal With Circuit



MINNEAPOLIS—Columbia here has closed a three-year franchise deal with the Minnesota Amusement Co. It is a hundred per center and covers the entire circuit.

LINCOLN

ALL This, and a Premiere, too: Lincoln was host to Richard A. Rowland, his wife; William Gargan, his wife; Tay Garnett, his wife; Bess Streeter Aldrich, Sabu, Wayne Morris, Marsha Hunt, William Farnum, Neil Hamilton, Irvin S. Cobb, Martha O'Driscoll, Mary Anderson, Broderick Crawford, Albert Dekker, Sterling Holloway and Barbara Pepper, for the premiere of "Cheers for Miss Bishop" . . . Bernie Evens and Gabe Yorke got a good night's sleep for the first time in almost a month of promotion . . . Garnett lectured at the University on how to make a picture . . . Then went on a three-station hookup in Nebraska with Mrs. Aldrich, and Capt. Barney Oldfield, in a leadoff airer the day before the affair.

Boom Town news: Oscar Johnson, the exhibitor in Falls City, where oil was recently struck, is opening his new theatre, which he calls the Oil City, with 40 sets of love-seats. Available, he says, to very passionate couples, or very fat singles . . . Tip to Harry Shumow, Charlie Lieb et (Metro) al: Write a letter to the studio and tell 'em to start pushing Ann Sothern and Ann Rutherford away from the calories, or it won't be long until they'll be also-rAnns at the boxoffice.

Sad story: Bob Livingston wondered why he didn't hear from his wife, Barbara, who went out to California for the express purpose of seeing the Rose Bowl game before settling for the winter in Tucson, Ariz. When he finally heard, a week later, it was news that she had been taken off the train in Los Angeles, whisked by ambulance direct to the hospital, and down with a severe attack of pneumonia. She never even got to hear the game by radio, but is much better now. Nobody was to tell him, she told hospital authorities, because she didn't want to worry him.

Telephone call: Sat by the 'phone the other night listening to Dick Barrie, orchestra leader, turn down his wife's (Anita Boyer, girl singer with Artie Shaw) plea for them to call off their divorce action, just filed, and try again. Barrie, in a 15-minute session, held out for a "no." Anita was never married to Shaw, as Lana Turner was, but she wanted to part company with him . . . Correction: Involved clauses in a recent item telling of Paul Anderson's being engaged to Lois Nobles, got Harvey Traylor mixed up in it. Harvey wants it understood he was not in the engagement, and Anderson wants it understood, too.

Good news: The local theatres, sponsoring the 10 best poll with the Sunday Journal and Star, after four years, finally got a winner of the free trip, all expenses paid, to Hollywood (the top prize), right in Lincoln. All the others had lived outstate. It was a woman. In fact, women made 6 to 1 more entries than men. Must have been that the guys were thinking more in terms of conscription than the cinema.

Wire from Bill Saal, Republic special rep: "Lois Ranson, one of the 13 baby stars this year, is coming in as a guest of Richard A. Rowland for the premiere. Would appreciate you seeing that she has a fine time on her first trip to the midwest." Stag line formed on the right . . . Journal's apt description of Mary Beth Hughes (Attention, Joe Scott): "She is one of those girls, so constructed, that although sitting across the table, can still be next to you."

Barrett Heads KMTA Legislative Group

Kansas City—Rex Barrett, manager of the Uptown and Boone in Columbia, is the new chairman of the Missouri legislative committee of the Kansas-Missouri Theatres Ass'n. Also named to the committee last week by President R. R. Biechele are Frank Cassil of St. Joseph and Tom Edwards of Eldon.

A. H. Blank Speaker At Balaban Fete

CHICAGO—A. H. Blank of Des Moines, head of the Tri-States circuit, is expected to be one of the speakers at the meeting of Paramount executives here Thursday to pay tribute to Barney Balaban, Paramount president. Blank is national chairman of the Barney Balaban drive and chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Others expected to address the group include Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board of Paramount; John Balaban, president of Balaban & Katz, Chicago; N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., Toronto, who will discuss the international situation; E. V. Richards of Paramount-Richards Theatres, Inc., New Orleans; Neil Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution for Paramount, and Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of production for Paramount. Scheduled for the toastmaster's role, in addition to a speaking part, is A. M. Bottsford, associate producer for Paramount.

Others from the home office expected to attend include Stanton Griffis, chairman of the Paramount executive committee; Austin C. Keough, vice-president and Paramount counsel, and Edwin L. Weisl, vice-president.

Bowling Tourney Nets $3,734

Kansas City—A total of $3,734 was netted for charity by the two-day annual Xmas bowling tournament held December 21-22 by Variety Club and the Kansas City "Star." Of this amount, $632 will go to Kansas City, Kas. public schools, with a dairy furnishing a like amount of milk to double the total, and the remainder goes to Kansas City, Mo. public schools. The Kansas City Bowling Proprietors' Ass'n cooperated in this year's venture, the most successful yet.

charge of the party, with Martin Stone of Screenland aiding.

Pop Stanford of the 20th-Fox screening room lost his sister, Mrs. Brooks, last week . . . Evelyn Wells of the same exchange lost her aunt, Miss Mabel Gindera.

On the Row: Raymond McKittrick, Perkins, Harrisonville, Mo.; Bob Shelton, Commonwealth Theatres, Warrensburg, Mo.; Warren Weber, Pic, St. John, Kas.; W. B. Cook, Ideal, Halstead, Kas.; Louis Sosna, Sosna at Moberly and Sosna at Mexico, Mo., driving a new Hudson car.

Premiums crack Kansas City first runs on January 20 when the Uptown and Esquire launch the Constance Bennett cosmetics plan. The Plaza, Fox Midwest first run in the suburban area, will start the giveaway in February, as will the Granada in Kansas City, Kas.

Ray Copeland, big, good-looking Iowan, arrived in Kansas City Tuesday to assume the managership of the Paramount branch here . . . In town were O. F. Sullivan, Civic, Wichita, Kas.; Nick Kotsis, Holden, Holden, Mo., and Oswego, Oswego, Kansas . . . Spencer Hays, Vogue manager at Lee's Summit, Mo., has gone into service. He is succeeded as manager by Parker Melluish. Melluish once was with the Newman here, and served a spell with Dickinson at Olathe, Kas.

Bud Wolfberg, who used to have the Strand and Giles here, is in the New York publicity department of Warner Bros. He is also doing a lot of writing on the side . . . Glen W. Dickinson has taken over the two colored houses in Topeka, Kas., the Best and Ritz, and is remodeling them. Glen has the Dickinson in Mission Hill Acres near Kansas City, in Olathe, Kansas, and at Macon, Mo.

The "Ice Capades," ice carnival that is knocking them cold (figuratively and literally) at the Pla-Mor this week, is presidented by John H. Harris, national chief barker of the Variety Club and well known to this area.

Donald Ogden Stewart Chore

HOLLYWOOD—Donald Ogden Stewart is scripting Metro's "A Woman's Face." Joan Crawford will star and George Cukor will direct.

Take Your Choice Of Answers

Kansas City—On the record: Kansas City still is regarded as a low-price town, very unresponsive to shows. Every now and then some observer takes a crack at explaining why this should be so in an immediate area of more than 600,000 people. Whatever the cause, no one seems to be able to remedy it. One phase is use of triples, doubles, dishes, etc., which may be both cause and effect, the majority opinion tending toward the belief it is more effect.

DES MOINES

GOD BLESS AMERICA! We're proud to be Americans! Probably the only place in the world where 1,700 people will sit unapplaudingly while the head of the most wonderful country in the world recites from the Bill of Rights those privileges which make it so, and then go wild with moronic enthusiasm when Cab Calloway croans (and I do mean "croans," Mr. Hague), "Hi-De-Ho!" (We're burned up because we had to cheer FDR singlehanded at the Paramount Monday) . . . Ah, but Eddie Dunn did a rushing business on Minnie the Moocher's b. f. . . . Yeah, all we who go past the ducat-taker thumb at nose rushed to hear Cab jive . . . G. Ralph Branton went in just ahead of Lou Lepovitz with the non-profitable Claytons sandwiched in between.

Smitty highhatted BOXOFFICE downtown Saturday afternoon, so we're threatening to cut off his publicity . . . Smitty is retaliating by refusing to dig us up our annual calendar . . . And speaking of calendars, you must see the lovelies Ed Mason has passed out to everybody but us . . . Just to give you an idea, Bert Thomas says sadly, "Sure she's a honey, but a fella wouldn't dare take it home."

Dallas Day, Lou Elman's veteran booker at RKO, took to the hospital about January 5 . . . Joe Behan, we believe, from Warner's in Minneapolis, is here doing Dallas' chores for him temporarily. Bill Evidon, Columbia office manager in Minneapolis, was here with his charmin' bride of eight months helping the Mel Evidons celebrate their 15th anniversary . . . Brother Mel says the visitors billed and cooed all over the place. BOXOFFICE & Co. celebrated their first anniversary January 13 (writing BOXOFFICE copy).

Francis Kappler is known to West Enders as "Little Brown Eyes," and we offer the following jig-saw pieces for you to puzzle together for yourselves: Dick Kappler, Bert Thomas, Jean Post, Sy Harlan, one stranger, one cop, one taxi, pie-eyed female, "Little Brown Eyes," driving east-west-north-south, "You Irish (censored)," loss: One taxi fare, and a listing of the above names (not in the Blue Book).

Joan Baxter is the new face replacing Dorothy Hahn at Columbia . . . Joe Jacobs came to DM, January 13, to confab with Tri and Central States on Columbia product. You'll find 600 Paramount Building occupied once again, and by Pioneer . . . Max Facter reopened the Pioneer offices in DM, January 13 . . . Max and his pretty new bride have been combing the town for an apartment . . . they say they can't make Grand Avenue and still keep their four-month-old cocker spaniel . . . so they're not going to make Grand Avenue, and they told the apartment owners what they could do with their old apartments, too.

We sat in the new chairs the Iowa Film boys gave Iles & McKinney for Christmas and found them very comfortable . . . we saw the back of the new Iowa Film Steno's head but got no further because that new red job of McKinney's sidetracked our attention. Georgia Bricker's husband, Mr. Bricker, is a member of the National Amateur Magician's Ass'n, so the Brickers had the Great Lester out to their house one evening while he was playing the Paramount so that they could watch him make the groceries disappear.

BOXOFFICE & Co. didn't have their bags unpacked from the Mexico trip, before a wire arrived from Universal trying to convince them they should desert the home fires again on January 31 for a week in Miami, Fla., to see "Back Street" premiered . . . it's no dice . . . this may be a dirty, smoky little midwestern town to some people, but it's home sweet home to us and we intend to spend a little of our time here. Bernie Evens and Gabe Yorke did some telephoning and wiring about the Lincoln premiere of UA's "Cheers for Miss Bishop," even going so far as to think we might charter Andy's Stinson for the trip . . . but BOXOFFICE & Co. decided working was still enough of a novelty to be fun and didn't fall for it. If Hollywood wants to give the press a shot in the arm, somebody's going to have to think up something besides a premiere with hard liquor and peroxide blondes to prod the pens of the glutted newsmen.

Tinkle, tinkle and a pair of old shoes ("It'll be bong-bong before long," quips & Co. with near-poetic cynicism): George Lofink, Chuck Elder's one-time booker pal at Lou Levy's Universal hangout, married Charlene Ruble Clark on December 14 and the news was just announced t'other day . . . Guess that clips Samson's curly locks for sure . . . Adam J. Marchack, one of the pitch-playing Morrie Smith's boys over at Film Transportation, was given a life sentence by Mary Nichols of Knoxville, Iowa, January 12 . . . and they say Adam took it like a little man.

Milt and Louella Goodman spent part of the holiday season with Louella's folks in Fairfield and the rest of the time in New Orleans . . . Milt met with a terrible catastrophe, though . . . he went to the famous Antoines for dinner and then lost his appetite . . . the 7-buck ante put Milt's stomach on the same skids it slipped under his purse. There was stomach trouble in the Bing Miller family, too . . . Bing drove to and from St. Louis with the maid while Mrs. Bing flew with the Bingo . . . Mrs. Bing was air sick three times going and coming but still insisted she enjoyed every minute of it.

*We stopped in at Republic the other day to find Bud Moran on the sick list . . . Maybe Bob Newman will be sorry he told on the rest of the boys when he hears that the rest of the boys have told on him . . . they say Bob's real name is "Axel." And that little item leads right into the fact that a &&%$★" so-and-so skidded into Cliff Nolte the other icy morning and busted the axle of his car.

Clyde and Ann Pratt are Gramp and Granny now. They were just whizzing off for New Orleans when they heard the good word . . . Emil Franke is wife hunting, we hear. He lost Vi somewhere between the Goodmans, the Evidons, the Orpheum and home the other night. The last we heard he expected to catch up with the phantom female any minute.

Bill to Tax "Slot" Films in Iowa

Des Moines—Republican State Representative Lee Hoegh of Chariton, Ia., has already revealed plans to introduce a bill in the current legislature to tax dime-in-the-slot motion pictures.

Hoegh would tax the slot machine film devices between $100 and $300 a year. He says initial income from the machines indicates that such a levy would not be out of line.

Cheers Over Lincoln For "Miss Bishop"

LINCOLN—The "cheers" in the film, "Cheers for Miss Bishop," rang throughout Lincoln, Tuesday, when Richard A. Rowland, the producer, brought on 12 players from Hollywood with the film for world premiere here.

He was trailed by wire across half the United States with quotes gleaned from the Hollywood reviews, all of which voted heavily for the film in its press prevue on the coast. The reception in Lincoln, locale of the film and home of the book's author, Bess Streeter Aldrich, was no less cordial.

Three people from the picture's cast were on hand—William Gargan, Lois Ranson and Mary Anderson. In addition, there was Irvin S. Cobb, and Neil Hamilton, who traded off in the job as master of ceremonies. Other players were Wayne Morris, Martha O'Driscoll, Barbara Pepper, Albert Dekker, Mr. and Mrs. William Farnum, and the director, Tay Garnett. Garnett was bedded by flu immediately upon arrival, and aside from appearing on a broadcast with Mrs. Aldrich and Barney Oldfield, former Journal columnist, the night before, he was too weak to make the rest of the festivities.

Premieres are usually taken to territory which is well sunned, but this one came to Lincoln in what is generally figured to be the dead of winter. The troupe got off the train in sleet and ice, with a heavy fog hanging over everything, but it didn't stop the civic dads who had prepared for such an occasion. Everything was roofed.

About 2,500 people were stuffed in the interior of the Union Station, 8,000 yowled at appearances in the University coliseum, 500 were packed in the chamber of commerce dining room for the luncheon, 1,000 at the informal tea, 400 at the banquet, and two theatres full, a total of more than 3,000 seats.

Gabe Yorke, sent in by Richard A. Rowland to handle the local promotion for the show, did a good job. He was assisted by Bernie Evens of the St. Louis UA office. Fred Stanley had charge of arrangements on the coast.

Picture began its regular run at the Stuart on Wednesday.

HOLLYWOOD—Casey Robinson will adapt "King's Row," from Henry Bellaman's novel, for Warner.

Boom Looks Like Real McCoy to Cleveland

CLEVELAND—That boom for which exhibitors have been straining their eyes for the past five years, looks like it's just around the corner if last week's attendance at local first runs portend a trend.

Glen Gray with his orchestra and a top-notch vaudeville bill with "Chad Hanna" on the screen, brought big crowds to the RKO Palace, while "Comrade X," which opened New Year's Eve at Loew's State to the biggest business in four years, piled up a pretty gross in a 10-day run. Two hold-overs, "Santa Fe Trail" and "Love Thy Neighbor," gave good accounts of themselves and "Here Comes the Navy" was moderately successful at the Allen. Weather was spotty.

Detail for the week ending January 10:

(Average is 100)

Allen—Here Comes the Navy (WB), reissue.... 90
Hippodrome—Santa Fe Trail (FN) 90
Held a second week.
RKO Palace—Chad Hanna (20th-Fox) 135
Stage show with Glen Gray and his orchestra, plus a strong vaudeville bill.
State—Comrade X (M-G-M) 200
Played 10 days, including New Year's Eve.
Stillman—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't) 200
Played 10 days in its second week downtown. Move over from the State.

An Upward Trend Is Felt in Auto City

DETROIT—Local first runs have settled back to normal week bookings following the holiday break in schedules. The trend of business last week was generally upward, although figures were below totals of the previous week, which included New Year's Eve. Weather was mixed, with several days of slight snow and considerable frost and sleet that hurt evening business. Principal opposition was from the Sonja Henie show at the Olympia, which started off well Tuesday night for an eight-day stand.

Detail for week ending January 9:

(Average is 100)

Adams—Thief of Bagdad (UA), 16 days; Sandy Gets Her Man (Univ) 150
Fox—Hudson's Bay (20th-Fox); Lone Wolf Keeps a Date (Col) 175
"Hudson's Bay" moved to Adams.
Michigan—Second Chorus (Para't), plus stage show headed by Rosemary Lane 155
Closed January 7 after seven days. "Chorus" moved to Palms-State.
Palms-State—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't), after wk. at the Michigan; Texas Rangers Ride Again (Para't) 110
United Artists—Comrade X (M-G-M); Long Voyage Home (UA) 120
Third week for both; "Comrade X" moved to Palms-State.

More Normal Trends Apparent in Cincy

CINCINNATI—Business assumed more normal trends last week, and while grosses at various downtown spots remained at a fairly even keel, all first-runs maintained a good average. The weather held clear and cold.

"Love Thy Neighbor" and "Comrade X" tied for top honors at 120 per cent. Both were held over. "Santa Fe Trail," in its second week here, did average business, and "Philadelphia Story," in its fourth, ran 90 per cent.

At the RKO Shubert, Lupe Velez in "The Mexican Spitfire," dualled with a stage show, "Streets of Paris," featuring Sid Marion and Cliff Hall, ran 115. Outstanding business of the week went to the legit, John Barton in "Tobacco Road," which was a sell-out for the opening performance.

Detail for week ending January 9:

(Average is 100)

Albee—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't) 120

Into Barboursville

PITTSBURGH—Arthur Crissman, who has transferred the Lyric, Glenville, W. Va., to John Cook, is entering exhibition at Barboursville, W. Va., around February 1.

Foreign Films Grow Scarce in Detroit

Detroit—Foreign pictures have been dropping out of the local scene more and more as the war progresses.

The Cinema, once a foreign-language house, now occasionally shows a French or other type of foreign film. Russian pictures have been out here for some time now.

The Europa shows nothing but German films, and has managed a regular weekly change of bill.

Polish pictures, once an important factor here, have been disappearing gradually. Typical is the situation at the Chopin, run by the Chargot circuit. A year ago this neighborhood house ran almost entirely on Polish bills. Now, however, such films are hardly available, and in consequence, the management is booking in a few revivals, but only for Saturday midnight shows.

DETROIT

E C. BEATTY, Butterfield president, was host to a meeting of circuit managers at the office Tuesday . . . Irene Chargot, M. J.'s daughter, busy selling encyclopedias out at the Esquire . . . Edgar E. Kirchner of the Family was busy with his annual reports and the auditor . . . Mrs. Kirchner is able to sit up for the first time after her recent illness . . . Sam Goldberg has taken over sole ownership of the Savoy, in which he was formerly a partner.

Fred Schader has been handling British War Relief publicity from a special office in the Statler Hotel . . . Joseph B. Mitchell, who recently sold the Rec to I. J. London, has gone to California . . . Bill Carlson is newly-appointed entertainment chairman of the Caravan Shrine Club (that was six other clubs you heard about before).

Joe La Rose, manager of the Roosevelt, off to New York to see about a new musical film production . . . Jane Firman, late cashier at the Madison, has turned blonde and moved to Healy's . . . Walter Mayor, her up-and-coming boy friend at the Adams, wants to see his family more . . . F. A. Schneider of the Stratford in a ten-gallon sombrero astride Old Dobbin. We just saw his picture when he was sheriff up in Otsego county . . . Joe Mellon, the premium-exhibitor, scaring up news . . . Tony Cici of the Schulte circuit tried to buy up those pictures of him in the old booth.

Sam Ackerman of the East Side has taken back the Alvin (formerly the Loyal) from Dave Flayer of the Amo, and closed it; he plans to sell . . . H. Eddie Stuckey of Paramount has one of that kind of first names too. It's "Hilland" . . . Charlie Snyder, film censor, dropped his office down two floors, next door to Walter Stebbins'.

Twentieth-Fox Notes: A. Krikorian of the Holly, Holly, in to see the boys . . . Jim Olson, distinguished aviator from Clare, on the stairway . . . Jack Sturm almost in hiding . . . Manager Lester Sturm on his way out in no hurry . . . Helen Rose wondering how to fill up her column in Fox news . . . Leo Sanshie, booker, a victim of the flu.

Elton Samuels doubling as manager of both the Chopin and the Imperial for M. J. Chargot . . . M. C. Callahan, who has had realty control of several of Detroit's downtown theatres for years, has been named to the new five-man Detroit board of zoning appeals.

Latta General Chairman Of Tent No. 1 Banquet

PITTSBURGH—C. J. Latta, Warner circuit executive and recently retired Variety chief barker, will serve as general chairman of the 1941 banquet of the No. 1 tent, succeeding John H. Harris, national Variety president, who has always served in this capacity in the past. The latter requested to step aside due to business demands.

Sign Lon Chaney jr.

HOLLYWOOD—Universal has signed Lon Chaney jr. to a term pact.

CLEVELAND

EVERETT STEINBUCK, manager of Loew's State Theatre, departed these shores last Sunday for a ten-week stay at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., having been granted a leave of absence to take care of some personal affairs, including the sale of a home there. During his absence, his place will be taken by Maurice Druker, assistant manager of Poli's in Worcester, Mass. . . . "GWTW," which opened its popular engagement at Loew's State on January 17, is offering four shows daily, with an adult price scale of 40 cents for matinees and 55 cents for evenings. First show starts at 9 a. m.; last show at 9 p. m.

H. L. Tracy of the Temple, Willard, is back from a session at Hot Springs, Ark., and not so happy. Says he still is bothered with arthritis . . . S. P. Gorrell, Republic branch manager, was out in the territory adding that personal touch to the sales situation . . . Travelers: M. B. Horwitz is in Miami Beach for one week, but he is planning a longer sojourn there later in the season. Paul Gusdanovic of the La-Salle, Avalon and Regent theatres, and Mrs. Gusdanovic are leaving on January 20 . . . Shandor Klinger, associated with Morris Berkowitz and Oscar Stotter in theatre interests, is in Florida with his daughter and her family.

Republic's "Melody Ranch" opens at the Alhambra, January 23, to the accompaniment of a big publicity campaign now in the making, plus a bombardment of spot announcements over WGAR, as arranged by Republic's Al Gregg . . . Sam Schultz, Monogram office manager, went to St. Louis to attend the company get-together . . . For thrills, we refer you to the local Monogram exchange where Bela Lugosi in person (almost) is on hand to welcome all comers.

Ernest Schwartz, president of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors Ass'n; G. W. Erdmann, secretary, and L. B. Baldwin, treasurer, were named delegates to attend the chamber of commerce legislative dinner in Columbus last Tuesday. It was a goodwill tour, to establish friendly relations between the legislators and the Cleveland exhibitors . . . "Miss L," secretary to CMPEA's secretary, George Erdmann, whose real name is Rickie Labowitch, underwent an operation at Mt. Sinai Hospital . . . Pete Wood, ITO secretary, was on hand for the annual meeting of the CMPEA Ass'n last Thursday and exchanged the usual compliments with President Ernie Schwartz.

PRC's Hollywood sneak premiere of "Misbehaving Husbands" at the Lorain Fulton, kept a lot of people out way past their bedtime. The show was flashed at the conclusion of the regular program without previous warning, and not only did everybody stay, but some came in for the new picture which kept 'em laughing until the final flash. Reaction cards were distributed to the guests and now PRC is waiting for the verdict . . . George Lefko, RKO branch manager, has no hesitancy in telling you that "Kitty Foyle" had the biggest opening at the Palace, Canton, of any preceding RKO picture.

Welcome home to Matt Goodman, United Artists branch manager, who has been away from his desk too long. Goodman, who was taken ill about ten weeks ago, is just back from Florida where the sunshine put the finishing touches to his convalescence. He looks fine . . . Joe Leavitt, who has been in the picture field for 36 years and as one of the charter members of the local operators' union has seen a lot of pictures, says he has watched the unfolding of "Bitter Sweet" at every performance shown at the Colony where he is now in charge of the booth. "In all of my long experience," says Joe, "this is the best picture of its kind I have ever seen." And praise from a projectionist, is praise indeed.

M. M. Jacobs of Imperial Pictures was picture-shopping in New York last week . . . Warner's Colony has introduced a new type of business-builder and, believe it or not, it is a picture and not a game. Every Thursday, the Colony is featuring a Newsreel Hour in addition to its regular program. It consists of three newsreels and is devoted, largely, to world affairs . . . Evalyn Friedl, secretary to Warner's zone manager, Nat Wolf, is vacationing in New York . . . Variety Legion Post held a new membership card party at the Variety Club at which every old member brought a new member. Arrangements were in the hands of Aaron Wayne, head of the entertainment committee.

"Long Voyage Home," the Walter Wanger production released through UA, won No. 1 spot on Plain Dealer Critic W. Ward Marsh's list of "ten best." Although exhibitors are afraid the masses won't go for this artistic production, Loew officials report that during its run at the State, business built up daily . . . L. G. Baldwin, CMPEA treasurer, and Mrs. Baldwin are leaving next week for California . . . Bert Stearn, UA district manager and current chief barker of the Variety Club, has inaugurated a series of weekly Saturday night entertainments with a dancing teacher on hand to conduct classes in La Conga and La Rhumba. Proceeds from the program will go to buy an iron lung.

Prosperity Seemingly Hurts Small Towns

DETROIT—Reports coming in from upstate show generally poor pickup after New Year's in the smaller towns. With some signs of revival in industrial cities, reason for the continued depression in smaller places remains a bit obscure, but a checkup with individual exhibitors, oddly enough, shows that poor business may be a sign of prosperity.

Typical of answers on this problem is that reported by A. Krikorian of the Holly Theatre at Holly. As he has analyzed the situation, small town patrons, and especially farmers, have a little bit more to spend—and want to spend it on somewhat more expensive amusements than their own small town theatre at 20 or 25 cents. So, they go out to beer gardens in some cases, and in others drive perhaps 25 miles or more to the nearest city to see a first run show. At Holly, for instance, Krikorian finds that his regular patrons are in some cases going over to Pontiac to see a show and, perhaps, to spend otherwise in the big city.

This condition, generally confirming reactions of other small independents, explains one source of improved business in the larger Michigan cities, although it is not true for the upper part of the state where there are no larger cities. In any case, small town exhibitors continue to report poor business.

Ben Voorheis

PORTSMOUTH, OHIO—Ben H. Voorheis, for many years identified with Portsmouth theatres, died recently in Columbus after a lingering illness. His wife survives.

The new Pine, operated by Walter B. Urling, has opened.

South Charleston—The new LaBelle of the Southern Alpine circuit has opened.

At Least, It's Not A Larceny Charge

Detroit—Sneaking into a theatre without paying the admission charge is not larceny, according to Recorder's Court Judge W. McKay Skillman, but His Honor was unable to say just what kind of an offense it was.

One Henry Gentry was apprehended at the Fox, and charged with petty larceny for allegedly entering without paying admission, but the court held there was no theft, and hence no larceny.

At last report, legal authorities were trying to find some other charge on which to prosecute.

Zanesville Promotions Announced by Hiehle

ZANESVILLE, OHIO—E. J. Hiehle, city manager for Shea, has completed a shift in personnel at the company's five local houses. Hiehle said that in each instance the transfer means a promotion for the men involved.

Richard Watkins, formerly house manager of the Imperial, has been named assistant to John Woodward, manager of the Weller, replacing Sanford Rowlands, who recently was transferred to Bradford, Pa.

Winston Drake, house manager of the Grand since the theatre reopened several years ago, moves to the Imperial in the same capacity.

Robert Polland, who advanced from an usher at the Quimby to house manager, has been promoted to house manager of the Grand. Ted Hooper, formerly head of service at the Weller, becomes manager of the Quimby.

Robert "Buddy" Wright, employed by the late Caldwell Brown, has been given new responsibilities under the new setup. He will serve as house supervisor at the Liberty.

Oliver Willett on Flying "Vacation" to Miami

ELKTON, MICH.—Oliver Willett, who manages the Star-Elkton here for William Schulte and who has the Strand at North Branch, is on a two-week flying tour to Miami, Fla., sponsored by Gulf Oil, in a cub plane he purchased recently. The oil company provides the gas and oil for the entire trip. It is Willett's first "vacation" since he entered the theatre business six years ago.

CINCINNATI

PLANS are going ahead for the Cinema Club's annual dinner, election of officers and drawing, to increase the Mutual Benefit Fund. The party is to be held in February at the Variety Club . . . J. J. Grady, 20th-Fox, has cause for rejoicing in the company's two latest releases, "The Girl in the News," and "Tall, Dark and Handsome," both exceptional in entertainment value . . . L. B. Wilson, Wilson Theatres, Covington, Ky., just returned from Florida where he was on business, is leaving again to remain in the southland until May. Wilson recently purchased a South American thoroughbred, which he expects to enter in the 1942 Kentucky Derby . . . Mr. and Mrs. Maury White and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Shaefer are in New York on a combined business and pleasure trip.

Guy Greathouse of the Elliott-Ward circuit was in booking . . . R. H. Dunbar, Warner branch manager, threw a housewarming for the salesmen and their wives at his new apartment . . . Jim Shanklin, a director of the West Virginia Exhibitors Ass'n, has been elected a delegate to the house of representatives in his home state . . . Mrs. Babe Shanklin and Mrs. Dorothy McQueen spent several days at the Chicago furniture mart where Mrs. Shanklin bought new items for her home, one of the most attractive in Roncevert . . . L. O. Davis, Hazard, Ky., is recuperating from flu which confined him to bed following his return from Florida. The epidemic proved serious throughout the territory. One thousand cases were reported in Hazard, and schools in Harland were ordered closed due to the disease . . . M-G-M's new exchange is under construction, while Universal's new building is on the up and up.

Charles Behlen is remodeling his Lincoln at Stanford, Ky. . . . Francis White, Roxy, Lockland, returned from a three-week stay in Florida . . . Allan Moritz jr., son of Allan Moritz of Columbia, has left for Fort Benning, Ga. He is a first lieutenant in the medical corps . . . Eddie Novak, Midwest Theatre Supply, has also been ordered to report for duty . . . W. R. Shafer will open his new theatre at Olive Hill, February 15 . . . The Midkiff Theatre, between Huntington and Logan, W. Va., will be opened by Mrs. Garnet Spurlock, whose husband formerly operated a subsequent run in Chicago.

Nat Kaplan of PRC announces they have taken on distribution of "The Marines Are Coming," reissue, for the mideast territory. PRC reports exceptional business on "Misbehaving Husbands" at the RKO Family the week of the 9th . . . Visitors included Mrs. Fon Sexton and son of Columbus and F. J. Murray, Universal home office . . . Pride of the force is Universal's drive board, ornamenting the foyer of the office and showing the local boys fourth in the Bill Scully drive at the present time.

Book Ted Weems

COLUMBUS—Ted Weems' orchestra is booked for the week of January 31 at the Loew's Broad.

PITTSBURGH

THE new Vitagraph exchange is now under construction on Filmrow at the corner of the Boulevard of the Allies and Miltenberger St., across from the Paramount Bldg. Steam shovel excavating has been completed and the contractor is working on the foundation. The new two-story building will be a modern film exchange, with general booking and executive offices on the second floor, and film vaults, storage and shipping departments on the street floor . . . Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Warner of Bridgeport, W. Va., among the finest of the younger folks in exhibition, were in the city for several days booking for their portable circuit. They are adding several new spots.

Bill Probst of the Universal exchange is the father of a son born Tuesday-a-week-ago in St. John's Hospital. It's the Probsts' first child . . . Dorothy Goldstein of Paramount is vacationing in Florida . . . Fred Meyers, former local Paramount sales representative and until recently a New York state field man for this company, will make his future home in California . . . Warner neighborhood theatres have a tieup with a coffee company whereby two evenings each week a mobile recording unit rolls up to one of the houses and stages a quiz show. KDKA broadcasts these programs and individual records are then sent to the participants. Schedule includes stops at the Plaza, January 21; Rowland, January 23; Etna, January 28; South Hills, January 30.

Death of two exhibitors saddened Filmrow last week. Sam Neaman of the Roxy, Natrona, died January 7, at the Passavant Hospital here, nearby where he was born. A former concessionaire, he had entered exhibition eight years ago in Natrona. Sam was "one of the boys" in film and theatre circles and he will be missed. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Anna Neaman, and brothers Morris, Abe H. and Benjamin R. Neaman, and sisters Mrs. Bessie Lipman and Mrs. Pauline Granovitz. Lou Padolf, former local RKO salesman and now an exhibitor in Parkersburg, W. Va., is a brother-in-law. Funeral was from the Blank Bros. Home January 8 and interment was in Gates of Wisdom Cemetery that afternoon . . . John B. "Pop" Kane, Pitcairn exhibitor for 18 years, passed away Wednesday evening, January 8, in Columbia Hospital. He had suffered a stroke a week before. "Pop" was admired and loved by all who knew him and he will be sadly missed on Filmrow, where he was a regular visitor several times weekly.

When the general assembly convened in regular session last week, the list of principal appointees, subject to senate action, included the name of John H. Harris, local theatre executive, reappointed by Gov. Arthur H. James as a member of the board of Western Penitentiary . . . Wallace Held, formerly of the Fulton house service staff, is the new assistant manager at the Barry . . . Lieut. Jerry M. Roth, son of the Penn Ave. exhibitor, now at Schuylkill Arsenal, Philadelphia, will go to Camp Lee in March . . . Charles (Little Chuck) Stein, 19-year-old, four-foot, 56-pound receptionist in the Harris Amusements' office, is the official mascot of the Hornet hockey outfit. He wears a Hornet uniform with the numeral "½" on the back, and is a camera fiend.

Smoky City Visitor—

Sabu, star of "The Thief of Bagdad," a visitor in Pittsburgh in connection with the opening of this production at Loew's Penn, is pictured here with Abe Weiner, United Artists branch manager.

Mark Goldman has some special recordings of Edith Fellows' songs from her Monogram hit, "Her First Romance." This company will distribute a Technicolored documentary subject, "Cavalcade of Texas," which was exhibited at the New York and San Francisco World's Fairs . . . Both the Dennis King and the Joe Penner shows canceled local Nixon bookings . . . A purse containing money and valuable articles was snatched from Miss Sadie Kelly, RKO cashier, when she departed from the exchange after working hours one evening last week. The two young thieves got away with the loot although she put up a fight.

A flu wave has closed many West Virginia schools and has cut into theatre business in the Mountain State . . . James G. Balmer, Harris circuit executive, has been in St. Francis Hospital for an extensive checkup . . . Nathan M. Katz, AMPTO counsel, was chairman of this week's conference of Western Pennsylvania Council of B'nai B'rith . . . Mrs. Sarah Schu, who died last Thursday, was the mother of Helen Schu of 20th-Fox, Marie and Esther, of Vitagraph, and Louise, until recently employed by Republic. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon and interment was in Zimmerman's cemetery.

Ira H. Cohn, 20th-Fox manager, has returned from a vacation at Miami Beach . . . A new crop of Lilliputians—and two elephants (so they say)—are being featured on the Stanley stage this week. Those elephants would have interested Sabu, who was here last week in advance of the opening of "The Thief of Bagdad." Singer's Midgets was one of the standard acts for years and the new company should find large audiences awaiting their appearance . . . Ken Dawson's Victoria, Gallitzen; Joe Shapiro's Shapiro, Mount Union, and Harry Rachiele's Gem, Derry, are sporting new Artkraft marquees. W. R. Stich and E. A. Hill of Artkraft were in for the Burtus Bishop jr., testimonial banquet.

Archie Fineman and Michael N. Shapiro were "kings" at the Variety dinner January 13 . . . Harry Seed's suntan isn't quite the "honey" it was last winter for the reason that the season "isn't so hot" in Florida and additionally, he was there for a shorter period this time . . . A Sun-Telegraph editorial the other day reiterated this statement: "The Golden Triangle has deteriorated in recent years. One hundred thousand fewer people come downtown daily than 10 years ago."

At the Bishop Testimonial Banquet—

LOUISVILLE

JOHNSON MUSSELMAN is back at the Rialto after a serious illness. He was in the hospital for 11 days with pneumonia, and his friends are sure glad to see him back on the job. A. B. McCoy pinch hitted for him during his absence . . . Ira B. Dyer, who formerly owned the Uptown at Tompkinsville, Ky., is back in the theatre business again, having purchased the Ritz at Burksville from Haskell Nivens. The new Sparks at Tompkinsville, Ky., built by M. H. Sparks and owned by the Mid-State Theatre Co., is scheduled to open next week. R. A. Jones is handling the Ritz at Burksville for Dyer.

Due to illness, W. C. Durham has sold his Majestic at Beaver Dam, Ky., to Andy Anderson who also owns theatres at Hopkinsville, Hodgenville, and Hartford. Durham has moved to New Jersey for his health, and his many friends throughout the territory will miss him.

W. R. Shafer, who operates theatres at Morehead and Grayson, Ky., has opened the New Theatre at Olive Hill, Ky. This is a new house built by Shafer. The new Bell at Pineville, owned by Dr. J. B. Cornn and W. H. Gaddie, is scheduled to open within the next week. The building is a modern theatre and includes the latest equipment available.

Visitors to the city included Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wiethe of the Kentucky, Latonia; Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Miles, Eminence, Eminence, Ky.; C. D. Arnold and Walter Cisco of the Crystal, Bardstown, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Shafer of Morehead, Ky.; B. J. Curry, Strand, Horse Cave; M. H. Sparks, Sparks, Tompkinsville.

Business at local theatres got back to normal again after the holidays. The openings had been moved to Tuesday for the holiday business and now they are back to their regular Friday openings . . . Business has been on the increase all over the city due to the expansion and erection of many new defense plants . . . The ushers' strike, which had been on for two weeks, has been settled.

Robert Holtrey has reopened the Lyric at Waterloo, Ind. . . . Bruce Aspley is improving his projection at both his Plaza and Trigg theatres in Glasgow, Ky. . . . The Four Star Dixie in Fort Mitchell, Ky., has been opened by John Loofborow, J. M. Luhn and J. E. Crawford. They also operate theatres in Cheviot, Ohio . . . Don LeBrun is reported building a new 400-seater in South Whitley, Ind.

The Columbia Hall Theatre, which has been operating off and on for several months with pictures and roadshows, is being considered as a site for a recreation center for soldiers stationed at Fort Knox. The building houses, besides the theatre, a ballroom, bowling alleys and a billiard parlor.

New RCA sound has been installed by the Settos circuit in their Cine at Linton, Ind., and Ritz, Boonville, Ind. . . . Claude L. Flater has installed new lamphouses in his Tivoli at Spencer, Ind. . . . Bill Floreke has reopened the Elnora, Elnora, Ind., after some remodeling. The house has been closed for some time.

Act to Regulate Film Vending Machines

Cincinnati—Saul M. Greenberg, attorney, has presented to the city council a petition signed by 50 theatre managers, including RKO Theatres, asking that it regulate, license and tax new motion picture vending machines. The petition cites the investment in theatres and urges the city to aid in maintaining the high standards as offered by motion picture exhibitors here.

The petition has been referred to the law committee, and is expected to be returned to the council within the week for further action, according to Greenberg.

Differ in Cleveland On '10 Best' Films

CLEVELAND—Choice of the 10 best pictures of the year always reveals that unknown quality—the personal equation. So we have decided differences of opinion by the local motion picture critics. You may agree with W. Ward Marsh of the Plain Dealer, or with Arthur Spaeth of the News, or with neither of them. At any rate, here they are:

W. Ward Marsh, The Plain Dealer:

1. The Long Voyage Home.
2. Grapes of Wrath.
3. The Great Dictator.
4. Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet.
5. The Great McGinty.
6. Mortal Storm.
7. Foreign Correspondent.
8. Rebecca.
9. I Love You Again.
10. Howards of Virginia.

Arthur Spaeth, reporting city-wide poll in The News:

1. Grapes of Wrath.
2. Rebecca.
3. Foreign Correspondent.
4. Mortal Storm.
5. Boom Town.
6. All This, and Heaven Too.
7. Our Town.
8. Abe Lincoln in Illinois.
9. Knute Rockne—All-American.
10. My Son, My Son.

It is interesting to note that Spaeth's list is the result of a city-wide poll and reflects an audience choice. Marsh's list, on the other hand, was chosen deliberately as to types. Marsh departed from the usual manner of selection by giving signal honor to the best picture of each type of production.

Toledo Local Retains Its Official Slate

TOLEDO—IATSE Local 228 has re-elected all officers. Edward Boza is serving his fourth term as president; Thomas Irvins his fifth as business agent.

Others re-elected:

Leslie Moorhead, vice-president; Joseph Seligman, financial secretary; Carl Koch, recording secretary; V. E. Hostetter, corresponding secretary, and William Leutz, treasurer. A. L. Minter was named sergeant-at-arms.

Cohens Gave Penner His First Break

Detroit—The death of Joe Penner brought back memories to many Detroit filmites. Joe was a Detroit boy, as the obituaries made very plain, and remembered that fact in his last personal appearance here a few years back.

He started his stage career in local amateur shows, and gave Ben Cohen, now sojourning in Miami, and his brother, Lou, credit for his first real break in show business at the old Coliseum, now slated to be demolished for a housing project.

Detroit Subsequent Runs Give Product Extra Time

DETROIT—With stronger pictures hitting the second and subsequent runs, circuit operators are tending to hold them for additional playing time, continuing the phenomenon that marked first run bookings for the past two months when three pictures went five weeks simultaneously among the five first run houses.

Typically, this week United Detroit circuit held over "Hit Parade of 1941" for two extra days at both the Regent and Annex, while "North West Mounted Police," out at the Birmingham, operated by the same circuit in a special zone following first runs because of its distance from Detroit, was held over for three extra days.

Preparing Wilson for "Fantasia" Showing

DETROIT—"Fantasia" is slated to open here early in February at the Wilson, which has been dark since the Shuberts gave up their musical comedy season last fall. House will remain under the management of Fred Schader, formerly of the Fox.

"Fantasia" engineers have been in town for the past week working on installation of special sound and other equipment required, and definite opening date was dependent upon when this work was completed.

New Albion Blatt Unit; Will Close Old House

ALBION, PA.—The new theatre under construction here for the Blatt Bros., will be ready for opening the first week in February. The house has been named the Perry in honor of Admiral Perry, who was a native of the community. William Gould of the Blatt circuit has been named house manager. When the Perry is opened, the Blatt's Albion here will be closed and dismantled.

Cleve and Beechwold Are Taken Over by Wiethe

COLUMBUS—Local theatrical circles were informed Monday that Louis J. Wiethe, young Cincinnati exhibitor, had taken over operations of the Cleve and Beechwold, both neighborhood houses formerly units in the MacDonald circuit. Former is a three-year-old 700-seater, latter an 800-seat house scheduled to open in about three weeks.

Wiethe owns and operates in the Queen City area the Derby, Roselawn, Kentucky, Bond and Westwood theatres.

For the time being, buying and booking for the two houses will be handled by Mrs. C. A. MacDonald and Bill Queen of the MacDonald circuit.

Special Production for "Protective" Society

PITTSBURGH—Monarch Pictures, Inc., under the direction of Danny Davis and J. A. Logan, will make a special three-reel production for the First Aid Ambulance Corps, a women's organization for protection of U. S. citizens in case of aggression. An all-local cast will be selected, according to Mrs. Ellen A. Webb, organizer of the corps which now claims more than 2,000 members. Davis and Logan also will produce a newsreel of activities of the corps.

Lena Stillwell Announces 1,000-Seater in Bedford

BEDFORD, OHIO—Mrs. Lena B. Stillwell, owner of the Bedford, plans to build a new 1,000-seat theatre here this spring. The new building will have two stores in addition to the auditorium. Plans have been prepared by Paul Matzinger, Cleveland architect. The project will cost approximately $65,000. It is Mrs. Stillwell's plan, at present, to operate both houses, confining the old house to a weekend policy.

A Tieup With 4-H Clubs For Republic Picture

CLEVELAND—Al Gregg, publicity director here for Republic, has worked up a successful publicity campaign for exhibitors playing Republic's "Barn Yard Follies."

Gregg has effected a tieup with the 4-H Clubs of Ohio of which there are 40 with a membership of 1,200 in Cuyahoga county alone. In "Barn Yard Follies," 4-H Clubs are publicized for the first time.

"Santa Fe" Sets Mark in Canton

Canton—"Santa Fe Trail," originally booked into Warner's Ohio here for a week opening New Year's Eve, was held over through January 13, to establish a new house record for the past 10 years. Dick Wright, Warner district manager, informs Bill Harwell, manager of the Ohio.

: "Letter" Under Fire :

PITTSBURGH — Following complaints of several exhibitors, James H. Alexander, Republic manager here, issued the following statement regarding a merchant tieup reportedly approved by him on certain Republic stars:

"A Mr. Arthur Levin, who supposedly represents the Metro Publicity Co. of New York and also the National Flag Institute of New York, has in his possession a letter apparently signed by me recommending his 'Lone Ranger' and 'Gene Autry' suits to the exhibitors of this territory. I am now advised by several responsible exhibitors, and am told other ones signed up for these deals, that the merchants were solicited, paid out money, the checks were cashed, the date for the deal arrived—but no deal.

"If anyone solicits you using any letter signed by me, please first call me on the telephone for confirmation."

Banyen Realty Building North Dayton Theatre

DAYTON—Erection of a 1,100-seat neighborhood theatre in North Dayton is announced by the Banyen Realty Co. The theatre is a part of a $150,000 business section to be constructed near the 600-family low-rent federal housing project on a portion of old McCook field. Construction of the business block will begin immediately. Razing of a 14-room residence now on the estate is scheduled to begin this week. The theatre is expected to be ready for occupancy about June 1, the approximate date of the completion of work on the low-rent housing project.

Cleveland First Run For "Melody Ranch"

CLEVELAND—The first run date for "Melody Ranch" has been set for January 23 at the Alhambra. Nat Lefton, Republic manager, said that newspaper announcements of Autry's first place in the BOXOFFICE BAROMETER poll on western actors had prompted many requests for availabilities on the picture.

Anas Improves State

WEIRTON, W. VA.—The State here is being newly decorated and draped and new stage curtains are being installed for N. G. Anas. A marquee was recently installed at the State and the Anas, which was formerly known as the Manas. Decorating job was directed by William Naidenoff.

Gets Autry Painting

PITTSBURGH—A striking oil painting of Gene Autry and Champ, his horse, has been presented to James H. Alexander, Republic Pittsburgh manager, by the local artist, Al Corbett. The portrait is displayed at the Republic office. Corbett is a former employe.

Heart Attack Fatal to John B. "Pop" Kane

PITTSBURGH—John B. Kane, veteran exhibitor at Pitcairn, died last Wednesday at Columbia Hospital, Wilkinsburg, as the result of a heart attack. He was in his 65th year.

"Pop" Kane, as he was known in the trade, had visited Filmrow the day he was stricken. Until that time, he had never been seriously ill, members of the family said. He had operated the Nemo, Pitcairn, for 18 years.

Surviving are Mrs. Ellen Kane, widow, and son William E. Kane, and daughters Mrs. Betty Snyder and Mrs. Jessie Morris. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon.

Not a Single Bowler Hits a 200 Score

DETROIT—For the first time in recent seasons, the Film Bowling League went through a session without a single roller hitting the 200 mark. UA went ahead last week to grab off first place from Republic in the only real upset.

Standings:

Team—	Won	Lost
United Artists	37	23
Republic	34	26
Cooperative	34	26
Film Drug	31	29
Film Truck	27	33
Monogram	27	33
Amusement Supply	26	34
20th-Fox	24	36

Donates Two Projectors To Variety of Detroit

DETROIT—Walter R. Stebbins, owner-manager of the Film Exchange Building, has donated two new Simplex projectors to Detroit Variety Club to be used for the club's mobile equipment. This replaces older equipment which is taken out for an average of three shows weekly for shutins.

The gift was made by Stebbins in memory of his son, Richard, who passed away last year.

Burlesquer Quits Quickly

CANTON—After two and a half weeks of burlesque, the Grand here has been shuttered with no immediate prospect of reopening. Jimmy Walters was producer.

Markson on "Smiling Ghost"

HOLLYWOOD—Ben Markson will script "Smiling Ghost," from the Stuart Palmer original, for Warner's.

Bishop Party Swells Club Charity Fund

Pittsburgh—Approximately $500, proceeds from the testimonial banquet to Burtus Bishop jr., has been turned over to the local Variety Club charity fund at Bishop's request. The former Metro manager has been promoted to district manager in Kansas City.

Would Ease Strict Vaude Regulations

Boston—Slackening of Sunday vaudeville regulation in the Bay state would go into effect under the terms of a proposed law filed in the state legislature by Thomas J. Lane of Lawrence.

Sunday stage shows in the Bay state are at present stringently restricted by bluenose laws, many of them coming into existence about the same time as the once-enforced regulation that made it a criminal offense for a man to kiss his own wife on the Sabbath.

Vaudevillians may not dance on Sundays here, although dancing is legal in churches. No blackface may be used, not even by Negroes.

Welansky, Broidy at Monogram Meeting

BOSTON—Plans for the annual "March for Monogram" sales drive to be officially launched February 22, were discussed in St. Louis last Saturday where Ben Welansky, local franchise owner, and Steve Broidy, newly-installed national sales manager, were among those laying out the schedule. Broidy previously won several of these competitions. The drive will run for seven weeks, terminating April 11.

Haggle Over Admissible Evidence in Waldo Suit

BOSTON—Disputes as to the extent of evidence admissible in the plaintiff's attempts to prove alleged conspiracy in the anti-trust suit brought by the Waldo Theatre Corp. against the late Joseph Dondis et al., broke out afresh as hearings in the litigation continued before a master in the Federal Bldg.

"Apparently it is the view of the defendants," George S. Ryan, plaintiff's attorney, summed the matter, "that if a conspiracy is alleged relating to a particular situation or a particular group of states, that evidence to show that conspiracy cannot be admitted unless that evidence, at that particular time, refers to the specific situation or group of states.

"I have no doubt that under the new rules a pleading alleging a conspiracy which did damage to this plaintiff, without any of these allegations that have been put into the complaint as to the scope of the conspiracy, would state a good cause of action under the anti-trust laws in accordance with the new rules. I do not conceive that if a plaintiff made such an allegation that he would be limited in his proof to things that directly affected him.

"As Judge Peters has ruled, the plaintiff is entitled to show conspiracy as a whole, even though he may be damaged by only one part of it. Now, in showing the conspiracy as a whole we are entitled to show the history of this industry and the relations of these parties. And the evidence can't be so strictly limited as the defendants would like to have it, particularly when we say that, for example, in this document, the provision in regard to protection is very closely similar, if not identical, with the provision in regard to protection which was read by Mr. McClennen last Friday, I think. We say that these distributors and producers have their main offices in New York. The exhibitors have their main offices in New York.

"They deal with each other, and have for many years been in the custom of dealing with each other in units. Like Fox dealing with Paramount, or Metro or Loew's dealing with another corporation. And it is our contention that evidence to show the relations of the parties to each other, and the existence of a general conspiracy to restrain trade is admissible to show the existence of a conspiracy by which the plaintiff was injured. That is, the plaintiff being injured by a certain part or portion of that conspiracy.

Counter by McClennen

"Conspiracy as a crime doesn't defer from any other crime so far as the rule of evidence is concerned, that you can't show the crime in question before the court by showing the commission of other crimes," Edward F. McClennen, Paramount counsel, countered, adding "Of course, there is no civil case here unless such a crime is shown.

"It is true that if a particular conspiracy is shown, that a person may have suffered damage from only one branch of that conspiracy which didn't directly touch the plaintiff, may be shown. But that is not any conspiracy except the conspiracy alleged. The distinction is well brought out by what Mr. Caskey has pointed to. If there was a conspiracy between these distributors and these exhibitors named in the suit, which was as wide as New England, it would be something that would be material in determining whether the plaintiff was damaged by that conspiracy; and something that tended to show that conspiracy—if it didn't directly affect the plaintiff—might be shown.

"But it cannot be shown, in order to lead to the conclusion that there was a conspiracy as to New England with these other defendants, that some of those defendants entered into a conspiracy in restraint of trade in California, or outside of New England. That is, such evidence is not admissible to you as an analogy for the purpose of showing an adulterous disposition.

"It is admissible only where the particular thing has some indication of being

Offers Letters as Exhibits

BOSTON—Two letters directly involving theatres operated by the Waldo Theatre Corp. were offered by George S. Ryan, plaintiff's attorney, as exhibits at hearings last week in connection with the anti-trust suit brought by the theatre corporation against the late Joseph Dondis, et al. One, dated Jan. 16, 1937, was from William P. Kelly, at present a Universal salesman and then branch manager here for the company, to Phil Seletsky, M&P Theatres Corp. booker. The other was Seletsky's reply. They appear below:

Kelly to Seletsky

"At the time we made the deal with you for this year's product for your various towns, the question came up relative to protection, and our agreement was whatever towns we had sold prior to making the deal with you and which conflict with your protection setup, particularly in the Maine territory, the protection on such towns would stand as originally sold.

"Your Mr. Govan called us on the 'phone and said that it was his understanding that Rockland was to have protection over Waldoboro. Now, we sold Waldoboro much earlier than we sold you in Rockland, and that was one of the towns where the protection was to stand as originally sold as opposed to your protection in Rockland which you receive from national distributors. Mr. Govan wants definite protection over Waldoboro which we cannot give him this season.

"Will you kindly correct Mr. Govan's attitude in this situation as he has notified us that unless we give him protection in Rockland over Waldoboro, he will not play any of our pictures. I told him that it would be agreeable to us to have Rockland play day and date with Waldoboro, as that is the agreement we made with Waldoboro previous to closing the deal for Rockland.

"Many thanks for your kind cooperation in this matter."

Seletsky to Kelly

"Excuse my delay in replying to your letter of the 16th regarding the matter of our protection at Rockland over Waldoboro.

"Although I would indeed desire to cooperate with you in the matter, our partner, Mr. Dondis, at Rockland absolutely refuses to play any pictures in Rockland which may play Waldoboro day and date or ahead of him. I am sure you realize, Bill, that Waldoboro is direct opposition to Rockland.

"If this specific matter was brought up when we set the deal, I would have advised you along the above lines. If you could not get them in at Rockland ahead of Waldoboro, I would not have been able to sign the contract. I am wondering if you can arrange to play your pictures at Waldoboro after Rockland as all other distributors are doing at the present time. I am sure the exhibitor in question should not hold your exchange as the one exception regarding the availability of his product at Waldoboro.

"If you cannot do anything in this matter, I am afraid we will not be able to use your product at Rockland, considering the instructions that we have received from our partner, I would appreciate your checking into this matter further and see what can be accomplished."

"Kitty" and "Comrade" Are Strong in Hub

BOSTON—Good show weather plus name attractions made it a strong first-run week here despite legions of absentees because of a wave of colds and grippe which has closed numerous schools and which, according to the superintendent of schools' figures, had 15 per cent of the entire Boston enrollment out last week. "Kitty Foyle" held over and "Comrade X" went an additional four days.

Detail for the week ending January 9:

(Average is 100)

Fenway—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't); Lady With Red Hair (WB), 2nd run.....110
Keith Memorial—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Saint in Palm Springs (RKO), held over.....170
Loew's Orpheum—Comrade X (M-G-M); Gallant Sons (M-G-M).....135
Loew's State—Same as Orpheum.....115
Metropolitan—Santa Fe Trail (FN); Night at Earl Carroll's (Para't).....150
Paramount—Same as Fenway.....105

"Second Chorus" Leads New Haven First Runs

NEW HAVEN—New Year's Eve shows were good-to-excellent, but only the Roger Sherman is computed in the week's take, other local first runs playing single performances on the occasion. New Year's Day saw crowds exceeding last year. Ideal weather was a contributing factor to the increase in business.

Detail for week ending January 8:

(Average is 100)

College—Arizona (Col); Ellery Queen, Master Detective (Col), 8 days, 2nd wk.....110
Loew-Poli—Comrade X (M-G-M); Jennie (20th-Fox), 8 days.....130
Paramount—Second Chorus (Para't); Murder Over New York (20th-Fox), 8 days.....185

Eight days, plus midnight show.

Barrows Again Named Local 182 President

BOSTON—The re-election of Thad C. Barrows to the presidency of operators' Local 182, marked the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences member's 24th year of organization leadership and his 30th year as an official of the local IATSE affiliate.

Bernard McGaffigan was elected vice-president, as all regular officers were swept in. Joseph Rosen became treasurer for 1941; Albert R. Moulton, financial secretary; and James Burke, business representative. Sergeant-at-arms is James O'Brien. The executive committee, in which there were no changes, is again comprised of Louis Pirovano, John Diehl and Joseph Nuzollo.

Beal Will Expound on "How to Be a Critic"

BOSTON—"How to Be a Critic" is the theme of a university extension course here supervised by George Britton Beal, motion picture editor of the Boston Post. Beal, handling a series of 15 lectures which was to have begun Friday, plans to cover the following subjects: "The Rules and Purposes of Criticism," "The Difference Between Objective and Suggestive Criticism," and "Acting for Screen and Stage."

Only One of 42 Gets Censorial Scissors

BOSTON—Only one motion picture out of 42 presented got the censorial scissors last week in the Bay State. Marcel Mekelburg's and Sam Levine's "Sensation" was removed of "damn" in several places in the fifth and sixth reels. Among films okayed were Harry Asher's "Misbehaving Husbands," Warner's "Honeymoon for Three," and the Universal brevity, "Beat Me, Daddy, Eight to the Bar."

Eugene M. McSweeney, commissioner of public safety, made "Invitation to a Murder" official for Sunday showings in Massachusetts under the revised title "Flight From Destiny."

George Raft and 20 other vaudeville acts were accorded Sunday permits. Six other routines were ordered to comply with recommended modifications, while Billy and Edith Hervey were refused an okay.

Morris Rosenthal has decided to forego this usual trip to Florida this winter and hopes to get to Missouri in the early spring to visit his brother.

Trade Friends Honor Thomas Donaldson

NEW HAVEN—Trade friends from New York, Boston and Providence, as well as from New Haven, attended the testimonial dinner here Tuesday at the Hotel Taft for Thomas G. Donaldson, who is leaving the local M-G-M exchange after three and one-half years to become exchange head in Boston for the company.

Maurice N. Wolf, Metro district manager in Boston, was toastmaster, and speakers included Walter Higgins, Herman Rifkin, Ben Simon, Harry Shaw, Hy Fine, Joseph Stein and Morey Goldstein, who succeeds Donaldson as New Haven manager for Metro.

Dr. Jacob Fishman presented the honored guest with a scroll and radio-Victrola, and during the evening a number of congratulatory telegrams to Donaldson were read, including one from the governor of New Hampshire.

A round of cocktails preceded the dinner.

NEW HAVEN—Thomas J. Donaldson, New Haven branch manager for Metro, recently promoted to Boston; Milton Hyams and Morton Katz, Metro salesmen, and George Weber, checking supervisor, attended the farewell testimonial dinner in Boston, Tuesday in honor of Morey Goldstein, Boston salesman who is taking over in New Haven as Metro branch head.

Theatre Accident Suit Involved Paint Firm

NEW HAVEN—Ashton LeGates asks $10,000 from A. L. Schneider Co., a local paint firm, in a new type of theatre accident suit which is being prepared for the January term of superior court.

LeGates charges the defendant sold some paint to the Connecticut Theatrical Corp., which owns and operates the Roger Sherman here. The theatre company applied the paint to the sidewalk and curbing in front of the theatre which, LeGates claims, caused the walk and curb to become slippery and dangerous and caused him to fall and suffer serious injuries.

The paint company is charged with negligence in that it "sold the paint to the theatre company and warranted it would dry in four hours not warning that it might actually take longer so that precautions might have been taken."

Educational Counsellor For Ascap in Address

NEW HAVEN—Prof. S. Stephenson Smith, educational counsellor for Ascap, author and theatre critic, spoke at Albertus Magnus College here on "Broadway Tackles Politics." The lecture was one of a series Professor Smith is giving throughout the country before school and club audiences while he makes for Ascap a first-hand inquiry into regional and campus activities in the creative and interpretative arts.

Admissibility of Evidence Waldo Hearing Snag

a part, however distant, of the conspiracy alleged. Now there is nothing whatever in this paper that is offered that has the remotest tendency to show any part, however remote, of the conspiracy which is alleged."

John Caskey, 20th-Fox attorney, objected to the admission of an agreement between Warner Bros. Pictures and Skouras' Theatre Corp. for licensing of films for 23 seasons beginning with 1929-30. Caskey took exception to the proved exhibit as being, in his ranking, "an isolated instance, occurring 12 years ago, relating to the exhibition of first-run pictures in what was then the fourth largest city in the United States. All of this is predicated upon Mr. Ryan's repeated assertion, but not yet substantiated by any proof, that the provisions he refers to are unusual preferences. I think argument can be made that they are unusual obligations. There is no suggestion in this case that plaintiff had attempted to license pictures from any of the distributors on any terms as to which there was a dispute, other than the dispute as to when he should get the pictures.

"It is not suggested that the plaintiff has brought us into court because of not granting him the right to reject westerns or to reject foreign pictures. It isn't said that there is any complaint here at all about those things. There is no complaint on the part of the distributors that the plaintiff had agreed that if he erects a new first-run theatre in Waldoboro he will give us the same general representation as he now gives us in the Waldo Theatre. The charge is 'unusual,' and that charge of 'unusual' will require proof as to what was usual, and what is usual has to be judged in the light of circumstances.

"Moreover, there is no evidence in this record that pictures have been licensed to Rockland Amusement Co. or to M&P Theatres Corp., other than by this same form of contact which Mr. Ryan designates as the ordinary form.

"This case is supposed to involve a conspiracy among the distributors with the defendant exhibitor to grant Rockland 14 days preference or priority over Waldoboro, and we think it inappropriate to move out to St. Louis and find out why it was that before Skouras Bros. were willing to erect the new Missouri Theatre they wanted to be assured of certain product under the then competitive conditions."

About a Duck Luncheon

McClennen, defendant's counsel, then spoke up. "In December, 1915 in St. Louis a very delicious wild duck luncheon was held through the courtesy of a brother of the St. Louis bar, which was preferential to the many other lawyers of the city. It is quite as revelant to anything we are trying here as is this exhibit."

"I think," said Francis P. Freeman, Master appointed by U. S. district court to sit on the hearings, "I understand the point that counsel for defense have been making since the case started. The authorities seem to hold that a conspiracy, if one exists, is seldom, if ever, proved by direct evidence. I think in one case they say that conspirators work in the dark, that they are sinister, secretive, and its hide-away-by-night individual; and, of course, there is the question of how large the compass, of how far into the dark ages we should delve.

"Close to a Record"

"I think at the present time, Mr. McClennen with his duck dinner in 1915 comes close to establishing a record, if not absolutely holding the blue ribbon. I think there are some cases cited by Mr. Ryan's brief which hold that evidence of a conspiracy by one defendant, with other conspirators who are not a party to the suit, is admissible as showing the tendency on the part of that particular defendant to enter into a conspiracy, although the evidence offered may not bear on conspiracy alleged in the complaint.

"Now, in spite of many complaints, which Mr. McClennen has made to Mr. Ryan, I am not yet convinced that Mr. Ryan would intentionally misquote the language of the court in these various decisions. I did feel, when this case started, that the day would eventually come when we would receive some evidence on Rockland and Waldoboro. I still have some faith, and I think perhaps we will have to go along a little while longer and see whether I have hoped in vain.

"Hope deferred maketh the heart sick," quipped the defense lawyer.

"Your Honor," Ryan said, "We will get plenty of evidence before you get through."

Two Holdovers in Boston Give Bookers Headaches

BOSTON — Two holdovers in first-run Boston last week gave additional headaches to the bookers who have to figure their availabilities from the local deluxers.

Ben Domingo kept "Kitty Foyle" a second week. The Ben Rogers vehicle was combined with "Saint in Palm Springs." At the State and Orpheum, Loew's divisional manager, Charles E. Kurtzman, held over "Comrade X" and "Gallant Sons" for an additional four days.

Shift Max Nevetsky

WORCESTER, MASS.—Max Nevetsky, assistant manager of the Loew's-Poli Elm Street, last week was named assistant manager of the Loew's-Poli Palace here, replacing Morris Druker, who is now manager of Loew's State, Cleveland.

Upbeat Reflected in Portsmouth Survey

MANCHESTER, N. H.—The extent of the industrial boom which is gladdening the hearts of theatre operators in Portsmouth and environs, is shown in a report on a survey made by Portsmouth Navy Yard officials, who find that 2,000 additional homes are needed in that section to accommodate the tremendous influx of navy men and workers at the big national defense base.

It is estimated approximately half that number of dwellings in the low and medium-priced range already are under construction in various programs including one federal housing project.

Elsewhere in the state, too, film men are hearing reports which reflect the greatly increased income of Granite Staters.

For instance, during the past year, automobile registration was the heaviest in history, according to a report just issued by the state motor vehicle department. Officials could give no explanation other than a boost in incomes. And in Manchester, the past year saw the greatest home building activity in 15 years.

These encouraging signs are, of course, in addition to the many reports of long-idle textile plants reopening to rush out orders for cloth for Uncle Sam's service men.

Carl Jamroga to Manage Northampton Academy

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Carl A. Jamroga of the Phillips here has been transferred by the Rifkin circuit to manager of the Academy, Northampton, Mass. He succeeds Frankie Shaughnessy, who has joined the National Guard as a lieutenant. Jamroga is replaced at the Phillips by George Rabb, previously at Rifkin's Jefferson. Albert Moreau, formerly of Springfield, becomes Rabb's assistant, as a result of the series of shifts announced by William Powell, the circuit's division manager.

Settlement Effected in Kirschheimer Suit

Dallas—A settlement out of court was reached Thursday in the damage suit of Sam Kirschheimer against the Interstate circuit. It was to have gone to trial on that day. Kirschheimer is a Houston exhibitor.

R. Z. Glass' suit against the circuit is scheduled for Monday before Federal Judge Atwell. It was filed some time ago by Glass when he operated the Fair, Knox and Lawn theatres here.

Confers in Memphis On Film Tribunal

MEMPHIS—First steps toward the establishment here of an arbitration board to settle disputes between exhibitors and distributors as provided by the consent decree, were taken last week during the visit of J. Noble Braden, executive secretary of the American Arbitration Ass'n.

At a luncheon for him, Braden conferred on the matter with a number of business and educational leaders including Phil Pidgeon, president of the chamber of commerce; Dean S. Walter Jones of the Memphis University Law School; J. Seddon Allen, president of the Memphis and Shelby County Bar Ass'n; Carl B. Wellborn, chairman of the Tennessee Society of Certified Public Accountants; Noland Fontaine, district manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and J. M. Cour, manager for Dun & Bradstreet.

Two Projectionists Are Held in Stench-Bombing

TYLER, TEX.—Two motion picture operators are being held by local police in connection with the stench-bombing of S. G. Fry's Joy Theatre here a fortnight ago. Police said one of the men was seized by a "spotter" in the theatre on the evening it was stench-bombed, and that the other was picked up following questioning of the man seized by the "spotter."

Fry does not employ union operators, but he says all his men are stockholders in the theatre.

DALLAS—Gene Coleman, manager of the Texas at Seagoville for his brother R. Q. Coleman, has purchased the Key in Midlothian in his own right from J. O. (Buddy) Harris. Midlothian is about 24 miles southwest of Dallas.

Harris still owns the Ritz in Celina, but devotes practically all of his time to operating the Buddy Harris Poster Exchange here.

Ross Federal Manager

OKLAHOMA CITY—Ernest A. MacKenna has been appointed Manager of the Oklahoma branch of Ross Federal Service, Inc.

Award Jorgensen $5,000 In Interstate Action

DALLAS—In his suit against Interstate which ended Wednesday, Holger Jorgensen, owner of the East Grand Theatre here, was awarded $4,500 for damages and $500 for attorneys fees by a jury in Judge W. H. Atwell's federal court. The jury did not say whether the verdict covered one or both charges involved in the action, but it was considered here to have included both.

Jorgensen claimed damages of over $50,000 in his suit, which was divided into two parts. For the years 1935-36-37, he claimed specific damages because of the 25-cent minimum restrictions imposed by Interstate on certain pictures which forced the East Grand to raise admission prices from 20 to 25 cents. Availability was the second part, with Jorgensen asking damages, claiming that an agreement existed between Interstate and the film companies to hold the East Grand 15 days behind the White Theatre, owned by Interstate, which Jorgensen claimed was a similar operation to his charging a like admission price.

Interstate argued that Jorgensen was not hurt by the 25-cent restrictions, that he made more money during the three years it was in effect than before, and produced Jorgensen's income tax records in proof. The defense showed that Jorgensen voluntarily raised his prices on "B" pictures not covered in the restrictions and that he voluntarily charged 20 cents for his matinees when competitive theatres in the area charged 15 cents for matinees.

As to the availability charge, Interstate claimed the White was more modern and larger than the East Grand, that it paid more film rental and furnished a greater service to the public and the distributors, and that the clearance existing between the two theatres was reasonable.

In his charge to the jury, Judge Atwell said that a conspiracy or violation of law must be found before any consideration could be given to damages, which, if they existed, must be weighed in dollars and cents. He held that a conspiracy between Interstate and the film companies to hold the East Grand back of the White, if it existed, would be an unlawful act. To this part of the charge, Interstate took an exception.

H. A. Daniels, former film man, and W. S. Miller of 20th Century-Fox, were put on the stand by Interstate. Both said Jorgensen had told them he benefited by the forced increased admission. J. E. Luckett testified for the defense that new equipment and progressive methods employed by competitive theatres to the East Grand, had more to do with claimed losses by the plaintiff than price or availability.

Depositions were read from Harry Gold of United Artists, Cresson E. Smith of RKO, Joe Unger of Paramount, Tom Connors of M-G-M, Abe Montague of Columbia, C. E. McCarthy of Universal, and Carl Leserman of Warner Bros. All pointed out the advisability of giving preference in clearance to better houses in a community.

While Interstate denied an agreement existed as to availability, Jorgensen produced a document which he said was prepared by Interstate showing clearance schedules between various theatres and which he claimed was handed to the various film companies by Interstate.

Interstate characterized this as a booking memorandum, saying no agreement had been reached with any of the film companies.

Bank Night Setup May Be Probed

SPRINGFIELD, TENN.—After hearing the evidence against two defendants charged with obtaining a $600 Bank Night payment from the local Capitol Theatre through fraudulent substitution of tickets, General Sessions Judge Earl Swann has threatened a general investigation of the theatre Bank Night setup.

He stated: "I don't think a thing of this kind should be operated where such a fraud could be committed. The episode shows criminal negligence on the part of the officials of the theatre and the drawing judges, and others connected with the drawing are also guilty of criminal negligence."

A. L. Hancock is manager of the Capitol which is owned by the Crescent circuit. The whole matter is being turned over to the grand jury and any investigation would follow action by the jury.

Manager Hancock discovered, after giving away a $600 prize, that a large number of tickets bearing the register number identical to the winner's had been substituted for regular tickets in the drawing basket. He is cancelling all Bank Night drawings until the matter is cleared up.

Variety Idea Yields $5,000 for Britain

DALLAS—Final check of receipts of hotel dances put on here by theatre men for the benefit of British War Relief, disclosed that $5,000 was turned over to the cause. The committee in charge was composed of I. B. Adelman, chairman; W. G. Underwood, J. B. Underwood, Paul Short, Besa Short, Frank Starz, R. I. Payne, Herman Biersdorf, James O. Cherry, Jo Jack, Mike Rice, Paul Scott, R. E. Griffith, Lloyd Rust and Don Douglas.

Variety Club of Texas sponsored the movement.

Euler Back to Dallas as Booker for R. N. Smith

DALLAS—Bob Euler, who once was booker for the R. N. Smith theatres in the Valley, will return to Dallas soon to resume those duties. The job here includes booking for Tri-State Theatres, owned by B. R. McLendon of Atlanta.

New Orleans Grosses Are Tolled by Flu

NEW ORLEANS—While opposition of the strongest type developed here last week in the form of flu, "Kitty Foyle" packed her belongings and moved from the Orpheum to the Liberty. "Tin Pan Alley" made sufficient noise at the Saenger, and "Comrade X" drew well at Loew's State, topping the week's grosses.

Detail for week ending January 9:

(Average is 100)

Center—Charter Pilot (20th-Fox)..... 85
Globe—Down Argentine Way (20th-Fox), 2nd run. 90
Liberty—South of Suez (WB), 2nd run..... 85

Orpheum—Kitty Foyle (RKO) 130
Saenger—Tin Pan Alley (20th-Fox).....140
Tudor—North West Mounted Police (Para't)..100

No Standouts in Dallas; "Comrade" Mild Leader

DALLAS—There were no standouts on Elm Street for the week ending January 11. However, "Comrade X" was the leader at somewhat above average and winning a holdover at the Tower. "Flight Command" caused lot of talk and interest but its gross was little more than average. The Capitol came back with another double bill after unusual success the previous weekend with a similar bill of ware.

(Average is 100)

Capitol—Lone Wolf Keeps a Date (Col)..... 90
Played Wednesday through Friday.
Capitol—Doomed Caravan (Para't); Barnyard Follies (Rep) 115
Opened Saturday for play through the weekend.

Played nine days, going to Tower for holdover.
Rialto—Christmas in July (Para't)..... 90
Played three days.
Rialto—Dreaming Out Loud (RKO).....100
Opened Friday for play through the weekend.
Tower—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't).....100
Second week following first at the Palace.

O. C. Business Shows Signs of Perking Up

OKLAHOMA CITY—Ideal weather conditions, better attractions and lessening of the holiday buying "bottleneck," perked up business here last week. Indications are the next week may be even better.

(Average is 100)

Criterion—Four Mothers (WB).....120
Midwest—Thief of Bagdad (UA).....100
State—Arizona (Col), 2nd wk.....110
Tower—Love Thy Neighbor (Para't).....120

AFM Keeping "Hands Off" Of Ascap-BMI Dispute

NASHVILLE, TENN.—At the southern regional division convention of the American Federation of Musicians, an official spokesman said the group is "keeping its hands off" of the Ascap-BMI controversy. The same official predicts the fight between song writers, publishers and the broadcasters will be all over "within the next two or three weeks." The convention was attended by 40 delegates from 12 southern states.

He Plans Three—

O. C. Lam, head of the Lam Amusement Co., Rome, Ga., whose firm is pushing ahead on three of the largest Georgia theatre projects in recent years. The above photo was taken at the MPTOA convention in Oklahoma City last winter.

Lam and Associates Plan 3 New Ones

By HELEN HARDY

ATLANTA—Three new theatre projects for Georgia are announced by O. C. Lam and associates with the observation that "business prospects for 1941 are bright."

Lam says plans have been drawn for his new house in Rome and that negotiations for a building site are progressing. This will be the fourth for Lam in Rome. The new house will seat 800, and an expenditure of $75,000 is planned.

In Cedartown, where the firm already has one theatre, a second is under construction and will be completed early in May. In connection with this theatre, application has been made for the operation of a broadcasting station in the same building. It will be named the "West," after the oldest settler in Cedartown, and $100,000 will be expended on the project.

In affiliation with Wendell Welch of Dallas, Ga., and Cooper Welch of Atlanta, Ga., a brother, Lam will build in Grove Park a new theatre to seat 750. This project will cost $40,000.

Changes by Lam

ROME, GA.—Officials of Lam Amusement Co. announce that Ross Arnold has been made manager of the Alamo, Newnan, Ga., replacing Ecta Hutchison, resigned, who has joined Wilby-Kincey Theatres in Burlington, N. C. Milford Smith, formerly assistant manager of the LaGrange, LaGrange, Ga., is now manager of the Rockmart, Rockmart, Ga.

Santone May Get Mexican Industry

By LES KETNER

SAN ANTONIO—The million-dollar Mexican film industry may move here if Mayor Maury Maverick offers the right inducements, it is said by Jose U. Calderon, owner of the Azteca Films Distributing Co. of Mexico City, who was in the city briefly to confer with the mayor and also with J. J. Jimenez sr., manager of the Latin-American Film Exchange.

Calderon explained that labor trouble in Mexico has reached a crisis, with the 11 picture companies of the capital ready to move elsewhere. They are considering Tia Juana, but Calderon believes that he has every chance to persuade them to come to the Alamo City.

"I want to see how the mayor of your city feels about it, and what the city has to offer. And then I want to be sure our Mexican artists could come and go across the border unhindered. The San Antonio climate is even more ideal than California, and we would not use only Mexican artists, but local talent and laborers as well," he said.

The Mexican companies seeking the change are Groves, Raul de Anda, Raphael Sevilla, Iracheta y Elvira, Miguel Contreres Torres, Alfonso Sanchez Tello, Vicente Saiso Piquer, Juan Pezet and Producciones Soria. These companies, Calderon said, produce 50 pictures a year, which he buys and distributes to Mexico, Central and South America, Spain and the United States. At present no money can be drawn from Spain, although there are pictures that have cleared over half a million pesetas there.

A single picture in Mexico costs an average of 150,000 pesos to produce; in San Antonio it would mean the outlay of $40,000 a picture.

Following his conference with Mayor Maverick and Jimenez, Senor Calderon left immediately to put the matter directly before the motion picture companies of Mexico City.

Ruffin Will Build New Theatre in Humboldt

HUMBOLDT, TENN.—W. F. Ruffin, president of the Chickasaw Amusement Co., announces plans for the erection of a new theatre here. Plans are for a house, modern in every detail and in equipment, to seat 1,000. Humboldt is only a short distance from the site of the proposed $14,000,000 shell-loading plant near Milan.

Will Ask Probe of Ascap in Texas

Austin, Tex.—Rep. Joe Skiles of Denton, Tex., will propose an investigation into the control of Ascap over music in Texas when the state legislature convenes this week. Attorney General Gerald C. Mann will be asked to inquire into possible Ascap violation of state anti-trust laws.

DALLAS

DELANEY SEXTON, once a booker here for Robb & Rowley, drove through Dallas with Mrs. Sexton from their home in Los Angeles. For the past two years, Sexton has been living on the coast. He says he is a design engineer for a camera company which is now using two of his patents. It will be remembered Sexton was quite a camera bug while here.

Reports here are that Mrs. Marthe McSpadden, the Electra showwoman, is ill at her home with the flu . . . Eddie Fadal, manager and one of the new owners of the Ritz at Valley Mills, was here booking and placing the transportation of his films with one of the film motor lines. Incidentally, he became a subscriber to BOXOFFICE and picked up a number of back copies.

Johnny Long and his booker and general manager, Theo Routt, were up from their Bay City headquarters . . . H. A. Daniels, owner of theatres at Seguin, was here for the first time in months, primarily as a witness for Interstate in the Jorgensen trial. Daniels was a salesman for W. G. Underwood and United Artists for many years. His Seguin theatres are booked through Jefferson Amusement Co.

B. G. Herber of Herber Bros., equipment dealers, is having a time of it with the flu which set in before the New Year and is holding on . . . Ned E. Depinet, RKO's vice-president, on leaving here after a visit for New York, said he was very happy to have been here again and to have seen so many of his old friends. He commented also on the growth of Dallas since his days here . . . Paul Short, National Screen's district manager and chief barker of the Variety Club of Texas, is back at his desk after recovering from influenza.

Lew Groves, who opened the new Villa, a neighborhood, about a year ago in Oklahoma City, was on the Row after a visit with his brother, Jack, owner of the Queen in Houston . . . R. N. Smith, Valley circuit operator of Mission, was here en route home after attending the funeral of Homer Mulkey in Clarendon. Col. H. A. Cole, Allied president, remained in Clarendon an extra day to assist Mrs. Mulkey in whatever way he could.

Claude Adkinson, booker for 20th Century-Fox, has been called to the colors. He will go in training at one of the camps in San Antonio . . . G. A. Cole, who opened the new Cole at New Braunfels late last year, was here Wednesday and reported an upturn in business since the holidays . . . Another visiting exhibitor was Carl Allday, owner of the Eloia in Calvert.

John D. Jones, R&R city manager and partner in San Angelo; H. E. Hardgrave, city manager in Sherman, and A. E. McClain, R&R manager and president of the chamber of commerce in Colorado City, were in town Wednesday as visitors to the circuit's home office. Earl Schultz, the circuit's manager in Crockett, was here earlier in the week . . . J. Don Alexander, president of Alexander Film Co., was here to conduct a sales meeting with company salesmen over the territory.

Things looked much brighter when Old Sol came out in full blast Wednesday morning. For the past few weeks, exhibitors have taken a licking on their Saturdays and Sundays, because of the rain. Last Sunday was their first break in several weeks, but that was short-lived, as it rained again Monday . . . R. Z. Glass, owner of the new Stude in Houston, here for his damage suit against Interstate to be heard in Judge Atwell's federal court Monday, said he has passed all requirements as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Air Corps Reserves and is awaiting his commission from Washington.

Lee Scarborough was on the Row from his new Van Theatre at Van. He said nearly everybody in his territory has had the flu, including himself, and to make it worse there were many pneumonia cases . . . Lee Threet, former exhibitor and now engaged in the distribution of radios, was here Wednesday from Lufkin.

New Waters House in Birmingham Suburb

Walker Says Decree Will Hamstring "Little Man"

LAMPASAS, TEX.—The adoption of the consent decree and trailing protests from independent exhibitors that it will be of little help to them come as no surprise to Judge Roy L. Walker, president of the Theatre Owners Protective Ass'n here. He says as much, and clearly, in the following bulletin:

"In 1931 and continuously since said time, I have entered my protest against the attempt of Allied and others to place our business in the hands of the government or the department of justice, at all times sounding the alarm that we could expect no help for the little fellow through such agencies. The consent decree proves this. Allied and others, during the past ten years, have hammered at the doors of Congress and the department of justice asking that they take over the distribution and exhibition of pictures and lay down rules and regulations for our operation. After all these years they have brought to life the consent decree, and as we may always expect, the little fellows received no relief but were tied more securely to the will and desire of the distributors. Of course, Allied protested against the final consent decree but it is their child and what they should have expected.

Made Appeal in Washington

"I went to Washington and made an appeal to the department of justice to not force this decree upon us, but they had already made up their minds and nothing could be done. I also went to New York and made an argument against the entry of the decree before the court, but, with both the department of justice and the distributors hand in hand asking for the decree, we little fellows had no chance.

"The decree means this:

"1. You can buy no picture until it is trade shown in Dallas.

"2. Pictures must be bought in blocks of 5 or less.

"The balance of the decree in reference to arbitration, clearance and overbuying really means nothing to we small exhibitors.

"In my opinion, the consent decree will affect us at least in three ways, as follows:

"1. It will increase the cost of buying and the cost of pictures to us at least double.

"2. It will cause the small theatre to run pictures, instead of from three weeks to three or four months back of the key cities, to six to twelve months back of them.

"3. In my opinion, it will necessarily force the small theatre to join in some kind of buying organization or join up with chains already doing buying with offices in Dallas.

"I hope that I am wrong in just what this means to the small exhibitor but I have given it careful study and believe that I am right. However, we have the decree and we must make the best of it. It is up to us to give it a fair trial and see how it will work out. All this talk about injunction and legislation against the decree is foolishness. The independent theatres were not parties to the suit and have no rights thereunder, as on its face it does not affect them, and any attempt at congressional legislation would make a bad matter worse, as we cannot expect to get relief through agencies that know nothing of our business. This is the whole trouble and what has caused this decree; certain interests trying to stir up strife and contention and getting the worst of it.

Advice to Small Exhibitor

"The decree takes effect on the question of buying of pictures on September 1, 1941, and my only suggestion to the small exhibitor is to try and have sufficient pictures bought before that time so that he will be able to keep his playing time open for several months in order to meet the new buying conditions. Keeping in mind that no picture can be sold or offered for sale or lease until it is trade shown in Dallas and that each company must trade show five pictures before you can buy a block of five. It is not necessary for me to go into detail as to what this is going to mean to you.

"We are in no position to take any action and will not be until we can prove what the decree is doing to us, and for this reason I am asking every independent theatre owner, as soon as the new buying starts, to advise me personally of his trouble in trying to comply with the decree. I want to get this information from every exhibitor in order that I may be prepared to present concrete examples of what it is doing to the small exhibitor. In this way it may be that we can get some relief. Agitators have gotten us into this situation and we are only going to get out of it by an organized effort on our part."

A Bride for the Son Of C. J. Musselman

DALLAS—News has been received here that John Musselman, son of the well-known Paris exhibitor, C. J. Musselman, was married in Albany, Tex., last week to Miss Mary Anna Green.

The groom receives his B. A. degree this year at Texas University where his wife is a junior.

Rites in Clarendon For Homer Mulkey

CLARENDON, TEX.—Funeral services were held here last Sunday for Homer Mulkey, veteran Texas exhibitor who died Thursday in a Fort Worth hospital following an operation. Exhibitors from all over west Texas were here for the rites for the 64-year-old showman who had been a Texas exhibitor for 31 years.

The auditorium and basement of the First Christian Church, in which he was an elder, was filled to capacity and hundreds stood out in the streets. The six preachers in Clarendon all took part in the services and all spoke of Mulkey's exemplary life.

"The rich and the poor, white and black, the underprivileged and fortunate, all will miss him and what else can I say?" one of the ministers said of him.

Mulkey is survived by his wife and a brother in California, who, with Lee Bell, assistant manager of the Pastime and Cozy theatres in Clarendon, were with him when he died.

A partial list from over the state who attended the services includes: Col. H. A. Cole and J. M. Reynolds of Allied; Henry Sorenson, Burt King, Ted Lewis, T. R. Barber, Hiram Parks, all of Dallas; Lonnie Legg of Denison; P. V. Williams of Munday; H. S. Leon of Haskell; R. N. Smith of Mission; W. J. Wooten of Canyon; Rufus Layton, Childress; H. B. Skelton of Panhandle; J. C. Parker, Dalhart; Jack Hurst, Abernathy; Griffith men from Pampa and Lubbock, and many others.

The Variety Club of Texas, of which Mulkey was a member, sent a message to the Clarendon Christian Church on Mulkey's passing.

Mulkey was a member and active worker in independent theatre owner organizations, and for the last several years was a director of Allied of Texas. He was also a member of the Lions Club and was identified with a number of civic and charitable movements.

Recruit Problem Solved by Stern

Oklahoma City—There was quite a to-do locally concerning what the boys brought in from over the state to be inducted into the Army were to do during a four or five-hour wait for transportation to Fort Sill, so Bert Stern, Criterion manager, stepped forward with an idea.

The result (and some nice publicity with pictures and all in the local press) was that the boys are now brought to the Criterion in charge of a sergeant and admitted to see the theatre's regular picture without cost. Time is matinee period and a special section is roped off.

Variety Entertainment Entrusted to Hisey

MEMPHIS—Homer Hisey was elected chairman of the entertainment committee for the monthly luncheons to be held by Variety this year at the inaugural luncheon Monday. M. A. Lightman was "King for the Day," and in conjunction with Harry Martin of the Commercial Appeal he arranged the program.

The guest list included Ethel Taylor of the Memphis Open Air Theatre; Bill Elliott, who was making a personal appearance at the Strand; Nick Lucas, who is appearing at the Hotel Claridge, and Charlie Wagner, manager of Jeanette MacDonald, who was here for a concert appearance.

It was "Malco Theatres Day," and these Malco managers were in for the occasion: J. R. McEachron, city manager, Jackson, Tenn.; Burgess Waldron, Princess, Columbus, Miss.; Paul Jones, city manager, Pine Bluff; Clayton Tunstill, city manager, Owensboro, Ky., and W. Clyde Smith, city manager, Hot Springs, Ark. M. S. McCord, secretary-treasurer of Malco Theatres in North Little Rock, was also on hand.

Concerning the Southeast

By A. JULES BENEDIC

MEMPHIS—With the flu bugaboo finally on the wane, the Memphis area faces the future with confidence, interviews with local exhibitors and exchange men disclose. There is a fine spirit prevailing and the goose undoubtedly hangs high.

BENEDIC

We wend our way to West Memphis, which, by the way, is in Arkansas, and chat with J. J. Rhodes, satrap of the Crittenden Theatre. "J. J." was most enthusiastic in his description of the theatre, which has many points of merit. For one thing, the Crittenden, built entirely of steel, enjoys the lowest fire rate of any house in Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi. All wires are in steel conduits, and steel is used for the backs of chairs. In a town of 4,000, this is a most creditable operation. In addition, Mr. Rhodes has 24,000 more persons in the county, so this excellent cinema has what is termed a big "draw." Folks come here even from Memphis, the owner reports.

Handy Square Happenings

Back in Memphis, we call upon Zerilla and Maceri, who control the colored situations on world-famous Beale Street. Two shows are operating at present, the Daisy and Palace. The old Grand has been razed, and on the grounds is being erected a fine new modern show for colored folks. This operation will be completed, Mr. Zerilla says, between March 15 and April 1.

We idle out to the Idlewild, an independent suburban operation in the hands of Nate Evans and the Cullens brothers. This set-up also controls the Savoy, a suburban house devoted to Negro patronage. The Idlewild is the last word in modernity, and a credit to the city.

We run out to the Royal in Memphis, a house more than a quarter of a century old. Walter Parham has been here as owner-manager since '26 . . . We meander to the Madison and ballyhoo about with Bellas, whose first name is Tom . . . Memphis meals are on a high par. A sign reads "only 11½ hours to New Orleans by bus" and maybe it's that rather close proximity that causes this cuisine . . . On the Main Stem we visit both Loew houses, and also Warner's. Down at Malco's, M. A. Lightman is not available, so we meander away from this hospitable southern city, and head for Atlanta.

Old Home Week on The Row

En route, we stop at Bolivar, Tenn., where the tidy Luez Theatre, we ascertain, was named for its owner, Miss Louise Mask, who wanted a name with only four letters. The townspeople joined in a contest, and the contraction of this pleasant lady's first name resulted . . . We pull into Pulaski, a Cumberland stronghold, and jaw with E. R. Jackson, who manages the Sam Davis for this important circuit. He tells us that the Best Theatre, closed for two years, now is receiving finishing touches and will reopen approximately February 1.

We ramble into Rome, Ga., and go to the offices of O. C. Lam, in order to see his secretary. O. C. Lam, according to that usually authentic publication, BOXOFFICE, is in Honolulu, but imagine our surprise when Oscar himself shows up after our request to see the guy in charge. It seems that Mr. Lam's planned trip to southern waters and Hawaii has been postponed for the time being. We renew our acquaintance with Oscar, whose three new theatre projects are detailed elsewhere by our Atlanta correspondent.

Another "old home week" on The Row. In a hurry, we don't catch many notes, but, meeting Ike Katz on the street, we ascertain that PRC's staff has been enlarged with the addition of Miss Bernice Ball to the office force.

Fire in Bristol

BRISTOL, TENN.—The New Norton was recently destroyed by fire with a loss of $50,000 to $60,000. The fire also destroyed 10 apartments above the theatre.

OKLA. CITY

THE remodeled Folly is getting set for reopening. Standard has begun teaser ads to call attention to the house, but has indicated no policy or pictures as yet. Best guess is first-run thrillers. Word has it that Dee Fuller, Circle manager, will be named manager of the Folly . . . Gordon Derrick, house manager of the Warner and former assistant manager of the Circle, has resigned to go into the oil business in Texas.

Work is going ahead nicely on the Variety Club's new building in southtown. It will be used as a health center. Walls are up and the roof is being put on as this opus is being written. It is expected the club's $45,000 charitable project will be completed and ready for use sooner than was originally expected.

National Theatre Supply gave out some nifty leather do-dads which can be used as a brief case or letter container on one's desk. Made a hit with the trade . . . Those were good photos of Dee Fuller and his lady that Dee had taken at Christmas time. Could be!

Assign Frankovich

HOLLYWOOD—Mike Frankovich has a featured role in Universal's "Buck Privates."

MEMPHIS

EXHIBITORS seen along the Row: Earl Vandiver, Kennett, Kennett, Mo.; Henley Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.; John Crabtree, Merlu, Clarendon, Ark.; C. W. Tipton, New, Manila, Ark.; P. H. Bill Bugie, Paramount's local manager, reports his crew is again intact. During the flu epidemic, he had eight employes off at one time . . . B. V. McDougald of Monticello has closed the Amusu there. He will continue to operate the Drew . . . Jack Revill, Paramount salesman, and the family are back after a visit to South Carolina . . . Juanita Scruggs, cashier at Vitagraph, is back on the job after a fight with flu . . . Mary Ripley Shattuck, booker's secretary at Vitagraph, is recuperating from an appendectomy at Methodist Hospital . . . Frank Neel, Paramount booker, has returned from Jacksonville, Fla., where he visited his parents.

Bill Osborne, branch manager for Monogram, is back after a trip by plane to Jacksonville, Fla., where he went to be with his brother who was in an airplane crash. Bill reports his brother was badly bruised and shaken up, but that he will soon be okay again . . . M. B. Hasty of the Joy, Dardanelle, Ark., paid the Row his regular monthly booking visit. He is just up from ten days in bed with the flu . . . Clayton Tunstill, Malco city manager in Owensboro, Ky., reports good advance ticket sales on "Little Men" for a show being sponsored by the Federation of Women's Clubs there. The Federation will use their percentage to furnish a room in the city hospital . . . Tommy Baldridge is the new availability clerk at Vitagraph.

Lee Gentry is the new accessory salesman at Republic. He replaces Seed Wortsmith, who has been called for a year's military training. Lee, incidentally, is the brother of Claude Gentry of Baldwyn, Miss. . . . Horace Stanley of the Radio at Beebe, Ark., another visitor . . . Marjeanne Baer, Jimmy Rogers' secretary at Columbia, and Billy Crouch were married January 4. The couple honeymooned in New Orleans and Florida. He will leave the latter part of January for a year's training at Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga. . . . E. W. Gibson, who for 20 years operated the Tutrovansum in Tutwiler, Miss., died recently at his home after several months illness. Mrs. Gibson, at present, is operating the theatre.

C. C. Mundo and E. C. Pickthorne of Central Theatres, Inc., Little Rock, who just opened the Liberty in North Little Rock, were Filmrow visitors . . . Al and Mrs. Wilson of the Bay at Red Bay, Ala., were in for the monthly luncheon by the Variety Club. Wilson recently became a full-fledged member of the club, and this was his first trip since becoming one of the boys.

Regent in Sudbury To Taylor Chain

TORONTO—The Regent at Sudbury, Ont., reconstructed a year ago at considerable cost, has been taken over by 20th Century Theatres, headed by Nat Taylor who is the chairman of the Motion Picture Section of the Toronto Board of Trade, from R. T. Stevens of Sudbury, owner of four other theatres in northern Ontario. It was acquired on a 10-year lease at a reported rental of $30,000 per year and will be under the management of Jack Alexander, brother of Harry Alexander, proprietor of the Lansdowne, Toronto, who is also widely known as the president of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario. The Regent is the second largest of four theatres in Sudbury, with 1,161 seats.

Reconstruction of the Madison, Toronto, which had been taken over December 1 by 20th Century Theatres from the estate of John Brady, has been considerably delayed because of a holdup of delivery of structural steel and other building materials due to war demands and the theatre may not be opened for some time yet, although it had been announced that the Madison would reopen at the end of 1940. With the exception of the side and rear walls, the theatre is being rebuilt throughout along modern lines.

Incidentally, there has been an intimation that Famous Players Canadian Corp. has decided not to rebuild the Alhambra which is opposition to the Madison.

The Belmont, a neighborhood house in the Toronto West End seating 320 persons which had been idle for two years, has been reopened by Paul Naslen who has leased the theatre for five years from the owner of the property which includes an apartment building.

The Mayfair, Jane Street, Toronto, which has been operated by Abe Polakoff for years, has been taken over by Sam Firestone, prominent member of the Independent Theatres Ass'n, who owns the Aster and Esquire, Toronto, and the Esquire, Brantford, Ont.

Twentieth Century Theatres is proceeding with the erection of a new theatre in Chatham, Ont., which already has two houses, the Capitol of the Famous Players' chain and the Granada, a unit of Hanson Theatres Corp.

Building Last Quarter Centered in Ontario

TORONTO—Theatre construction activity in the Dominion in the last quarter of 1940 was centered mainly in the province of Ontario, a survey by BOXOFFICE correspondents in key centers of Canada reveals. Below is a break-down by provinces of announced new theatre building.

Alberta

Edmonton—The new 780-seat Garneau has been opened by Suburban Theatres, Ltd. It cost $100,000.

Lethbridge—C. F. Doughty has acquired a site for a new theatre.

British Columbia

Courtenay—E. W. Bickle has opened his new E. W. Theatre.

Vancouver—It is reported a theatre will rise on the site of present excavations on Cambie Street.

He'll Have Time to Think What He Said

Toronto—Charles Baltes, an officer in the German army in the last war, was fined $300 and sentenced to serve six months in jail, after which he will be interned for the duration of the war when he was tried in Toronto police court on a charge of creating a disturbance in Major's St. Clair Theatre during a performance of "Four Sons." According to witnesses, Baltes shouted, "That's right, shoot the dirty ———," when German soldiers were depicted machine-gunning Czech civilians.

Baltes was roughly handled by patrons until rescued by police who had been called by Sam Major, proprietor of the theatre. In court, Baltes claimed he had said, "That's right, they shot my brother," but his story was denied by witnesses.

Victoria—George Waring is manager of the new York.

Victoria—Famous Players Canadian announces a $200,000 theatre project.

Ontario

Cornwall—A 700-seat theatre is contemplated for this locality.

Fort William—Famous Players will lease a building here for conversion into a theatre.

Hamilton—A 750-seat theatre is planned here.

Nobel—The Allen chain has opened a theatre here.

Owen Sound—L. D. Kniffen will convert a building here into a theatre.

Parry Sound—The Allens are now operating a new theatre here.

Pembroke—Sam and Ben Ulster have started construction of a new theatre downtown. It will seat 500.

Sarnia—A third house, seating between 700 and 800, is in prospect for this town. Famous Players will build.

Tilbury—Twentieth Century Theatres is operating the new 700-seat Plaza. Harland Rankin is manager.

Welland—Famous Players is erecting a new theatre which will seat 800.

Quebec

Montreal—A. Woolf is erecting a new theatre to seat 800 on Sherbrooke St.

A new house is rumored for the north side.

A new theatre is in prospect for the west end.

Thirty Candidates Take Gov't Projection Course

TORONTO—Thirty candidates for operators' certificates are taking the newly-organized projectionists' 12 months' course of the Ontario government under the direction of O. J. Silverthorne, which had been authorized by Premier Hepburn to standardize instruction of apprentices, the fee being $100. It has been announced that radio principles have been added to the curriculum as a subject so that the students might become wireless experts for the army if necessary.

Among those taking the course are projection apprentices, electricians, munition workers on night shift and theatre and exchange employes. At the conclusion of the course, successful students will be awarded a diploma of qualification which will entitle them to take charge of theatre projection.

Says Grierson Will Continue in Job

MONTREAL—John Grierson will remain in Canada and serve as national film commissioner, despite his announced resignation, according to the Financial Post. The publication suggested that he should be put to work at once on a documentary film to boost war savings certificate sales.

The producer paused in Montreal, en route from New York to Ottawa, long enough to inspect the new picture, "The Peoples of Canada," produced at Associated Screen News plant by Gordon Sparling.

Grierson Discusses Relation Of Films to War Effort

OTTAWA—John Grierson of London, England, who is stepping out of the office of Dominion Film Commissioner which was created under the National Film Board Act of 1939 by the Canadian Parliament, has made two public appearances in both of which he discussed the relation of films to war effort, one discussion being heard on the network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Grierson delivered one address before the Ottawa Women's Forum at the YMCA when he delved into the psychology of motion picture entertainment and gave an analytical outline of the principles which underlie wartime propaganda, tracing the organization and effects of various methods of disseminating information. During the course of his learned discourse, Grierson described at length the special characteristics of the Nazi method of frightfulness by using the screen for a strategy of terror before striking a blow at a country.

Tea was served following the address by Grierson.

Death Closes Colorful Career of B. W. Silver

TORONTO—Death closed the colorful career of Boris W. Silver, president and general manager of Colonial Pictures, Ltd., when he expired suddenly in New York City where he had gone to negotiate for several independent features for the Dominion.

Three years ago Silver came to Toronto practically a stranger to establish an independent exchange and took a suite of offices in the Film Exchange Building, gradually expanding largely through his own personality. Only recently he had returned from Montreal with his salesman, James Davidson, after dealing with a move to establish a branch in that city to be added to those in Winnipeg and Vancouver. He had not been in the best of health for some time but maintained a dapper figure, which had become familiar as he mingled with exhibitors on Filmrow. At New Year's he donated the rental for the premiere of "One Night in Paris" at the Avenue to the British War Victims' fund and went to New York a few days later where he dropped dead while talking to two film men at Rockefeller Center.

MONTREAL

GRADUALLY creeping back to normal after the holidays, business in the theatres is found encouraging by managers, most of whom consider that 1941 is likely to be at least on a par with 1940 and may be better.

United Amusement Corp. theatre managers presented Frank Warnicker, invalided veteran manager, associated for nearly a lifetime with the Strand, with a New Year's gift of a radio receiving set . . . Don Cameron, assistant manager of the Snowdon, is recovering from a severe attack of the grippe which confined him to his home for several days.

Lucienne Boyer, Parisian film star and comedienne, whose visits to Montreal have been red letter events for the students of the French-Canadian university, has been arrested in Paris on a charge of speculating in foodstuffs. She is the wife of the comedian Pills, of Pills et Tabett, also well known on this continent and in Parisian cinema circles, prior to the German occupation . . . "In Spite of Hitler We Re-open Next Week" read a poster outside a wrecked cinema in Coventry. It had been placed there after a raid which damaged the theatre previous to the holocaust which wiped out the city.

Theatre doormen often have reason to feel bellicose, and this may account for the fact that two of them, Alex Taylor of the Rialto and Eric Byrd of the Monkland, are now with the Canadian Active Service Force. Taylor is in Newfoundland, and Byrd has already arrived in England.

Harvey Cassett of ASN still department spent the New Year's holiday at the Seigniory Club, Montebello, Que., covering activities of the festive season there. Charlie Wilkinson of the same department spent several days at Quebec City on stills for tourist publicity . . . J. W. Campbell, newsreel editor of ASN, was a visitor to Ottawa . . . Colin Munro, formerly of the sales department of Associated Screen News, who is with an artillery unit, is one of the latest Canadian stalwarts to reach England.

The efforts put forth by the Nazis to prevent the showing of Charlie Chaplin's powerful propaganda picture, "The Great Dictator," caused S. Morgan-Powell, editor-in-chief of Montreal Star, to reflect that "it is a curious commentary upon the limits of German psychology that it should think it possible by protesting against these pungent caricatures, to prevent their propaganda value from achieving its object. The Nazis tacitly admit their value and importance by asking various countries to refuse to permit their presentation."

All news reporting agencies are on the alert to assist their country in time of war, and newsreels are no exception. Last week an Associated Screen News crew proceeded to Ottawa and interviewed Hon. Colin Gibson, minister of national revenue. Roy Tash, cameraman and Dick Harrison, sound technician, covered a story on a new plan offered by the Dominion government for installment payments of this year's higher income taxes.

From theatre usher to army officer is the right-about-face from civilian to military life achieved by Peter Tessier, head usher of the Snowdon, who is now Lieutenant Tessier of the Canadian Active Service Force . . . Randolph Walsh, another of the Snowdon's ushers, is back from a month's military training . . . Miss Rita Ireland, cashier at the Snowdon, has secured a position in the office of No. 1 Wireless School.

"The Thief of Bagdad" is in its third week at the Orpheum. Another color film, "North West Mounted Police," drew capacity audiences to the Imperial . . . "Bitter Sweet," musical comedy film, is held over at Loew's . . . "The Ramparts We Watch," March of Time feature, was at the York. Fred Astaire and Paulette Goddard in "Second Chorus" was light and bright fare at the Capitol.

VANCOUVER

HARRY GLEAVES of the Orpheum, Dawson City, made the trip to this city by plane in exactly two days time. He plans an extended stay . . . Chuck Wilkins of Bralorne has bought a new car and advises that he is very well pleased with it . . . Sam Nagler of UA returned from a trip to Vancouver Island reporting that theatre business was exceptionally good.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Murray of Lillooet down to Victoria. Mr. Murray is member of parliament for the Lillooet district and, consequently, makes many trips to the coast . . . Fred Stone, EU salesman just returned from a trip to the Bridge River Valley, reports very cold weather, with some snow there.

Ivan Ackery of the Orpheum was arranging for an elaborate "world premiere" on Thursday of "Hudson's Bay." The premiere will be simultaneous with openings in Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Victoria, all cities whose early history is bound up with that of the great company, the origin of which is portrayed in the picture. Streets will be illuminated here for blocks on all sides, and a Hollywood orchestra will be in attendance. It is probable that one or more stars of the picture will be present. The entire ceremonial will be filmed for Fox Movietone News, and will be broadcast over a local station.

Jim Stewart of Pioneer misses his favorite sport, that of skiing, but doctor's orders will not allow him such strenuous relaxation.

Members of the local office of Empire Universal Films are engaged in a business-getting drive which is the largest that the company has ever put on.

Many Dominion Filmgoers

TORONTO — In 1939, Canadian theatres were patronized by 138,497,043 persons, who paid a total of $34,010,115 for general admission, exclusive of amusement taxes.

Hilarity Abounds at Affair for Jeffery

By ROY CARMICHAEL

MONTREAL—Motion picture distributors, managers, owners, producers and members of allied industries mingled together in the Stanley Grill, January 9, in one of the most hilarious parties of the winter. The occasion was a send off to A. J. Jeffery, retiring Montreal district manager of United Artists, who has been appointed Toronto district manager.

Jeffery was the recipient of several presentations, some valuable and serious, others rather comical. He had to acknowledge a couple of suitcases, a bag of flour, an old bowling club trophy cup, a live goat, a live rooster, and a couple of steins of beer—not to drink but as a bath, the contents being solemnly poured over him as a quaint means of wishing him godspeed and good luck.

Arthur Hirsch of Consolidated Theatres, Ltd., presided and showered encomiums on the guest. Tom Dowbiggin of Paramount, assisted by John Ganetakos, of United Amusement Corp., was master of ceremonies. Three general managers from Toronto graced the scene with their presence. They were Sam Glazer, United Artists; Dave Coplan, Columbia, and Morris Milligan, Paramount.

Among those noted at the head-table and elsewhere in the hall were: George Rotsky, Consolidated Theatres; J. Chauvin, United Amusement; W. Lester, United Amusement; W. J. Singleton, Associated Screen News; Lloyd C. Pearson, Dominion Sound Equipments; N. Lawand, Confederation Amusement; Charles Chaplin, new Montreal manager of United Artists; Ed English, 20th-Fox; M. Isman, Empire-Universal; Phil Sherman, Warner-Vitagraph; H. Taylor, RKO; M. Brown, Paramount; John Levitt, Regent; W. Cass, Regal; W. Elman, Columbia, and a host of independent theatre proprietors and managers from theatres all over the city.

A floor show added to the delights of a "well-spent evening."

UA Transferees Report For Their New Duties

MONTREAL—C. S. Chaplin, former United Artists manager at Saint John, has arrived here to succeed A. J. Jeffery, Montreal district manager, who has been named manager of the Toronto branch. Jeffery succeeds Sam Glazer, who was promoted to Canadian general manager on the ascension of Haskell Masters to the post of UA western division manager for the United States and Canada. George Feiber becomes manager of the Saint John exchange.

Double Celebration

SUDBURY, ONT.—Marking the Capitol's 10th anniversary and the opening of "North West Mounted Police" at the theatre, was a party held at the Hotel Coulson by Manager Sid Scott and his wife. Guests of honor were members of the Mounted Police and the Ontario Provincial Police.

TORONTO

N L. NATHANSON, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., has gone to Florida to spend the winter on the advice of his family physician, having required medical attention in recent months because of increased business responsibilities and the taking on of added duties in connection with national war work, both in theatre cooperation and broadcasting details.

Isser Singerman, manager of the Imperial, Ottawa, received a visit from his entire house staff immediately after the close of a recent evening performance when he was presented with an address and the gift of a traveling bag as a token of esteem. In accepting the token of good will, Singerman referred to the happy relations which had been maintained between the personnel and himself throughout the past year.

President O. R. Hanson, Vice-President Paul Nathanson and General Manager A. W. Perry of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., Toronto, are making a tour of inspection of western branches of the company to the Pacific coast and for a study of wartime conditions in the prairie provinces.

Sam Glazer has become established in the office of Canadian district manager of United Artists in succession to Haskell Masters and is busily engaged in the organization of details, including the installation of branch officials in new posts, the latest appointment being the selection of George Heiber as manager at St. John, N. B., in succession to Charles Chaplin who has been promoted to the Montreal office, following A. J. Jeffery who has taken over the Toronto branch.

Leslie Jefferies of the Patricia, London, Ont., has been appointed assistant manager of the Grand, Sudbury, in succession to J. M. Silverthorne, who resigned to become manager of the Strand, an Allen house at Tillsonburg. Roy Miller, who has been residing in the United States until recently, has been appointed assistant manager to Tom McKnight at the London Patricia in succession to Fred Thompson who has been made manager of the Rex at London. These changes have been announced by H. C. D. Main, supervisor of Hanson Theatres Corp. Incidentally, Main has intimated that a convention of Hanson chain managers will be held in Toronto in the spring to replace the usual get-together in December which was cancelled because of other important business details in connection with war cooperation work.

The Ottawa franchise in the Canadian-American Baseball League has been finally transferred officially to Schenectady, N. Y., and the Canadian capital will have to do without baseball for the duration of the war because of military use of the ball park. Don Stapleton, manager of the Center, Ottawa, was president of the Ottawa Baseball Club for several years.

Miss Norma Reney, 19-year-old invalid of Toronto, has received a number of personal gifts from Pat O'Brien, film star, including a gold wrist watch, silk nightgown and a woolen sweater. Some years ago, O'Brien received a letter of encouragement from the Toronto girl "at a time when I needed inspiration." Last November when the star and Mrs. O'Brien were on a holiday tour, they made a special trip to Toronto to visit Miss Reney.

Two visitors to Toronto via the air were Hollywood personalities who were "ferrying" war planes from California for delivery to the Royal Air Force. They were John Trent, actor, and Lewis Bateman, private pilot of Wallace Beery, who were in a party of ten airmen who landed planes at the Toronto Island airport after a stormy ride.

William Forward, sound engineer of Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd., has been appointed an instructor of the Ontario government's school of projectionists which has been opened at Toronto for its first 12 months' term with 30 pupils. The two other instructors are government employes, Hilliard Gray, theatre inspector, and Milton Elliott, chief operator who has been in the provincial office for 32 years.

Henry Marshall, manager of the Rideau, Ottawa, is now the happy husband of Miss Audrey Boehmer of that city, according to recent announcement. Gordon Beavis, manager of the Royal, North Bay, has taken unto himself a wife in the person of Miss Dodds of Peterboro, Ont., where Gordon formerly resided. Mr. and Mrs. Wanie Tyers of St. Thomas, Ont., have announced the arrival of a daughter, Gail. Tyers is manager of the Granada in that city.

Nick Dotsch, proprietor of the Hillcrest, Toronto, and Mrs. Dotsch celebrated the first anniversary of their marriage by taking a trip to Chicago after which Mrs. Dotsch proceeded to Florida for a four-week rest while he returned to the management of the theatre.

Al Sanderson, treasurer of Hanson Theatres Corp., experienced a holiday at the Toronto City Hall, having been called up for jury duty . . . Personal gifts donated by various Hollywood stars as prizes for the War Savings Stamp Campaign of Toronto but which were not used because of re-arranged plans are being held by the War Services Committee. They will be offered shortly in a stunt to aid Canada's war effort.

Ed Wells, for many years national secretary of the Canadian Film Boards of Trade, has been named secretary-treasurer of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada under the reorganized setup. He continues as secretary of the boards and his office is in conjunction with the distributors' association.

James Melton is making a personal appearance in Toronto on January 22 under the auspices of the Royal Regiment of Canada in aid of Canadian war charities. He plans on making a visit to the troops at Camp Borden where he sang for the soldiers on a Canadian trip last summer.

Charles P. Wright, born a Scotsman and a resident of Winnipeg for a long period, has been named as a member of the production staff of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. For a time he was in Hollywood where he worked in pictures but most of his experience has been as a theatre employe in the Dominion and on the stage in dramatic stock companies . . . Pete Bardessino and Dan Mascioli of the Goldfields Theatres interests were in Toronto on a business trip from Timmins, northern Ontario.

Grant Garrette, manager of the Geneva, Orillia, pulled a good stunt for "Two Girls on Broadway" by using a life-size cutout of George Murphy and two girls for a street ballyhoo, the head of Murphy having been removed from the set. Male pedestrians were invited to have their picture taken with their faces occupying the vacant head space. The photographic prints were exhibited in the window of the camera shop and the first 15 men who identified themselves in a picture, standing between the two lovelies, received passes to the show.

Manager Don Doberer of the Granada, Dunnville, Ont., has adopted the plan of calling up three persons to ask them what the current attraction is at the theatre and the correct answer brings the award of a pass to the theatre. He doesn't just know what to make of the situation, however, because, over a period of time, he did not have to send out a complimentary.

O. J. Silverthorne, chairman of the Ontario censor board, has recovered from an attack of influenza and is again operating full time.

VICTORIA

THROUGH the courtesy of Ralph Calladine, proprietor of the Plaza, the Rotary Club is sponsoring a drive to aid the Lord Mayor of London's fund, at the theatre. Each night before the showing of "Pastor Hall," a speaker announces the plan from the stage and members of the club sell tickets on the aisles.

"Jock" Robertson, manager of the Capitol, arranged a plug for the premiere of "Hudson's Bay" on January 16 in the form of a half page illustrated article on the film in the magazine section of a local newspaper. Victoria was one of the most westernly outposts of the company of adventurers, which today operates a department store, fur and land departments here.

The city council is looking with favor upon efforts to establish an ice arena at the Willows Horse Shoe Building in the Exhibition Grounds, which the city owns, but wants to see a definite plan before endorsing the proposal.

Joe Neagler of United Artists Vancouver office, a visitor to the city last week, is expecting "The Thief of Bagdad" to have a record opening at the Plaza.

Team Cummings and Arthur

HOLLYWOOD — Robert Cummings will have the lead opposite Jean Arthur in "The Devil and Miss Jones." Frank Ross and Norman Krasna produce for RKO.

Metro Renews Hertz

HOLLYWOOD—Metro has renewed the writing contract of David Hertz.

EDMONTON

DESPITE decreases in business reported by all managers here, New Year's Eve frolics were more successful than usual. All downtown houses were sold out two days previous to the showings, while neighborhood theatres were well filled. Prizes valued at $1,500 were given away at the Capitol while the Rialto offered similar prizes. Several hundreds of dollars in prizes were given away at the smaller houses. Despite higher admissions, these frolics, which were first originated at the Capitol under Walter Wilson, gain in popularity every year and are unique in Alberta. Calgary has followed the example set in Edmonton during the past two years.

Frank H. Kershall, district manager for Famous Players' western division, was a recent visitor from Calgary. While here he conferred with several managers . . . Fred Tickell, formerly assistant manager of the Capitol in Calgary, has arrived here to take over the management of the Princess, neighborhood theatre of the Entwisle chain.

A quiz program for the holders of thrift tickets is being sponsored by the Capitol under the management of Walter Wilson. The program is given from the studio of a local broadcasting station and includes questions of topical interest as well as geographical and theatrical. Contestants may choose the subject of their questions and may double their money on subsequent questions.

"The Great Dictator" is expected to show at the Rialto late next month or early in February, according to Jay Lieberman, manager. One of the most popular pictures shown recently at the Rialto proved to be "The Thief of Bagdad," said Lieberman, who stated that heavy bookings prevented a holdover.

Patrick J. Nolan Dies After Lengthy Illness

OTTAWA—The death has occurred in a local hospital of Patrick J. Nolan, independent theatre owner for many years, after a lengthy illness thus bringing to a close an eventful career as an exhibitor and politician.

"Paddy," as he was known, was born here 59 years ago and early became the proprietor of a drug store, entering the theatre business more than 25 years ago. He opened the Rex in the West End, added what is now known as the Nola and eventually opened the handsome atmospheric Avalon in Ottawa South. For some time he was ably assisted in the operation of the three houses by members of his family, Maryan Nolan and one son, Ambrose. An opponent of the chain interests, "Paddy" caused some surprise when he leased the Avalon to Famous Players six years ago. During his lengthy illness, the Rexy and Nola have been managed by Miss Maryan Nolan with creditable showing.

To Build in the Spring

FORT WILLIAMS, ONT.—Famous Players will build a new theatre here in the spring.

Urge Playing Time for Series of War Films

TORONTO—The Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League has sent out a general order to all Legion branches and zone commanders to extend cooperative assistance to local theatre managers in the presentation of the "Canada Carries On" series produced by the National Film Board and released through Columbia Pictures of Canada, Ltd., on a commercial rental basis.

Announcement is made in the circular that 660 theatres in the Dominion have signed contracts for these monthly releases and the Legionnaires are requested to support the performances when shown and to encourage other exhibitors to book the series as a form of national service.

Into Move to Restrict Juvenile Patronage

WINNIPEG—As the result of a petition presented to the Manitoba legislature urging amendment of the provincial act to prohibit children under 14 years of age to attend motion pictures classified as adult, a special committee is now investigating this matter.

Giving evidence before this committee, the Rev. W. E. Donnelly, pastor of Young United Church here, claimed that Catholic and Protestant churches, service organizations, clubs, etc., were all behind this effort. At the same time he brought forward another petition with an additional 5,000 names.

Reverend Donnelly said that every effort had been made to get cooperation from exhibitors before bringing the petition forward. Although there had been much favorable aid given, and a certain amount of short-time cooperation, he claims exhibitors later went back to the old type of adult bills at children's matinees. This move, he said, was explained by exhibitors as due to a lack of films of the kind desired.

E. K. Williams, counsel for 35 exhibitors of the city, told the committee he believed he was talking for the majority of parents when he said the answer to the problem was in the home and with the parents themselves. He argued it was not one that could or should be worked out by the government.

Replying to one member of the "better films" committee, he said that the standard of business morality in the film industry was as high as in any other type of business. Then he went on to explain that exhibitors had nothing to do with the nature of films produced, which they bought sight unseen for the year's showings. He pointed out that the Winnipeg film exchange supplied theatres in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and western Ontario and that the demands made it impossible to get films classified as general simply by asking for them.

In reply to a suggestion that double features be abolished at Saturday matinees, Williams said producers would like to get away from the policy but the public demanded this type entertainment.

WINNIPEG

OVER 900 newspaper carriers of the Winnipeg Free Press, together with their mothers and helpers, were guests of the newspaper at a special showing of "A Dispatch From Reuter's" at Syl Gunn's Metropolitan. The occasion was to mark the distribution of awards in a contest sponsored by the National Newspaper Carrier Press of Minneapolis. With carrier pigeons flitting across the screen and carrier boys filling his house, Gunn had a neat tieup with his film and also a nice break with the story in the daily which plugged his house and film.

An attractive tieup has been made with the T. Eaton Co., and other leading book stores, for window displays of the book "Mein Kampf," which has been made into a film and released by Grand National. Proceeds of the sale of the book will go to charity . . . Harold Bishop is looking forward to big doings next week when "Hudson's Bay" opens at his house. Bishop, together with George Frazer of 20th Century-Fox and Jack Fitzgibbons of the Metropolitan have cooked up some effective angles for publicizing the film.

W. H. Keirl, Coliseum, Semans, Sask., reports good business on the Lord Mayor's dedication program, consisting of "The Warning" and "Hitler—Beast of Berlin" . . . It is reported that the continued interest in reports from Vichy of the strengthening stand being taken by the Petain government, is of particular interest to exhibitors in western Canada in view of the number of French and French descendants who make up theatre audiences.

Leslie Allen, formerly with Grand National in Vancouver, has taken over the York in Victoria . . . William Kelly, formerly with RKO and Warner in Calgary, has been appointed manager of Grand National's Calgary office . . . S. E. Rost, popular Garrick manager, is on the sick list. Also Andie Ostrander, assistant treasurer at the Capitol, who has achieved complete ostracism with a case of "German measles" . . . Paul Nathanson, vice-president of Empire Universal; A. W. Perry, general sales manager for E-U, and Oscar Hanson, president of Hanson Theatres, are expected in next week.

Another visitor will be J. O'Loghlin, general manager of 20th Century-Fox, who will arrive here for the opening of "Hudson's Bay" at the Capitol . . . Dave Rothstein of Rothstein Theatre Enterprises has returned from Saskatoon and a tour of the circuit in Saskatchewan . . . Bob Rennie has resigned as Winnipeg booker for Vitagraph . . . S. Greco, formerly with 20th Century-Fox in Winnipeg, has joined the staff of Grand National . . . Ted Cohen of Warner's, Winnipeg, has returned to his post after a 30-day military training period . . . Miss Frances Goffman, a local actress, has gone to Hollywood to study with Maria Ouspenskaya.

Lyric in Ruins

MINNEDOSA—The Lyric is in ruins after a fire which gutted the house last Friday evening. Damage is estimated at about $15,000.

NUGGETS

"I'M NOT 'COMRADE X,' but I'm going to the place where you'll find him," was the copy carried around town by a sandwich man as one of the highlights of the "Comrade X" campaign put over by Louis Guidette, State, Charleroi, Pa. The man passed out numbered heralds, and those whose numbers corresponded with a list displayed in the lobby were awarded guest tickets.

The cover of the press book on "Sea Hawk" was placed in the boxoffice window of the Symphony Theatre in Chicago by Manager Bob Kennedy, a week in advance of the picture's run.

Manager James F. McCarthy of the Strand in Hartford, Conn., distributed blotter-rulers to the public schools, as part of his publicity on "Thief of Bagdad." The blotter rulers were in the shape of film strip and carried film-like scenes from the picture down the length. The ruler ran along the margin and playdate copy at one end.

A youngster dressed in woman's clothes paraded downtown Holyoke, Mass., with a sign: "If you think I'm funny, wait until you see 'Sailor's Lady' at the Victory Theatre." The stunt was Manager George Laby's.

Every person named Kelly in Hartford, Wis., was invited to be an opening night guest of the Hartford Theatre as part of the "Little Nellie Kelly" campaign put over by Charlie Braun. The invitation made page one in the dailies.

An old patrol wagon cruising the streets with men dressed as the Marx Bros., was part of the ballyhoo for "Go West" put on by H. D. Grove of the Fort Theatre at Rock Island, Ill.

An identification contest was one of the features of the "Third Finger, Left Hand" campaign put over by Milton D. Lewis, Fischer, Danville, Ill. An usher, impersonating Myrna Loy's "missing husband," toured several department stores with a copy of the local newspaper under his arm. Customers recognizing him received guest tickets to the theatre.

For his "Dulcy" campaign, Morris Rosenthal, Loew's Poli, Bridgeport, had a pretty young lady in uniform stroll through streets with a package marked: "Kisses from Dulcy." To all the curious she tendered a candy kiss.

These "Pickets" Were Welcomed—

A street ballyhoo used by Edward H. McBride at Loew's State in Providence for "The Thief of Bagdad." Sixteen boys were used, all wearing turbans and carrying an individual sign in color. "Good results," McBride reports.

Launch "Land of Liberty" With Advance Screening

MEMPHIS — Representatives of educational, civic, patriotic and other organizations, as well as members of the press, attended an advance screening of "Land of Liberty" as part of the campaign put over for the film by Cecil Vogel of Loew's State. A letter from Mayor Chandler urged citizens to see the picture.

Vogel also arranged a radio round-table discussion on the film, and secured the cooperation of every leading group in the city in circularizing information on the production.

"Escape" Teasers

SALT LAKE CITY—"Escape" teaser lines were utilized in a novel way by Ray Hendry of the Centre during his campaign for the film. Phrases like "You can't escape 'Escape'" were stenciled on sidewalks in residential and business districts.

Seeing It Sold Cinches Deals

Evidence that good showmanship not only sells the public but even sells a picture to an exhibitor, came from Eddie Selette, the Albany, New York, showman whose campaigns have frequently merited depiction in the Selling Seats pages of BOXOFFICE. Following the reproduction of Selette's front for "After Mein Kampf," in the December 21 issue, Selette received a letter from a Michigan showman, sold on the idea of showing the picture himself, and asking details.

"Nuts" Angle to Hilt In "Go West" Gags

CLEVELAND—An "All-Laugh Week" was inaugurated by Joe Longo, Loew's publicist, as part of his "Go West" campaign. He had three men, dressed as the Marx Bros., walk along crowded shopping streets and hand out bags of nuts. Also dwelling on the "nut" angle, Longo offered guest tickets for the nearest correct count on a large bowl of them displayed in a store window.

Ed Pentecost Uses Postcard Message

ATLANTA—A real laugh-getter was the postcard message used in advance of "Go West" by Ed Pentecost of Loew's Grand.

The message read: "At the request of a close friend of yours, we are shipping you, under separate cover, samples of our raindrops. Besides bringing relief from the drought, they can also be used in larger quantities to bathe the canary. We would refer you to the manager of Loew's Grand Theatre as to our qualities, but he has gone completely nuts since seeing the new Marx Bros. picture, 'Go West.'"

"Marxes" in Patrol Wagon

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—Three men dressed as the Marx Bros. cruised the downtown section in a patrol wagon as part of the advance "Go West" campaign put over by H. D. Grove of the Fort. Grove also planted large lumps of coal, sprayed with gold, in local store windows, with a sign reading: "You don't have to 'Go West' to find a fortune in gold."

A Sure Traffic-Stopper—

One of a series of window displays devoted by Bloomingdale's department store in New York to the film, "They Met on Skis." Other angles in the store-wide tieup for the film in its playdate at the 55th Street Playhouse included newspaper ads, a 16mm reel from the film in the ski, sports and camera departments, and a ski fashion show in the theatre.

Utilize Portable Radios To Publicize "Nanette"

SALT LAKE CITY—Manager Dave Edwards of the Rialto, for "No, No, Nanette," put out 20 attractive girls with portable radios tuned into a special "Nanette" broadcast over KDYL. The girls visited downtown stores and distributed candy novelties advertising the film while shopping crowds listened to "No, No, Nanette" tunes.

Auction "Escape"

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—An auction of four autographed copies of "Escape" garnered columns of publicity and art for Mort Berman of the Orpheum. Auction was held on the stage and proceeds went to charity. Exploiteer Gene Rich assisted and helped put the same stunt over at Len Worley's Madison in Peoria.

Milking Contest

DENVER—A milking contest on the stage of the Orpheum was arranged by Manager Mickey Gross and Terry Turner of RKO's exploitation department, for "Little Men." The Denver Post cooperated in the stunt.

"Information" Broadcast Wider

NEW YORK—The Lucky Strike-sponsored "Information Please" broadcast network was increased by 20 stations on January 3. This makes a total of 113 stations in the NBC network carrying the ether program around the theme of which RKO's shorts series of the same title is based.

Many Serialize "Kitty"

NEW YORK—One hundred and fourteen newspapers are using the "Kitty Foyle" serialization currently, with more than 100 additional publications scheduled to run it within the next few weeks.

May Secure Cooking School Tieup Free

BOSTON — Cooking school tieups are available, without charge, to exhibitors in those parts of the country where Lever Brothers send special promotion crews, L. B. Sanders of the Consumers' Service Department informs BOXOFFICE.

Any exhibitor in the country is eligible to avail himself of the cooking school plan if he is in a district being serviced by one of the concern's special corps. Such segments now are operating in certain parts of Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, New York, Illinois and Missouri.

Any exhibitor interested in the proposition, Sanders suggests, might write him for further information at Lever Brothers, 50 Memorial Drive, Cambridge, Mass.

Uses School Schedules

WATERBURY, CONN.—With the cooperation of the local board of education, Ed Fitzpatrick of Loew's made up and distributed to schools, loose-leaf sheets on the top half of each of which were printed regular students' classroom schedules. The bottom half carried theatre copy.

Honor Buttons for McCurdy, Gilman

New York—M-G-M has awarded Honor Roll buttons to William B. McCurdy, manager-publicity director of the Broadway, Portland, Ore., for his campaign on "Land of Liberty," and to Sam Gilman, manager of Loew's, Dayton, Ohio, for his on "Bitter Sweet."

Big Campaign for "Kitty" in Philly

PHILADELPHIA—A "Kitty Foyle" newspaper contest featured the campaign put on locally by Manager Stanley Benford of the Boyd for that RKO picture.

The Daily News sponsored the contest which ran for ten days before opening, with generous allotment of daily stories and photographs. At a Ritz-Carlton Hotel luncheon for the contestants, the winner was selected and on the opening day she visited, in a Cadillac car decorated with pennants marked "Kitty Foyle," all the spots mentioned in the Christopher Morley novel. The same evening she acted as hostess at the Boyd habited in the original gold lame gown worn in the film by Ginger Rogers.

Producer David Hempstead made a special trip to Philadelphia and was tendered a luncheon attended by newspapermen who interviewed him.

The "Kitty Foyle" serialization in the Bulletin ran for three weeks. Newspaper trucks were placarded with the announcement and newsstands covered with tack cards.

Fifteen hundred de luxe window cards were distributed throughout the city; tie ups were arranged with principal bookstores featuring specially-printed cards with Ginger holding a copy of the book; daily radio broadcasts over WCAU announced the premiere at the Boyd and a 15-minute interview with the winner of the Daily News contest was held over Station WPEN on opening night.

Serialization of "Kitty" Highlights Campaign

NEW ORLEANS—Manager Vic Meyer of the Orpheum used the serialization of the Christopher Morley novel as the highlight of his campaign on "Kitty Foyle." A tie-in was also arranged with Godchaux's department store for a complete window featuring a "white collar girl." Walgreen's drug stores featured a "Kitty Foyle" sundae and the local bookstores set up an elaborate "Kitty Foyle" window featuring the popular dollar edition.

Assure Women "Kitty" Is Suitable for Children

DETROIT—The local tradeshowing of "Kitty Foyle" was combined with an intelligent piece of exploitation in the form of an invitation to some 2,000 representatives of Parent-Teachers' and similar organizations to the preview at Wisper & Wetsman's Roosevelt.

The preview was announced in the newspapers—one of the few ever to receive any newspaper publicity whatever here—but in editions after the starting time so that only the invited guests would attend.

One objective of the outside invitation was to convince leaders of these various civic groups and women's organizations that Ginger Rogers, the film's star, has made in "Kitty Foyle" a picture wholly for children. It will be recalled her former picture, "Primrose Path," was banned by the censor in this territory.

Western Daze

Paramount (Puppetoon) 9 Mins.

Very good. One of the most striking novelties in shorts today created and produced by George Pal with a musical background by Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra. Photographed in Technicolor the blend of shadings is gorgeous to the eye, particularly the backdrops. There is a bit of a story which stirs the puppets into action and song. There is Jim Dandy, the tenderfoot, who meets up with two scurry-looking bandits only to be put on the spot for allegedly stealing the sheriff's horse. But an eye-full of femininity, better known as the sheriff's daughter, saves the day for Jim Dandy, as does the wooden steed.

The Sacred Ganges

Paramount (Fascinating Journey) 11 Mins

Impressive. Benares is a city in India dedicated to the worship of a strange, incomparable river, the Ganges. The people who come to the city to worship, their holy customs, Hindus of all castes and conformities, young, old, betrothed and afflicted are covered by the Technicolor camera. As social or historical documentation it ranks high. The holy men who sit for years, never moving, while the sacred Ganges flows by —others who stare forever in the sun and others who torture themselves to win divine favor and cremation of the dead are impressive sights. Narration is handled by Frank Gallop.

U. S. Military Academy, West Point

Columbia 10 Mins.

Well filmed. Nothing new on the subject is shown in this reel. Students at West Point study tactics, mechanics, chemistry, field maneuvers, handle guns and flex their muscles. Then they play football. Possibly audiences might be interested more at the moment than at any other time.

You, the People

M-G-M (Crime Does Not Pay) 21 Mins.

Excellent. Were there more short subjects of this character the chances are there would be fewer double feature programs. It's packed solid with an absorbing expose of election racketeering. When it's over it leaves the deep conviction that Mr. and Mrs. Citizen owe it to themselves and to their country to vote as a duty, not a convenience. From behind the scene it shows how ballot boxes are stuffed, voters intimidated, business men victimized, etc. And all this in a story that is compact, smooth and smartly handled.

Breezy Little Bears

Paramount 11 Mins.

Terrific. This reel featuring three mischievious little bears—the same ones that were in "Busy Little Bears" that copped an Academy Award in 1939—should send patrons of all ages out of your theatre asking for a repeat showing. It's crammed with more delightful, ingratiating humor—the natural kind—than many, many cans of studio stock. By name they are Horace, Herbert and Herman. Frank Crumit, the radio star, does a grand job as commentator in pointing up the situations. And they're a scream; first in a hay loft, then in a tub of soapsuds, sneaking pies off the window sills, cowering before a goose, dabbling around a dairy, cavorting in a baby carriage and much more. It's a top-notch laugh provoker.

Old New Orleans

M-G-M (FitzPatrick Traveltalk) 9 Mins.

Colorful. Technicolor does much to enhance the camera highlights of this historic Louisiana city. In the usual FitzPatrick manner, the reel offers a wealth of material for the armchair traveler; not the least of which is an atmosphere distinctly associated with the Old World. This is particularly true in the many evidences of the French and Spanish influences in architecture, landmarks, parks, restaurants, etc.

Dog in the Orchard

Vitaphone (Broadway Brevity) 20 Mins.

Compelling. A Mary Roberts Rinehart story makes an interesting tabloid screen drama. A farmer who killed his wife in order to run away with his clandestine sweetheart is eventually brought to justice when his wife's dog persists in coming back and bringing the sheriff with him. Neatly handled in all departments.

The Fighting 69th ½

Vitaphone (Merrie Melody) 7 Mins.

A rib tickler. In Technicolor, black ants and red ants imitate man in warfare when a picnic food spread is left unguarded. They perform all the maneuvers in the book. At length, an armistice is arrived at when a lone piece of cake is left. There is dispute over the division of the icing, war commences again.

Timid Toreador

Vitaphone (Looney Tune) 7 Mins.

Clever. Porky sells hot tamales at a bull fight. He wanders into the ring and contacts the bull. There follows a harum-scarum chase all over the place when the bull gets burnt—after eating the tamales. After many close shaves Porky, minus a few bristles, wins the contest.

Acrobatic Aces

Paramount (Sportlight) 10 Mins.

Interesting. Spectacular acrobatics and tumbling, featured by a group of experts, highlight this entertaining subject. It is the sort of thing most people marvel at on theatre stages. Here, the camera is a definite improvement over the stage, in that angles and slow motion are presented. The participants do their stuff outdoors and offer a variety of somersaults, pirouettes and back flips that look like the tops. The experts range from youngsters to a troupe of men and a quartette of comely girls.

Meet the Fleet

Vitaphone (Technicolor Special) 20 Mins.

Interesting. This just about completes the series on the services. With a slight story thread the footage, neatly filmed, tells of the training of young men once they join the force, the opportunities for learning trades and the first voyage on a battlewagon. The location is the San Diego naval base.

Problem Pappy

Paramount (Popeye) 7 Mins.

Fair. Not much in this cartoon distinguishes it from others of the series. Popeye's father, it seems, becomes imbued with the spirit of adolescence and goes in for some flagpole sitting. He's perched rather precariously on top of a high building and the footage is given over to Popeye's efforts to get him down to safety.

Boobs in Arms

Columbia (Three Stooges) 18 Mins.

Average. A little late, the Three Stooges this time register one based on induction into the army. They are men of goodwill, fundamentally, but run into a louse of a sergeant. During a sham battle they are taken prisoners, inhale laughing gas, demoralize the enemy and ride off, the three of them, on a passing shell. The last few hundred feet are funny.

Sea for Yourself

M-G-M (Pete Smith Specialty) 10 Mins.

Thriller. The magic of the camera seldom has a better opportunity to show off than in this blood-tingler. Most of it is shot under water, depicting a new kind of sport: Spear-fishing. The men manipulate with special, light-weight equipment strapped to the back. Here they go after the game, and it's mighty sporty fun. But the hair-raiser comes when a giant ray traps a diver in a cave. His colleagues come to the rescue, but encounter a swordfish which must be eliminated before the rescue is affected. It's action that staging can't match.

BOXOFFICE The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

"Dear Senator Wheeler"

THIS is one time the industry did not retreat under fire, but turned its face squarely into the accusation and let the answering facts fly. The very circumstance, so often desired but less often forthcoming, makes the Wheeler-Hays correspondence important. We would say important of and by itself and set aside in its own solitary compartment. More so, through this department's telescope, however, because it introduces steel to the celluloid backbone and because it long has been the conviction here that a mating of this nature must be permanently encouraged if the industry entertains any intentions about not being constantly kicked in the backside.

The facts, of course, must be familiar by now. Senator Wheeler, in the press, accused the industry of carrying forward "a violent propaganda campaign intending to incite the American people to a point where they will become involved in war." Wrapping the august cloak of senatorial high-and-mighty a bit closer around his shoulders, he threatened regulatory legislation unless more impartiality rules the roost.

Riding hard to the rescue came Will H. Hays. By analysis and trailing statistic, he entered the denial, drawing upon last year's product to advance this rebuttal:

"The record thus indicates that sixteen per cent of the newsreel clips dealt with a variety of people and current events related to national defense; only 2.4 per cent of the short subjects and five per cent of the features approved during 1940 had any relation, direct or indirect, to European politics or the European war, and no appreciable fraction of even these small percentages of the total can be said to show an intention to incite to war."

Other Days Are Ahead

THUS, the particular incident may or may not become a closed chapter. But if it does, let no one get the idea others will not crop up. As hysteria mounts, and it will, the industry and the tremendous influence it can imprint on the public consciousness will be submitted to close scrutiny, subjected to minute criticism. If these are not war times in America, certainly they are not peace times.

Your observer had something to observe about this last fall when "Pastor Hall" was experiencing censorship pains in Chicago and "The Ramparts We Watch" in Pennsylvania. With your leave and because he feels those earlier observations are more pertinent now than then, he repeats, briefly:

"It is not at all unlikely that, as it grows older and as world events take on more acuteness, this will become a business of communication, as well as of entertainment, through celluloid. There are current signs. Through the documentary method, 'The Ramparts We Watch' talks preparedness. 'Pastor Hall' inflicts its sledge-hammer blows on the Nazi scheme of things . . . Both are clear-cut examples of communicating thoughts and facts. No doubt, there will be other occasions concerning themselves with other matters. In one form or another, and presumably as well as hopefully, through the entertainment approach chiefly, the industry may determine for itself, or by suggestion advanced, to take a stand on other issues facing the nation . . . No one can foretell the direction from which [opposition] may develop. For it's a large country full of divergent points of view. This ought to be no deterrent, however. There is no valid reason why the freedom surrounding the newspaper and the radio should be denied motion pictures.

"This business and the medium at its disposal can have a great deal to say in the cause of general good without relinquishing its commercial character. It must feel free and be free to do so in reasoned, well-matured terms, bush league fuehrers in the guise of police and political censors, and from there on up, notwithstanding."

The Job Is Weighty

WITH this go no unbridled liberties, no quick leaps at conclusions, no assumptions a cause is necessarily fitting because it is noisy. The responsibility is a heavy one. It is also one which the industry cannot successfully dodge or sidetrack.

Insofar as Wheeler's charge is concerned, we believe the industry guiltless. In fact, all that the industry has done, thus far at least, is to peer into the mirror held aloft by the times and to reflect in essentially typical terms the events it sees there. Like the press. Like the radio.

If it is a reflection which many find unpleasant and alarming, the fault lies with the times and not with the industry.

WHEELER'S REGULATION THREAT LEAVES WASHINGTON UNRUFFLED

International Situation Against Action; Reply By Para't "Adequate"

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Threats of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana to seek legislation regulating the "propaganda activities" of the industry are not being taken very seriously in Washington, where it is conceded that in view of the serious international situation it is essential that the American people be aroused to a realization of the need for an adequate defense.

At the same time, it is felt in some quarters that the Senator's charges were adequately answered by A. J. Richard, editor of Paramount News, to whom Wheeler had complained of "propaganda for war" and who asserted that no such purpose exists.

As evidence of the nonpartisan stand of the newsreels, Richard recalled that Senator Wheeler was extensively featured two years ago when he was fighting the proposed packing of the supreme court by the President.

Scores March of Time

Undeterred by lack of support, however, Senator Wheeler lashed out anew against film war propaganda, telegraphing to Louis de Rochemont, editor of the March of Time, a demand that his picture and utterances be immediately stricken from "Uncle Sam, the Non-Belligerent," latest March of Time release.

"This issue of March of Time may make some of your war-mongering friends lyrical when they see it, but it is a thinly disguised effort to report current events," the Senator declared caustically. "It is so obviously war propaganda that I doubt whether even you will advance a hypocritical plea of impartiality."

Says Statement Was Cut

Discussing the matter, the senator said he had been given to understand that his statement would be used equally with those of the President and that he was surprised to find they had been cut to once sentence.

While the Montana senator's honesty, ability and popularity are admitted in all quarters of the Capitol, as an isolationist he has embarked on a course counter to that of the administration and while, as chairman of the interstate commerce committee, he might be able to jam a control measure into the Senate, it would get no further. And there is only a possibility that he could get it through even his own committee.

The future course of all motion picture legislation is highly uncertain at the moment, so far as the Senate is concerned. Before he resigned to become governor of West Virginia, Senator Matthew M. Neely re-submitted his block booking and divorce bills, but whether they ever receive consideration is seen as depending, in the first instance, on who succeeds him in the Senate.

A Senate committee now is struggling with an unprecedented situation to determine who shall be seated as Senator from West Virginia. Within a few moments of the time Senator Neely was sworn in as governor, retiring-Governor Holt appointed Clarence A. Martin, former president of the American Bar Ass'n, to the Senate position, and Neely himself named Dr. Joseph Rosier, West Virginia college president, to the same post.

If Senator Neely's nominee is seated, it is possible he will take up the film fight where the new governor left off—and since Neely is a former member of the Senate, his candidate is seen as having a good chance.

On the other hand, if Martin gets the seat, it is unlikely that he will interest himself in his predecessor's bills and, although it is possible to put through a measure introduced by a member no longer sitting, it is more likely that the bills will be left to collect the dust that filters into the archives of the interstate commerce committee.

New Production Index Provides Data on Forthcoming Films

To fill an increasing need for such data, BOXOFFICE with this issue starts the new Production Index, a department of vital information on forthcoming feature pictures. Arranged alphabetically by companies, the service provides title, type, top cast names, synopsis, director, and release date where it has been set. The new Production Index appears on the last two pages of this issue; it will be published each fourth week.

Crackdown on Ticket Evaders Seen Behind Gov't Warnings

WASHINGTON—Behind the warning of the bureau of internal revenue that exhibitors must show admission prices on their tickets is a Washington belief a drive against violators is in the offing. Thus far, the bureau merely has pointed out failure to show prices subjects theatremen to severe penalties under the law, but there are indications a number of instances of unpriced tickets have been unearthed, most of them apparently among low admission, tax-exempt houses. Recently, BOXOFFICE reported investigators were gathering information throughout the middle west.

It is revealed that there is little difficulty in ascertaining which exhibitors are buying tickets on which the price of admission is not printed. Ticket manufacturers are required to submit reports on all orders, containing the name of the purchaser, the number of tickets ordered, the opening and closing serial numbers, and proofs or sample copies of the tickets themselves.

Check on Compliance

The collector's office, it is disclosed, examines such tickets to verify whether they are in all instances printed in accordance with the law and regulations, and with respect to any improperly printed tickets (including those marked "tax free" but as to which there is no record of an exemption having been granted) an immediate investigation is made to ascertain whether admission tax is due and, if so, whether adequate steps have been taken to insure its collection.

All taxable tickets are required to show, in addition to the price, the tax and the total, the name of the place to which they are valid for admission and must either be dated or serially numbered. Circuits desiring to use tickets showing the name of the circuit rather than the name of each

"IT LOOKS LIKE A GOOD YEAR," SAYS THE EXHIBITOR AT LARGE

Defense Spending Viewed As Hypo for Majority Of Nation's Houses

Some indecisions? Of course. Differences of opinion? Naturally.

But up and down the land, cross-sectionally, theatremen are reflecting general optimism of a high order for this new year. BOXOFFICE correspondents asked why. The following dispatches report their findings:

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE—Loath to make any long range predictions, exhibitors here are nevertheless hopeful that 1941 business, during the first six months at least, will top that of the previous year.

They base this hope on the fact business has shown an upward spurt within the last week and in the light of rising payrolls resulting from increased defense orders in this territory.

In November, the state industrial commission estimated, 93,200 wage earners were employed in manufacturing industries in Milwaukee—11,500 more than in July, just before the defense program orders began to flow, and almost equal to the average for 1937. The estimated weekly payroll for November was $2,863,000, a $563,000 increase over the July average and $59,000 better than the estimate for that month in 1937.

The average weekly wage in November, 1940, was $31.05, compared to $28.45 in July, and averages of $27.75 in 1939, $25.76 in 1938 and $27.68 in 1937. The average number of hours worked weekly in November was 40.9, compared to 38.3 in July and averages of 38.4 in 1939, 35.9 in 1938 and 38.5 in 1937.

San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO—Undisguised enthusiasm prevails among all theatre owners, independents and circuits, in this territory. Even the most conservative feel that 1941 will be a great year for the business in Northern California.

It is the opinion of the exhibitor the decree is strictly in his favor, even though it may put him to work, and he feels the studios will rush fine pictures through during the first six months of this year because of it.

When anyone mentions the nation's defense program around this city, he is rewarded with broad smiles. This territory is getting a large hunk of the government's spending program and it takes no expert in economics to know that money poured into a city will circulate. The navy yard at Mare Island has almost doubled its population within the past few months. Bethlehem Steel has increased its personnel and payroll tremendously. The Presidio, one of the nation's largest army posts, and within the San Francisco city limits, is constantly building barracks to accommodate the influx of soldiers. And the big army camps at Fort Ord and Monterey are only a three-hour ride by car or bus.

The first two weeks of 1941 further indicate theatres may anticipate big boxoffice. The attitude of business is this year will be a banner one. The Christmas season was about 35 per cent over 1939 sales for the same period. This will give some idea of why the exhibitor is making big plans.

Take another look at the defense angle. The Bethlehem plant, the McCormack shipbuilding yards, and the Presidio are within the city's metropolitan area. The Mare Island navy yard, Camp Ord and Camp Monterey, the new Oakland navy airport, Hamilton Field, Moffat Field, and the proposed navy training field on Treasure Island are close enough to the city to provide patrons for the city's theatres. This is a huge addition to the city's populace. Of course, there are houses near these camps, fields, and plants but it is an accepted fact the soldier, sailor, and worker head for San Francisco when the opportunity presents itself.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI—Business in 1941 is on the upgrade, is the consensus of opinion among Queen City independent and chain operators.

"Business in defense program areas," states Maurice White, associated with Ike Libson in RKO theatres and president of United Theatres, "undoubtedly will increase. Business in theatres experienced a

Grainger Reflects Optimistic Trend

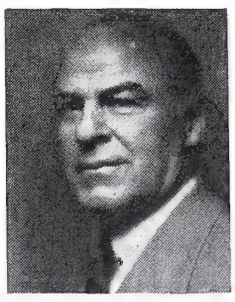
President, Republic Pictures Corp.

New York—In my opinion, prospects for the industry for 1941 were never better.



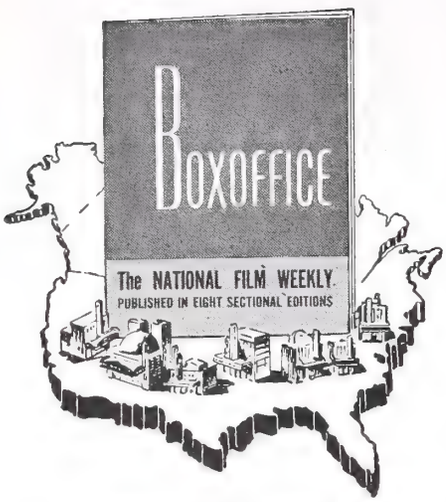
From my observation of the entire country during a recent tour, I find general business conditions on the upgrade which means a larger circulation of money which, in turn, is bound to help theatre attendance.

The public, I believe, are entertainment-minded at the present time and, unless some unforeseen circumstances arise, I believe 1941 will be a banner year in our industry.

Says It's a Case of Product; Sees Need to Attract Youth

By SIDNEY R. KENT
President, 20th Century-Fox

HOLLYWOOD—Prospects for our industry for 1941 will be in proportion to the Hollywood studios.



The national payroll will be increasing by leaps and bounds which means that the money will be in circulation if we have the product to attract it.

Our industry is getting a lot of competition that did not exist a few years ago. Literally dozens of new race tracks throughout the country, pin ball games, bowling, professional football and many other types of attractions not in existence a few years back, are competing with us for the loose dollar that is available for entertainment of some kind, and this makes the going tougher for us than ever before even with the same quality of product we have had in the past.

In my opinion, the biggest problem the industry has to solve at the boxoffice is this—how to get in the youth of the country between 14 and 21 years of age. I think that is where we are definitely weak.

All of these things put together as problems of various kinds can only be solved in one way. That is, product.

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

IN THIS space a few issues back, the young reviewers of the National Board of Review had their story told. The conclusion then appeared to be that these boys and girls, ages ranging from eight to eighteen, are (1) individuals with definite likes and dislikes; (2) not part of tomorrow's, but of today's, audience and (3) not a segregated section of that audience demanding entertainment rolling off their own assembly line.

Four of them, presumably typical, went on the air Wednesday afternoon to explain what kinds of films children think children prefer to see. Some of their viewpoints struck us as arresting, and who knows but there lurks a lesson in them as well. Among others, it seems these cross-sectional ideas hold root:

"Forty per cent of Hollywood's boners could be eliminated if they would listen to us.

"Gangster pictures are all right, if they're funny. Having the cops win all the time, though, becomes monotonous," insisting even a gangster deserves an even break. Is the Hays office listening?

Love pictures are variously defined as "moosh, lovey-dovey and silly." Torrid love scenes on sofas embarrass. Necking is bad enough in the park, but in a closeup, "well, it's just not nice."

Child performers under ten get razzberries. Over ten, they are expected to act their age.

Accuracy is apparently a sort of phobia. They know how many stars ought to be in the flag, which way to bite the dust after a shot, the kind of trees that flourish in southern New Mexico.

At any rate, the broadcast appealed to the journalistic appetite of the New York "World-Telegram." Floyd Taylor, assigned to interview the youthful broadcasters, asked one of them, Daniel Feeley, his candid opinion of Hedy Lamarr. Daring to tread where oldsters could not possibly display the courage, this twelve-year-old replied:

"I think she stinks as an actress and I wouldn't call her any too beautiful."

Plan From Detroit

WALTER R. Stebbins, manager of the Film Exchange Building, Detroit, suggests a one-reel synopsis of each in-block film as a way out for the exhibitor. He would have it show "the essential nature of the film" checked over by "a board of some type . . . to assure essential accuracy in summation."

Let's get out the spyglass. Stebbins thinks the idea would be permissible under the decree. That is questionable; seemingly, he forgets the whole film, after completion, must be shown, although it is true the exhibitor doesn't have to see it. But if we were in the exhibition business, we would be decidedly hesitant about attempting to figure out values on the basis of one-reel boildown. And, if we were in the distributing business, what a field day this one-reeler plan would provide. Those studio editors are clever birds.

Amusing, however, is Stebbins' observation: "Exhibitors don't like to keep on looking at pictures—it is work, after all." If it is work for the exhibitor, what is it for the audience?

Please advise.

"Dear Mr. President"

IT WOULD be pleasant to contemplate it. But it wouldn't make very much sense.

Northwest Allied has written the President asking him to schedule future fireside chats for Monday, not Sunday, evening because "The Champ" continues a drawing card that nothing in Hollywood can approach and theatres, therefore, are very shy on customers when he takes to the air waves. It cuts into the government's taxes, too.

We like to think of this as a big and vital business. And so it is. But the President's job is to run a business that represents all the people alongside of whom Northwest Allied and its concern over Sunday night grosses loom as significantly as a lonely ripple on the ocean.

Besides that. If FDR did switch from Sunday to Monday, he probably would have Cecil B. DeMille protesting on behalf of Lux Theatre of the Air.

Para't Realigns Sales, Gets Set for 5-Blocks

Up Another Notch—

He is understood to have wanted it for a long time. Now Charles M. Reagan, western sales manager for Paramount, becomes assistant general sales manager, a newly-created post and part of a rearrangement preparatory to operations under the decree.

Morris Joseph Retires With Universal Pension

NEW YORK—With the retirement of Morris Joseph as New Haven branch manager, Universal for the first time in its history has awarded a pension to an employe. In the business 29 years, Joseph spent 26 of them with Universal. He plans to leave for Miami shortly.

Succeeding Joseph is John Pavone, formerly Warner manager in the same city and who was special representative at New Haven until Joseph's retirement.

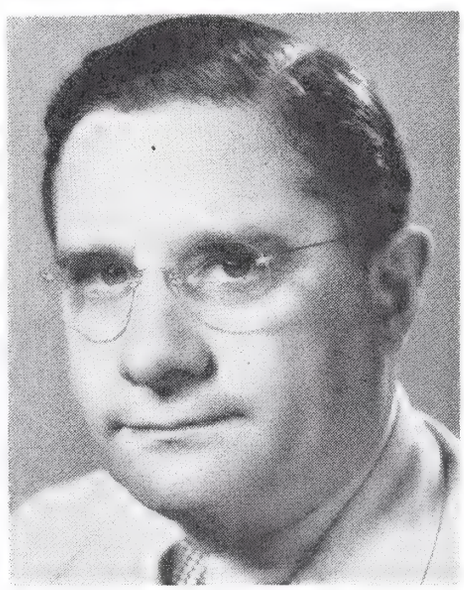
CHICAGO—Re-gearing its sales machinery with both eyes planted on operations under the decree, Neil F. Agnew, vice-president and general manager, this week effected these Paramount changes:

1—Named Charles M. Reagan, current western sales manager, to a newly-created post of assistant general sales manager.

2—Elevated George A. Smith, now west coast district manager, to Reagan's former post and expanded that division to embrace six southern and southwestern exchanges.

3—Eliminated the southern division, until now headed by Oscar A. Morgan and named the latter short subjects and Paramount News sales manager, thereby indicating a concentration in 1941-42 on those types of releases.

These shifts, and others, were divulged at the company's sales meeting which was held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel midweek and which was climaxed by a testimonial dinner arranged by Paramount's theatre partners for Barney Balaban at the same hotel Thursday evening.



The reshuffle, while it reduced national divisions from three to two, at the same time stepped up sales districts from eight to ten. Joseph J. Unger, eastern divisional and Canadian sales manager, will continue in that post. Several of his districts, however, undergo realignment. William Erbb, New England district manager handling Boston and New Haven, now gets, additionally, Albany and Buffalo. Earl Sweigert, Philadelphia branch manager, gets a new district composed of Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburgh. Milton S. Kusell will handle New York, New Jersey and Brooklyn, giving up Albany and Buffalo to Erbb and Philadelphia and Washington to Sweigert. Harry Goldstein, district manager out of Pittsburgh, will continue to handle Cincinnati and Cleveland as in the past, but relinquishes Pittsburgh to Sweigert and takes on Detroit and Indianapolis from Allen Usher, district manager in Chicago. Erbb, Sweigert, Kusell and Goldstein are responsible to Unger.

Smith gets the remaining six districts. Usher is to supervise Chicago and Milwaukee as in the past but takes on Minneapolis from R. C. LiBeau. The latter will handle Kansas City, St. Louis and Des Moines, encompassed in his current district, but gives up Omaha to a new district which will include Denver and Salt Lake City, formerly in Smith's territory. No manager has been named for this district for which headquarters will be centered in Denver. Hugh Braly, currently district manager out of Dallas, transfers to the coast where he will handle Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle, all exchanges in Smith's old area. Hugh Owen has resigned a district managership with UA in the south to join Paramount in charge of Dallas, Oklahoma City and Memphis, which is Braly's old territory. John F. Kirby, former branch manager at Atlanta, has been elevated to a district composed of Atlanta, Charlotte and New Orleans, succeeding Harold F. Wilkes, whose temporary retirement is dictated by illness. E. B. Price, former New Orleans branch manager, becomes Atlanta manager and, in turn, is succeeded in

George A. Smith, (left) former Pacific Coast district manager, becomes western sales manager, succeeding Charles M. Reagan who, in turn, becomes assistant general sales manager. Smith's territory will embrace the six south and southwestern exchanges formerly handled through the southern division which is to be disbanded. Oscar A. Morgan (center), former southern sales manager, will handle national sales on shorts and Paramount News. Del Goodman (right), for years far eastern representative for 20th Century-Fox, is designated general manager for Canada, succeeding Morris A. Milligan, resigned.

Tribunal Clerks to Arbitration Schools

NEW YORK—The second session of schooling film tribunal clerks in the workings of arbitration as administered by the American Arbitration Ass'n gets under way January 27 for three days. It trails a similar three-day session ended January 24 at the AAA's headquarters here for the first 16 clerks selected. The 15 clerks that begin their schooling Monday make up the 31 to be in charge of all tribunals in the country.

Last week's program, which will probably be followed again, was highlighted with addresses by James V. Hayes and Robert Sher, department of justice "trouble shooter" and consent decree expert, respectively, on aims and purposes of the decree. The group also heard talks by C. V. Whitney of the administrative committee and Frances Kellor, AAA first vice-president. J. Noble Braden, executive director of the film arbitration system, and department staff heads also spoke on pertinent operations. Other topics, such as handling financial forms and aspects of publicity and public relations were taken up by Dr. Walter Derenberg, legal research director of the film arbitration system, and Lawrence Stessin, publicity director.

The final meeting was turned over to a mock arbitration hearing, in which typical operations in the administration of AAA machinery in respect to film complaints were pursued, followed by an open forum in which the clerks and AAA personnel exchanged questions and answers.

As far as can be ascertained, the clerks are from no particular business sphere, but are, in the main, either credit men or those who have had past experience in handling contracts or have held business management posts. While the decree specifies arbitrators are not to have had any past or present association, directly or indirectly, with the industry no such stipulation covers tribunal clerks. However, the AAA has automatically extended the same provisions that apply to arbitrators to cover clerks.

Flu Detains Hays

NEW YORK—Detained by an attack of the flu, Will H. Hays was slated to leave for the coast the latter part of the week. He had planned to attend the inaugural ceremonies in Washington, but was unable to make the trip.

16 Tribunal Clerks Lined Up

NEW YORK—AAA is set in 16 of the 31 clerks who will function on its arbitration tribunals. Here they are:

City	Type	Clerk	Address
Dallas	A	C. C. Williams	Fidelity Building
Denver	C	J. B. Milton	Chamber of Commerce
Des Moines	C	Bruce Wilson	Walnut Building
Detroit	A	Irvin Yackness	Penobscot Building
Indianapolis	C	Lloyd Littell	Underwriters Building
Kansas City	B	J. H. Brink	Waltower Building
Los Angeles	A	Walter H. Elliot	Van Nuys Building
Milwaukee	B	J. L. Loell	Loyalty Building
Minneapolis	A	Sheldon Ostroot	McKnight Building
Oklahoma City	C	Richard Romang	Commerce Exch. Bldg.
Omaha	C	Byron Pulis	Woodmen of World
Portland	C	J. P. Nelson	Pittock Building
St. Louis	B	C. W. Hudson	Cotton Belt Building
Salt Lake City	C	Roy Backman	Cont'l Bank Building
San Francisco	A	Charles Chambers	Mills Tower Building
Seattle	B	Joe J. Monahan	Not designated yet

How to find the clerks and the tribunals at each of these addresses? Each office will be listed as Motion Picture Tribunal of the American Arbitration Ass'n. The list reveals five "A" tribunals, meaning each will have one clerk and one secretary of higher salary background. There are four in the "B" division thus far, meaning each will also have one clerk and one secretary, but in a lower salary bracket. There are seven in "C," meaning each will have one clerk, no secretary.

May Crack Down on Ticket Tax Evaders

individual theatre must secure written permission from the bureau, granted only after submission of a report showing the number of theatres operated, whether tickets are sold at all of the houses through ticket vending machines which record the number of tickets sold, and the nature of the records kept at the home office and at each theatre.

Tickets sold at reduced rates must show the regular established price of admission and also the reduced price, the tax due and the total. The tax on the reduced price is based on the regular established price, except in the case of legitimate theatres showing a spoken play of not less than one hour 45 minutes duration.

The bureau's explanation is issued ostensibly for the benefit of ticket printers who are "confused" concerning the requirements, but is viewed as direct notice to theatres that they must comply strictly with the law and regulations.

"In accordance with section 1702 of the internal revenue code, the price at which every admission ticket or card is sold must be conspicuously and indelibly printed, stamped or written on that part of the ticket which is to be taken up by the management," it was stated. "This requirement is applicable to tickets which are to be sold for less than 21 cents as well as those selling for 21 cents or more.

"Despite this requirement of the law, ticket printers are sometimes requested to print tickets which do not show the price, but which have a space in which the price is to be later stamped or written by the theatre or other place before the tickets are sold. Ticket printers, as such, do not incur liability to any penalty by printing such tickets. However, in view of the fact that the theatre or other place will incur liability to the penalties provided by section 1703 of the internal revenue code if the price is not printed, stamped or written on the tickets at the time they are sold, the practice of printing tickets without the price is regarded by the bureau as likely to result in violations of the law by proprietors of places of admission and wherever possible orders for such tickets should be discouraged by the printer."

Warner Profit Rises Almost 100 Per Cent

NEW YORK—Warner net for the first quarter of its new fiscal year, the 13 weeks ending November 30, 1940, reflects a gain of $634,187 or slightly under 100 per cent over the corresponding period last year. The current statement shows $1,276,316 as compared with $642,129. This is equivalent to earnings of $12.81 per preferred share and places dividends in arrears at December 1 of $33.6875 per share. After allowing for preferred dividends, the net is equivalent to earnings of 31 cents per common share on the 3,701,090 shares outstanding November 30, but after deducting shares held in the treasury.

Into the Charmed Circle

NEW YORK—An all-time, all-kind of record for the first 25 days of "The Philadelphia Story" at Radio City Music Hall is 553,537 paid admissions.

The film began its fifth week Thursday and thereby joined the charmed circle of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and "Rebecca," the only previous attractions to run that long in the theatre's eight-year history. "Rebecca," in fact, went six weeks, which, on the basis of an exceptionally strong $90,000 for the fourth week of "Story" may find the latter holding it to a tie for longest run.

Statisticians are willing to bet "Story" will also top the two previous long run holders for a five-week figure. They are offering a potential $500,000 gross for five weeks of "Story," which would be some $10,000 over "Snow White" and "Rebecca" for the same period. "Snow White" attendance for the first 25 days was 544,519, while "Rebecca" pulled 504,415.

WHAT AFTER THE DECREE? U. S. SAYS THEATREMEN HOLD ANSWER

Warns Against Attempts To Coerce Exhibitors; Raps Reprisal Fear

WASHINGTON—The kind of business this will be after the three-year trial period of the decree has run out by November 20, 1943, is largely in the hands of the exhibitors of the nation and the degree of cooperation they evidence in the direction of making the consent work in that period, the department of justice believes.

Without publicly so stating, the department is taking cognizance of fears of reprisals which many exhibitors entertain by declaring it will not tolerate such tactics where they become known and by seeking to eliminate them in inviting exhibitors to file confidential complaints for private investigation. As specifically set forth in the decree text, a close watch on operations will be made by a special unit within the department under Robert L. Wright who conducted pre-trial examinations in New York.

Eye Acquisitions

But indicating disturbances already are reverberating is that portion of the justice department's formal statement which discloses theatre acquisitions have been undertaken since the New York decree was entered "which are apparently intended to eliminate the possibility of the independent theatres' securing relief that the decree was intended to provide." With this, and even before the blocks of five selling and arbitration are effective, goes a warning that, while action on acquisition is limited by the decree, the department is prepared to proceed under the Sherman Act to enjoin or divest such acquisitions when undertaken for the purpose and effect of suppressing or eliminating competition. Precisely what acquisitions, actual or contemplated, the department is hitting at has not been divulged. At any rate, enforcements of the decrees entered against Fox West Coast in Los Angeles November 27 and against B&K in Chicago December 10 will be handled by Wright's unit along with the overall New York consent.

Prefer to Investigate Singly

It is also made clear that the department prefers to investigate complaints as they arise and will not favor having them "cleared" through exhibitor organizations, coming to Washington in bunches.

But it gives to exhibitors assurance that they will be protected against reprisals in cases where they filed arbitration complaints rather than accept settlements negotiated without resort to the decree machinery. Contempt actions face any person who attempts to prevent an exhibitor from exercising any of his rights under the decree, it is made clear.

To effectuate the purposes of the government's suit and the decree, it is stressed, exhibitors must give their "wholehearted support." Otherwise, when the three-year trial period expires in November, 1943, the department will be without adequate data as to the working of the decree on which to base its policy for the future.

Explaining that enforcement of the decree, in the first instance, rests largely in the hands of independent exhibitors, the department points out that Wright's unit will be available to them for advice with respect to the remedies available to them under the decree.

"It cannot, of course, undertake to initiate or prosecute an arbitration proceeding but after a final arbitration award is made, the unit will undertake to see that compliance occurs," it is stated. "Where an appeal is taken from an award which involves an important question of construction of the decree, counsel in the unit may ask the appeals board for leave to participate in the appeal as a friend of the court."

Check on Competition

The unit also will undertake to ascertain the competitive effect of each theatre acquisition reported by the consenting defendants pursuant to Section XI of the decree and recommend such action with respect thereto as may be warranted under the decree and the Sherman Act.

Certain types of exhibitor complaints against the consenting defendants are not subject to arbitration under the decree but nevertheless may involve a violation of the Sherman act, it is pointed out. The decree unit will investigate such complaints and recommend such appropriate action as is not inconsistent with the decree, and also will investigate complaints which involve Sherman act violations by distributors and exhibitors who are not parties to the decree.

At the same time, the department will continue its practice of referring meritorious complaints which do not involve sufficient public interest to warrant federal litigation to the parties complained against for voluntary adjustment.

"No exhibitor's complaint will be referred or disclosed to any distributor or other person complained against, except in the course of legal proceedings, without the express authorization of the complaining exhibitor," it is emphasized.

The department requests that all complaints be forwarded to the anti-trust division as they arise. "It has no objection to the simultaneous clearing of exhibitor complaints through any exhibitor organization," it is explained, "but it prefers to make its own prompt and independent investigation of each complaint as it arises, instead of attempting to investigate them at a later date in larger groups."

Must Give Full Picture

Exhibitors are instructed that, in forwarding complaints, a complete picture of their theatre situation must be given; that is, a description of the seating capacity, age, condition and operating policy, including admission prices, run and clearance of the theatre and the houses competing against it, together with a description of the manner in which major product has been divided among them during the current and immediately preceding seasons.

To Study Effect of Decree

"The unit will attempt to observe and evaluate the effect of the decree on the industry as a whole by a study of the following factors, among others," it is explained:

"The extent to which arbitration under the decree succeeds in fairly adjusting the specific exhibitor complaints of which the department has knowledge;

"The general effect of the decree, and particularly the new method of selling, on competition between independent theatres, unaffiliated circuits and affiliated circuits;

"The effect of the decree, and particularly the new method of selling, on competition in producing and distributing films."

The data on which the unit principally will rely in making such studies will come

Jenkins on Coast With Distribution Handbook

HOLLYWOOD — Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel of 20th-Fox, arrived here from New York the latter part of the week with a tentative draft of his handbook on distribution provisions of the consent decree. The printed brochure is 34 pages and is being held up until Sidney R. Kent, president, officially approves its distribution to the sales force.

Kent has been conferring all week with Herman Wobber, general sales manager, Darryl F. Zanuck, Joseph M. Schenck and other studio executives on the 1941-42 program and how the company will be geared to operate under the decree.

Jenkins is due to make a tour of exchanges to explain the provisions of the decree shortly after Kent approves his handbook. He will be assisted by two other home office lawyers and each will cover different exchanges.

NATIONAL RELEASE FEBRUARY 7th!

Weigh Two Sites for Nat'l Theatres Meet

NEW YORK—Annual meeting of National Theatres divisional and home office executives will be held either at Palm Springs or Lake Arrowhead, Calif., the week starting February 10. Palm Springs has been mentioned several times as the likely spot, but Spyros Skouras hasn't yet made up his mind definitely.

Milton Hossfeld, home office booker, leaves Wednesday for Dallas on his vacation and from there will meet the conventionites at the designated site. Others attending from New York, in addition to Skouras, will be William T. Powers, Harry T. Cox, Edward Zabel and Aubrey Schenck.

From the field will be Charles Skouras, Los Angeles; Arch Bowles, San Francisco; Harold J. Fitzgerald, Milwaukee; Rick Ricketson, Denver; E. C. Rhoden, Kansas City; Mike Rosenberg, Los Angeles; Frank Newman, Seattle, in addition to executive assistants.

Main topic at the forthcoming sessions will be the new order of operations under the decree. As an affiliate of 20th-Fox, National Theatres must live up to its provisions. A recent analysis prepared by Powers and Schenck will be distributed to the divisions, as well as a handbook prepared by Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel for 20th-Fox.

Bowles has been in town for the past 10 days. The trip has been in the form of a combined business and vacation jaunt.

See $300-400,000 On "Liberty" Film

New York—Although there have been too few engagements on which to base an estimate, M-G-M sales chieftains hope to realize between $300,000 and $400,000 on "Land of Liberty," proceeds of which will be turned over to war relief agencies of all stricken foreign countries.

First to benefit will be British air raid victims, for whom the first $50,000 has been earmarked.

Equipment Association Convention in Chicago

CHICAGO—The second annual convention of Theatre Equipment Protectice Ass'n will be held at the Congress Hotel, February 8-10 with Harry Graham of Denver as acting chairman. There are no executive officers in the organization and all equipment manufacturers have been invited to attend.

All present will be asked to cooperate with President Roosevelt's rearmament program. Expected to be present are 45 member dealers throughout the country whose annual business aggregates over $10,000,000.

Hornstein to Meeting

NEW YORK—Joseph Hornstein, head of the company which bears his name here and one of the organizers of Theatre Equipment Protective Ass'n, will leave February 7 for Chicago to attend the three-day annual meeting of the organization.

Industry Through Last Congress Unscathed

WASHINGTON—Only one of more than 20 film measures introduced was enacted into law during the Congress which automatically ended January 3.

Repeal of the 1912 law prohibiting the interstate transportation of prize fight pictures, introduced by Sen. W. Warren Barbour (Rep., N. J.), represented the sole contribution of the Congress to the welfare of the film industry in 1939 and 1940.

Nevertheless, the two sessions of the Congress kept the industry active, through the efforts of Sen. Matthew M. Neely (Dem., W. Va.) to pass his bill prohibiting block booking and to get under way a companion measure prohibiting producers or distributors from having any interest in theatres.

Probably only the fact the department of justice was prosecuting the same issues in its New York all-industry suit saved the distributors from the imposition of controls on picture sales. Supported grimly by the West Virginia senator through bitter fights in the interstate commerce committee and on the floor of the Senate, the measure was passed by the Senate in 1939 and last year was the subject of lengthy hearings by the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. That committee was prepared to amend the bill so as to make it less onerous when it suspended consideration of the subject to await the disposition of the block booking question in the consent decree then being negotiated.

With the final adjournment of the Congress all measures pending "died" and will have to be reintroduced and start from scratch if they are to be pressed this session. However, it is quite likely no effort will be made to do anything further with block booking until it is learned how the new setup provided for in the consent decree works out. With the fight-film bill finally passed, only one of the three "stand-bys" of many sessions remains—the copyright bill, on which, however, little action is expected until world conditions settle down.

One other measure received consideration during the past session, the resolution for investigation of Secretary of the Interior Ickes' efforts to assess producers for making pictures in national parks and public lands. Following announcement by Ickes of a schedule of fees running into real money, Sen. Pat McCarren (Dem., Nev.) last March introduced and secured Senate approval of a resolution for an investigation, but it has not been made.

Aside from bills on block booking and copyright, which have come up every session for a number of years, the only film legislation proposed was embodied in several bills for the creation of a Fine Arts Bureau, a bill to permit the making of newsreels from the press galleries, and the divorce measure proposed by Senator Neely.

A tentative effort was made by Senator Neely to get his divorce bill under way, but after two short hearings he acceded to the request of company representatives that the measure be held in abeyance.

Flashes From the News Front

Accept Decree War Plan

MINNEAPOLIS—Formal acceptance of a plan to nullify via state law certain important provisions of the federal consent decree was voted at the special meeting here of Northwest Allied. The measure would compel distributors to sell their entire season's output with a minimum 20 per cent cancellation. Other action included a demand for an immediate reduction of film rentals by ten per cent; opposition to 50 per cent split deals, increased admissions and extended playing time for any pictures; restriction via state laws of theatre building and circuit expansion.

Decree Aftermath "Up to Exhibitors"

from its own files, supplied by complaining exhibitors, the consenting defendants and other members of the industry; the records of the consenting defendants which are accessible to it under the terms of the decree; and the records of the arbitration proceedings and their disposition under the decree kept by the American Arbitration Ass'n and the appeals board.

"At the end of the three-year trial period," the statement continues, "the unit will attempt to answer the following questions and make specific recommendations based upon the answers to these questions:

"1. Has the three-year trial of the consent decree demonstrated that the competition required by the Sherman act can be achieved in the motion picture industry without securing the divorcement of production and distribution from exhibition?

"2. If it has, must the decree be modified in other respects in order to achieve such competition in the industry?

"3. If it must be so modified, what are the specific modifications which will achieve that end?

"The above outline of the proposed activities of the decree unit is necessarily tentative and subject to modification in the light of experience," the department declares in a plea for cooperation. "Suggestions for any modifications of this policy which will increase the effectiveness of the decree and the work of the unit are hereby invited and will receive careful consideration.

Must Cooperate to Work Well

"All exhibitors and their organizations must know that without their wholehearted support, neither the decree nor the decree unit can function properly. While the department is heartily in favor of the settlement of individual differences without resort to arbitration by voluntary agreement between the parties involved wherever the agreement is a fair one, it should be borne in mind that the decree was intended to relieve small exhibitors from the pressure which large circuits and distributors have been able to exert in the past with respect to the terms of such informal settlements. Unless free use of the arbitration machinery established by the decree is made by all exhibitors, this purpose will not have been fulfilled.

"It has been suggested that small exhibitors who insist on filing arbitration complaints rather than accepting settlements negotiated without resort to the decree machinery, may be subjected to reprisals in connection with future negotiations with the consenting defendants. The department believes that these fears are unfounded, but is prepared to prosecute for contempt any person who attempts to prevent an exhibitor from exercising any of his rights under the decree, by economic coercion or otherwise.

Would Punish for Reprisals

"The suggestion also has been made that exhibitors fear that complaints which are made to the department and referred to distributors will bring reprisals from them. The department believes that these fears are not well founded, but is also prepared to take whatever steps are necessary to punish such conduct. It can obviously do nothing about the cases of those exhibitors who may let such fears prevent them from making complaints to it.

"The questions which will be up for decision on November 20, 1943, must inevitably be largely determined by the data collected by the department during the preceding three-year period. Unless exhibitors make full use of the arbitration procedure set up by the decree and supply full information with respect to the effect of the decree on their business to the decree unit, that data will be woefully incomplete. Without such exhibitor cooperation on a substantial scale, these questions are certain to be erroneously decided, to the detriment of exhibitors and the industry as a whole."

What the Studios Are Doing

No Disney Competition For Cartoon Award

HOLLYWOOD—After winning the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award for his short cartoons for five consecutive years, Walt Disney has notified Academy officials he will not compete in that classification this year. Producer gave as his reason the belief that it is more important for him to focus public attention on his feature-length subjects, although the Academy has ruled "Fantasia" may not compete because its Los Angeles release date is beyond the deadline. Disney stressed his action was not to be construed as indicating any antagonistic attitude toward the Academy.

Forty Features in Work; Heavy February Slated

Studios are continuing to hold to their fast picture-making pace, which finds 40 features now in work, another 16 scheduled for camera starts during the balance of January and 22 more written in for launching during February. Of them, 21 are in the top-budget category. RKO Radio and M-G-M, with four each to roll this month, are the busiest spots, while Paramount leads the February list with six starters.

Studios Stock Up on New Story Properties

Walter Wanger has swung back into action with the purchase of "Sundown," a new Saturday Evening Post serial by Barre Lyndon, which United Artists will release . . . 20th Century-Fox paid a reported $110,000 for screen rights to the venerable Brandon Thomas play, "Charley's Aunt," and also bought "The Dead Take No Bows" from Richard Burke . . . "Reunion," story of France under German rule by Ladislaus Bus-Fekte, goes to M-G-M . . . Paramount bought "Dangerous Holiday," spy melodrama, from Sidney Shelton and Ben Roberts.

Three More for Rowland; Hathaway Leaves Para't

Henry Hathaway, producer-director, and Paramount have amicably severed their contract. Hathaway will announce a new connection shortly . . . United Artists has picked up its option on Richard A. Rowland, whose first for the company was "Cheers for Miss Bishop." He will do three more for UA . . . M-G-M has assigned James Stewart to appear opposite Jeanette MacDonald in the re-make of "Smilin' Through" . . . Brian Aherne will co-star with Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland in Paramount's "Skylark" . . . Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Molly will headline a forthcoming RKO Radio musical . . . Paramount has launched an extensive radio exploitation campaign for "You're the One."

$175,000 to Shearer on Certain Story Rights

NEW YORK—Norma Shearer, representing the late Irving G. Thalberg's estate, has received $175,000 from M-G-M as settlement for claims and interests in certain story rights of pictures made while her late husband was in charge of production for M-G-M. However, the settlement does not preclude the estate from receiving a percentage of additional monies from the distribution of pictures made during the tenure of Thalberg.

Mendel Silberberg, coast attorney, represented Miss Shearer and the Thalberg estate, while Leopold Friedman and Irving Greenfield acted for Loew's, Inc., parent company for M-G-M.

Paramount Realigns Sales Under Decree

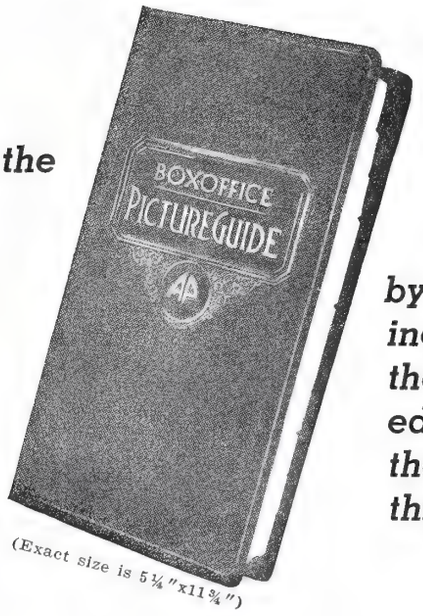
the former city by Saul Frifield, former salesman in the Charlotte territory, thus, Usher, LiBeau, Braly, Owen, Kirby and the one thus far undesignated district manager comprise the division headed by Smith who originally started with Paramount in Canada, then was transferred to Milwaukee and Cincinnati and later to San Francisco. He was made west coast district head when Myke H. Lewis resigned that post about two and a half years ago.

"Although the creation of two sales divisions gives the western group the greatest number of exchanges," Agnew explains, "quotas will be about evenly balanced because of the denser population and correspondingly greater number of accounts in the eastern territory."

Meanwhile, Del Goodman, long far eastern representative for 20th Century-Fox, becomes general manager for Canada, succeeding Morris A. Milligan, who has resigned because he reportedly declined to accept a shift to the prairie states.

All promotions and changes are to become effective between February 1 and March 1.



Screen Two New Ones

CHICAGO—"The Lady Eve," produced by Preston Sturges and co-starring Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda, and "Reaching for the Sun" with Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew were screened for Paramount's sales officials during their three-day meeting. "Western Daze," first of the George Pal Madcap Model shorts, also was shown.

"A Good Year," Says Exhibitor at Large

sharp revival with the New Year. The weather continued open which had a good effect. And we can expect the huge sums being expended by the government to have a beneficial effect on industry in general. Motion pictures will get their share."

Wess Huss, of Associated Theatres and president of the ITO, agreed business, while sluggish in general, is reviving and the outlook for 1941 looks very encouraging.

Harold Bernstein, independent exhibitor and secretary of the ITO, thinks the full burden of good business rests with the producer. "It is up to the producer to combat the increasing lagging interest shown by the public in motion pictures. It is a matter of better product, which we must have to combat this lack of interest. When we have good product we have good business," is his comment.

The decree meets with some speculation, but little enthusiasm. "We have tried everything else," states White, "and lived through it. We have gone through every other change in distribution and we may as well try this."

To sit tight and await developments is the disposition of other exhibitors. The opinion is expressed among large chain owners, that word-of-mouth will adequately advertise the worth of available features without the necessity of managers and exhibitors attending trade showings, which in some cases is looked upon as an encroachment on time.

Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—While independent exhibitors in this area are not taking the decree too seriously, most of them are opposed to it. In fact, they say they already are faced with plenty of problems and that the decree will bring about more worries for them. Some say they do not thoroughly understand the new law and that few can tell how it is going to work out.

"We have everything to lose and nothing to gain," said one exhibitor. "Instead of having to buy films 10 or 12 times a year, the way I see it, I shall have to buy them 120 times a year."

Theatre business is holding its own in this area and some exhibitors say that in this particular section it should show a decided pickup in 1941. Construction work at Camp Robinson, near Little Rock, has brought several thousand workers in various crafts to the city. It also is estimated between 30,000 and 40,000 soldiers will be stationed at Camp Robinson in the near future.

C. C. Mundo, owner of the Rex here, recently opened the new Liberty, North Little Rock. Malco will open a new house in the Park Hill section, North Little Rock. The Crescent, owned by O. G. Wren, is being reconstructed at a cost of several thousand dollars.

Practically all Arkansas industrial cities expect a better year in 1941 than in 1940.

Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY—Business in Oklahoma will be up as far as boxoffices are concerned as theatre men look for much better grosses in 1941 than in 1940. The latter was not a bad year, however, as some general improvement was shown over the previous year. Biggest boost is expected to be in medium sized towns.

Defense spending will probably have some effect on grosses, but it is not felt that the amount of Oklahoma's share will bring any gross boom during 1941. Suburbans are expected to benefit most.

Previously at the turn of the year theatre owners have generally been worried about the year's grosses but this year concern is more in the direction of what is going to happen on the decree phase of operations. Oklahoma is certain to witness film "hoarding" from now on out with every picture of any value being played for every day's playing time it will stand. Plenty of changes of policy are looked for as a result of the jumbled state of the booking end of the business.

Both circuit executives and independent operators are far more concerned about what the decree is going to do to 1941's business than they are about the amount of business available. They have plenty of confidence on the latter score and none whatever on the former.

Wilmington

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Independent operators differ sharply from one of the two circuits operating local houses in regard to the outlook for 1941 in the 12 theatres of the city.

Edgar Doob, manager of Loew's, predicts as far as Loew's is concerned, business would exceed 1940 by about 20 per cent. "The year started out with a bang for us," Doob explains, "and I predict 1941 will be one of the best years the theatre has had. The studios are concentrating their production for home consumption with the loss of the foreign market."

On the other hand, Joseph A. DeFiore, manager of the Park, independent neighborhood house and president of the Independent MPTOA of Delaware and Eastern Maryland, paints an entirely different picture.

A member of the Delaware committee for national defense, DeFiore explains so far business for the majority of the independent houses is far below expectations.

Miami

MIAMI—Expectations of local theatremen for this year are most clearly indicated by the fact that theatre construction has outpaced that of any other year during the past decade. Besides numerous costly renovations, there have been four new houses opened in the past three months.

Even in the suburban area of metropolitan Miami, the resort city of Hollywood, attendance appears to be up considerably over that of last year at this same time.

Paramount Partners To Meet in March

NEW YORK—Looked upon as its most important conclave in years, Paramount theatre partners from this country and Canada will convene in Virginia during the latter part of March for a three-day session that will attract every ranking executive of the company's theatre enterprises, as well as those from the parent company's home office. Y. Frank Freeman is expected to be the sole coast representative.

"We're in the theatre business to make money, just as every one else is," declared a circuit spokesman in poising what he considered the leading thought to dominate the session. "If the decree doesn't prove to be onerous, we'll make that money. If it does, we'll have to find other ways to make a buck, and that way will probably be among ourselves."

The Virginia meeting, exact date and place of which have not yet been set, will present problems in operation that have not come up since 1930. The impact of the industrial boom as it bears on shifting populations where huge numbers of workers have moved to take new factory jobs is a big factor which works both ways. Economies to be considered in the light of higher operating costs to conform to the decree is another topic of importance.

Pat Garyn Succumbs To a Heart Attack

DALLAS — W. P. (Pat) Garyn, 52, widely known in national distribution circles, died Wednesday morning in St. Paul's hospital here due to a heart attack.

PAT GARYN

Garyn located in Dallas in the fall of 1937 with Trailer-Made Service. Subsequent deals included the organization of independent companies such as Texas Film Co., which passed over into other hands. Mrs. Vera Garyn was due here by plane Wednesday night to complete funeral arrangements along with a sister, Mrs. Wolfe, of St. Louis.

Marriage License Gets "Ecstasy" Past Censors

NEW YORK—Following four years of censorial prodding by Samuel Cummins, an approved, appended version of "Ecstasy" has entered a fourth week at the Ambassador. The censor board reversed the usual procedure of snipping and ordered the inclusion into the footage of a divorce, and a wedding license for the straying lovers to prove their legal right to the highly touted climax of the film. The additional footage runs about 1,000 feet.

High Sierra

F — Melodrama

WB (——) 100 Minutes Rel. Jan. 25, '41

Every foot of the way "High Sierra" is solidly compact entertainment with thrill and suspense elements that fade and recur in quick succession. Audiences are going to relish this one. Also, it is another to enlarge the batting average of the team comprising Hal Wallis, Mark Hellinger, Raoul Walsh. Chief performances turned in by Humphrey Bogart and Ida Lupino are sharply etched and restrained; their emotional impact is keen. The supporting field never lets that section down. The W. R. Burnett story deals with a gangster type since gone into the history book. Played by Bogart it tells of a big time bandit "released" from prison to pull a highly remunerative jewel robbery at a resort hotel. The setup is carefully planned, Bogart's part is to get the "rocks" and deliver them to his boss in Los Angeles. By the time he gets to this point he proves himself something of a human being in diverse sequences with Miss Lupino, a migrating Ohio family going west and with a stray dog in a mountain camp. Throughout there is the symbolism of the title, throughout the approach is tellingly realistic and, concluding, has that much sought after different quality.

Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart, Henry Hull, Henry Travers, Alan Curtis, Arthur Kennedy.

EXPLOITIPS: Bogart and Miss Lupino are the names for the marquee. An interesting stunt can be worked up by buying back numbers of the local dailies and imprinting a heavy block type headline diagonally across page one to the tune of "Gunman Trapped On High Sierra." Should make a striking throwaway. Buy spot announcement time on the local radio. Plug "Wanted" posters around the main drag.

CATCHLINES: No Man Ever Reached Greater Heights to Wait for Death.

In "High Sierra" You'll Find Relentless Drama Mounting to a Peak of Thrills.

Life With Henry

F — Comedy

Paramount (4016) 82 Minutes Rel. Jan. 24, '41

That boy's here again—Henry Aldrich, the All-American adolescent whose air antics make his ether program one of the more popular with both adults and youngsters. There is no readily-discernible reason why this, the second chapter in his screen career, shouldn't prove comparably acceptable to everyone who enjoys clean, human, down-to-earth entertainment. In most departments it is considerable of an improvement over the initial film venture, "What a Life," which did right well itself. In characterizations, dialogue and situations, the feature comes closer to ensnaring the atmosphere of the Aldrich Family radio stint. Jackie Cooper again is cast as Henry, while his inseparable foil, "Dizzy," is portrayed by Eddie Bracken. Both are highly creditable delineations of typical American youngsters with a penchant for getting into trouble. Henry makes application to accompany a boys' trip to Alaska and undertakes to earn the necessary $100 which, plus certain character qualifications, would make him eligible. Production and direction were ably handled by Jay Theodore Reed.

Jackie Cooper, Leila Ernst, Eddie Bracken, Fred Niblo, Hedda Hopper, Kay Stewart, Moroni Olsen, Rod Cameron.

EXPLOITIPS: This is the second in the Aldrich Family series and has considerable exploitation value through the fact that the radio show of the same name is one of the most popular in the nation. Have high schools conduct an election to select their most popular male student, the winner to be guest of honor at the opening day's showing. Give title credits to Jackie Cooper.

CATCHLINES: Yes, Henry Aldrich Is Back Again . . . In and Out of More Trouble Than You'd Think Two Boys Could Cook Up.

It's Funny as the Radio Show . . . And a Riot on the Screen . . . The Further Adventures of Henry Aldrich, American Boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith

F — Comedy

RKO Radio (117) 95 Minutes Rel. Jan. 31, '41

British Alfred Hitchcock, who demonstrated to Hollywood and audiences everywhere his ability as a dramatic director in "Rebecca" and as a pilot of suspense and action in "Foreign Correspondent," displays an equal flair for humor in this, his first American comedy. As entertainment in the lighter vein, it is virtually flawless, and with Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery to grace the marquee, there is no apparent reason why it shouldn't quickly attain the hit class. Hitchcock was furnished all of the materials necessary to inspire the best work of a master craftsman. There were a speedy, bubbling and brilliantly-dialogued screenplay by Norman Krasna; unstinting production accoutrements; and a wisely selected and sensitive cast. The co-stars, Lombard and Montgomery, turn in magnificent comedy performances, while their fast pace fails to tire the supporting mummers. They portray a young married couple who are constantly feuding, despite their love for each other, and in the face of a set of rules of conduct, entirely of the wife's making. After three years of bliss, a technicality is uncovered to establish that they never were legally married. They separate, but the feuding continues through a new courtship which terminates in an ultimate—and this time legal—marriage.

Carole Lombard, Robert Montgomery, Gene Raymond, Jack Carson, Philip Merivale, Lucile Watson, William Tracy.

EXPLOITIPS: The teaming of Robert Montgomery and Carole Lombard is unusual enough to warrant special promotion. Director Alfred Hitchcock's name should also be of some value on the marquee. Direct a special campaign toward the Smiths, holding a special "Smith" night, awarding prizes for the Mr. and Mrs. Smith who most closely resemble Montgomery and Miss Lombard, etc.

CATCHLINES: He Directed "Rebecca" . . . And Now Alfred Hitchcock Gives You the Comedy Sensation of 1941.

They Scrapped Through Three Years of Bliss . . . Then They Marry Again to Start the Fight Anew.

Fast, Bubbling Dialogue . . . And Humor in the Lighter Vein.

Honeymoon for Three

F — Comedy

WB (——) 76 Minutes Rel. Jan. 18, '41

A farce comedy about a novel-writing Casanova, it strains rather hard for laughs in many sequences, but in its entirety manages to pan out sufficient humorous lines and situations to please generally, although audiences cannot be expected to consider it particularly uproarious. The picture is unstintingly produced and the retarding weaknesses are attributable to writing and direction, which apparently went overboard in an effort to point up the script's best qualities. There is nothing in the story about a honeymoon. George Brent is a successful modern author, sought after by women of all ages and stations, but in love, passively, with his efficient secretary, Ann Sheridan. Arriving in Cleveland for a lecture, he encounters an old sweetheart who romantically decides he is the only man in her life and prepares to desert her husband. The secretary's fast thinking unravels all of the tangled situations which result and she, of course, winds up with the ink-slinging Lothario. Directed by Lloyd Bacon.

Ann Sheridan, George Brent, Charlie Ruggles, Osa Massen, Jane Wyman, William T. Orr, Lee Patrick.

EXPLOITIPS: There is plenty of potential marquee and exploitation material to work with on this one. Give Ann Sheridan and George Brent, whose names have been linked romantically in real life, a buildup as the screen's newest and most sensational romantic team. Don't neglect the "oomph" appellation for Miss Sheridan. Charlie Ruggles is another selling name which might fit into your plans. Make title tieups with, for example, a car dealer, on the line: "Make it a 'Honeymoon for Three' by giving your bride a new Ford." Prepare mailing pieces as pamphlets labeled: "Honeymooners! Make no plans until you've read this," and emblazon picture and theatre copy through the inside.

CATCHLINES: He Knew All About Love . . . In His Novels . . . But When a Real Woman Fell For Him . . . He Found He Wasn't So Smart.

The Mad Doctor F

Melodrama

Paramount (4018) 90 Minutes Rel. Feb. 14, '41

In most situations this will prove a celluloid problem child. The film is too long to function as supporting fare and is not sufficiently meritorious to grace the upper half of the bill except in the most unimportant program arrangements. The picture starts out as a chiller, goes off at a tangent to invade the fields of psychiatry, and then settles down to a routine of unmysterious, endless and useless murders. The entire blame for the feature's frailties, and they are legion, is attributable to the story, the multitudinous vagaries of which an apparently hard-working cast and director were unable to transcend. Basil Rathbone portrays the mad doctor, whose favorite pastime is marrying heiresses and promptly dispatching them to a better world. Ultimately he falls in love but, by this time, his past has caught up with him and he is forced to continue his orgy of killings. Directed by Tim Whelan.

Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew, John Howard, Barbara Allen, Ralph Morgan, Martin Kosleck, Kitty Kelly.

EXPLOITIPS: Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew and John Howard rate the marquee and advertising credits. Among radio fans the name of Barbara Allen (Vera Vague) might also be worthy of exploitation. Have house artist construct a leering compo-board portrait of Rathbone with green, blinking eyes, to be mounted above the marquee or used as the lobby center-piece. Emphasize the picture's chill angles by staging a special "midnight show" and install a "heart tester" in the lobby to ascertain whether or not prospective patrons are "healthy" enough to "take it." Stills depicting Rathbone in particularly sinister poses could be tied into displays of health foods and tonics, along the lines: "Do you feel like this? Try Pep-O."

CATCHLINES: He Committed a Series of Horrible Crimes . . . Then Discovered That Real Love Couldn't Erase His Past.

A Human Monster . . . Whose Heart Was Touched by a Beautiful Girl . . . Too Late.

Basil Rathbone in a Sinister Role of a Mad Doctor Whose Past Wouldn't Let Him Alone.

The Face Behind the Mask F

Drama

Columbia (2029) 69 Minutes Rel. Jan. 16, '41

The horror-gangster crowd will get their money's worth in "The Face Behind the Mask," which offers Peter Lorre in the main role. He is a Hungarian immigrant who gets horribly burned in a hotel fire—his face is disfigured. He turns criminal in order to get funds to pay for plastic surgery. The best a doctor can do is create a mask to hide the disfiguration. He meets a beautiful blind girl and they become close companions. Lorre tries to quit his gang. They think he has framed them. The girl is killed by a planted bomb. Lorre, in revenge, informs the police and flies the gang out to the middle of a desert in Arizona where they all perish. The various contributing elements of the story are well-handled and Robert Florey's direction effectively keeps them alike. It is good enough as support for any program.

Peter Lorre, Evelyn Keyes, Don Beddoe, George E. Stone, John Tyrrell, Stanley Brown.

EXPLOITIPS: Play this one up with the horror angle in the fore. Run a one-shot newspaper contest with a collection of portraits of various players who are wearing masks. For correct identification offer passes. Invite children to come to the theatre wearing grotesque masks. For poster displays have a rear view of Lorre with the following print: "We Dare You to Look At This Man's Face and Forget It." Get up a mask display with borrowed items from museums, department and art stores.

CATCHLINES: When You See This Man's Face on the Screen . . . You'll Never Forget It.

What Nameless Terror Lurks Behind This Mask? . . . What Strange Vengeance Is Brewing?

A Thrilling Story of Gang Terrorism . . . And a Terrible Retribution.

Scattergood Baines F

Comedy Drama

RKO Radio (123) 69 Minutes Rel. Feb. 21, '41

A fair portion of the nation's filmgoers should receive "Scattergood Baines" as another entertaining treatise on small town life. Again the accent is on a philosophical old gent who gives advice freely, who bests the slickest brains from the big city and maneuvers the minds and morals of his community with his little finger. And, to top it all off, he plays a courtly cupid. The role is tailored for Guy Kibbee. One day he wanders into Coldriver with $40. He invests $37.50 in a "problematical" venture, makes $750. He runs this stake into a bankroll, control of a spur line, two-car railroad, real estate and a full-rigged hardware store. Then he sits around in front of his store dispensing advice to all comers and weathers the storm of adversity in shipshape style. Spice this dish with dry humor, rustic accents and a romantic problem and you have "Scattergood Baines."

Guy Kibbee, Carol Hughes, John Archer, Francis Trout, Emma Dunn, Lee White.

EXPLOITIPS: Since this film is based on the Clarence Budington Kelland stories a good deal of effort should be expended on the bookshop and the dispensers of magazines. Tie these outlets in with posters and stills. A spot announcement over a radio station should contact the audience that is not to be reached through other channels. Get an old buggy, decorate with signs and have it driven up and down the main drag by an appropriately costumed ballyhoo man.

CATCHLINES: Meet Scattergood Baines . . . He's Slick and Sharp . . . But You'll Love Him.

He Put Coldriver on the Map . . . He Plays Cupid . . . He Has Plenty of Friends . . . He'll Make More, When You Meet Him . . . That's Scattergood Baines.

He Out-Slicked the City Slickers . . . And Ran $40 Into a Hardware Store.

Clarence Budington Kelland's Inimitable Sage Comes to the Screen.

The Monster and the Girl F

Horror Melodrama

Paramount (——) 62 Minutes Rel. ——

While this cannot hope for universal patronage or acclaim, it should find takers in profitable numbers among the horror fans for whom it will be a treat. The film has plenty of suspense and a bumper crop of murders, sufficient to sate the appetites of the most avid chill-seekers. The production is adequately mounted, enacted by an able cast and competently directed. It was produced under the title of "D. O. A." (Dead on Arrival), which former name is an index to its story material. In fact, the screenplay adroitly merges two yarns. The opening sequences reveal the story of an innocent girl from the hinterlands who, seeking employment in the city, is tricked into a life of shame by mobsters. Her brother attempts to avenge her betrayal and is accused of, and executed for, a murder of which he is innocent. Before dying he gives a scientist permission to use his brain, which is transferred to the body of a live ape. Escaping, the anthrapoid sets out on a mission of revenge and kills all members of the mob as well as the district attorney who sent the innocent man to the chair. Directed by Stuart Heisler.

Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Paul Lukas, Joseph Calleia, Onslow Stevens, George Zucco, Rod Cameron, Phillip Terry.

EXPLOITIPS: Ellen Drew is probably the only name here worthy of exploitation effort. Sell the picture on its chill-horror angles. Have house artist construct a life-sized figure of a gorilla with eyes which emit green flashes and mount it above the marquee or as the lobby center-piece. A figure of Ellen Drew shrinking from it would add to the layout. Spot one-minute broadcasts on radio stations asserting the "gorilla" has "escaped" and warning everyone to "keep out of its way." Stage a midnight "horror" show.

CATCHLINES: Half-Man . . . Half-Gorilla . . . And All Bad . . . Was the Beast Produced Through a Scientist's Cunning.

He Had a Terrible Mission in Life . . . Died Before He Completed It . . . But Lived Again . . . in a Gorilla's Body.

Admission Tax Return Over 43 Millions

WASHINGTON—Reduction of the admission-tax exemption last July and generally improved business brought federal admission tax collections for 1940 to a new peak of $43,483,372.84, according to bureau of internal revenue figures.

The year's take more than doubled the $19,876,311.98 collected in 1939, and on the basis of five months' experience with the lower exemption indicated that the 1941 revenue would be between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000, probably quite close to the latter figure.

Reflecting the usual year-end let down, collections in December declined to $6,653,971 from $7,124,225.19 in November, which was the peak month of the year, but continued the spread over 1939, when $1,974,534.56 was collected in December.

For the first five months of its application, the 20-cent exemption brought in probably $20,000,000 in additional revenue, making allowance for the better business which is believed to have prevailed as compared with 1939. Bureau figures for the first half of the fiscal year, July to December 31, show collections of $32,315,541.31 compared with $10,720,084.47 in the preceding comparative semester, an increase of $21,595,456.84. For 1940 as a whole, an increase of $23,607,060.86 was shown over the preceding year.

The drop in collections in December was the first decline recorded for a number of months and broke the upward trend which had been displayed consistently up to that time from the adoption of the 20-cent exemption in July. Collections for the year, by months, were reported by the bureau as follows:

	1940	1939
January	1,486,534.64	1,564,134.28
February	1,852,763.82	1,503,127.31

Metro's Realignment Awaits Rodgers' Return

NEW YORK—Realignment of a score of M-G-M branch sales posts, particularly the promotion and transfer of bookers, office managers, student bookers and salesmen is expected to be completed shortly after the return from the coast of William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, who is due Monday.

Schnitzers in for Funeral

PITTSBURGH—Joseph I. Schnitzer, his wife and his brother, Abe, were here Friday from Hollywood to attend funeral services for Mrs. Schnitzer, mother of the two men.

What the AAA Clerks Look Like—

Of the 19 appointed to the film tribunals under the decree, two are missing from these mass shots. The studied camera studies, however, include: upper row, left to right and standing—Charles Chambers, San Francisco; Walter Elliott, Los Angeles; Detlef Hansen, Atlanta; J. B. Milton, Denver, and Joseph J. Monahan, Seattle. Same upper tier, left to right, but seated: Lloyd Littell, Indianapolis; J. P. Nelson, Portland; Irving Yackness, Detroit, and J. H. Brink, Kansas City.

Need for Greater Effort in Merchandising—Schine

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—The necessity for greater effort in merchandising entertainment as a result of the decree, was emphasized by J. Myer Schine, president of the circuit bearing his name, during the course of a four-day zone managers' meeting here. Schine observed this effort will be most needed in the immediate future.

Attending the meetings were Zone Managers Louis Lazar, Frank Boucher and Gus Lampe, bookers and home office executives.

During the sessions it was revealed one manager and two assistants have been called for selective training. They are Herman Addison, manager of the State, Cortland, N. Y., who is scheduled to leave for a training camp January 29, and two assistants from the Ohio zone who are to leave January 27.

The circuit's long closed Palace in Watertown reopens Saturday on a two-day policy.

3 Tribunal Clerks Are Added by AAA

NEW YORK—Additional information on tribunal clerks for local AAA arbitration boards since the printing of page 16 is as follows:

The address for Joe J. Monahan in Seattle has been designated as the Marion Building. New appointments, all Class A boards, are: Atlanta, Detlef H. Hansen jr., Mortgage Guaranty Bldg.; Boston, Henry de la Morandiere, Chamber of Commerce; Washington, H. B. Barton, Denrike Bldg.

The Class A rating means that each board will have one clerk and one secretary of higher salary background. Clerks have been named now for 19 tribunals.

Matty Fox Due Monday

NEW YORK—Matty Fox, Universal executive, arrives here Monday from the coast.

"Philadelphia Story" Stays Strong in Fourth Week

NEW YORK—This is the fourth week in a row that this department has led off with "The Philadelphia Story." If it's getting routine here, it isn't at the Music Hall, where there's good cause for excitement over $90,000 at the end of the fourth week. The fifth ends January 29, but the attraction may go a sixth.

Otherwise, it's generally on the quiet side. No particular reason, just quiet. Some managers say too much important radio competition all of a sudden; others aren't saying. Anyhow, "Second Chorus" at the Paramount is about the only other entrant in the big money, with $50,000 for the first week.

Charity Was Their Keynoter—

Tuesday and the Hotel Astor saw the induction of new officers of M. P. Associates. On the dais were Arthur Greenblatt of Monogram who is becoming increasingly popular as a toastmaster in New York; Jack Ellis of RKO, retiring president after three consecutive terms; Joseph Lee of 20th Century-Fox, new president, and Sol Trauner of Columbia, who was re-elected treasurer.
